THE BATTLE WITH SENATE IS NOW JUST IMPENDING

A Spectacular Struggle Anticipated if the Government Bills Are Slaughtered

Ottawa, May 8.—If the Liberal Senators carry out the decision which they came to at a caucus held yesterday the farmers of Canada will have to wait at least another year before the Government is able to carry out its advanced and progressive policy of generous assistance with the co-operation of the Provinces in the establishment of better highways.

The Highways Act has passed the Commons and is ready for the Upper Chamber and the caucus yesterday, it is said, decided to again kill the measure. The Agricultural Bill which is an almost identical measure, will likely be allowed to pass. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been in conference with the Liberal leaders during the past few days and there is little doubt that the decision of the Senate was practically at the dictation of the minority in the Commons.

Likely Kill Navy Bill.

The Naval Bill, it is understood, was not discussed by the Senators at their caucus yesterday, but another party gathering will be held next week as soon as the Navy Bill passes the House when the members of the Upper Chamber will make a final decision. In view of their decision on the Highways Act, it is felt now that they are likely to kill the Navy Bill as well. If there is a general slaughter of Government bills by the Upper Chamber the close of the session may see a spectacular struggle between the two bodies. The Government fresh from the people and with a big majority behind it, will not stand by and see the unrepresentative Senate arbitrarily thwart its will without vigorous protest. There are many Conservatives who are strongly in favor of drastic Senate reform in such a case.

MR. W. OVEREND PASSES AWAY VERY SUDDENLY

A terribly sudden death took place yesterday evening at about 5 o'clock when Mr. W. Overend, a former prosperous business man of the city dropped dead. Mr. Overend was mixing some cement in front of one of his houses near the Exhibition Grounds, when he was suddenly siezed with heart failure and expired almost immediately after being stricken.

The deceased who was widely known and universally respected, was 63 years of age. His wife predeceased him by some years.

Mr. Overend leaves to mourn his death his sons Kenneth V. (M.D.), of Drayton, N. Dakota; Arthur, in Toronto, and Harry in Hamilton, and his daughters, Miss May, in New York, the Misses Clara and Marion at home, Mrs. L. J. Picord of this city and Mrs. Price, of Clinton, Mass.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been decided upon. Further particulars later.

ONTARIO'S FIRST VOTE OF CENSURE

Toronto, May 8.—The vote of censure passed upon Mr. Proudfoot yesterday in the Legislature is without precedent in the annals of the Provincial Assembly. The Rykert case of forty years ago is the only one in which feeling has ever run so high on the question of a member's conduct, and even then no vote of censure was passed.

GIGANTIC WELCOME TO BE TENDERED TO HON BORDEN

Canada's Premier to Speak at The Arena in Toronto on the Nineteenth

Toronto, May 8.—Right Hon. R. L. Borden, Prime Minister of Canada, has accepted an invitation, tendered by the officers of the Central Conservative Association on behalf of all the Conservative organizations of the city, to address a mass meeting at the Arena, Mutual street, on Monday evening, May 19th. The Premier is to be supported by able speakers, Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor; Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; and Sir James Whitney, Premier of Ontario. Other Federal Cabinet Ministers may be present. Preliminary arrangements for the visit of the Prime Minister, a big parade by the various ward associations, and a monster mass meeting in the Arena, were made last night by the executive of the Central Conservative Association, who are now busy completing plans.

Everybody's Premier.

On the principle that Hon. Mr. Borden is Premier of all the people, those in charge of arrangements have decided that no discrimination should be exercised in the issuance of tickets. No opportunity will be given for a charge that this audience was "hand-picked."

FROST VISITED NIAGARA

St. Catharines, Ont., May 8.—The first frost since the blossoms appeared on the tender fruit bearing trees visited the fruit belt last night, but it was so light that no damage is anticipated. Many growers will heed this warning and delay setting out tomato plants for a few days.

TARIFF BILL IN WASHINGTON NOW NEARS ITS COMPLETION

Washington, May 8.—Delayed in its passage last night by a parliamentary technicality, the Underwood tariff bill was engrossed to-day for presentation to the House at its hour of meeting, 2 p.m.

Because of the Democratic insistence on a point of order against the Republican motion to recommit the bill to the Ways and Means Committee with a view to forcing a tariff commission provision, the reading of the bill in its engrossed form was made necessary.

The parliamentary tacticians of both the majority and the minority prepared to-day for the final fray over the point of order, but the result, in view of the large Democratic majority in the House was a foregone conclusion. Meantime the Democratic leaders in the Senate were preparing for the consideration of the bill there.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC FEED WIRES TO BE UNDERGROUND

No Pole Lines to be Erected on George and Charlotte Sts.—Stores in this Section of City to be Served From REAR of Premises

The impression has gone abroad amongst our citizens that in installing the Hydro-Electric service Council has abandoned the underground feed wire scheme in the main business section of the city. This is not the case by any means, and The Times in its report of the proceedings in this regard was quite explicit as to Council's programme, which is as follows: On George street, from McDonnel to the C. P. R. station, and on Charlotte street, from George to the Grand Trunk station, the street lighting is to be from either standard lamps or magnetite arc lamps fed by underground wires,—absolutely no overhead wires. The STORES in this section will be served with Electric current for their lights from an overhead system erected in the REAR of the properties, and not on the streets—and but few poles to be used at that. If arrangements cannot be made with owners of properties on George and Charlotte streets for permission to erect a pole line at the REAR of their properties, from which to serve them with current for commercial purposes, then the underground system on the streets in question will be adhered to, as originally planned, for this service as well as street lighting. And Ald. Johnston, chairman of the Power Committee, wishes it distinctly understood that under no circumstances will council erect a pole line in this section of the city for Hydro-Electric purposes. The object in considering a pole line at all AT THE REAR of properties on George and Charlotte streets is to effect a big saving in expenditure, which saving can be applied to the installation of the best possible street illuminating service for Peterborough's business area.

"HAT" BOXES DISTURBED BUT GUILTY MAN IS FREE

Medicine Hat, May 8.—Judge Carpenter has dismissed the charge against W. P. Dunden of interfering with Ballot boxes. It was proven that the boxes had been tampered with, but the judge could not place the blame from the evidence adduced.

TURKEY BEATEN MAY RISE AGAIN

Enver Bey, Young Turk Leader Confident of Future of His Country

Kalikratia, Turkey, May 8. — The village of Kalikratia is pleasantly situated on the western shore of Lake Cockmedje (the bigger.) It is the headquarters of General Khourchid Pasha and of the army corps which forms the left wing of the Chatalja army. Enver Bey, the famous young Turk leader, is here. He has changed little during the past two years. The sun of the Tripolitaine desert has tanned his handsome features a brick-brown color. The eyes are full of fire, and this extraordinary man is just as full of energy and enthusiasm as when, mounted on a chair in front of a cafe in Salonica, he preached a holy war against Abdul the Tyrant.

WHY SHE FAILED.

Enver Bey was neither disheartened nor dismayed. There was no note of despair in his utterances. Turkey had paid the penalty of being weak and unprepared. She had drunk to the full the bitter cup of humiliation. So did France as a result of her war with Prussia, but a greater France arose upon the ashes of the destroyed empire. What France and the French people accomplished Enver Bey is confident the Turks, in a lesser degree, perhaps, can accomplish. The Turk as a soldier is endowed with a tenacity of purpose and an enduring patience that will overcome much.

Enver Bey is still a fervent believer in the future of Turkey in Europe, but it is upon her army she must rely if she would regain her feet. With peace will come the task of army reorganization and the setting of the military household in order.

PRESENT WAR A TERRIBLE LESSON.

The present war has been a terrible lesson for Turkey, and in Enver's opinion, Turks would be fools indeed if they did not profit by it.

Nominally chief-of-staff, Enver Bey is in reality commander at Kalikratia.

He has contrived to infuse some of his own energy and optimism into the army forming the Turkish left wing. It is no longer a secret that it was Enver in person who commanded the counter attack which drove the Bulgarians from the captured position near Lahanakoj, with considerable loss to the forces of Czar Ferdinand.

"In the next battle," said Enver Bey to his interviewer, "come and join us, and you will see how the Turkish soldier can fight."

THE LADY MINSTERLS, WERE SUCCESSFUL

St. John's Church School Room was Crowded With a Delighted, Applauding Audience.

The Women's Association of St. Cohn's Church have reason for congratulation both as regards the splendid reception awarded "The Lady Minstrels," last night and for their initiative in presenting so good an attraction.

The big school house, as an Irishman might say "barrin' the oil and the fins" resembled a sardine box full of many of the best people of the city, so crowded was the hall. The youth and beauty of Peterborough was well represented both in the audience and on the stage. A bevy of Peterborough's choicest buds from the garden of beauty, sat tier above tier on the stage. The whole performance was carried out with a swing, snap and "go," worthy of professionals.

SUFFRAGETTES THREATEN TO STUN ENGLAND AT ONCE

In Revenge for Defeat in Commons Women Promise to Go The Limit

London, May 8.—Damage to property in the British Isles caused by the militant suffragettes during past three months amounts to upwards of $5,000,000 according to an estimate made to-day by the authorities at police headquarters in Scotland Yard. To this sum they say must be added the increased cost of protecting lives and property. Three detectives have been assigned to watch over each member of the Cabinet at all times, while all suspected persons are shadowed by plain-clothes men and all public buildings have been placed under special guard.

Predict Great Violence.

The militant section of the British suffragette intends to inaugurate a campaign of even greater violence than has hitherto been used in order to avenge the defeat of the Women's Suffrage Bill in the House of Commons on Tuesday night and the prosecution of the officials of the Women's Social and Political Union. The more advanced members of the fighting sisterhood promise that the events of the last few days are to be the Central Militant organization. eclipsed by worse things to come.

Votes for women, the women suffrage newspaper edited by Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, says in its latest number:

"We are before the country a per- known for decades perhaps for centuries. We see a prospect of violence being answered by violence in a terrible crescendo. We foresee the likelihood of crimes being sympathized with if not condoned and approved by many of the most respected and law-abiding members of the community."

SUFFS LEADER FALLS IN FAINT; TRIAL IS BEGUN

"General" Mrs. Flora Drummond Collapsed in Prisoner's Enclosure, Attack on Lords Planned by Women "Big Things" Forecasted in Letters Seized by Police Read in Court

London, May 8.—"General" Mrs. Flora Drummond suddenly collapsed and fell in a heap on the floor of the prisoner's enclosure at the Bow Street Police Court this morning, when proceedings under the Malicious Damage to Property Act were resumed against the seven militant suffragette leaders of the Women's Social and Political Union and their chemical adviser. She was practically carried out of the court by a jailot and a wardress.

The revelations made during previous hearings had whetted the public appetite and the court was filled to overflowing when the "conspirators" were brought in. They comprised besides the "General" Miss Harriet Rebecca Kerr, Miss Agnes Lake, Miss Rachael Barrett, Mrs. Beatruce Saunders, Miss Annie Kenney, Miss Laura Lennox and the analytical chemist Clayton.

Meant a General Raid.

Further correspondence was produced by Counsel for the Treasury in which the accused advocated "big things" such as a general raid on the public letter boxes throughout London or a war on the House of Lords. It was suggested that the attack on the Peers could be accomplished by means of a suffragette typist who could secure a position on the reporting staff of the Upper House.

According to Archibald Bodkin, the Treasury Counsel, a circular had been found in Miss Laura Lennox's residence, announcing the formation of a branch society called the "Y.H.B."

This caused amusement when Inspector Lawrence, of Scotland Yard, explained that the initials stood for "Young Hot Bloods." The Society was to be composed of the younger members of the Women's Social and Political Union and no married women were eligible for membership.

Women's Union is Wealthy.

Except for the evidence as to the wealth of the Women's Social and Political Union revealed in the statement by the prosecution that the rental paid for the offices was $3,500 yearly, rising to $11,250, the rest of the police court proceedings was not interesting.

"General" Mrs. Drummond had a second collapse just before the adjournment.

JACK SHEEHAN LEAVES JAIL TO GET SNIFF OF SPRING AIR

Two Weeks Before His 60-Day Sentence for Keeping a Gambling House Is Up--Parole Granted by the Minister of Justice

Toronto, May 8.—A member of the Toronto Detective Department was startled this morning on King street to see the familiar face of Mark Boasberg, alias Jack Sheehan, who was convicted on March 20th for keeping a common betting house on College street and who was sentenced to sixty days in jail for the offence without the option of a fine.

The Detective had visions of Boasberg taking French leave of Governor Chambers' castle on the Don, as Boasberg's sentence did not expire until May 21. The sleuth phoned headquarters to find out why Boasberg was out enjoying the spring weather. In the meantime the detective shadowed Boasberg, but it turned out that he was a free man.

He was released from jail yesterday on parole.

The Minister of Justice at Ottawa is the man Mr. Boasberg has to thank for his freedom. He gave him his parole, and when Boasberg's friends presented it to Sheriff Mowat Boasberg was released, but he must report once a week till the sentence expires.

It is a very uncommon thing for a man who receives a light sentence as Boasberg did, to get paroled.

It is understood that a strong delegation of Toronto men waited on the Minister of Justice to get Boasberg's parole.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Mostly fair. Cool weather.

There always is a cause—

And usually it is found in wrong living.

Tea and coffee drinking affect many unpleasantly, because the drug, caffeine, (from 1½ to 3 grains to the cupful) is a poison, and causes heart disturbance, indigestion and many other ills.

Tea and coffee drinkers who are "out of tune" can get back to steady health and comfort by quitting the tea and coffee and using

Instant Postum

This wholesome, pure-food drink provides a rich, table beverage of delicious flavour, and made from prime Northern wheat and the juice of the Southern sugar-cane, it is nourishing and absolutely free from the drug, caffeine, or any other harmful ingredient.

Postum now comes in two forms. The original Postum requiring 15 to 20 minutes boiling—sold at 15 and 25c the package.

INSTANT POSTUM is a quickly soluble powder; all the insoluble parts having been removed. A level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, with sugar and cream to taste, make a delightful cup "quick as wink."

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., [illegible] George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

MAULED BY BEAR SAVED BY A RUSE

Left for dead by an infuriated female grizzly bear, who had mauled him almost to unconsciousness, was the thrilling experience of K. C. Chipman, chief of a Dominion geological survey party, while camping near Wilmer, B.C. Had it not been for Mr. Chipman's presence of mind there is no doubt but that the bear would have killed him.

He had gone out from camp alone with his rifle to examine the mountain side, behind the camp, as to the best place to scale it. He sat down on a log to rest and fell into a reverie, from which he was awakened by the advance of a bear, which had charged at him from some bushes without the slightest warning. Hastily looking around he saw a pair of cubs to one side and behind him. Unknowingly he had sat down to rest between a female grizzly and her young. Firing one shot, he rushed down the steep mountain side, the bear following with such determination and force that it rushed clean past him. Instantly Mr. Chipman turned and went back up the hill. As a bear, however, can run faster up hill than down, he was quickly caught by the infuriated animal, who shook him from side to side as easily as a terrier shakes a rat. Luckily the fierce shaking caused the bear to lose her footing on the steep hill and both rolled down together some distance.

On bringing up among some bushes Mr. Chipman lay perfectly quiet, feigning death. Satisfied, after sniffing him all over, that he really was so, the bear ambled away.

On his men getting to him he was carried into camp and a doctor summoned. He found that the leather leggings worn by Mr. Chipman had practically saved his right leg below the knee from serious injury, but the left was badly torn above the knee from the shaking, the bear's teeth having been deeply buried in the limb. Otherwise Mr. Chipman was not seriously hurt.

UNITED AFTER 60 YEARS

After a separation of almost sixty years, Mr. M. F. Beach, seventy-eight years of age, was married at Ottawa to the sweetheart of his younger days, Mrs. Benjamin Barber, of Winnipeg, whose age is seventy-seven years. Both of the old people are grand parents.

It was a pretty romance that the two went through before their meeting a few months ago. Both were born in the same Ontario village. Comrades during their childhood, at the approach of maturer years they became engaged, and the wedding was set for an April day in 1856. An unhappy circumstance, however, forced the young woman to go with her relatives to the west before the ceremony could be performed, but the young people had no idea of the long separation which was to be their lot. With the passing of years, each lost track of the other, both married and each was blessed with a large family.

On the death of her husband a little over a year ago, however, Mrs. Barber returned to Ontario. Mr. Beach, now a prominent merchant in their native village, Iroquois, met his former fiancee at the house of a Cornwall friend, but neither recognized the other. When told that Mrs. Barber was none other than his first love, the septuagenarian was delighted.

The second courtship was a short one, and it was only two months after the reunion that the couple were married.

BANK CLERKS FROM OLD LAND

Some Interesting Views as to Their Adaptibility and Qualifications

The London Bankers' Magazine published an editorial gravely weighing the advantages and disadvantages (from the English bank clerk's point of view) of accepting a position in a Canadian bank. Upon considering all the circumstances and conditions, the editor was disposed to think his young countrymen would in many cases consult their interests just as well by remaining at home as by going to Canada. He admited in the course of his argument, that salaries are higher in the Dominion but drew attention to the higher cost of living in Canada, the severe climate and the hardships under which bank clerks must work in new towns and villages.

One passage of the article read as follows: "To many in England it must often have been a matter for surprise that the Canadian banks should be unable to staff their branches with Canadians, but the fact is that the Canadian does not settle down easily to banking. He is more happy-go-lucky and restless than his English brother. Hence men from England and Scotland are preferred to him by the Canadian banks, in most cases as being better educated, steadier and more conscientious in the performance of their duties."

In order to see how the Canadian opinion coincided with these views, a writer on a Montreal financial paper asked high executive officers of several banks about the results of the policy of getting men from England and Scotland. At three different banks he was told the same thing—namely that the Englishmen were better educated, could write and talk good English, that as a rule they proved good conscientious clerks on the books, but that many of them did not develop the qualities required in the higher offices. Quite a number of them did everything "by the book" and did not venture to use their own judgement or to depart a hair's breadth from the rules and regulations.

About the Canadians it was said that they were more flexible and used their judgment more in dealing with the public. But it was a matter of complaint at each of the three banks that many of the Canadian applicants for positions were backward in ordinary public school or high school education.

CANADIAN IN CONGRESS

Former Ontario School Teacher Achieves Success Across Border

From a teacher's desk in a country schoolhouse in Mono Township, Dufferin County, Ontario, to a desk in the capitol at Washington, D.C., is more than a few steps up the ladder of fame.

To some extent at least Robert G. Bremner's political ambition has been realized and it must afford him considerable satisfaction to look back over twenty years when not much more than a boy he taught school at Granger, which was then as it is today, nothing more than a post office at the corner of a sideroad, and a concession line. It was in those days that "Bob's" ambition took root; and as day after day he gazed across the green fields and the wooded hills of Mono, he could see greener pastures and greater opportunities far beyond.

"Bob" Bremner—now Congressman Bremner—was the oldest of a family of eleven. He was born in Scotland but came to Canada with his parents when about four years old. His widowed mother still resides at the old farm on the Prince of Wales Road, near Camilla, Ontario.

About 1895 "Bob" went to the States to seek his fortune, finally landing in Paterson, New Jersey, where he became editor and proprietor of the Passaic Daily Herald. He had had some experience at stump speaking in Ontario and turned naturally to politics, casting in his lot with the Democrats, and now he finds himself representing a New Jersey district at Washington. "Bob's" education consisted of a primary training in the little red school house and a couple of terms in the High School at Orangeville, where he was a general favorite, as the result of his genial manner, and where he proved himself a good debater.

Bread-and-Butter Studies.

The complaint that colleges are moving too rapidly away from the old learning is one very frequently heard in our day. Many people have attributed this drift to the fact that undergraduates are permitted to map out their own courses of study, and to do this under the influence of a delusion that only the so-termed "practical" subjects are apt to prove of any service to them in after life. Hence the classes in accounting, or in industrial chemistry, or in political science are large enough to tax the capacity of college lecture rooms, while professors of Greek or Sanskrit discourse to half-empty benches on the beauties of the "Odyssey" and the aphorisms of the "Rig-Veda."

But the experience of the university extension courses which have been offered in Boston during the last three or four years seems to prove that the superior magnetism of the so-called bread-and-butter studies is just as pronounced in the outer world as it is within the college gates.—Boston Herald.

Native Brazilian Drama.

Brazilian authors have for some time been endeavoring to create a national drama for the big South American republic. Heretofore the plays presented have for the most part been of French origin. Le Bresil Economique, of Rio de Janeiro, now heralds a native success in "La Belle Madame Vargas," by Joao do Dio, a newspaper man of that city, a play which it is predicted will be the beginning of the Brazilian theater. The play is to be taken to Paris, where it is expected to meet the same success that it has had at Rio, and from which "La Belle Madame Vargas" may find the road to English and American theaters.

NEARLY A BILLION DOLLAR BUDGET.

Mr. Lloyd George brought down the British budget last week, and it calls for an expenditure of nearly $990,000,000. One encouraging feature of it was the fact that the consumption of spirits had decreased by 28,000,000 gallons in four years, and yet the revenue from it, by an adjustment of the taxation, had increased $25,000,000. The Chancellor thought that this was a sufficient justification of his liquor policy. In regard to the general trade outlook the Chancellor was very optimistic. "There are no indications that the trade boom has reached its maximum and there are no signs of over-production," he said, "and taking all facts into consideration I feel justified in coming to the conclusion that we have entered upon the most growing year that British trade has ever seen." But when he turned to discuss the expenditure upon war preparations his tone was vastly different and was decidedly pessimistic. "The cost of armaments," he declared "is the largest and most sterile increase in the expenditure and I cannot see any prospect of this menacing development coming to an end unless some change takes place in the attitude and policy of the nations concerned." We had hoped that ere this the combined influence of Great Britain and the United States would have acted as some check upon the war madness of Europe, but so far little seems to have been done, possibly because these two great English-speaking nations are themselves a little too much given to cultivating both the spirit and the arts of war. And yet we are nearer universal peace than we ever were, and the tide is setting that way.

Old Folks' Coughs Permanently Cured

Elderly people take cold easily. Unlike young folks, they recover slowly, if ever. That is why so many people past middle life die of pneumonia. Even though pneumonia does not develop and kill, coughs certainly weaken all elderly people.

Cough Syrups seldom do much good because they upset digestion. Any druggist or doctor knows that a much more effective treatments is "CATARRHOZONE," which heals and soothes the irritated surfaces of the throat.

In using Catarrhozone you do not take medicine into the stomach—you simply breathe into the throat, nose and lungs rich piney balsamic vapor, so full of healing power that colds, catarrh and bronchitis disappear almost instantly.

"At sixty-eight years of age I can testify that I am never troubled with coughs or colds," writes J. E. Pilgrim, of Kingston. "They used to be the bain of my life, and that was before I used Catarrhozone, which was recommended to me by C. L. Prouse, druggist. To use Catarrhozone is just like being in an immense pine woods. The balsamic vapor of Catarrhozone is like a tonic, it is so stimulating to the breathing organs, so soothing to sore spots, so full of power to drive out colds and congestion. I will always use and recommend Catarrhozone as a preventive and cure for coughs, colds, bronchitis, throat irritation and catarrh.

Sir,—Some of our George street merchants seem to think that this city is run for their benefit alone. HEART BREAKER IS EN ROUTE TO CANADA

Rome, May 8.—The American people have been asked to look out for Prince Carlo Bakunin, heart-breaker and swindler. His highness is supposed to have sailed on a tramp steamer for either the United States or Canada, after being sentenced to six years' imprisonment.

He took along with him his wife's dot, amounting to eight hundred thousand francs. If the prince lives up to his usual record he will dissipate this fortune in no time, as he is always sure of obtaining more money from confiding women, being a lady-killer of surpassing ability.

All his swindling operations were confined to women and bigamy is one of the minor charges against him. Among his latest victims are the Duchess Santa Flora and the Marchioness Stanza. The latter gave him thirty thousand francs to get rid of him.

A noose, formed of a necktie, had been slipped around his neck, and although the boy's feet touched the ground, he had died from strangulation. Medical Examiner Thomas M Durell pronounced it a case of suicide, and sai that the act must have taken place before midnight.

SUBMARINE SUNK.

But Raised in Two Hours—All Her Crew Saved.

Libau on the Baltic, May 8.—During maneuvers the Russian submarine Minoga with fifteen men sank in 35 feet of water in Libau Roads. The vessel was raised by floating crane after ten hours' work, and all the crew were saved.

The accident was due to the water-ballast apparatus failing to act. One side of the vessel sank with a heavy list, spilling the acid required for the electrical accumulators. Consequently the motor was rendered useless. Besides the fumes from the acid affected the oxygen supply which otherwise would have been sufficient for twenty-four hours.

OLD AGE PENSION

Ottawa, May 8.—Mr. Montague Robertson of Pictou Co., N.S., was the last witness for the year to be examined by the Old Age Pension Committee. He was strongly in favour of O.A.P. for the aged, deserving poor. Like every other witness examined he was strongly in favour of pensions for widows left destitute with young families. The tendency is for said families to go to ruin while the mother is out earning support. Out of fifty-one replies received from county wardens to date, fifty are wholly in favour of O.A.P. The testimony of the two years, during which the evidence has been taken has produced an exconomic history of Canada and has so impressed the government that it has expressed a desire for its continuance. Owing to the busy nature of the present session it will be necessary to carry it on during the summer and make a final report early next session. Ninety per cent. of evidence is wholly in favour of the scheme.

NEW FISHING LAWS

White Men to Have Chance to Compete Against Japs on Coast

An important change in the fishery regulations of British Columbia decided upon by the Dominion Government, has for its purpose the building up of a white fishing community on the Pacific Coast. In the past Japanese fishermen have almost wholly ousted white men from the industry. Hitherto a given number of boats were allowed to operate in each fishing area and these have been assigned to the different canneries, the arrangement dating from a time when there were practically no resident fishermen in the several districts, so that the canners had to find fishermen and convey them to the different fishing areas. This arrangement in practice worked out into the employment of Japanese. Conditions have changed and it now is expected that under suitable regulations white fishermen will settle permanently in the region affected. The course decided upon was:—

1 To apply the boat rating to the water areas and not to the canneries.

2. To issue the licenses hereafter for the fiscal year, beginning with April 1.

3. To reserve until March 15 each year as many licenses in each area as there is reason to expect will be applied for by bona fide white fishermen, owning their own boats and gear, and to assign the remaining boats allowed to the existing canneries, pro rata the present boat rating.

The licenses to white fishermen allow the to fish independently of any cannery and sell thier catches to whom they choose.

Efforts of Poe's admirers to preserve the old tavern for its historical interest failed.

INDIANS' "HIDDEN RIVER"

Region About Scene of Mayflower Disaster is Very Picturesque

The section of country through which the ill-fated steamer Mayflower for years plied her trips between Combermere and Barry's Bay is probably one of the most picturesque in Ontario. From the shore the banks slope to towering heights along the greater part of the way.

The shores in some places along the route are sandy while in others the rock rises straight out of the water. The country is sparsely settled and the clearings are not large, although it is an old settled district. Only about one-quarter of the land is fit for cultivation, which accounts for the small, irregular fields seen from the river and lake and which resemble tiny patches in the forest. Blueberry patches are seen here and there along the banks in which the Mayflower's passengers, as the boat glided along, were often treated to the sight of bears feeding on the berries during the summer season. The entire district was formerly a pine timber limit and owned by the old Skead Lumber Company, which had its headquarters at Ottawa. Fire swept over a great part of the limit about thirty years ago and the old pine tree trunks are still to be seen standing from Combermere southward.

From Combermere eastward the banks of the Madawaska river are very steep for the greater part, as far as White Lake. Madawaska is in Indian language "hidden river," so called because the valley through which it runs is so deep.

SEEING INTO SPACE

Distance to Which the Modern Telescope can Penetrate

With his forty-foot reflector Sir William Herschel perceived stars whose light, he concluded, had occupied 2,000,000 years in reaching the earth.

His belief that he had seen further into space than any other human being before him is pronounced a just one by that noted astronomer, Dr. T. J. J. See. The visual power of Herschel's telescope is somewhat surpassed by modern instruments, and much additional power is given to the modern instrument by the use of photography. But on the other hand account has now to be taken of the extinction of light by cosmical dust in space.

Neglecting this, Herschel slightly overestimated the distance to which his telescope could penetrate. With the greatest modern instruments and the use of photography, it is certain, Dr. See says that stars at a distance of over 2,000,000 light years can now be observed. It is very probable that the most up-to-date instruments can penetrate to a depth of about 5,000,000 light years.

SCOTTISH SETTLERS

Priest Plans to Bring Out Orphans, Millhands and Fishermen

A new project for bringing settlers from the north of Scotland to Vancouver Island, British Columbia, is that of Rev. Father Macdonell, of Fort Augustus Abbey, of the Benedictine Order of Scotland.

One of Father Macdonell's activities in the north of Scotland was the establishment of a home for orphan girls. Only such girls are taken in as are physically sound and, therefore, capable of growing up into healthy useful women. Two housekeepers are provided and also two certified trained nurses. This home, housekeepers, teachers and children, he proposes to transfer to the neighborhood of Alberni, British Columbia, to a farm of about 80 acres where the girls will be taught housekeeping and poultry raising, dairying, fruit culture and, generally speaking, whatever pertains to woman's work on the farm or in the house. They will thus be enabled to grow up capable and self-reliant.

Somewhat in the same connection but not in practical form, is Father Macdonell's plan for bringing out adults from the Highlands of Scotland.

There are also many fishermen in the north of Scotland, says Father Macdonell, who would be glad of a chance to follow their occupation in this new country.

LIFE IN THE FAR NORTH

Sailor Willing to Risk Another Winter Among the Eskimos

Undeterred by a previous distressing adventure in the regions of the extreme north a Scottish sailor named John Westrell, of Aberdeen, intends to embark upon a walrus-hunting cruise in the Arctic Ocean. On his first voyage he was shipwrecked and spent a long, dark winter in an Eskimo's hut.

"We intended our voyage to be one of four or five weeks only," said the hunter, in an interview. "We had not a large crew; four of them were King Island Eskimos, who had been taught by the skipper to run the engines and steer the ship. There was also a Japanese cook. He began to shiver whenever he saw the ice.

We picked up some more Eskimos at Cape Prince of Wales, all of them eager hunters, and then we went through Behring Straits, and were soon in the Arctic Ocean, going in a northerly direction. We reached the icefield two or three days later. I believe we stayed too long, but the hunting was good. It was a gale which separated three Eskimos and myself from the schooner. We were a good many miles away, and we had to take what shelter we could, and that was not much, among the hillocks. Then after the gale came fog. We got lost. Fortunately we had some food with us, but by the time the fog cleared the ship had been carried away by the breaking ice floe. We wandered for nearly a week, and at last struck a small Eskimo village, where we stayed the winter."

Housekeeping in the Arctic is an interesting if sometimes disagreeable necessity. There were only four houses in the village at which the shipwrecked men had arrived, and Westrell knew that if he was to live through the winter he must live as the Eskimos lived. A real snow house was built, and for several months the party ate raw meat and obtained drinking water by melting snow over a blubber fire. Seal and walrus meat were their mainstay. When the cold became severe the houses were sealed up, and everyone huddled round the fire.

"I found these Eskimos good-hearted, kind people," said Westrell. "They did everything to make me comfortable, and my hunter companions acted as interpreters. Often of an evening, after we had been hunting seals during the day, we all assembled in the largest hut and spent some hours singing and dancing." When the weather permitted, walrus hunts were organised, and in the early days of the winter hundreds of the animals could be seen lying asleep on the ice. When the ice broke up the following summer Westrell and his companions were rescued.

Still Affects Earth

According to a French scientist the coronas which frequently are observed around the moon in perfectly clear weather are due to dust from Halley's comet still in the atmosphere.

COMPANY WILL START A BLACK FOX FARM

Uncommon Industry Obtains Provincial Charter.

Vancouver, B.C., May 8.—A new company, the first of its kind in this province, has just been incorporated. It is a company to carry on the business of breeding black foxes and other animals and to deal with their skins and pelts. While this has been a profitable industry in some parts of the maritime provinces, the organization of a company to carry on the business here is new, and indicates another industry open to the prospector and trapper. The shares will be 5,000 aggregating a capital of $250,000, and the company will take over the interests of Fred Ryan and Charles S. Meek.

FUTURE MUSIC TO BE PANDEMONIUM.

Composers Will Pick Tunes Out Of 30,000 Noises, Says Russolo

Rome, May 2.—According to the futurist painter, Russolo, futurist music will consist of the accents and tones like this: "Tamtumb, pumtumb bum zangtumb, zantumtum."

"These make up the art of noises," said the great futurist. "No, I do not agree with those extremist who would have us copy in opera or symphony the noises of the street. We must idealize those noises to make them agreeable. The futurist music will consist of soniferous, stertorous and racket noises, there will be bombilation, clamorousness and all that sort of thing whistling, snorting, skidding, water rushing, anvil beating and a thousand more other noises.

"I think there will be thirty thousand noises to be made over into music of the future. And I am quite satisfied that a great composer can extract good and original music out of this [illegible] mass of noises."

SPORTING NEWS

BASEBALL.

Chicago, May 8.—President Charles Comiskey of the local American League club announced today that every reserved seat in the park has been sold for the game between New York Americans and the White Sox, to be played here May 17, known as "Frank Chance day."

"The demand for seats has been as great for this game as it had been for a world's championship series," Mr. Comiskey said.

GOLF.

New York, May 8.—A golf match of more than usual interest is carded to be played next week at Garden City. It is a four-ball event, in which Jerome D. Travers and Oswald Kirkby will meet Fred Herreshoff and Walter J. Travis and play 36 holes. These four were to have met a few weeks ago, but partisans prevailed on the players to wait until all had had a chance to reach top form through practice.

Travis naturally is at home at Garden City and is always hard to beat—there or elsewhere. Herreshoff makes an effective partner. But Travis is one of the match golfers—if not the best—this country has produced and Kirby is a good man in a four-ball match. The contest promises fine golf.

TURF.

Albany, May 8.—Professional gambling at the race tracks of this state will not be tolerated by Governor Sulzer, according to a statement made at the executive chamber yesterday. While the Governor refused to deny or affirm a current report that he proposed to take effective steps to suppress the operations of professional bookmakers at Belmont Park on Decoration Day, he made it clear he intends to see that the provision of the state constitution, prohibiting gambling, is literally enforced, without regard to any law the Legislature may have enacted on the subject.

The Governor believes gambling on race tracks can be stopped without the aid of legislative enactment. He holds that the constitutional provision takes precedent over any law passed by the Legislature.

The Governor believes that by ordering the district attorneys and sheriffs of each county to enforce the anti-gambling provision of the constitution, there will be no professional gambling at the race tracks.

RING.

Geneva, N. Y., May 8. — Matchmaker Dan Deegan of the Geneva A. C. has completed his fight card for the next show, to be held on the evening of May 12. Billy Wagner of Chicago and George Cohan of Albany are the principles for the final, a 10-round affair at 135 pounds. Powder Lyons of Rochester and Young Joey of Utica will figure in the semi-final a 10-round bout at 128 pounds. The preliminary event, which looks good enough for a main event, is a 10-round go between Hugo Clements of Albany and Jack Croak of Buffalo. The curtain raiser will be six rounds between Kid Bell and Lefty Goldberg. Eddie McBride of Buffalo, will be referee.

MOTOR BOATS

New York, May 8.—The New York A. C. has chosen June 21 as the date for the first race for the $2,500 viking cup offered by Sir Thomas Lipton for cruising motor boats of a water line length between 30 and 38 feet. The course will be from New Rochelle through Long Island sound to Block Island, a distance of 100 miles. The prize must be won three times by the same owner to become his permanent property. The crews must be made up entirely of amateurs. Boats competing for the Lipton cup may race at the same time for the Day trophy which is open to cruisers from 25 to 40 feet.

A special cup is being offered by a well-known yachtsman to the boat defeating the largest number of boats that compete the following three long distance races: The Block Island race on June 21, the New York to Albany and return race on June 28, and the New York to Cornfield Shoal and return race on July 12.

THE OAR.

Ithaca, May 8.—That marriage is a bar to rowing, at least in Cornell has been demonstrated in the case of E. W. Pollard, until recently a member of the junior 'varsity crew and a member of last year's crack freshman combination, who has been dropped from rowing by Charles E. Courtney, coach. Pollard slipped quietly out of town a few days ago, telling Courtney he would be away from crew practice for several days because he had to go to Syracuse to see a sick brother. The bluff worked for a day or two but Courtney picked up a Syracuse newspaper which informed him that Pollard had married a school chum in Fulton, where he lives. When Pollard strolled down to the boat house last Friday Courtney said:

"Hello, Pollard, how do you like married life?"

Pollard admitted he liked it and waited a second for Courtney to assign him a crew. No such order came. Just before Courtney pushed out in his launch he turned and said:

"What, Pollard, are you here yet? You's better look out or the boys will throw you into the inlet."

Then Pollard knew he never would earn a 'varsity crew C. No married man ever has rowed in the Cornell shell, and apparently Courtney will see to it that none ever does.

CHINA CLAY INDUSTRY

Quebec Has Valuable Deposits of This Commodity

One of the newest industries being developed in the Province of Quebec is the mining and refining of kaolin or china clay, which is being carried on at St. Remi d'Amherst.

In a little valley in the Laurentian hills, surrounding Lac du Sable, after the pine timber had been cut and floated down the Maskinonge River, a settlement of habitants, mostly of the family of Tasse grubbed the stumps and settled down to win a living from the soil lying between the rocky ridges. Some fourteen years ago in digging wells near their log cabins the settlers came on a white substance at the rock level under some twelve feet of overburden. The only use they found for it was to mix it with water and whitewash their homes. Later it was found to be valuable for other purposes.

China clay is used largely in the manufacture of porcelain and chinaware. The largest use in Canada is for coating white papers. It is also used in the textile industry for sizing and bleaching calico and cotton, in the rubber industry in making high tension and ordinary electric insulators, chemical apparatus, and for refractory ware, such as crucibles and other assaying apparatus.

Dear Sirs.—

In regard to the sale of SANOL & SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, might say I have been handling the goods for about three months. I was obliged to put in SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES to supply one of my customers, who is now completely cured, and whom, I believe, has sent a testimonial to your office. Another customer ordered SANOL and I was obliged to stock it. This gentleman was so well satisfied that he has sent bottles to his friends. Up to this time I had never really taken much interest in the preparations but when customer after customer would come in and tell me about what SANOL had done for them, I came to the conclusion it would be worth my while getting behind SANOL and recommending it to my customers. This I have done and I have heard nothing but words of praise for SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, I am.

WHY RIGHT-HANDED

British Professor Says Because Our Ancestors Fought in Certain Way

One of the professors at an English college has figured it out that if you are left-handed it is a sign that your ancestors were not good fighters.

"Most persons are right-handed," says he. "Only one in every twenty is left-handed. Why are people right-handed? They may have been born that way, it is true; but why?

"Away back in the beginning the chief occupation of man was fighting. In battle he carried a shield in one hand and a weapon in the other. It was not much work to carry the shield, but the quick action required by the hand and arm which did the fighting soon developed that arm. It also developed the nerves and the half of the brain that governed the right side of the body. Those who shielded their left side—thus protecting their heart—were the ones who usually came out victorious. Down through the ages this selection continued, the right hand gradually becoming more proficient."

EUGENICS AND GENIUS

Toronto Professor Sees Close Relation Between Master Minds and Imbeciles

"All men of genius and poets are the result of degeneration on the part of some of their ancestors. If we seek by the prevention of indiscriminate marriage to eliminate the imbecile and otherwise unfit we will also prevent the production of these."

This is one of the remarkable statements made by Prof. Gilbert Jackson during the course of an address on the subject of "Poverty," at Toronto.

Prof. Jackson entirely repudiates the value of the principles of eugenics as applied to the prevention of the propagation of the mentally and physically unfit. He stated that, personally, he preferred to have these latter in the world rather than run a chance of the elimination of men of genius, which would result from the adoption of such methods.

Cumfy-Cut

An Innovation in Underwear

The foundation for correct attire is a vest that fits like a glove. Such is the Cumfy-Cut Vest, which aids materially in presenting the long graceful effects demanded by dame fashion.

Made of luxuriously soft yarn (spun and prepared by us), Cumfy-Cut Vests are unique in that they are so fashioned that there is no possibility of the straps slipping from the shoulder.

This feature will make instant appeal to particular dressers who are already familiar with the superior quality of Hygeian and Peerless underwear, under which brands Cumfy-Cut Vests are offered.

Cumfy-Cut Vests and Union Suits are made in all sizes for ladies. Three grades—Cotton, Lisle, Mercerized and Silk.

FOREIGNERS IN WEST

Austrians and Galicians in Alberta are Clever But Lead Monotonous Lives

At Calgary, Miss McLean gave an address on her work among the Galicians and Austrians in Kolsarick Northern Alberta.

In speaking of the women, Miss McLean said that they led a most monotonous home life. They cannot read or keep house properly. This latter is probably because of the lack of housekeeping conveniences. The only occasion of social festivities are marriages and deaths. The women have to work in the fields, and the results are that there are many beautiful gardens. The women often have beautiful embroidered dresses. They also have some very fine pieces of tapestry work, which are exhibited for decorations on festive occasions.

These foreigners are very ambitious and progressive. They are suspicious of each other, and will trust a Canadian more quickly than one of their own countrymen.

Eskimo Inventors

A collection of Esquimaux inventions exhibited at San Francisco, substantiated the claim that the Esquimau is the most able inventor and skilled engineer among uncivilized people. In support of this, the collection included the first form of the oil heater and cook stove, water-tight boat, arch used for building purposes, and waterproof overcoats, as well as the most perfect types ever developed of the fish spear, spear thrower and harpoon. The smoking pipes form a link with Asia, and their carvings with prehistoric Europe.

AN ENGLISH COMPANY TO SUPPLY TRACTORS

Factory to be Established in Canada With a View to Securing the Trade

Two more English manufacturing companies are establishing important branches in Canada, Henry Hope and Sons, Limited, of Birmingham, makers of steel window sashes, etc., and Marshall, Sons and Company, Limited, of Gainsborough, engineers and boiler makers. These are two additions to a small list of English houses with branches here, as compared with hundreds of United States companies with sales offices, warehouses, or factories in the Dominion. Both firms are incorporating Canadian companies to handle their business in this country. Messrs. Henry Hope and Sons, of Canada, Limited, with capital of $240,000 and head office in Toronto, has been incorporated with a Dominion charter. Messrs. Marshall, Sons and Company are obtaining a Canadian charter, and will establish a branch in Saskatchewan. The capital of this subsidiary company will be about $200,000. This company will seek to obtain a larger share of the market in Western Canada for tractors, which it manufactures largely. The company manufactures horizontal engines up to 2,000 horsepower; Cornish, Lancashire, locomotive, vertical boilers, etc.; undertype engines, simple and compound; vertical engines, simple and compound; portable and semi-portable engines; traction engines, road rollers; steam and oil tractors; threshing machinery for all countries; grinding mills; sawing machinery; oil engines.

Nightmares

The average nightmare is attributable to an overloaded stomach. The connection between midnight rarebits and nightmares is quite close indeed. Thus the remedy for the average nightmare is a light supper. Other nightmares are attributable to mental strain. Folks that are continually worrying have them. The remedy for this brand of nightmare is relaxing recreation in the evening—anything to divert the worried mind to new channels.

CANADIAN DEVELOPMENT IN MANUFACTURING WAY

An English Publication Has an Article Setting Forth Some Facts Tersely

"I think there are very few people in England who have any conception of what Canada's development in a manufacturing way amounts to, or what an important part it plays in our national life. Let me give you some figures. In 1900, when the previous census was taken, the value of the output of Canadian factories for the year was $481,000,000. For the year 1910 when the last census was taken the value had jumped to $1,162,000,000 for the year, a percentage of increase which I do not believe has ever been equalled by any other country in the world in the same length of time. During the ten-year period from 1900 to 1910 we added 4,552 new factories to those already established in Canada, or an average of 450 per year, or three new factories established for every two working days in the year.

Canadian Employes

The employes in our factories numbered, according to the census, 511,844, which means that one in every fourteen of the entire population of Canada is actually working in a factory. When to these you add, first those who are directly dependent upon those, such as wives, mothers and children, and others indirectly dependent upon them, such as the butcher, the baker, the doctor, the lawyer, or whoever it may be, I think you will recognise what a tremendous portion of the population are dependent upon the industries for maintenance and support. And that industrial activity and development owes its being almost entirely to the policy of protection which we have adopted. We in Canada think it is a good thing for that part of the empire, whatever centre it may be, Toronto, Montreal or Winnipeg, if it is being built up and developed, rather than Pittsburg, Buffalo, or Chicago, and we are able to keep our people at home rather than send them by hundreds of thousands to the United States to look for industrial employment which we could not give them in Canada. It is estimated there are 2,000,000 Canadians living in the United States. There are whole cities in New England populated by Canadians, getting employment in factories which they could not find in their own country, but, that condition of affairs is changed, and to-day the tide is flowing the other way.

Built up Canada

"Moderate protection has rendered possible in the last few years the immense industrial development which has checked the outflow of population to the United States and built up industrial centres all over Canada. Moreover, our tariff has made it possible to pay our workmen decent wages (which English workmen do not receive under Free Trade). A prosperous industrial population in turn means that farmers obtain remunerative prices for their production."

BEAUTY BATHS

Nothing Like Bathing to Improve a Woman's Appearance

According to Dr. Calsarato, one of the most famous beauty specialists, bathing is one of the principal secrets to the beauty of the well groomed woman, as well as of her who is anxious to keep at a respectful distance those tell-tale lines that are the first sign of vanishing youth.

The main thing in bathing, no matter of what temperature the water may be, is to open the pores of the skin and to cleanse it by the free use of a good soap, oatmeal bags, or [illegible] bathing soap paste, followed by abundant friction. A bath of this sort with the water aromatized and softened with tincture of [illegible] or some fragrant toilet water, can be taken every morning, summer or winter, with none but the most happy results.

Soap pastes, dried bran or oatmeal bags are better than highly perfumed soaps, which are generally made of alkalines and animal fats. Dr. Calsarato disapproves of the hot soap baths that many women indulge in daily. These so-called cleansing baths are bound to make the flesh flabby and wrinkled. The outer layer of skin is dried and shrivelled from the persistent use of both soap and hot water, the natural oil is gradually absorbed and the shrinking of the epidermis produces wrinkles.

If possible spend a few minutes before the bath in rousing the blood with brisk exercise, after which either a warm or cold bath is beneficial, but, when the vitality is lowered by a cold plunge, it should not be indulged in unless recommended by a physician.

MACHINE KNOWS HER

Remarks of a Typewriter of Nineteen Years' Experience

In literary circles the use of the typewriter has become almost universal. Men and women writers have trained themselves even to "compose on the machine." One woman who says she has been "hitting the same old keyboard for the last 19 years" is sure that some sort of occult understanding has been developed between her and her machine. "It knows my touch," she maintains, "and resents anybody else's. I pound away on it day in and day out, giving it a little drop of oil once in a while, but hardly ever fooling with the tension or more than half cleaning it, and it works right on just as if I treated it well, though it has, of course, grown wheezy with age. But let somebody else touch it and they can't write more than two pages before 57 varities of trouble appear. The keys pile up on one another, the bell won't ring, the carriage won't shift, and the ribbon wheel won't turn. I go right back to it, don't do a thing in a mechanical way, and peck away again without any trouble at all. You may say it is merely because I have gotten it tuned to just the amount of finger pressure I give it, but my own explanation suits me better, and that is that it knows me, as an engine knows its engineer."

FOR THE SAKE OF HEALTH

One should not enter a sick room while perspiring because the moment you become cool your nerves absorb.

A bag of hot sand relieves neuralgia.

Warm borax water will remove dandruff.

Salt should be eaten with nuts to aid digestion.

It rests you, in sewing, to change your position frequently.

A cupful of strong coffee will usually remove the odor of onions from the breath.

A cupful of hot water taken before meals relieves nausea and dyspepsia.

A consumptive's night sweats may be arrested by sponging the body nightly in salt water.

Hot water is better than cold for bruises. It relieves pain quicker and often prevents an ugly black and blue mark.

The white of eggs and powdered alum made into a plaster and applied to a sprained ankle often brings relief.

Story of the Nerviest Doctor.

"Shortly after I started in practice," relates a physician on the Kansas side, "our next door neighbor came over to our house one evening and asked to use the telephone. He called a downtown doctor and asked him to come out at once. In a few minutes he was back to ask my wife to come over until help could reach them from the city.

"The M. D. having arrived, neighbor was back to request the loan of my case of instruments. The other doctor, coming without his emergency bag, was unprepared.

"I thought this the limit, but presently he made a fourth trip, bringing his small son along this time. He kindly pointed out the fact that having my own child to look after it would be less bother to have them both, as they would amuse each other.

"Is there a nervier case on record?" he challenged.

"One," replied the householder. "Agents make life miserable in our ward, but the most persistent one I have had to deal with recently was selling a door plate which read:

"'Positively No Agents!'"

ROMANTIC DAYS PAST

Wrong Ideas Engendered in Minds of Youthful Would-be Canadians

Sir Robert Baden-Powell inspected a Boy Republic at Wadhurst, in Sussex, where a lot of Boy Scouts are studying farming with a view to coming to Canada. On the occasion of his visit the boys elected a mayor, gave an exhibition of scouting work and a Wild West performance.

It is to be feared that a dime novel idea of Canada is being encouraged in these young fellows, and that some disappointments are in store for them. There is not much scouting to be done out here nowadays by young fellows on the farms. Beyond the occasional necessity for tracing a stray steer along a side line or Sherlock Holmesing along a fence to find a hole that a pig got through, there is not much doing in that line, and usually the farmer does it himself and leaves the youthful hired man to milk cows or chop feed.

All these romantic ideas and circumstances may help in inducing boys to come to Canada, but it cannot be a good thing for Canada to land here a lot of young fellows who are going to be disappointed in every experience they encounter. There are fine openings in Canada for young men. But this is no fairyland, no land of romance. It is a country where everybody works as people work scarcely anywhere else in the world.—Toronto [illegible]

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a waltz, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel.

CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

"Nobody in there, sir," he reported.

"All right, Mason," and Grant came into view on a rangy sorrel. "Get your men back into saddle; we'll move on."

"Think he went this way?" asked the blacksmith carelessly.

"How the hell do I know!" savagely. "He must have started this way, but likely he took the north road. We'll get the chap before night, unless he runs into Delavan's fellows out yonder. See here, Farrell," holding in his horse, "we'll be back here about dark, and will want something to eat."

"You will be welcome to all you find."

"You impudent rebel, you see that you are here when we come. I know you, you night rider, and will bring you to book yet. Forward men—trot! Close up the rank there, sergeant; we'll take the road to the left."

I watched them go past, the dust-covered green uniforms slipping by the crack of the door, as the men urged their horses faster. Farrell never moved, the blue tobacco smoke curling above his head, and I stole across the littered storeroom to a cobwebbed window, from which I could watch the little column of riders go down the hill. They finally disappeared in the edge of a grove, and I turned around to find the blacksmith leaning against his anvil waiting for me.

"Genial young fellow, Grant," he said. "Always promising to hang me, but never quite ready to tackle the job. Afraid I shall have to disappoint him again tonight."

"You will not wait for him?"

"Hardly. You heard what he said about Delavan? That was the very news I wanted to learn. Now I think both those lads will meet me much sooner than they expect."

He stepped forward into the open doorway, and blew three shrill blasts on a silver whistle. The echo had scarcely died away, when, out from a thick clump of trees perhaps half a mile distant, a horse shot forth, racing toward us. As the reckless rider drew up suddenly, I saw him to be a barefooted, freckle-faced boy of perhaps sixteen, his eyes bright with excitement.

"So it's you on duty, Ben," said Farrell quietly, glancing from the boy to his horse. "Well, you're in for a ride. Have the men at Lone Tree by sundown; all of them. See Duval first, an' tell him for me this is a big thing. Now off with you!"

The boy, grinning happily, swung his horse around, and, jabbing his sides with bare heels, rode madly away directly south across the vacant land. Within five minutes he had vanished down a sharp incline. Farrell was still staring after him, when I asked:

"What is it?"

"A little bit of private war," he said grimly. "If you'll go with me tonight, Major, I'll show you some guerilla fighting. You heard what Grant said about Delavan. We've been waiting five days for him to head back toward Philadelphia. He has twenty wagons, an' a foraging party of less than fifty men somewhere out Medford way," with sweep of hand to the northeast. "If he an' Grant get together the two commands will outnumber us, but we'll have the advantage of surprise, of a swift attack in the dark. In my judgment that is what Grant was sent out for—to guard Delavan's wagons. His spy hunting was a personal affair. My advice to you, Lawrence, is to lie quiet here today, and go along with us tonight. It will be in the same direction you'll have to travel, an' you might have trouble by daylight. No objections to a fight, have you?"

"None whatever."

"I judged so from your face. Better get what rest you can; we will have twenty miles to ride before dark. I'll go over into the timber there an' feed the horses."

I watched him cross the open land, impressed by the man's immense shoulders and short limbs. I could scarcely analyse the influence he already exerted over me, but I felt him to be a natural leader of men, an intellectual as well as physical giant. I picked up a book lying open on the bench—it was an English translation of a famous French treatise on the Rights of Man, its paper margins covered with written comments. This blacksmith was not only a man of action, but a man of thought also. I lay down on the bench, pillowing my head on one arm, thinking of him as I first saw him kneeling alone in prayer, and the simple words of his petition came back to me with new power. Then my mind drifted to the strange commingling of human elements in this adventure—to Mistress Claire, and her connection with Grant, and the intimate knowledge Farrell apparently possessed of them both. Somehow I was becoming more and more deeply involved in these lives, and I began to wonder how it was all destined to end. Was the coming night to add a new chapter? If so, would it be the last? Reviewing it all, lulled by the silence, I fell asleep.

The Blacksmith Was Not Only a Man of Action, but a Man of Thought, Also.

CHAPTER IX.

With Minute Men.

I must have slept very heavily, the sleep of utter exhaustion, for I awoke with my mind clear and body rested. The door of the shop remained wide open, and Farrell sat there, his eyes upon the road without, an open book upon his knees. As I moved slightly he instantly turned his face toward me.

"I began to fear I should have to arouse you, Major," he said, coming within. "You have slept soundly for six hours, an' we must be off presently. First, however, we will have a bite to eat."

He began to prepare the meal, while I bathed my face.

"I was very tired," I explained, "but now am ready for any service. What has occurred since I lay down?"

"Very little; Duval stopped a moment to report, an' two of my couriers rode past this way. We are going to have a goodly sized gathering tonight, an' from all I hear will need every rifle. Grant's purpose is, as I supposed, to guard the forage train into Philadelphia. He expects to meet them somewhere between Fellowship and Mount Laurel, an' the chances are we shall have to fight both detachments. But fall to, man, an' we can discuss all this as we eat."

He talked freely enough while we remained there, but conversation veered to the book he had been reading, and I learned little of his plans, except that he relied upon surprise, and swiftness of movement to overcome the decided advantage of numbers. After we mounted and rode away, scarcely a word was exchanged between us. Just before dusk we overtook a dozen horsemen in the breaks of a creek bottom, roughly dressed fellows, heavily armed, riding in the same direction as ourselves, and, after the exchange of a word or two, the whole party of us jogged along together. Others straggled in, singly, or by small groups, as darkness closed about, until we formed quite a respectable company. It was rather a silent, weird procession, scarcely a word being spoken, and no sound heard, other than the dull reverberation of unshod hoofs on the soft turf. To me, glancing back from where I held position beside Farrell, they semed like spectral figures, with no rattle of accoutrements, no glimmer of steel, no semblance of uniform. Yet my heart warmed to the knowledge that these were no holiday warriors, but grim fighting men. They had left their plows in the furrow to strike a blow for liberty.

It was an hour or more after dark when our compact little body of horsemen rode down a gully into a broad creek bottom, and then advanced through a fringe of trees to the edge of the stream. There was a young moon in the sky yielding a spectral light, barely making those faces nearest me visible. At the summit of the clay bank, shadowed by the forest growth encircling them, were the others who had gathered at this war rendezvous, the majority dismounted, holding their horses in readiness for action. As we rode in among them neighbors clasped hands silently, but the words exchanged were few. Farrell forced his horse through the press toward where a tall figure sat stiff in the saddle, and my own horse followed unguided.

"A goodly turn-out, Duval," he commented briefly. "What was the number, before we came?"

"Forty-seven rifles," the Lieutenant's voice nasal, and high pitched. "The men from Orchard and Springdale are not in yet. How many arrived with you?"

"Twenty; ample for our purpose, even if the others fail us. This is Major Lawrence of the Maryland Line."

I shook his long, thin hand, marking the iron grip of the fingers.

"We'll introduce you to some typical Jersey fighting tonight, Major," he said genially. "We have a style all our own."

"I had supposed I had witnessed all styles."

"We'll see the [illegible] difference is that every man among us has [illegible] a personal to revenge. Our quarrel is [illegible] -derers, one against thieves and [illegible] What is the program, Farrell?"

"To intercept Delavan's raiders. They will be along the main road within the [illegible] from all reports. He has a wagon train loaded with stuff gathered up between Medford an' Mount Holly, together with a considerable drove of cattle and some horses."

"And what force?"

"About fifty men originally, but reinforced this afternoon with as many more to help guard the train into Philadelphia."

"Mounted?"

"The reinforcements were, but the original foragers were afoot; they were Hessians; the others Grant's company of Queen's Rangers."

"Glory be to God!" exclaimed a voice near at hand. "Did ye hear that, lads? It's Dutchmen and Tories we're against tonight. Be Gorry! I wouldn't have missed the chance of this shindy for the best farm in Camden."

There [illegible] was a low growl from the cluster of men, and [illegible] movement of bodies pressing closer. Duval laughed mirthlessly.

"The bloodhound takes the scent," he said grimly. "God help those poor devils when we cut the leash, Farrell. Where do you propose meeting them?"

"Across there in the bluffs," pointing, "where the road turns in between the high clay banks. We'll leave our horses here, an' cross on foot. Is that the right plan, boys?"

There was a murmur of acquiescence, a few questions, and then the silence of approval. It was evident these minute men were under small discipline, and their officers led only by force of character. Without orders the horses were led away, tied securely in the black depths of the woods, and the men came straggling back, rifles in hand, grouping themselves along the edge of the stream. There was no attempt at military formation, but Duval straightened them out so as to count the number present.

"Sixty-nine, all told," he announced, briefly. "All right, boys, come on, and keep your powder out of the water."

It was firm bottom; but the water rose above the waist, with sufficient current so we had to brace against it in mid-stream. We trailed dropping up the eastern bank, coming out upon a well-traveled road. A hundred feet beyond was the cleft through the clay, and there Farrell halted us, dividing the men into two parties. Under his orders they disappeared like magic, the silent night engulfing them completely. The three of us, Duval, Farrell, and myself, alone remained in the deserted road.

"It Is a Pleasure to Meet With You Again, Especially Under Such Happy Circumstances. Do You Surrender?"

"Duval," said the blacksmith quietly, "you an' the Major feel your way along to the top, an' discover what is happening. I'll stay here, an' take care of the boys."

The road was a gradual rise, the clay packed hard under foot, but from the summit we could look away for some distance over a level country, dimly revealed under the new moon. There was nothing in sight, and no sound disturbed the solitude. We sat down on a bunch of turf, rifles in hand, to wait patiently, our eyes scanning the distance.

"Who are those fellows back there?" I questioned at last, made nervous by the silence.

"The boys in the gulch? Jersey militiamen," he explained shortly. "You see there's some of us that can't get away all the time, because of the women and children, and the farm work. Besides, regular soldiering don't just appeal to our sort. So we do our fighting round home in our own way. However, the most of us manage to have a hand in the real thing once in a while even at that. We were over at Germantown, and down at Brandywine. Farrell's got a commission, but the rest of us are taking our chances. It's neighbor against neighbor. Whatever we've got left has been held at the point of the rifle. We're doing our share in this war, an' Washington knows it. Over there to the east 'Red' Fagin, Old Man Kelly, an' their gangs of Pine Robbers, are making the fields red; sometimes they get down this far raiding the farms, but mostly, we're fighting foragers out of Philadelphia, and they're not much better. Half the houses in this country have been burned, and mercy isn't very common on either side. Those lads yonder are not pretty soldiers to look at, but they're wolves to fight, and hungry for it."

"They are called on whenever Farrell wishes?"

"Well, yes; those come who can. They're not always the same bunch. You see Farrell covers quite a bit of country, with a lieutenant in each section who is in touch with the neighbors there. I belong in Camden, and don't go outside very often, but there is a sort of organization all the way between here and New York. Whenever there is a big fight on, the most of us get into it somehow. Washington counts on us in a pinch, but mostly we're raiding or cutting off British supplies. Say, Major, isn't that those fellows coming?"

He pointed into the east, in which direction the road ran, barely revealed by the faint light of the moon for perhaps a hundred yards. I looked eagerly, and could dimly distinguish a vague shadow on the summit of a distant rise of land. The shadow moved, [illegible] and as we both stared in uncertainty, there [illegible] came to our ears the far-off crack of a [illegible] however, [illegible] We drew farther back against the bank, [illegible] ing to make sure there was no deception. One by one we could perceive those vague shadows topping the rise and disappearing. I counted ten, convinced they were covered wagons [illegible] the night wind brought to [illegible] the creaking of wheels, and the sound of a man's voice. Duval's hand gripped my arm, and to the signal we crept back beyond the crest, and then hurried down to where Farrell had concealed his men. He was awaiting us in the middle of the road, his short broad figure almost laughable in the moon shadow.

"Well, are they coming?"

"Just over the crest," replied Duval brusquely. "I counted fifteen wagons."

"Quite a convoy, an' worth fighting for. Take the left, Duval; Major, come with me."

We drew aside under the protection [illegible] from where we could see [illegible] the ridge. Only [illegible] of a [illegible] the clearly to the top [illegible] for a moment was there [illegible] men all about us lying low in the coverts, breathless and intent. Then we heard horses' hoofs and the murmur of approaching voices.

We could see them quite clearly, as they topped the crest, the moonlight revealing men and horses so distinctly I could even guess at their uniform. Those in advance rode slowly, four abreast, down into the black shadows, lolling in their saddles, voices murmuring, seemingly unconscious of any danger. It was easy to comprehend their state of mind. Delavan had been left alone for a week, permitted to sweep the countryside unmolested. He and his command had naturally grown careless, never suspecting their every move had been watched by keen-eyed scouts. Now, guarded by Grant's troop, they believed themselves sufficiently strong for any emergency; that no force the scattered enemy could gather would venture upon attack. By daylight they would be within sight of the Philadelphia outposts, and serenely confident in their numbers, the night march had therefore become a mere routine. I heard Farrell chuckle grimly to himself as he observed the careless approach of those advance riders.

They were the Queen's Rangers, the white facings of their coats conspicuous, their guns swung at the shoulder in reckless confidence. A slim young lieutenant appeared to be in command.

KRUGER'S AMBITION

Hoped to be Napoleon of Twentieth Century, Says a Relative

Mr. Mark Kruger, of Pretoria, South Africa, nephew of the redoubtable "Oom" Paul, who was the soul of the Boer resistance in that fateful conflict at the beginning of the century, made some interesting statements while in Montreal recently.

"Probably it was never known," said Mr. Kruger, "that my uncle's ambition was to be the Napoleon Bonaparte of the twentieth century. Actuated first of all by motives of local patriotism, the success which crowned his early efforts led him to believe that he was a predestined military genius."

"In my opinion," continued the Boer leader's nephew, "it was this overwhelming ambition that proved to be Paul Kruger's worst enemy. He dreamed of driving Britain from Africa and then consolidating the whole southern half of that continent into a great Dutch republic of which he would be practical dictator. With this foundation upon which to build Oom Paul, planned foreign expansion. He had his eye on India, that gem in the crown of Britain, to which country he was an inveterate enemy."

Women's Ailments Caused by Neglect

Proper Treatment Will Quickly Bring Back Robust Health and Good Spirits.

Women are on the whole more sickly than man. One reason is that their system is more complicated; another and more important reason is they put off measures of relief too long. At the beginning, constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of women's ailments. The blood becomes weakened and polluted—the nerves suffer and a run-down condition takes root.

Because of their mildness of action as a system regulator, no medicine for women can compare with Dr Hamilton's Pills. The kidneys quickly responded to the remedial action of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and the result is as you would expect—pain in the back and side, shortness of breath, and bad color disappear—the functions of the body then operate naturally, congestion and pain are prevented and perfect health returns.

Thousands of happy women say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the greatest and best blood-purifier, and finest complexion renewer, the most certain regulating medicine known. Sold by all druggists and storekeepers 25c per box, five for $1.00 postpaid The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Former Local Man Hurt.

Word has been received here that Mr. Bert McKee of Fort William and formerly of Peterborough, a C.P.R. brakesman, was painfully injured 112 miles west of the former city a few days ago.

Parsonage for St. James.

That fine property situated at the corner of Romaine and George streets formerly occupied by Mr. T. Henry, has been purchased by the congregation of St. James' Church as a parsonage. Rev. J. N. Clarry, pastor will take possession shortly.

Central School Won Out.

The fastest game of ball that has been played in the Public School League this year was pulled off when the Centrals defeated the King Edwards by a score of 6—3. The boys showed good work. Batteries—Cavanah and Bergoyne, Bartley and Frost. Umpire—Stuart.

Local Cricket.

A meeting will be held in the Y.M.C.A. to-night at 8.30 p.m. for the purpose of electing officers and a committee and formulating rules for the Peterborough Cricket Club. All persons interested in the game and desirous of seeing it re-established in this city are requested to make an endeavour to attend.

Local Grocer on the Carpet.

Mr. J. C. Sullivan, the East Ward grocer, was charged in the police court yesterday with selling liquor in less quantities than three half pints and more than one quart, contrary to the Liquor Act. Mr. G. N. Gordon acted for the defendant, and pleaded not guilty. The case was enlarged until next Thursday.

To Salve Sunken Logs

A gentleman from Boston was in the city yesterday on a still hunt after the thousands of dollars worth of logs that lie submerged in the waters of the Trent Canal. He is firmly convinced that, with the present price of lumber, and by the use of a device of his own invention, there is money to be made in raising the sunken timber.

Dr. Friedmann to Be Watched?

In the fountain basin of Victoria Park yesterday was disporting itself a huge mud turtle. This turtle is so big that the ubiquitous small boy rode on its back. It was rumored but we don't corroborate the rumor, that a vigilance committee is to be appointed to guard against Dr. Friedmann, the tuberculosis shark, trying to steal this turtle to turn it into serum.

To Greet White Caps.

Arrangements are being made for a fitting opening for the Canadian League season next Monday when the White Caps play their first home engagement with the Brantford team as their guests. There will be in all probability an automobile parade headed by the 57th Band and with the players of both teams in line, and at the grounds there will be the customary parade across the field, and a short address from Mayor Bradburn

Their Golden Wedding Day.

On their wedding day, or rather the 50th anniversary of that auspicious event, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Tivey were the recipients of tangible honors. A handsome gold chain and locket together with a gold brooch, were donated the couple by their children; also a piece of silver from Mrs. Charles Cotton a niece. The members of the Lansdowne Lodge, S.O.E., presented them with a bouquet of roses with an address congratulating their veteran member, and Mrs. Tivey, on the event.

Miss Graham Convalescent.

We are pleased to state that Miss Madge Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Graham, has recovered nicely from an operation performed at St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday. Miss Graham has been at Saskatoon Sask., for some time and returned home a few days ago for an operation for appendicitis. This, as noted was successfully carried out yesterday. Whilst under the anesthetic Miss Graham also had a minor operation performed for some trouble in her wrist.

Former Local Man in Cyclone.

Last Saturday, one of those cyclones that go sneaking around the far West, broke in its direct humor on the property of a former local boy, Mr. Chas. Butcher of Stelina, Sask. The cyclone followed a prairie fire. Mr. Butcher and his brothers had got the fire under control when a corkscrew shaped cyclone appeared. The cyclone re-ignited the almost defunct fire, which destroyed Mr. Butcher's house, out-buildings, stock, etc. Mr. William Butcher's house had its roof lifted off by the cyclone.

Green Was Sent Up.

Mr. W. Green, a man well known around town, on Wednesday night abused his father who is 80 years of age. In yesterday's police court, Green, who seems to be inoculated with the alcoholic bug, was shown to have been a public nuisance for some months. Detective S. H. Newhall, on the complaint of a woman living near the Green residence, on Water street, arrested William. William had called a lady on Water street names that rhymed neither with sweetheart nor popsy-wopsy. William was given a two months meal ticket payable at Castle Nesbitt, with hard labor thrown in for good measure.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA, GAS OR INDIGESTION

Each "Pape's Diapepsin" digests 3000 grains food, ending all stomach misery in five minutes.

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist, a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fulness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.

Do You Realize What This Means to You, Mr. Business Man?

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"A Girl of the Mountains."

"A Girl of the Mountains" which has created a most favorable impression throughout the country, will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House, Wednesday, May 14th. Its tense story, astounding novelty, wonderful realization of Western and Eastern scenes and incidents, and the way in which it is done, provides an entertainment that holds the attention of the auditor from the opening scene to the final curtain. The story deals with the fortunes of a young Western girl, Nellie Bonn, who has been deceived by Richard Thurston. She realizes that infatuation is not love, and in a stormy scene informs Thurston that he has passed out of her life and that she is done with him forever. Nellie meets a young mining engineer, who loves her truly, and is loved in return. She accepts his devotion, and they become engaged, not, however, until she tells him of her past misfortune. She does this in a scene of great dramatic power. During the absence of her lover, Thurston re-appears. He has discovered that he loves her after all, and tries hard to win her. She defies him. Her lover returns, and a hand-to-hand conflict, full of thrills and realism, ensues. At this point, "Swiftwind," an Indian, settles an old score, and the lovers are made happy. The play is in the hands of a very capable company, and a complete scenic production is promised.

SAYS SHE SAW SOUL IN FLIGHT

Jersey Woman Says White Winged Spirit Left Body of Father-in-Law

New York, May 8.—The sight of a human soul in its passing, white and winged, so tangible in appearance that she sought to touch it with her hands, vouchsafed her at the time of the death, on April 10, of her aged father-in-law, Nathaniel H. Baldwin, is the testimony given by Mrs. David H. Baldwin, of 74 Christopher street, Montclair, N.J. Mrs. Baldwin made the story public reluctantly.

The Baldwin family is well-to-do and highly respected in Montclair. Nathaniel H. Baldwin was 96 years old when he died. He had been a devout attendant at the Presbyterian Church of Bloomfield, where he formerly lived, from early manhood. In his last years in Montclair he had been a familiar figure of kindly, gentle, tolerant old age.

MRS. BALDWIN'S STATEMENT.

"I was not in the least excited at the time, save only as I desired to minister to any need of my father, whom I loved most dearly—whom everybody loved really," said Mrs. Baldwin, speaking to a reporter of the vision. "I have never been a believer in spiritual demonstrations; never been interested in the subject; rather I have never thought of the possibility of such a thing happening as that which I beheld.

"Mr. Baldwin had never been ill, and when, at 8 o'clock on the morning of April 10, I heard a slight moaning sound come from the room of Mr. Baldwin which adjoins mine, I hurried in there to find him suffering from acute indigestion, but neither of us realized that it was more than a passing ailment. Suddenly he closed his eyes and sighed. I asked him if I could aid him, but he did not answer.

"I stood spell-bound for at that instant there issued from his lips the apparition of mystic gray light that formed itself clearly into spreading wings, each, I should say, about a foot long. The material of the apparition I would not attempt to describe. But I am as positive as I am that you are sitting before me now that it was not a mere vapor or due to any physical cause. I am equally positive that I was afforded the wonderful privilege of seeing the passage of the soul of my husband's father.

IN A MOMENT IT WAS GONE.

"The thing was so tangible, so real and so impressive that I could not mistake it for any ordinary manifestation. I can only explain it as being supernatural. My first thought when I saw it was to seize it. Then I bethought myself that I should give attention to Mr. Baldwin, and in that instant of my turning to look at his features, grown beautifully placid, the apparition was gone. Mr. Baldwin was dead.

"I can only account for what happened by my belief that Mr. Baldwin was a man of such pure and noble character; his last years had been so really saintly that his soul actually was visible in its passing."

OFFERED TO SELL GIRL FOR $2000

Offered to sell girl for $2000 —— —

New York, May 8.—Charged by the police with being a "white slaver," Francesco d'Tibalvi 26 years old, of 65 West Ninety-sixth street, reputed to be the son of a wealthy Argentine planter, had been locked up in the Morrisania police station. His arrest was made after he accepted a fake roll of bills, according to the police which he had been led to believe contained more than $3,000 as the price for a 17-year-old girl whom he had abducted a month ago and held as a prisoner in a furnished room house.

The pretended purchaser of the girl, who betrayed the alleged plot to the police, was a Japanese tea merchant, Y. S. Katagiri. The detectives commented that never before in their experience had they encountered a case more sordid or pitiful.

According to the story told by the police d'Tibalvi formerly boarded in the Ninety-sixth street house mentioned by him after his arrest as his home. The house is an exclusive establishment not far from Central Park. Katagiri also was a boarder there. The meals were served by a slender waitress named Susie Glenn, barely 17 years old. The young Latin-American was observed by the other boarders to be much infatuated with her. She seemed to be dazzled by his display of clothes and jewelry.

The girl disappeared from home a month ago, and the next day she failed to report for work. Later d'Tibalvi confided to the Japanese, it was charged that he knew where the girl was, and that he would sell her to Katagiri for $2,500.

Katagiri pretended to agree to the arrangement, but lost no time in visiting the parents of the girl and acquainting them with what he had learned. Mrs. Glenn accompanied the Japanese to the Morrisania police station, where detectives were assigned to the case. Katagiri was allowed to meet d'Tibalvi, and when the supposed bank notes exchanged hands the detectives arrested d'Tibalvi. They brought him to the room where they found the waitress, fully dressed, waiting with a suit case.

In the police station the girl became hysterical at the sight of her mother. She told the police that she had been terrorized by d'Tibalvi, and he had threatened to kill her unless she played the role of a willing party to the alleged "white slave" transaction. On the girl's complaint the prisoner was charged with abduction. An additional charge of extortion was lodged against him by Katagiri.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 191 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

STATE-OWNED ATLANTIC CABLE AND PROBLEMS OF DEFENCE

Postmaster-General Samuel to Visit Canada to Consult on These Questions--Australia Will be Represented

London, May 9.—Although no official information can be obtained here it is reported that the forthcoming visit of Post-master-General Samuel to Canada is connected with the subject of a State-owned Atlantic cable to link up with the Pacific cable. He will also attend a subsidiary conference in Canada at which other questions of Imperial interest will be discussed, the most important being the problems of defence in its later developments. Ministers from other Dominions will also attend the conference.

Premier Fisher, of the Australian Commonwealth, has already informed Mr. Harcourt that his Government desires to come to a proper understanding with the Home Government on the question of adequate protection to British interests in the Pacific, and Mr. Harcourt after consulting the Admiralty, has replied that consideration of the question must be deferred until the conference in the autumn. This decision has been reached owing to the present uncertainty as to what form of naval policy Canada will eventually adopt. It is pointed out that the original policy of the Dominion contemplated co-operation with Australia in the defence of the policy has altered that Still the Commonwealth and the New Zealand Governments intend to be represented, and they hope that Mr. Churchill and Mr. Harcourt will attend the meetings as well as Mr. Samuel.

GIBSON SENDS PATHETIC LETTER FROM DEATH CELL

Condemned Young Man Protests His Innocence of Rosenthal Murder--Mayor is Willing to Sign Petition

Toronto, May 9.—"Dear Father,—I want to say through the News, to the many people in Toronto who believe I am innocent, that I never laid hands on Rosenthal or Dunkelman. I have been convicted, but I am an innocent man. The evidence I gave at the trial is true, every word of it.

"I have been convicted on perjured evidence. There were a great number of witnesses who could have given strong evidence in my favor, but they were not called. I am sure that if all the evidence my counsel knew about then and all that has been found since, could be told to a jury, they would say I am not guilty. If I had done wrong I would have been willing to take my punishment, but I did not touch either. Rosenthal or Dunkelman, and it is cruel to make me suffer for what I did not do.

"Dunkelman did not tell the truth when he gave his evidence against me. He did not tell all he knows. He held back lots of evidence.

"It is a terrible position for me to be in, but I still hope, and I know my friends will do all they can to get me a new trial, so that all the evidence can be heard. I had a letter from the Mayor yesterday and he says he is only too willing 6to sign a petition to the Minister of Justice, asking him to grant me a new trial. Be sure and write to me soon. With love.

"Charlie."

The above is a copy of a letter written at the Toronto Jail this morning by Charles Gibson, and was handed to the News b- the boy's father for publication. As it indicates, the boy firmly maintains his innocence, and is placing all his hope on the securing of a new trial.

Seen this morning the father is as strongly convinced as ever that his son did not commit the crime for which he is sentenced to death.

THE TARIFF BILL TO THE SENATE

Passed Lower House by Sweeping Majority—Few Changes Is Expected.

Washington, May 9.—The Democratic tariff bill passed yesterday in the House with a majority of 142 votes, went over to the Senate to-day to be referred to the Finance Committee

Finance sub-committees have had the bill under consideration informally and they are about ready to report to the full committee in various schedules and administrative features. Few changes will be recommended by the sub-committees, though protests against many rates have been filed. Senator Simmons Chairman of the entire Finance Committee, will call a meeting at once to consider the briefs of manufacturers and other interests before the bill is reported to the Senate, which probably will be about June 1.

No public hearings on the bill are to be granted, though the Republicans plan to insist upon them after the bill has been reported.

BELMONT CLUB RECEPTION

The Members of This Popular Club Entertain Their Friends.

The Belmont Club held their first annual reception last night in their splendidly furnished rooms, George street. There were a large number of invited guests present, who were shown through the elegant premises, which consist of billiard room, reception and lunch rooms, spacious dancing hall. All the rooms have hardwood floors and are elegantly furnished throughout.

Howarth's orchestra furnished music during the evening. The young men certainly have cause to feel proud of their club and the success of this their first annual reception augurs well for future progress and prosperity of the club.

The following gentlemen comprise the Executive Committee: Messrs. C. P. Fee, W. G. Cochrane, H. F. Hall, S. P. Ecclestone, M. Rosenburgh, F. J. Heaslip, C. K. Lech, D. K. Brown, A. W. Belleghem, W. R. Hunter.

RADIAL RAILWAY CO MAKES GOOD OFFER

It will be remembered that The Times gave first intelligence of a threatened action against the Peterborough Radial Railway Co., taken by Mr. Cameron, busdriver for the Snowden House, for injuries received when an eastbound car on Charlotte street ran into the bus and hurled him to the street. Mr. Cameron's claim was placed in the hands of Mr. G. N. Gordon. Yesterday Mr Cameron was notified that the company offered him $25 compensation. The Snowden House proprietors were offered $15 for damages done to the bus. Miss Rae of Lakefield, who was seated in the bus at the time of the accident, and seriously hurt, has not as yet, made a claim for damages.

HOW HYDRO-ELECTRIC LAMPS WILL BE DISTRIBUTED

To Practically Convert Night Into Day In The Business Section, Says Engineer Jeffries--Overhead System in REAR of Properties For Commercial Purposes Approved of By Council

The City Fathers met in special session last night with a view to specially considering the system to be installed for serving the central portion of the city with Hydro-Electric power and light.

There were present Mayor Bradburn, Aldermen Gillespie, Duncan, Anderson, McIntyre, Green, Langford, Gordon and Buller.

Ald. Johnston, chairman of the Power Committee, submitted result of the enquiry into the views of property owners as to erecting a pole line in the rear of their properties in the main business portion of the city, from which to supply electric energy to said properties for commercial purposes, together with the distribution of 100 magnetite arc lamps for street illumination over this district, as follows:

Gentlemen,—

According to resolution passed at the regular council meeting on Monday evening, May 5th, authorizing the chairman to see private citizens where poles would be placed on private property at rear of buildings, your committee beg leave to report that in all cases (except one or two who are out of the city) the property owners interested are quite agreed to the scheme.

Mr. Jeffries, engineer of the Hydro-Electric department, has made his plans and permanently located where each pole is to be placed, and has interviewed the parties on whose properties poles would be placed with the above results.

We would therefore recommend that the work of installing our street lighting system on George street from McDonnel to the C.P.R., George street to the G.T.R. on Charlotte Hunter from Water street to the Bell Telephone Building, and Simcoe street 120 feet east and west of George street, be proceeded with without delay, the lights to be distributed as follows:

McDonnel to Murray on George—6 lights.

Murray to Brock on George—8 lights.

Brock to Hunter on George—8 lights.

Hunter to Simcoe on George—8 lights.

Simcoe to Charlotte on George—8 lights.

Charlotte to King on George—10 lights.

King to Sherbrooke on George—8 lights.

Sherbrooke to Dalhousie on George—8 lights.

George to 180 feet east and west on Simcoe—4 lights.

George to Post Office on Hunter—4 lights.

George to Bell Telephone Office on Hunter—6 lights.

All these lights to be fed from an underground system.

Ald. Green did not wish to be an obstructionist, but thought it too bad that when an underground system had been agreed upon, that even an overhead system should be erected in the REAR of the properties effected.

Ald. Anderson did not take kindly to the back lane pole line, which he characterized as depreciating the values of properties. He would not like to see lines going over buildings and through lanes.

Ald. Green also thought the pole line at the rear of the properties would be a menace in case of fire.

The Mayor explained that the scheme would effect a big saving in installation of Hydro-Electric. Should the plan for pole lines in rear of properties for commercial purposes be abandoned, considerable expense will be entailed in connecting premises from the underground system on the main streets. Then every time new connections are made the pavement would have to be torn up.

Ald. Green said he would remove his objection, if property owners would give permanent right of way for poles at the rear of their properties, but he would not agree to a yearly rental from property owners for such right of way.

The Mayor here offered that by adopting this plan for rear of properties overhead lines many existing poles would be eliminated.

The Power Committees report was here adopted by resolution and unless some hitch arises on the part of property owners, the premises in the area outlined in the report will be fed from a pole line in their rear for commercial purposes. The street lighting in this district will be fed from an UNDERGROUND SYSTEM.

COWS MILKED IN PETERBOROUGH BY MACHINERY

Ald. George A. Gillespie, of the Peterborough Creamery has accomplished in Peterborough County what has heretofore never been attempted. Yesterday he received a milking machine, and last evening every cow at the creamery's farm was milked by machinery. The result of Ald. Gillespie's twentieth century enterprise was eminently satisfactory, and this mechanical method of drawing milk from cows for the Peterborough Creamery will be continued from now on.

WHITE CAPS LOSES THIRD GAME 12-4

The White Caps seem to have started out for this season under an unlucky cloud, which the excellence of management and skill of the players will yet roll aside. Yesterday they lost to Brantford by 12—4. The cold weather of the past few days was not of the real baseball kind, and and would undoubtedly have a bad effect on the players.

THE Y. W. C. A. IN ANNUAL SESSION SHOWS GOOD RECORD

Last night the annual meeting of the local Y.W.C.A. was held in their splendid building. The big parlors were filled by a large and enthusiastic assembly.

Mrs. W. R. Morris, president, very ably filled the chair.

The meeting opened with devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. Mr. Mansell. His address was followed by two musical numbers. Then came general reports.

The speaker of the evening was Miss Picton—Twinsville of London, Eng., who gave an impressive address. Owing to the late hour, we are only able, in this issue to give the Secretary's report, as follows:

GENERAL SECRETARY'S REPORT

Do you realize that there are hundreds of homeless women in Peterborough and to be homeless means to be lonely? A small bedroom in a boarding house is a poor substitute for a real home or dream home, the thought of which every girl cherishes in her heart.

But it is all many girls can have and more than some can afford, when just starting the struggle for existence. Now, the heart of the Young Womens Christian Association is true and it yearns over those who cannot have the best and that life can give and it offers a substitute. Its declared purpose is to give to all young women, in every grade of life, rich or poor, at home, in domestic service, in shops, office, factory or wherever they are, the all-round four square life. It aims to give such a physical life as shall fit young women everywhere for the weak and tear of life, to give such an intellectual life as shall make them to some degree, self-sufficient, such a social life as shall cause them to value true worth of character wherever found, and above all to impart such a spiritual life as shall bring them into God's plan for the universe as His children.

The first year that a girl spends in the city is her testing time. Usually it is her first attempt to earn a living. It is too, often her first experience away from home, and perhaps at no time in her life is she so much in need of advice and sympathy and the comforts of home. These things we are trying to provide in Peterborough in our two boarding homes.

This year we have succeeded in opening a house in the south end, with accommodation for eighteen girls and it is practically filled.

Had we the means at our disposal, we would at once take in the adjoining house and feel sure it would rapidly fill. In our present house we have expended $507.56 for furnishing and in this have less than $50.00 debt, The house is plainly but neatly furnished and the girls are very

ARE NOT SATISFIED WITH CONTENTS FRIEDMANN'S CURE

Washington Reports on Conditions of Friedmann Patients Raps Germany

Washington, May 9.—The public health service observations so far into the condition of patients inoculated by Dr. F. F. Friedmann with his tuberculosis vaccine, do not "justify that confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by widespread publicity," in the opinion of surgeons who have conducted the Government's investigation.

This first authentic and official conclusion from the tests was announced here to-day before the National Association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis by Dr. John F. Anderson, director of the Government's hygienic laboratory, and Dr. A. M. Stimson, another public health surgeon who were detailed to observe the progress of the Friedmann patients at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York.

"We believe that the present time," says the report, "we are not as yet in a position to express an opinion based on the present conditions under observation. The disease for which the remedy is used is prolonged and is characterized by periods of advancement and retrogression. It is also one in which psychic influences are a powerful factor. Time is therefore necessary to properly evaluate the effect of therapeutic measures.

"We must not lose sight of the possible therapeutic value of this preparation and, on the other hand, it is necessary to guard against too great an optimism in respect to its merits. Without presenting in detail the condition of patients under observation, we are in a position to state that the facts thus far observed do not justify that confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by widespread publicity."

With favorable weather I should get a good crop.

Building Futures

During the growing period young people must have food containing the right kind of nourishment, not only to repair the every-day wear and tear of play and study, but for building the growing body into sturdy manhood and comely womanhood.

This means double duty, and mothers must pay heed to the children's diet.

A regular morning dish of

GRAPE-NUTS

helps wonderfully in developing youthful strength of mind and muscle because this food contains the true brain and body making essentials required by Nature.

Grape-Nuts food — made from choice wheat and malted barley — is rich in the vital grain phosphates, especially required for nourishing the child's rapidly developing brain and nerves.

The crisp, golden granules have a delicate, sweet taste and, being easily and quickly digested, are readily acceptable to the most sensitive stomach —making a most appetizing breakfast for both young and old.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

Advertisements under above heads, 20 words and under, one insertion, 15c.; 3 insertions, 25c.; 6 insertions, 40c.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 382 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

BALL FRANCHISES UNCERTAIN GAMBLE

Fortunes Made by Owners by Lucky Purchase at Right Time—Navin's Case Unique

Professional baseball offers a field of speculation about as uncertain as any gamble known to modern times. Fortunes have been made out of clubs which looked like sure failures, and in other instances apparently gilt edged investments have drained the pockets of the men who undertook to cater to the baseball loving public. The element of luck, of course, hinges largely on the acquisition of a team that will be at least contenders for the pennant.

MEN—YOU NEED NERVE

EARLY INDISCRETIONS AND EXCESSES HAVE UNDERMINED YOUR SYSTEM

The nerves control all actions of the body so that anything that debilitates them will weaken all organs of the system. Early Indiscretions and Excesses have ruined thousands of promising young men. Unnatural Drains sap their vigor and vitality and they never develop to a proper condition of manhood. They remain weaklings, mentally, physically and sexually. How you feel? Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on the face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, premature decay, bone pains, hair loose, etc.

Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the "Pirates" of Pittsburg made his entire fortune in the baseball business, and he has prospered amazingly. One of his most notable achievments is his magnificent Pittsburg stadium, costing —land and grand stand—about three quarters of a million dollars. Cleveland boasts of a feminine baseball magnate, Mrs. Helen Robinson Britton and her mother, Sarah C. H. Robinson. Philadelphia is something of a mystery so far as ownership goes.

"The stock is held nominally by Horace Fogel, president of the 'Phillies' corporation. Mr. Fogel was a telegraph operator and then a newspaper writer. He was a baseball official in Indianapolis and New York before he took charge of Philadelphia. The major part of the stock is said to be distributed among a number of prominent men, some in Philadelphia and some elsewhere, who prefer to remain in seclusion. Of these, Charles P. Taft is reported to be one. The club is fairly prosperous financially, having earned something like $70,000 last year on a valuation of perhaps $300,000.

The American League, organized ten years ago as a rival of the National League, but now working in harmony with the latter, is headed by Ban Johnson, who is said to combine the money-raising power of a college president with the "sand" of a college half-back.

S. F. Angus, a railroad man, who owned the Detroit "Tigers" in its early days, dropped $60,000 on it. Then William H. Yawkey bought it, and engaged Frank J. Navin to manage it for him.

"Any time you want a half interest," said Yawkey to Navin, "you can have it." Navin had been bookkeeper for Angus and had little money himself. There was no written agreement.

The next two years, 1905, 1906, Yawkey lost $45,000, while the original investment had been only $35,000. Then, Hugh Jennings was drafted from Baltimore and made bench manager for Detroit. That year the "Tigers" won the league pennant, and the profits were $50,000. It was then that Navin said to Yawkey: "I think I'll take formal possession of my half interest."

With some men, contracts are superfluous; Yawkey is that sort of man. There might have been a law suit, but there wasn't. The verbal understanding was carried out to the letter, and Navin came into a bonanza. With his profits he purchased an equal partnership. His total investment in the club was now $17,000. Then next year the "Tigers" captured the pennant again, and the net profits were $75,000.

Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago "White Sox," is a distinctive figure among baseball owners. He is said to have made all his money in baseball. His club is in the million dollar class. His original investment was $30,000. Comiskey owns the grounds, the franchise, and the stands —all paid for.

MAN WHO AIDED DARWIN

When Darwin was making his researches which were afterwards given to the world in the "Origin of Species," "The Descent of Man," and other epoch-making works, one of his chief assistants was Mr. W. B. Tegetmeier, who died in London at the age of 96.

As a boy Tegetmeier used to buy wild birds and keep them in his father's house in St. James's, and he also adopted pigeon fancying. It was through a neighbor, Mr. Yarrell, who was also a well-known writer on birds and fishes, that Mr. Tegetmeier made the acquaintance of Darwin, who at the time was in search of facts about variation in animals. Darwin gratefully accepted his help, and in his volumes made many acknowledgments of the assistance rendered by his fellow naturalist.

Mr. Tegetmeier was of service to Darwin in many diffeent directions. For instance, he tabulated for him the "Racing Calendar," the births of racehorses during a period of twenty-one years, and also the births of greyhounds as recorded in the "Field" for twelve years.

On more than one occasion he suggested a method of research which Darwin adopted. For instance, he tried an experiment by which a bee was led to build a single cell, and found, as he suspected, that the "geometrical" instinct of the bee was a myth. The cell, in fact, was circular, and he read a paper on this discovery at the British Association meeting in 1858.

Mr. Tegetmeier was on the staff of the "Field" for about fifty years, and wrote more than 1,100 consecutive weekly leaders for the "Queen." He wrote many books on bird life.

It was one of his few boasts that he was he oldest holder of a reading ticket at the British Museum. He took out his reading ticket in 1833, at the age of seventeen.

SNARED A MOOSE

Huge Animal Caught by Rope Suspended From Bent Bough

One of the most remarkable and daring instances of moose killing reported for many years was unearthed by the Province of Quebec Fish and Game Protection Association.

Two wardens brought to Montreal a fine moose skin weighing fifty pounds, which they had seized in a tanner's establishment at Rimouski. The animal was killed within the game preserves of the Anglo American Fish and Game Club. A further remarkable point is that the animal was caught in a snare, the first instance of a moose being taken in this way for more than forty years.

The snare consisted of a bough of a tree bent towards the ground with a rope and noose at the end. When the animal put his head in the loop the branch sprang upwards, lifting him off the ground and hanging by the neck. As a moose weighs from 1,400 to 1,500 pounds, great care had to be exercised in selecting a bough sufficiently strong to bear the weight.

The Finest Wild Rose

The world's finest wild rose is the great brier rose which was introduced in 1888 by the late Col. Sir Henry Colett from the Shan Hills of Upper Burma. The specimen in the Himalayan House at Kew refused to bloom until 1910, when four flowers appeared, the number being increased last year to eight.

This year the plant produced a profusion of large white blossoms with yellow stamens, which were greatly admired.

AFTER MIDDLEWEIGHT BELT

When Mike Gibbons returns to New York, he expects to be ready to fire the opening gun of a campaign to obtain recognition as the middleweight champion of the world. Before Gibbons left for his home in St. Paul to spend the summer he informed a friend that his object was not only to obtain a needed rest, but to build himself up, so that he would be able to meet the McGoortys, Klauses, and Mohas at something like equal terms as regards weight. If he can succeed in acquiring a few more pounds he will drop all pretence of being a welterweight and meet all comers at the 158 pound limit.

There seems to be no particular reason why the St. Paul phantom should not pick up a few more pounds. He has just turned twenty-four years of age, and having barely ceased to grow in height, can now be expected to take on flesh. At the present time he scales at 151, ringside. Even at his present weight there are many who think he could outpoint any of the prominent middleweights in a ten round bout. But in a long distance fight his lack of weight might be too great a handicap. Gibbons is one of the most careful matchmakers in the ring, and the announcement that he has signed for a fight means that he is absolutely sure of winning.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is said that meetings are soon to be held in Ottawa to reorganise the Liberal party, when Sir Wilfrid will no doubt serve as chairman of an embalming committee.

A Toronto paper says that Hon. Sam Hughes has won his spurs. We think so, too, and from the way some of the Liberals are snorting and cavorting, he must be using them.

The editor of our good contemporary, The Examiner, is becoming quite a philosopher. He tells us that persistent and conscientious effort can accomplish all things, but we don't believe it. The harder some men try to sing the worse it sounds to the neighbors.

John D. Rockfeller completed his plant for the manufacture of artificial ice just about the time the announcement was made that there would be a serious shortage of the natural ice crop. That man is so lucky that if he were to fall out of the top window of a skyscraper he would escape injury and find a valuable diamond ring on the sidewalk.

AUSTRIA'S BIG TASK

King Nicholas admits that Montenegro will be beaten if Austria attacks her, but he adds: "The victory will be a terribly costly one. It will cost Austria dearer than Algeria cost France, than the Caucasus cost Russia, or the Transvaal cost Great Britain." That Austria will not have an easy time in conquering the Montenegrins is obvious when the fact is considered that Austria cannot borrow money at home or abroad, and at least one-third of her people sympathize with their Slav kinsmen.

PROTESTANT GERMANY

The last religious census of Germany gives the population of the Empire as 64,925, 933. Of these, 39,991,411 are Protestants, 23,821,453 are Roman Catholics, 283,946 are other kinds of Christians, 615,021 are Israelites The Protestants form 61.59 per cent of the population and the Roman Catholics form 36.69 per cent. Bavaria, Baden and Alsace-Lorrain alone have Roman Catholic majorities. One interesting fact is that the number of conversions from Catholicism to Protestantism is far greater than from Protestantism to Catholicism. It is estimated that every year about 10,000 Roman Catholics turn Protestant while only about 1,000 Protestants become Roman Catholic.

UNDER PRIESTLY INFLUENCE

In the town of Bruce, Wisconsin, a new Methodist Episcopal Church was dedicated. At the public services commemorating the event certain citizens spoke, among them one of the chief members of the local Roman Catholic church, who gave a few words of congratulation that Methodism was able to complete its beautiful building. Upon the following day this man was waited upon by his priest. He was removed from his leadership of the choir and deposed from all official position in the church, and otherwise humiliated before the congregation. His loyalty was shown in the fact that he bowed to the authority of his priest and remained in the fold of that church. To which the Christian Guardian wonders how long liberty-loving Unglo-Saxons will submit to such tyrannical priestly control! It is this same spirit which has cost Rome millions upon millions of followers during the last quarter of a century, and unless the iron hand becomes less oppressive her borders will be still further curtailed.

Headache Over the Eyes? Look for Nasal Catarrh

Catarrh Never Stops in One Place—It Spreads Rapidly—Often Ruins Health Completely.

In this changeable climate it is the little colds that drift into Catarrh. Unless the inflammation is checked it goes rapidly from the throat or nose to the bronchial tubes and then to the lungs. You can't make new lungs any more than you can make new fingers or toes, but you can cure Catarrh.

The surest cure consists of breathing in the healing balsamic essences of CATARRHOZONE, which is simply a medicated vapor so full of rich curative properties that every trace of Catarrh vanishes before it.

"The soothing piney vapor of Catarrhozone is the most powerful medicine I ever used," writes Mrs. Edmond J. Christina, of Saskatoon. "Every breath drawn through the Inhaler sends a grateful feeling through the air passages of the nose and throat. Catarrhozone cured me of frightful headaches over the eyes, relieved me of a stuffy feeling in the nose, and an irritable hacking cough that had been the bane of my life for a year. My general health is greatly improved, my appetite and digestion are considerably better than before. Catarrhozone has been the means of giving me such health as I always desired, but never possessed."

Even though catarrh has a firm hold on you, and affects your throat, nose or ears, you can thoroughly cure it with Catarrhozone. Large size, guaranteed, costs $1.00; smaller size 50c.; sample size 25c. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

TO WAR AGAINST CANCER

The death rate from cancer in the United States averages 75,000 a year. The rate is increasing but it may be reduced after a few years if there is a general understanding that cancer may be treated successfully in its earlier stages and that it is incurable in its later stages.

An association of physicians and laymen is in process of formation to conduct a nation-wide campaign against cancer. The main purpose of this association is to impress upon the public mind through every means that is available that there is no known cure for cancer except the surgeon's knife, applied in the earlier stages of the disease.

If the disease is recognized and treated when it is incipient, it may be cured; but if it reaches the advanced stage the surgeon and the physician admit that they are powerless to save the patient. A cure may be discovered, and in fact, there are surgeons who feel confident that they are now upon its track, but the studies of the world's most eminent specialists have not yet discovered it.

In the present state of medical and surgical science, therefore, it is necessary to teach people to know incipient cancer and to warn them to seek at once a competent surgeon when they have it.

Canada's Next Governor.

London, May 9.—There is some probability that when the Duke of Connaught returns to Canada toward the end of May he will be accompanied by his only son, Prince Arthur. Of the report that his Royal Highness will succeed his father as Governor-General of the Dominion there is, however, no official confirmation, though it is believed that the appointment would be in accordance with the King's wishes. The fact that his Royal Highness remains a bachelor is, of course, a serious difficulty.

Duke Puts On Air.

Vienna, May 9.—Since the Duke of *Cumberland has been slated for fath*er-in-law to the Kaiser's daughter, he affects quite royal manners. Formerly noted for his stinginess, he now banquets the school children of the little villages in the neighborhood of his estate, treating them to chocolate and cake, which does not cost much, yet pleases the kids and gains the duke a reputation for generosity.

The funny part of it is that he always sends one of his foresters to represent him. The forester wears a grand uniform, a sword at his side and looks awfully stern, imitating his master as well as he can.

THE Y. W. C. A. IN ANNUAL SESSION

happy in their home. We have just purchased a piano for them, and, of course, for this we owe. Miss Dyer is in charge as house secretary, and is doing a beautiful work in moulding these girls' lives and giving wise advice when the rocks in life loom large on the horizon. Money donations were received for this scheme from the following friends of the Association: Mrs. Dr. George Burnham, Mrs Robert Harstone, Mrs. Wm. Ferguson, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Dr. Jessie Burnie, Miss B. Hall, Mrs. Spence, Mrs. Parker, Canadian General Electric Co., J. J. Turner & Sons, and Colonial Weaving Co., while many others gave articles towards furnishing.

Another innovation this year, and already an important part of Association machinery is the Girls' Auxiliary. This has a membership of about thirty leisure girls and they have given freely of their time to further the work of the Junior Department. Six girls were in attendance for two hours every Saturday afternoon to take charge of the work done for the children. 257 children were enrolled with an aggregate attendance of 1278 and an average of 60. They were given work in the gymnasium, in cooking, sewing, hygiene and Bible stories. Prizes were offered to the little girls doing the neatest piece of work in sewing and were awarded as follows: Bregetta Conroy, Marion Ray and Jean Kydd, each a silver thimble, donated by G. V. Warne and Clarke. Great praise is due Mrs. Dr. Morrison, as convenor of the Junior committee, for the unflagging zeal and system she put into the Saturday afternoon work.

Early in the year, the young ladies gave a library tea, which proved a very pleasant social event and brought in 250 volumes, besides a very beautiful edition of Nelton's Encyclopedia, the money for which was donated by some of our generous citizens. The library now contains 400 volumes.

In February the Auxiliary gave a unique entertainment in the gymnasium—a feast of nations—at which they made considerably over one hundred dollars. A part of this was used in purchasing books for the library and the balance will help to defray the expenses of a delegation to the summer Conference in Muskoka next month.

The Loyalty Club, an organization of girls from the old land have also done good work. They have met every Thursday night all year and spent the evening sewing, etc., in preparation for a sale. This sale was held in April 10th and netted the Association about $80.00. This money was given the new South House to assist them in removing their debt.

A new branch of work under the auspices of the Association is the Girl Guides. Two companies are formed and duly registered and a third one is being organized, which means over 70 girls between the ages of 11 and 18 years. Their training consists of pursuits on such lines only as will make the girls more capable in all womanly arts, and cultivating their powers of observation and inculcating healthy habits and kindness to others. Nature study and essay work are especially emphasized.

In the educational department, classes were conducted in sewing, millinery, first aid, domestic science and public school work.

In the department of religious work, as in all other activities of the Y.W.C.A., the services are not only for those in residence but for all women and girls who wish to take advantage of its privileges.

The week commences with a prayer service at nine o'clock Sunday morning, conducted by the secretaries. Then at 5 p.m., is held a half hour vesper service at which we have had in all fifty-five different speakers and soloists. These services have been remarkably well attended and much enjoyed by the girls. To all, who have so kindly and willingly given us of their time and talent for this work, we wish to express our heartfelt thanks. Each evening of the week, family worship is conducted by the secretaries in the green parlor The girls of the Boarding home, all attending, whenever possible. In November, the week of prayer was observed by a talk each evening on the country assigned and special prayer for that country. Passion week was especially noticed at our evening prayers, by reading the events of Christ's last week as recorded in the words of the four gospels.

A mission study class of Normal [illegible] students was held each Saturday afternoon during the winter in [illegible] parlors, when an interesting and profitable study of the Chinese Revolution was taken up.

The gymnasium and elocution department prospered under Miss Rochester's management and gave two very praiseworthy exhibitions of the busy life at the Association, but with all these activities, we are just beginning to occupy our field. Not until all the girlhood and the womanhood of Peterborough shall be so developed as to approach the Christ ideal, and be the crown of our civilization—a crown their master would approve—not until then will the Y.W.C.A. occupy this field. Let us press on with renewed strength and courage and love, getting a wider vision, each day, of this year by coming daily to the cource of all power.

You may know or have heard of their work.

CRIME AMONG ANIMALS

Horses, Birds and Insects Have Lawless Instincts in Some Cases

Those in a position to speak authoritatively assure us that crime is to be found among the lower as well as among the higher animals—men. In the lower orders it appears there are individiuals, like men, that seem incapable of living and satisfying their wants without doing harm to their fellows.

Among bees there is much theft. The "light-fingered" gentry of the hives, in order to save themselves the trouble of working, attack and carry off the booty when they cannot obtain it by stealth. Sometimes, having acquired an incurable taste for robbery and violence, they form regular colonies of bandits.

Dove owners assert that in almost every dove cote there are birds that try to obtain material for their nests by abstracting straws that have been collected by others. These mild thieves are not only lazy, but unamenable to discipline by their fellows.

Murder is not uncommon among animals, "murder" in this sense being applied to that kind of killing that has nothing to do with the struggle for existence, but which arises from malice, pure and simple, or from downright passion. Storks, it seems, frequently kill members of the flock which at the time of migration either refuse to follow them or are unable to do so.

A veterinary surgeon is authority for the statement that in every regiment of cavalry one may find horses that rebel against discipline and let no opportunity escape them of doing harm either to man or their well trained fellows. These horses, it has been noticed, usually have narrow foreheads.

DESTRUCTIVE SAWFLY

Dr. Hewitt on Experiments to Prevent Tamarack Destroyer

The almost total destruction of the tamarac, or larch, which took place throughout eastern Canada almost thirty years ago, was caused by an insect, the larch sawfly. It appeared again about eight years ago and in its spread westward it is repeating its former devastation on the younger tamaracs. To all who are interested in Canada's forests the appearance of a little book by the Dominion entomologist, Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, will be welcome.

Dr. Hewitt studied the life-history, habits and means of control of this injurious sawfly, both in England and North America. In England, it was found that the natural enemies, especially parasitic insects, effectively gained control of outbreaks of the insect. Other natural enemies were mice and birds, and a system of bird encouragement was started on a large scale. The devastating spread of the sawfly in North America was due to the comparative absence of the natural means of control. Several important species of parasites new to science were discovered and studied. To increase the number of natural enemies of the sawfly, attempts are being made to introduce and establish in Canada parasites which were discovered in England and which appeared to control the pest there.

TONS OF BIBLES PRINTED YEARLY

Enormous Output of One Great Publishing House—Demand in Canada for Diglot Edition

There is only one book in the world whose annual output from a single publishing house is quoted at 500 tons.

There is only one book in the world that can, in the nineteenth century of its age, double the demand for itself in three years.

There is only one book in the world that is translated into 630 tongues, read from the igloo of the Eskimo through the grass hut of the Hausa trader, clear down to the last lone village of the Southern and most South Sea islander. It is the Bible, of course.

"The Brittish and Foreign Bible Society alone issues its book in 440 languages," said Dr. R. Kilgour, editorial superintendent of that institution, while on a visit to Canada, "and eight new tongues were added last year, one for an obscure tribe in an island beyond Borneo, one for a people on the borders of Siam, one for New Guinea, two for Africa, two in European Gypsy dialects, and one for the Chinooks who are scattered from Oregon to Alaska along the Pacific. The young people of this tribe could read English, but the old folk longed for at least a little portion of their own jargon. So, of course, the society had to give it to them.

Fifteen Millons a Year

"Last year we issued 7,000,000 bibles, testaments, and portions," Dr. Kilgour went on, "and when you add to this the contributions of the society of Scotland, the German and the American societies, you'll find that the old book was turned out in upwards of fifteen milion copies." These bibles are distributed not only through branches, but are carried to the farthest, queerest corners of the world by an army of 1,100 colporteurs. In the cafes and music halls at Budapest, on the docks at Antwerp, in the apple orchards of Tasmania, the nitrate fields of Chili, the mines of Johannesburg—everywhere these silent, intrepid missionaries go with the old book.

The Diglot Edtion

And Canada has been the cause of about $80,000," said Dr. Kilgour. "At the newest departure in the society's plans—the diglot edition. Here we see the English, side by side with any one of 29 other languages. Port Said, Johannesburg, and Winnipeg lead the world in the use of these diglots.

"And I'm inclined to think Winnipeg comes first," said Dr. Kilgour.

One doesn't wonder that an income of over a quarter of a million pounds sterling is needed for so stupendous a work.

"Last year we had a deficit of 16,000 pounds," said Dr. Kilgour. "At first we couldn't understand it, but when the figures came in we realised that it was because of the enormously increased demand from China, Japan, and India. Asia is waking up."

TWO OLD CHURCHES

Montreal Has One With Foundations Two and Half Centuries Old

The old Bonsecours Church is the oldest stone church in Montreal, or probably in the Dominion. It was commenced in 1657; burned in 1754; reconstructed in 1772; and restored in 1888. The first church was of wood and was the united effort of the first colonists, who were aided, both by the zeal and the means of Mother Bourgeois, who came out to teach the young alike of the Indians and the early settlers. The original foundations of the church remain intact.

St. Gabriel's Presbyterian Church on the Champ de Mars dates back to 1792; but the old Bonsecours was commenced at a time when the colony was still in its infancy, and the Indians were a source of constant terror to the handful of men and women who, acting as they believed under the inspiration of God, came out to the wilderness to civilise and Christianize the barbarous aborigines.

CAN'T SLEEP ON THIS

One-legged Stool Prevents Occupant from Taking Snooze

Few people are looking for things to keep them awake—rather the contrary—but when a man has a job as watchman in a gunpowder factory, for example, he is willing to stay awake until he gets home, inasmuch as this kind of a watchman is supposed to keep his eye on the thermometer and see that the temperature does not get high enough to send him off into a sleep from which he would never awake. However, sometimes nature is too strong for us and some provision must be made that the watchman cannot snooze, even against his own will. He is therefore provided with a one-legged stool upon which to sit. If he should happen to fall into a doze he would promptly lose his balance, and if the resultant crash to the floor does not wake him, his future is not worth worrying about any further.

WHEN SLEEP MIGHT BE FATAL

SPORTING NEWS

RING.

New York, May 9.—Jim Coffey, the "Dublin Giant," signed for what will probably prove the hardest battle of his career to-day when arrangements were concluded whereby he agreed to meet Jim Flynn, of Pueblo, Colo. The fight between the two heavyweights will be the big event of a card to be staged at the Garden A. C. boxing show in Madison Square Garden on the night of May 23. Billy Gibson, manager of the Garden A. C., matched Coffey.

The "Dublin Giant" has scored several knockouts lately and is still going up. Flynn has met all the hard ones, including Jack Johnson and Luther McCarty.

LACROSSE.

President Sinkins of the C.A.L.A. has written to Sir Donald Mann, asking that the Mann Cup be handed over to the Amateur Lacrosse Association of Canada. Sir Donald naturally referred the letter to the custodians of the Cup, the trustees, before making reply. Said trustees were appointed to fix the rules under which the Cup should be competed for, and prejudiced people might think that President Sinkins was slightly lacking in courtesy when he went over their heads and tried to have the trustees superseded and their powers transferred to the C.A.L.A.

London, Eng., may 9.—The South of England Lacrosse Association held an informal meeting here yesterday to discuss the proposed visit to Canada, and particularly its financial aspect.

P. B. Hawes read a letter which he had received from the Canadian authorities, advising the English union to postpone the visit until 1914, for, owing to an exceedingly bad season, the Canadian local lacrosse associations were not in a position to guarantee their visitors' expenses.

The meeting decided to act upon this advice, suggesting May or June next year as the possible date of departure.

CRICKET.

Montreal, May 9.—Through the visit to Montreal of R. B. Benjamin, the meeting of an all-Montreal eleven and the Australian cricketers is assured. The team to visit Canada is one of the most representative that has ever left Australia, and includes many players who have figured in the matches for Australia against England in past years.

The Australians sailed from Sydney yesterday, and are due to arrive in Victoria, B.C., on May 26, where they will play their series of matches.

The following players are included in the Australian party: McArtney, Bardsley, Mayne, Crawford, Whitty Emery, Keleway Arnott, Collins, Trumper, Mailey and Campbell.

Mr. Benjamin will leave for Toronto to-night and will make another attempt to arrange a game there.

BASEBALL.

New York, May 9.—The New York National had no undue advantage over the Philadelphia club in the games played at the Polo Grounds late in April, by reason of the fact that there was a hole scooped out of the diamond back of the pitcher's box. This is the finding of President Thomas J. Lynch, of the National league on the protests of the Philadelphia club, and he orders that the results of the games shall stand as played.

The Philadelphia club protested these games, played April 23 and 24, alleging that a hole several inches deep was scooped out back of the pitcher's plate in violation of the rule which requires the field to slope from the pitcher's plate to every base line. New York won the first game 3 to 1 and the second 7 to 1.

During the series President Locke of the Philadelphia made a verbal complaint to headquarters relative to this hole and Umpire Klem was instructed to have the ground keeper level off the ground in order to avoid the possibility of a ball thrown from centrefield, striking back of the rubber.

New York, May 9.—Because he was found guilty of patronizing a gambling house which is a violation of the rules of deportment, C. B. Owens, one of the most popular umpires in the National League was dismissed yesterday. President Lynch followed his dismissal of Owens by issuing a statement in the nature of a warning to all who hold similar positions.

AN INCH OF RAIN

How it is Measured by a Simple Little Instrument

Few people really understand how rain is measured. We often read in the newspaper that so many inches of rain have fallen during a certain period, but it is difficult to realize what an inch of it actually means. There are several methods of measuring rain by what are known as "gauges." The most skilful is a contrivance with a funnel at the top, through which the water passes into a cup-receiver. The weight of the rain automatically works a pencil. This marks on a sheet of paper wound round a cylinder, and when it has marked in this fashion two-tenths of an inch, the cup tilts over and empties the contents. The pencil returns to its former position, and the same little device is repeated incessantly until the rain ceases to fall, whilst the pencil continues to register on the paper attached.

African Drum Signals

For centuries before Marconi wireless telegraph was known the mystery of swift communication puzzled explorers of barbarian regions. In the heart of Africa a missionary discovered the method of hollowing a large gourd, which was then dried, and round it was stretched the skin of a kid, hard and thin as parchment. Beaten with a padded drumstick this instrument gives a sound which can be heard eight miles away. And each village contains the expert who can tap the message and send it on.

The Cork Industry

The best cork comes from trees in Spain and Portugal that are allowed to become 40 years old before the bark is cut and then it is removed only every eight or ten years.

Worn Out.

Said the man in the aisle to the man sitting down: "You ought to stand up and give that seat to me. I am the tiredest man in America. I have just taken part in a sixty-mile motor-paced bicycle race."

Said the man in the seat to the man in the aisle: "You have nothing on me in the line of exhaustion. Maybe you rode in the race, but I sat and watched it."

Tenders for Buildings

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IS YOUR LAXATIVE

Best Liver and Bowel Cleanser and Stomach Regulator in the World Work While You Sleep.

Get a 10-cent box.

Put aside—just once—the Salts, Pills, Castor Oil or Purgative Waters which merely force a passageway through the bowels, but do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

Keep your "insides" pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken, and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, Coated Tongue, Indigestion, Sour Stomach or Constipated Bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.

HALF MAN, HALF METAL

That a man's mangled body could be patched up with nearly half a hundred weight of metal, and the man still be able to take some enjoyment out of life, might seem an absurd statement, but James Thompson came back to Montreal from a New York hospital carrying forty two pounds of iron, steel and other metals worked into his anatomy. He is probably the only man in the world who can say that he is strong and alive after having lost the majority of his joints and eight major bones.

Thompson was in a bad plight when he fell from a span of the Quebec bridge, on which he was working three days previous to the collapse of the structure. He dropped over two hundred feet into the river, and when rescued was found to have every major bone in his body broken. So the unconscious workman was hustled off to New York to be used for experimentation purposes at St. Luke's Hospital. The house surgeons there took charge of him and proceeded to patch him up. After three years he came back to Canada, looking for a job.

In his head is a gold plate larger than a silver dollar; between his ribs are special steel girders; his elbows are of steel; six feet of new bone has been engrafted into the legs and arm. A steel bar holds his head erect, but prevents it from turning.

Mr. Thompson was offered big money to go on the stage, but refused. Several famous museums applied for his body "post mortem," and he consented to be embalmed and placed in the British Museum when death comes his way.

A NEW INVENTION

ANOTHER SPLENDID CURE BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Newfoundland Has Tell How He Found Quick Relief and Permanent Cure After Two Years' Suffering.

A new invention for handling the Telephone Book has just come out and is being installed in the Times office. It does the work that it now takes two hands to doi and in one quarter the time. A touch of the finger brings the book before you with the pages open at Peterborough allowing you to get your number instantly with one hand. Another touch and the book closes up out of the way. Can be attached to the wall, desk and switchboard. Holds the phone too, on the desk and revolves to any position, so you can do your talking by simply taking the receiver off the hook. The price is only a trifle, and it is being universally adopted. Trebilcock Bros., of this city, have procured the agency for this district. It is well worth seeing.

Moscow Survivors.

That soldiers—once they escape the risks of war—are long lived is shown by Russia's finding four or five survivors of the Moscow campaign, the centennial of which is now being celebrated.

These veterans must be 115 years old, at least, unless small boys were enlisted in those days.

After the 20 years of war of the Napoleonic era, of the 36 marshals of France, 26 survived. Of the 10 who were gone, only two died of disease; three fell in battle, one was drowned, one was assassinated, one was a suicide and two were executed

The survivors reached an average age of 72 years, 10 of them dying as octogenarians.

Many other generals have reached extreme old age. Marshal de Richelieu was 94 years old when he died in 1788. Two years before his death he married a girl of 16, who was able to say to Napoleon III. in 1862: "Sir, Louis XIV asked of my husband"—

She was then 92 years old and lived two years longer.

Diagnosis Wrong for Once.

"It's a dangerous thing," said the physican, "to jump at a diagnosis before getting all you can of the patients' personal history. I knew a doctor who while still a young man had attained considerable repute as a specialist in nervous diseases. One day a man visited him with a tale of woe, and after listening the physician leaned back in his chair, joining his finger tips with the true professional air, and said:

"'What you need, my dear sir, is a broader vision. You have got into a rut. You ought to read more. Get the opinions of able writers on the current topics of the day. Your mind has become stagnant. It has been dulled by the petty commonplaces of your own little sphere. Read the newspapers. Get familiar with what is on in this country—in the world. By the way, may I ask what is your occupation?'

Jan. 22, 1912.

Dear Sirs.—

It is just one year ago that we put in the first stock of SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES CURE, and we wish to state that we have been amazed at the remarkable sale of these remedies. We have had many repeat orders in both our stores and have sold retail $1000.00 worth of these remedies. In spite of all these sales we have yet to hear of one dissatisfied customer, while many have come back to tell us of the wonderful cures resulting from the Medicine.

Another striking feature of this business is that so many customers come in stating that SANOL has cured Mr.—— their intimate friend, and they wished to try it for themselves.

Wishing you continued success, we are, Yours truly,

OFFICIAL BOOKS DRY BUT HEAVY

Building to House John Bull's Private Library—Blue Books on Every Subject

John Bull's blue-books factory is going to move into more modern and spacious quarters. John Bull has been publishing bluebooks—which is the name given to all government reports in Britain, though some of them are white and others red—for over 150 years now, and in that time he has issued nearly 400,000 of them. The complete collection weighs over 2,000 tons, so it was stated by the bluebook maker-in-chief, who added that this weight was far too heavy a burden for the walls and floors of the rather rickety old eighteenth century building where the bluebook-making industry flourished for just short of a century.

This building, which is known officially as his majesty's stationery office, is in Prince's street, Westminster, near the famous Abbey. The new home is near Waterloo Station.

It costs John Bull over $5,000,000 a year to print his bluebooks, which are probably the dullest reading on earth. There are exceptions, of course, a lot of stories of real life as dramatic as novelist ever invented having first been told between the covers of these sober reports of various branches of the British Government.

Diverse Subjects

The one bluebook in a thousand that makes good reading is the report of some British commander in Asia or Africa on the results of a punitive or other expedition into an unknown or dangerous region, the annual report of one of his majesty's administrators in odd corners of the empire, with picturesque accounts of their duties and of the ways of the natives; or that of one of the consuls in an obscure part of the Empire.

The subjects these government reports cover range from foreign relations to flies (these latter in their capacity as disease-carriers). There are bluebooks on boiler explosions, on beetles, and on the disease of lilac trees. Bluebooks, of course, can be bought by anybody who has the strange taste to want to read them, the lowest price for a single copy being one cent. The most expensive bluebook ever issued will cost you $505 if you care to invest in it. It gives a complete account of the round-the-world voyage of H. M. S. Challenger which began in 1873 and ended in 1876. A lot of leading lights of the world of science were on board and the mighty deep and its denizens and vegetation were submitted by them to careful study. W the voyage was over men of scie of many nations were asked to w on the results of the expedition a their articles are included in the b gest of all bluebooks, which is p lished in 50 parts, finely illustrat with colored prints. The price of probably will remain a record.

Why They Are Published

On an average 3,000 bluebooks a published every year, most of th having been asked for by members parliament. That is the usual gene of a bluebook. When one of the me bers of the House of Commons has fancy to know what any particul department of His Majesty's government is doing, he asks to have a report of its activities laid on the table of the House. Then it is the business of the chief of the said department to prepare a report which, after the House has discussed it, generally is ordered to be printed. When it is in cold type, it is called a bluebook, though it may lack the customary azure binding and be, officially, either a white paper or a red book. All acts of parliament are published in bluebook form. Certain government departments, like the admiralty and the war office, issue their reports as bluebooks automatically, and a few records, such as the reports of military operations are "presented" to both Houses by command of the Sovereign.

MARTINS GREAT SHOTS

Sensation of Ayrshire Rifle Meet Has Two Brothers in Canada

Sergeant Jack Martin who made fifteen consecutive bull's-eyes at the 1000 yards range in the Ayrshire rifle matches, has a brother in Canada. He is Alex. Martin, a sporting goods dealer, of Calgary.

The Martins are a family of crack rifle shots. Both Fred and Alex, who make their home in Calgary, have participated in international matches, while Jack, the sensation at Ayrshire won the Grand Aggregate at Bisley last year and the previous year made the full score of 105 in a squadded three-distance competition, being the first to attain this distinction in the N.R.A.

Sergt. Jack Martin has a son A. E. Martin, now 17 years of age, who bids fair to bring more fame to the Martin family. In a meeting at Darnley he took first prize under conditions calling for seven rounds at 200 and 500 yards. His score was 68 and for the tie he made three bull's-eyes. He has won several other notable prizes in the past two years.

Martin was a member of the Palma trophy teams which visited Canada and Australia and has participated in other important international events.

USES APE'S STOMACH

Marvellous Operation Upon a Frenchman and its Drastic Test

A man's stomach was removed by a French doctor and replaced with the stomach of an anthropoid ape, which of course, an ape very close to a man in the rising scale of development.

So joyous was the recipient of the new stomach that at the first opportunity he became intoxicated. Naturally the ape had never tasted liquor and the stomach he gave was so healthy that it did not suffer by being drenched in alcohol.

This remarkable operation and restoration of the part exorcised, the first of its kind, was performed by Dr. Roulles, a famous surgeon in the hospital at Agen, 72 miles southeast of Bordeaux. The patient was a farmer, 27 years of age, whose stomach was worn out and worthless. With the most delicate skill and the nicest knowledge of anatomy the surgeon opened the patient's abdomen and tying the great arteries as the operation proceeded, took out the useless stomach. After twenty-five days of treatment the cure was complete: the young farmer left the hospital, and as if to test his new stomach, went on a spree.

CHOICE OF AWARD

Old Man's Peculiar Will Develops Good and Bad Traits of Nephews.

BY GEORGE ELMER COBB.

"And I hereby bequeath and devise to my nephews, Ralph Davis and Jonas Greer, the house on Main street and the house on Railroad street, my trustees to make the choice of awarding the same."

The lawyer read this extract from the will of old Peter Davis in a singsong tone. There was a long sigh of relief from Jonas Greer, and a pleased expression on the face of Ralph Davis. Good old Uncle Peter had not forgotten them, even if he had given a goodly portion of his worldly goods to charity.

"Further," the lawyer continued his reading, "the first one of said nephews making five thousand dollars, the same shall be received in full payment for the old homestead."

There was due speculation among the gossips of Brandon for a week after that, as to which of the fortunate heirs of old Peter Davis would receive the best property award.

The place on Main street was the choice of the two residences. The house was modern, the neighbors were of the best social set in the village, the street was paved. The Railroad street place held a neat but old-fashioned cottage. Main street was a broad tree-fringed thoroughfare. Railroad street had half of its area taken up by tracks, sidings and freight houses. The Greers had no children. There were two pretty, curly headed tots in the Davis family.

After thinking and debating over the matter at the end of a week the trustees of the Davis estate awarded the Main street property to the Greers.

"It's a burning shame, Ralph!" said outspoken Mrs. Davis. "There is no right or justice to it. Everybody knows it, everybody is scandalized."

"Oh, we're property owners now, and shouldn't complain," reminded her husband in a pleasant way.

"But think of it—the Greers have no children, and we have. It is dangerous for them so near the railroad tracks. Besides that, this property isn't worth half as much as the Main street place."

"Here is a Little Paper to Sign."

"Well," rejoined Ralph, "I understand that John Moore, one of the trustees, is wearing a new diamond pin, and they say that Greer presented it to him. Let it go. When I look around and see how cozy you've made the place here, I feel as if it is a kind of palace."

"Oh, Ralph, you are so easily satisfied," sighed Mrs. Davis.

"That's because I've got what Greer can't scheme for and get."

"What's that?"

"You and the children," cried the big hearted fellow, and his wife returned his bouncing kiss with a proud and happy face.

"I suppose the next thing we know," she said, "Greer will scheme to get the fifty thousand dollar homestead for that five thousand dollars. He'll raise it among his friends."

"No, he can't do that," dissented Ralph. "He has to 'make' it. I'll let you into a secret, Madge, dear: I am going to work and scrimp and save to raise that money. The Greers won't. They are going in for society in their new home. Sort of look down on us back street folks. So, they spend all they get."

Ralph's loyal little wife had a good deal of humiliation to subdue for a time. Mrs. Greer began to take to herself a certain social importance. People who were once ignored the back street home. The yards of the two houses adjoined at the rear. First Mrs. Greer pitied her humbler neighbor. Then she was indulgent. Finally she ignored her. Ralph worked hard. His life was centered in his home, and his sterling, steadfast faith in the future began to influence his wife. One day he came home in the middle of the day. This was an unusual thing for him. His wife looked alarmed and then curious, for her husband's cheery face was wreathed with smiles.

"Well, I reckon we'll have to move," he announced.

"Move! When? Why?" cried his bewildered helpmate with a gasp.

"Right away, and because our house here is sold."

"Sold!"

"That's right," smiled Ralph, and he acted and looked as if supremely satisfied with the arrangement. "Here is a little paper to sign," and the speaker produced an official looking document.

"But why sell it; who is buying it?" stammered the bewildered wife.

"The railroad company. If we hold back, the property will be condemned anyway, so we had better close the bargain. They are paying us a big price."

"But to tear up, when we are so nicely settled here!"

"As well as the Greers?" inquired Ralph archly.

"Yes, we are!" declared the staunch little woman. "It's been just delightful, and we have made it a real home."

"Well, the new one may suit you better," predicted the husband. "In fact, Madge, I have decided to buy the old homestead."

"Why, where, how can you get five thousand dollars?"

"The railroad company are giving us twelve thousand dollars. It is three times the value of this place, but they must have it. That leaves us seven thousand dollars and what I've saved to begin a new life in grand style."

The delighted little woman broke down and cried for sheer joy.

About all the family did that evening was to scan the prospect before them and plan out the golden life offered ahead. The old Davis homestead was a regal place—a roomy, comfortable house with beautiful gardens and a small farm area behind it sufficient to pay the expenses of living.

The next morning Mrs. Greer met her neighbor on the street. The latter noticed that she scanned her last season's dress rather keenly. Then, when she heard that the Greers were giving a large party and she was not invited, Mrs. Davis realised that the upstart Greer family were ashamed of their supposedly humble friends of former times.

The whole town knew of what they called their good luck, one morning. The sale of the little house on Railroad street was the gossip of the village. Jonas Greer heard of it with a sense of indignation. He felt wronged. Then he suddenly recalled a certain scheme ending in a bribe, and kept his conclusion to himself.

Glum and sullen Mrs. Greer grew sharp voiced and thin over "the freak of chance" that had placed her despised neighbor in affluence. She suffered worse when a new humiliation faced her. The railroad people proceeded to build their noisy, smoke producing shops within fifty feet of the Greer residence.

In the meantime the social strivings of the Greers had led them to mortgage their home. Then came the crisis. They sold their equity in the place for a song, and went to live in a rented flat.

Ralph Davis had too good a heart to neglect a relative and he placed the Greers again on their feet in a substantial way. His pensioners, however, never failed to exploit "the advantage taken of them" by the whole souled fellow who understood how to enjoy prosperity because he had known adversity.

KILLING CATTLE WITH AIR

Experiments With Pneumatic Poleaxe for Slaughtering Purposes

A poleaxe two and a half inches long, more efficient in cattle slaughtering than its primitive antecedent, is occupying the attention of London butchers, since a demonstration of humane methods of killing conducted at the Islington abattoirs under the auspices of the Council of Justice to Animals.

The weapon employed was the council's "air-killer." In appearance it looks like a large sky rocket; the rocket end is a chamber charged with compressed air, the stick an elongated valve terminating in a poleaxe only some two and a half inches long. On the pressure of a trigger the poleaxe is liberated against the head of the animal, the skull of which it penetrates without difficulty. The animal falls instantly, showing hardly a trace of the hole thus pierced.

The "air-killer" was used upon sheep, calves, and bullocks, all of which were, with one exception, killed expeditiously. It was clear that the efficacy of the instrument depended upon the operator's knowledge of the vital spot in an animal's skull. In the hand of an expert there should be no failures and the instrument costs but a trifle.

Cost of the Durbar

The Indian Accounts and Estimates for the current year, show that the cost of the Royal visit to India, as at present estimated, was $5,000,000.

In addition to this amount, the Royal boons, announced at the Durbar, involved, besides a recurring grant of $1,000,000 for popular education, a sum of $3,000,000. Of this [illegible] was accounted for by the [illegible] of half a month's pay granted to the Army and to certain Civil employees.

"MOST POPULAR MAN IN KENT"

Lord Harris, who recently celebrated his 61st anniversary, has had a distinguished career as diplomat, courtier, cricketer, and organizer. He has been described as the most popular man in Kent, a reputation earned as captain of the Kent eleven, when he did more for the game than almost any man of the day. For five years he acted as Lord-in-Waiting to Queen Victoria, and he spent the same term as Governor of Bombay, during which period he and Lady Harris are said never to have made an enemy.

Canadian Flying Corps

It is possible that a military aviation company will be organized in Toronto—the first in the Dominion. It has been suggested to the Department of Militia that such a company might be organized with "Casey" Baldwin and J. A. D. McCurdy, the Canadian aviators, as two of the chief officers.

SEA-GOING CAT'S DEATH

Mascot of Tunisian Deliberately Committed Suicide

Evidently tired of sea life and not caring to eke out a precarious existence ashore, "Prince," a plump, slick coated, black cat, one of the mascots of the Allan liner Tunisian, deliberately ended its ninth life by committing suicide at Montreal as the ship was leaving the wharf en route to Liverpool.

The big ship had got away from the end of the wharf several feet when Prince appeared on the main deck. He looked at the wharf, turned and scanned the deck, then quickly wheeled around again and with a feline howl leaped towards the dock and fell with a splash into the surging water.

Some longshoremen who saw the cat fall into the water tried to save it, but Prince avoided their attempts and in a few minutes was sucked under by the strong current caused by the moving ship.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a waltz, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel.

Ten wagons passed without a movement or sound from the men lying concealed almost within arm's reach of the unconscious guards. Farrell never stirred, and I scarcely ventured to breathe. Then there came a squadron of Rangers, an officer riding alone in front, the black shadow of another section of the wagon train looming over the ridge behind them. The horsemen passed us, the officer turning in his saddle with an order to close up their ranks. I recognized Grant's voice, and then, sharp as a blow, rang out Farrell's whistle at my very ear.

There was a leap of flame from both sides the road, lighting up that gash in the clay bank as though it was an inferno, the red and yellow glow cleaving the night asunder, with ear-splitting roar. I was on my feet my rifle spitting, yet hardly conscious of any act, stunned by the suddenness of the reports, confused by those black figures leaping forward through the weird glare. I saw and heard, and yet it was all a confused medley, in which I bore active part while scarcely realizing its significance. It was a fierce hand-to-hand melee so swiftly fought as to be over with almost in a minute, and yet so desperate the narrow roadway was strewn with bodies. Frightened horses whirled and ran; wagons were overturned; hemmed in against the high walls, Germans and British made one mad effort to extricate themselves; the advance guard came spurring back, pushing blindly into the ruck, the boyish voice of their young lieutenant sounding above the uproar. But our men were between the two, a compact body, each borderman fighting independently, but knowing the game. I heard no word of command, no shout of direction from either Farrel or Duval, yet we ripped them asunder with sweeping rifle butts, and, almost before I could catch a second breath, the few who remained on their feet were helplessly trapped. Farrell saw it was all over, and his whistle sounded again, stilling the uproar. Up to that moment he was beside me; with the echoing of the shrill blast he had disappeared.

"Who commands here?" he shouted. "Speak up quick."

There was hesitancy, and then out of the black mass huddled against the bank I recognized Grant's voice.

"I suppose I do; has any one seen Captain Delavan?"

"He fell at the first fire, sir," answered some one huskily.

Grant stepped forth into the moonlight, bareheaded, his sword in hand.

"Then I am the senior officer," he announced, his voice shaking slightly. "Who are you?"

"Camden minute men. Do you surrender?"

He took a long breath, glancing about at the dark shadows. Some one held a lighted torch, the red flame casting a sudden gleam over the surrounding faces. It was clear that further resistance was useless, yet Grant temporized.

"Are you in command?"

"No," said Duval; "but I represent the commander."

"I deal with the one responsible in this affair and demand terms. Who is your leader?"

Duval smiled, turning his head inquiringly.

"I don't think you have much choice," he commented dryly. "However, perhaps you are not too proud to talk to a regular who outranks you—I present Major Lawrence, of the Continental Line."

Surprised as I was by being thus suddenly thrust forward into supreme authority, I as instantly understood the purpose, and stepped to the front. Grant stared at my face in the gleam of the smoking torch, almost as though he looked upon a ghost.

"You!"

"Certainly, Captain. It is a pleasure to meet with you again, especially under such happy circumstances. But my men are becoming impatient. Do you surrender?"

"Under what terms?" he parleyed.

"None, but we are not savages. You will be treated as prisoners of war."

His hatred of me made him obstinate, but the utter helplessness of their position was too apparent to be ignored. A Hessian muttered something in German, and Grant dropped the point of his sword with an oath.

"Good," I said promptly. "Lieutenant, have your men disarm the prisoners."

There was no resistance, and the militiamen herded them against the bank, encircled by a heavy guard. Duval singled out the officers from among the others, and brought them forward to where I stood. There were but three—Grant and two Hessians. I looked at them keenly, recalling the slight figure of the young lieutenant with the boy's voice. Could the lad have been shot, or what had become of him?

"Are you three all that are left?" I questioned bluntly. "Who commanded the vanguard?"

The two Hessians looked at each other stupidly, and I asked the question again before Grant saw fit to reply. His manner was excessively insolent.

"That is more than I know. We joined after dark, and I did not meet Delavan's officers."

"He vas vat you call maype a volunteer leftenant," added one of the Germans brokenly. "At Mount Holly we met, yah, and from there he joined."

"Not one of Delavan's men then?"

"I dink not; he vas Light Dragoon. I haf the ragon guard—the first vag-one—an' see him there. Mine Gott! he come pack vid his mens all right—slash, shoot—his horse rear up; that vas the last I see already."

"The lad got away, with three others, sir," broke in a new voice at my back. "They wheeled and rode through us, across the water. We thought the horse guard would get them over there, but I guess they didn't; anyhow there was no firing. The fellows must have turned in under the bank, and rode like hell."

Satisfied as to this incident and not altogether regretful that the boy had thus escaped, I held a short consultation with Duval, seeking explanation as to why the command had been so unceremoniously thrust upon me. A few words only were required to make the situation clear. Farrell's ability to injure and annoy the enemy largely depended on his leadership not being known. While taking part in every engagement, he always required his lieutenants to represent him in negotiations, so that up to this time, whatever the British might suspect, they had no positive proof that he was openly in arms against them. Duval, in turn, taking advantage of my presence, had shifted the responsibility to my shoulders.

"But what do you people do with your prisoners?" I asked.

"Send 'em to the Continental lines when we can," he explained, "and if we can't then turn 'em loose. No use paroling 'em, as they consider us guerillas. If I was you I'd run 'em back to the farm house across the creek, an' hold 'em there till we get rid of this stuff. Maybe it'll take twenty-four hours to hide it all, and burn the wagons. Then the boys can turn 'em loose, an' there's no harm done. I'd like to take that fellow Grant into our lines—he's a mean pillaging devil—but it's too big a risk; Bristol is about the nearest picket post, and the redcoats have got cavalry patrols all along in back of the river."

"But I cannot wait here," I answered, impatiently. "Farrell understood that. I have important information for Washington, and only came with you tonight because you were following along my route. I've got to go on."

"That's all right; just give your orders, and we'll attend to the rest. What we want is for these lads to go back to Philadelphia saying they were attacked by a force of militia under command of an officer of the Continental line. That will give Clinton a scare, and turn suspicion away from us. Grant knows you, I understand, so he'll report the affair that way. You can be off within thirty minutes."

It was easy to grasp the point of view, and I saw no reason for refusing assistance. I gave the necessary orders, standing under the torchlight in full view, and waited while a squad of partisans rounded up the disarmed prisoners, and guarded them down the slope to the edge of the stream. Teams were doubled up, and several of the heavy wagons rumbled away into the darkness. Two, too badly injured to be repaired, were fired where they lay, the bright flames lighting up the high banks on either side the road. I found a big black horse, with British arms on the bridle, and a pair of loaded pistols in the holsters, a fine-looking animal, and came back into the fire glow, determined to lose no more time. Duval had disappeared, but, as I stood there looking about for him to say good-bye, a young country fellow came up hurriedly from out the darkness.

"You're wanted down thar," he said, with the jerk of a thumb over his shoulder. "The Tory officer wants to see ye."

"What officer? Captain Grant?"

"I reckon that's the one," indifferently; "anyhow I was told to fetch ye down thar. Bannister sent me."

I went as he directed down the rutty road, my newly appropriated horse trailing along behind. Grant was pacing back and forth restlessly, but, as soon as I appeared within the fire radius, he came toward me.

"Can I see you alone?" he asked brusquely.

"If there is any reason for privacy, certainly," I answered in surprise. "What do you wish to say?"

"This is a matter strictly between us," evasively. "I prefer not to discuss it publicly here."

I had a suspicion of treachery, yet was not willing to exhibit any reluctance.

"Very good. Bannister," to the partisan in charge, "I want a word with Captain Grant, and will be responsible for his safe return."

The man looked after us doubtfully, yet permitted us to pass beyond the guard lines. There [illegible] beside the road, barely within the flicker of the distant fire, and there I stopped, leaning against my horse, and turned so as to look into the man's face.

"Well, Grant," I said, rather sternly. "We are alone now; what is it?"

He cleared his throat, evidently uncertain how best to express himself.

"Why did you ask so many questions about Delavan's lieutenant?" he began sullenly. "What were you trying to find out?"

CHAPTER X.

A Capture.

What was the matter with the fellow? Could he have sent for me merely to ask that question, insisting on privacy? There must surely be some hidden purpose behind this. Yet if so, there was no betrayal in the man's face. His eyes had an angry gleam in them, and his words were shot at me in deadly earnest.

"The lieutenant?" I repeated, not prepared for a direct reply. "Why, I hardly know—curiosity largely."

He stared at me in manifest unbelief.

"What do you expect to gain by lying?" he exclaimed sullenly. "You saw him, no doubt, or you would not have asked what you did."

"Certainly I saw him," more deeply puzzled than before at his insistence. "That was what aroused my interest. He seemed such a mere lad as he rode past, and later I heard his voice, the voice of a boy."

"Was that all?"

"All! What else could you suppose? It was dark, only a little gleam of moon revealed outlines. I couldn't distinguish the face, but when he failed to appear after the fight I remembered him, and was afraid he had been hurt. Now I want to know what you mean. Who was the lad?"

He had seated himself on the stump, and was leaning forward, his face hidden from the light of the fire.

"Well, go on then," he returned finally. "If that's all you saw of him it's all right."

"No, it's not all right," I insisted, aroused by his peculiar actions. "What is all this mystery about? You told me you didn't know the man."

"I said I hadn't seen him, that we joined Delavan after dark," he corrected sharply. "But you needn't try to interview me, Major Lawrence," stiffening with anger, "for I haven't anything to say to a spy and leader of guerillas."

"You requested this interview; however, if you are satisfied I am, and you can return to your men. Shall I call the guard?"

He hesitated a moment, but whatever it was which had first inspired him to question me, was too strong to be thrown aside.

"If You Interfere in My Personal Affairs Again I Am Going to Kill You."

"Did—did Mistress Mortimer help you escape from Philadelphia?" he asked bluntly.

"That is entirely my affair. Why don't you ask the lady herself?"

"See here, damn you!" he burst out. "I haven't seen the lady. When I got back to the dining room she was gone, and then I was ordered out here. But you know you were being sought after, and I cannot imagine who else told you."

"You do not exhibit very great faith in the lady—the daughter of a loyalist."

He drew a quick breath, suddenly aware that he had gone too far.

"It is your sneaking spy methods, not the girl. She is innocent enough, but I suspect you dragged the truth out of her. Now see here!" and his voice took on the tone of a bully. "You are in power just now, but you won't always be. You can't hold me prisoner; not with these ragamuffins. They'll turn us loose as soon as they loot those wagons. I know how they work in the Jerseys. But first I intend to tell you something it will be worth your while to remember. Claire Mortimer is going to be my wife—my wife. War is one thing, but if you interfere in my personal affairs again, I am going to kill you."

"Indeed," smilingly. "Is Mistress Mortimer aware of the honor you are according her?"

"She is aware of the engagement, if that is what you mean. It has been understood since our childhood."

"Oh, I see; a family arrangement. Well, Grant, this is all very interesting, but I am unable to conceive what I have to do with it. I met Mistress Mortimer by accident, and then was fortunate enough to dance with her once. 'Tis scarcely likely we shall ever meet again. The daughter of a colonel of Queen's Rangers is not apt to come again into contact with an officer of the Maryland Line. I don't know why you should single me out in this matter. I don't even know the lady's brother."

"Her brother?"

"Yes, the family renegade; the twin brother on Lee's staff."

I could not perceive the expression of the man's face, but he was a long while answering.

"Oh, yes. She told you about him?"

"It was mentioned. Would I know the boy from any resemblance to his sister?"

"Y—yes, at least I should suppose so. You must have become very intimate for her to have told you that. You see it—it is a family secret."

"Nothing for Tories to boast over, I should imagine. However, it came up naturally enough while we spoke of the sufferings of the American army during [illegible] the way this [illegible] divided families. Has Mistress Claire any Colonial sentiments?"

"How the devil do I know! She would not be likely to air them before me. I don't know what fool trick you played on her last night, but she's on the right side just the same."

"I think so, too." [illegible]

His manner was so disagreeable that I instantly determined to have an end. I had more important work before me than quarreling with this fellow, and, somehow, his claimed intimacy with Mistress Mortimer grated upon me strangely.

"If that is all you requested an interview for, Captain Grant," I said coldly, "I'll trouble you to return to your men."

DODDS KIDNEY PILLS

CHOOSING A BAT

Giants' Indian Backstop Follows Example of His Forefathers

"When I want a bat," said "Chief" Meyers, of the Giants, in an interview, "I go personally to a certain factory where they are made. Then I pick out the rough piece of ash, just as it has come from the tree. My early life and perhaps the knowledge inherited from my Indian forefathers has made me an expert on wood.

"Then I watch the lathe-man turning the wood into shape; stop him every once in a while and 'heft' the club; and never let that bat out of my sight until it is a finished article. That may all sound foolish; but I'd never carry a bat to the plate that I hadn't seen developed out of a rough piece of wood.

"My bats are all several inches longer and many ounces heavier than the average. I own about twelve of them now, including 'Old Granddad,' a monster club I use in practice. I was nearly heart-broken a couple of years ago when the Polo Grounds fire ate up nearly all my sticks. I 'slumped' then until I replaced them.

"On the road I carry about three or four, and before and after each game I 'nurse' them, as the boys jokingly say.

"When I was a kid I used to see the old Indians of my tribe giving their bows a peculiar treatment. They would rub the bows down with a big, heavy beef bone. This, they told me, closed with the oil from the bone and fragments of the bone itself the pores of the wood. That strengthened it and prevented it from cracking, at the same time polishing the surface.

"So when I got into the ball game I thought this: 'The bows brought their living to those old fellows. My bats bring my living to me. So I'll give them the old beef-bone treatment.' And I still do it."

Buys at Edmonton

George Pearson, of Glasgow, Scotland, brother of Lord Cowdray, head of the famous Pearson Contracting company, completed a real estate purchase in Edmonton which will ultimately bring about $1,000,000 of new English capital into that city.

The immediate purchase price is a little under $500,000, the estimate of the ultimate investment in Edmonton of $1,000,000 being based on the intention of Mr. Pearson to erect a number of modern business buildings on his newly acquired holding.

THE SUPERIOR TURK

Marshal von der Goltz, who was responsible for the reorganization of the Turkish army under Abdul Hamid gives this reason for its high fighting quality—that every Turk feels himself to be a member of a ruling race, immeasurably superior to the Christian nationalities about him. This feeling of intense pride sustains him in battle. He comes of a hardy peasant stock inured to privation and open-air life. He is usually familiar with the use of arms from childhood. All that he needs to assimilate when he joins the ranks is the more mechanical part of discipline.

Laughs with Joy! No More Indigestion

Montreal Man So Ill, Thought He Would Die of Stomach Trouble.

Found a Simple Remedy That Has Kept Him Well Ever Since

The experience of Mr. Larose is one very common to-day:

"I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for five years. I suffered so much that I could hardly attend to my work. I was weak and lost all courage. I enjoyed no rest until I decided to follow your treatment. To my great surprise I immediately began to feel better. I am now using the second box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and I feel so well that I want to tell you that I owe this great change to your famous pills. I recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills to every person who is suffering from dyspepsia. Your grateful servant, D. R. Larose, 338 Joliette street, Montreal, P.Q.

All who have weak stomachs, and those who suffer with indigestion, headaches, biliousness, can be perfectly cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c per box, at druggists and storekeepers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont., and Buffalo, N.Y.

Ald. W. J. Johnston is in receipt of a communication from Ottawa and is requested to forward to S. Shoemaker, 108 First avenue, any information he may secure regarding William R. Johnston, who served in the Red River Rebellion in 1870-1,2,3, and also Wm. Johnston, who served in the Northwest Mounted Police.

Big Time Dominion Day.

The directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are making arrangements for a celebration on [illegible] Dominion Day, July 1st. It is proposed to have a big programme at the Exhibition grounds and among other things there will be an aeroplane demonstration, an aviator having been secured to give the exhibition.

Monday's Opening Day.

Mayor Bradburn will pitch the first ball at Riverside Park on Monday. Mr. Nelson, of Brantford will handle the stick, while Mr. Denham will use the big mitt. Mr. E. G. Patterson will umpire. Prior to the game a parade, consisting of the 57th Regiment Band, both teams, city officials and others will leave Central Park at 2.30 and proceed to Riverside. The game will be called at 3.30.

Took Acid by Mistake.

Late on Thursday night, Daniel Cushing of 330 Sherbrooke street, took, as he thought, a dose of sweet nitre, before retiring. His wife unfortunately, by accident took a wrong bottle and Cushing took a dose of carbolic acid. With great presence of mind he took great quantities of olive oil. The oil saved his life. Doctors Mann and Sutton arrived and after two hours of anxiety Mr. Cushing was pronounced out of danger.

Judgment Reserved in Landry Case.

Judgment in the case of Herbert Landry guilty of stealing money from Milton Hutchinson, was not given yesterday by Judge Huycke. It is understood that friends of Landry are endeavoring through the Attorney-General's Department to secure leniency in his case. Crown Attorney Wood will not agree to suspended sentence. Final judgment will be given on May 15th.

Local Man Got Full.

Port Hope Guide: Isaac Dormer was next and he trotted up to the Magistrate's desk with a broad smile. He was quite certain that he was not drunk but unfortunately for Ikey the Magistrate had seen him on the street in the afternoon just able to get along. Dormer explained that he came here from Peterborough and was on his way to Oshawa to visit his daughter. He was informed that the first train left at 1.07 and under no consideration was he to miss it.

A Lindsay Fire.

The home of Jake Smith in the eastern portion of the town of Lindsay was partly destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The fire brigade got to the scene before much headway was gained by the flames and attached 1200 feet of hoses to the nearest hydrant, but could not throw a stream upon the burning building. The fire started in the cellar, which was filled with diver's articles of sundry values. The blaze was checked by a bucket brigade.

Stirling Man Heavily Fined.

Belleville Ontario: A man named James Connelly of Stirling was Charged with obstructing an officer and pointing a pistol at him while in discharge of his duty in attempting to search for liquor. The accused came before Justice James Scott and William Meiklejohn yesterday at Stirling, and was convicted and fined $20 and costs on the charge of pointing a revolver and sentence was suspended during good conduct on the obstruction charge.

New Local Fireman Honored.

Guelph Mercury: Last night at the fire hall the boys gathered together and presented Fireman Soleaby with a very handsome pipe as a token of their regard for him during the time he had been on the fire fighting force. Chief Finch made the presentation, congratulating Mr. Soleaby on the responsible position he was about to assume as Assistant Chief at Peterborough. He stated that Soleaby had always been an efficient and willing fireman here, and expected to follow his career with pleasure and interest for he felt assured he would make a success.

Which Place Was Referred to?

It was rumored yesterday that a local young man is to be charged with "kissing a girl in a public place." The offence is said to have been committed in Jackson Park. This kind of charge reminds one too much of the old "Blue Laws." Surely a man under the silvery rays of a May moon may kiss his girl, even though it be in Jackson Park. Again does the "public place" refer to Jackson Park or to the ruby lips of the girl? If the latter, some one is liable to be made prove the accusation.

Two Alleged Vags Remanded.

At yesterday's police court James Wilson (not Sunny Jim) and M. Burke, were charged with vagrancy. They were remanded until Monday to enable the Chief to investigate their past history. Wilson is somewhat of an amateur lawyer. When the chief tried to cut off his flow of verbosity, Wilson remarked "Your worship, I am not represented by counsel. Have I not a ribht to speak in my own defence?" "Yes," replied the Cadi. Wilson then went on to say: "Your worship, I am a British subject and a Canadian born. I think I have more right to speak in this court than some of your policemen, who are immigrants." Still, without venturing an opinion that might sound like advising the court, and consequently contempt of court, Wilson was not born yesterday.

MADE A NEW MAN OF LUKE BENOIT

Stephenville, Nfld., May 9.—(Special)—Loud in his praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills is Mr. Luke Benoit, a well-known and highly respected resident of this place. And there's a reason. For two years he suffered from the pains and aches of kidney disease, to-day he is a new man, and six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills affected the transformation.

"I cannot praise Dodd's Kidney Pills too highly," Mr. Benoit says in an interview. "I suffered for two years from headache and pains in my back. My sleep was broken and my appetite failing, and I thought the trouble must be in my kidneys.

"I sent to Thomas McMurdo, St. John's, Nfld., for six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They helped me almost from the start, and now I am a new person.

"I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all my friends if they should suffer from pains and aches as I did."

That Mr. Benoit suffered from kidney disease is shown by his symptoms. Any two of these symptoms are proof that your kidneys are diseased. For diseased kidneys there is only one cure that never fails — Dodd's Kidney Pills.

HOW ELECTRIC LAMPS WILL BE DISTRIBUTED

The 100 magnetite arc lamps provided for in the above report will give the district in question a brilliant illumination, practically converting night into day. The poles will be ornamental and globe and pole combined will produce a pleasing effect. If the Street Railway Co. is willing a combination light and trolley pole will be used, eliminating the present trolley poles. These combination trolley and light poles have an arm from which the arc lamp is suspended, 15 feet from the ground, and the trolley wire runs along the top of the pole at a height of the present trolley poles. The ordinary pole without trolley wire provision, supports the arc light at its summit, 15 feet high.

The streets outside the district outlined will be lighted by powerful Tungsten lamps; but eventually the underground system is to be installed throughout the whole city.

After the Caretaker.

Ald. Duncan and the Mayor expressed themselves quite strongly on the question of the caretaker's neglect to have the city buildings warmed on occasions like last night, when the committee room was too cold for comfort. The Mayor said the caretaker should know enough to look after this duty without being told. Ald. Duncan, as chairman of the Property Committee offered that he had instructed the janitor often enough in this connection and did not propose to do so again.

It is expected that an amendment in this regard will be experienced in future.

POLICE RAID POKER GAMES AS MOURNERS

Boston, May 9.—Merrily the cards were dealt out to the little group of devotees of the "great American game" who sat about a coffin in the rear of the undertaking establishment of John F. O'Brien, at 133 Dorchester street, early yesterday morning.

Between remarks about "two cards" and "three cards" and "raise" and "call" the 11 men passed clever little jests about what a good poker table a coffin really makes. And, when one of the devotees liked the looks of his full house too well until he saw the fours another held, he even laughed when they told him he was a "dead one."

A knock sounded at the door. Then the night bell rung. Regretfully one of Undertaker O'Brien's assistants arose to see who the nocturnal customer might be. The players held their "hands" concealed with an air of resignation.

Appeared at the front door a tall man who illy strove to conceal his grief by dabbing at his eyes with a handkerchief. With him was a fellow mourner dressed in sombre black. They were so obviously the close relatives of someone just deceased that thoughts of the game temporarily vanished before the prospect of a good funeral order.

The attendant turned for just a second to warn his comrades that silence would be necessary for a few moments. As he turned, the tearful mourner did also, reopened the front door and two more bereaved gentlemen in sombre black entered.

The four took a sudden interest in the back room, and were grouped around the coffin, and the 11 men, in a second. Then the 11 were informed that they were the dead ones, for the four mourners were Sergt. "Billy" Livingstone of division 6, Special Officer Nash and Patrolmen Powers and Reserve Officer Murch.

The game was pronounced extinct and the 11 men were taken to the station house, where they gave fictitious names. They had been playing with 228 cards—those in excess of the regulation number being found to be largely aces and face cards.

GERMANY TO HAVE TEACHERS OF LOVE

Munich, May 9.—A high school for whom Gen. Hancoog was stationed in matrimonial sciences, or, to give it its sonorous Teutonic title, "Hochschule der Hieratswissenschaften," has been founded here by Prof. Dr. Walter Hassall.

Dr. Hassall hopes that within a month's time the academy will number 500 students of both sexes.

These, on completing their course, will be awarded diplomas as teachers of love, and will be expected to travel the length and breadth of Germany in order to make an active propaganda in favor of marriage.

The curriculum at the high school will include lectures by specialists on the dangers of flirtation and the beauties of "all-sacrificing love." Experts in zoology and biology will illustrate their instructions by means of cinematograph displays and will explain the interesting laws of affinity and soul attraction and repulsion.

Special courses will be held at which the ideals of love will be installed into the souls of rebellious subjects; while the problem of preventing the flight of love after the disillusionment of matrimony will receive great attention.

EUROPE AWAITS WITH OPEN ARMS

Yankee Spenders Who Are Expected to $60,000 Behind

London, May 9.—The great annual American invasion of Europe has begun. Advance guards of the army of 120,000 transatlantic passengers who cross by the steamship lines between April and October are already here. Henceforward until the end of June the tide will rise. Already staterooms and cabins are booked in hundreds for the return "home" in the autumn.

No development of the last three decades has been more pleasant and more profitable to Europe than this huge annual welcome to our American brothers and sisters. They come to see the best, to sample the best, to buy the best in England, France, Germany and Italy. Competition between these countries for American patronage has grown keener and keener, for while every American is not a millionaire, there are very few who do not bring substantial sums with them to spend in open-handed fashion and with open-hearted generosity.

It is estimated that most of them spend $1000 on the trip, and that very few do it as cheaply as $500. Fully $60,000,000 is scattered over European countries by Americans and Canadians in a season.

VERY RIOTOUS SCENES WHEN THE COMMITTEE REPORTED

Liberals Raised Row After the Vote on the Navy Bill When Chairman Blondin Refused to Accept New Amendment by Carroll of Cape Breton--Talked of Rights of Minority and Usurpation of Prerogative of the House by the Government

Ottawa, Ont., May 10.—There were many votes after the closure went into effect on the naval bill this morning, but the first division fairly showed the relative strength of the parties. The German sub-amendment to clause 2 was voted down, yeas 63, nays 96.

The vote was taken by counting the members standing in their places and the result, as announced by Deputy Speaker Blondin, was scarcely audible in the press gallery. Some press reporters therefore gave the Liberal vote as 53, instead of 63.

As a matter of fact the Government majority was only 33. This was due to the fact that nearly all the Nationalists absented themselves from the chamber. The Ontario Conservatives were nearly all present. Hon. Geo. E. Foster, of course, was but the County of York and the Bity of Toronto were represented in the absent upon his mission to the Orient Government vote by Sir Edmund Osler, Hon. A. E. Kemp, Claude Macdoneel, W . F. Maclean, Capt. Tom Wallace and Mr. Armstrong of North York.

It was broad daylight before the majority of members left Parliament Hill, and the morning train for Toronto was crowded. It is understood that the third reading of the naval bill will not be moved until Tuesday.

Not Premeditated Disorder.

The riotous scenes which occurred when the committee of the whole was about to rise at 3 o'clock came as a surprise. One may doubt whether the Liberals had deliberately designed any violent scenes or any prolonged obstruction. They might have easily held up the house from 3 to 6 in the afternoon upon a motion to adjourn, and could have fully occupied the hour devoted to private bills from 8 to 9 in the evening, but as a matter of fact, they permitted the house to go at once into committee and to remain in committee until 2 o'clock in orderly and decorous debate.

Of course they were ready enough to raise a row when the opportunity was unexpectedly offered by Mr. Carroll of South Cape Breton. Mr. Carroll desired to offer an amendment providing that the material for the construction of the ships should be purchased in Canada. He could not offer this until the clauses and amendments subject to the closure had been disposed of, and he did offer it in apparently good faith when the prime minister moved that the bill be reported. He was finally ruled out of order upon the ground that Mr. Borden had been first recognized by the chairman.

Mrs. Borden Honored

Ottawa, May 11.—Not to be outdone by their comrades in arms in the Ontario Legislature, the Conservative members of Parliament after the naval bill had passed its third reading, presented Mrs. R. L. Borden with a five-seat electric brougham. Mrs. Borden who had seen the naval debate to its finish, was, with the Premier, invited to room 16, where Clarence Jamieson, member for Digby, read an address, in which he said that the members were not indifferent to the fact that the Premier's success "has in no small measure been attained as a result of your devotion to him and your participation in his hopes, his aims, and his aspirations."

Mrs. Borden gracefully transferred to the Premier the burden of suitably expressing her appreciation.

RADIUM DISCOVERED IN MINERAL SPRINGS

United States Bureau of Mines Make Important Discovery on State Reservation.

Saratoga, N.Y., May 10.—Dissolved radium salts to an exceptional degree exist in the mineral springs of the New York state reservation in this village, according to the United States Bureau of Mines, which has submitted to the State reservation commission a report of a recent investigation in thirteen of the wells now owned by the state.

It is further stated that the springs are peculiar in carrying considerably more than a trace of radium, an element usually associated with radium.

These results were all obtained from waters taken in October, 1912. Since that time, the commission reports, the progress of recovery of the springs has been continuous, a number of new wells has begun to flow, and very substantial advances in the amount of radio-activity are likely to be discovered upon further examination.

MR. GERMAN OF WELLAND STATES THE LIBERAL POSITION

Not Opposed to Thirty-five Million Dollars For Dreadnoughts But Should be by Annual Votes

Ottawa, May 10.—The Liberal position on the naval bill as stated by Mr. W. M. German of Welland, apparently brings the two parties to a single issue of constitutional practice and government. Mr. German has stated repeatedly this week, that he is not opposed to a vote of $35,000,000 or to contributing three dreadnoughts to the imperial defence, but he believes that the appropriations should be made in the usual way by annual votes of parliament. Indeed, he contends that the present bill is quite unnecessary, and that everything provided for could be done under the Naval Service Act of 1910.

To this the prime minister has replied that the Government bill is then the Naval Service Act, plus the appropriation of $35,000,000.

Mr. German's Contention.

Mr. German, however, takes the position that instead of parliament putting $35,000,000 at the absolute disposal of the governor-in-council without check or supervision, that it should from year to year grant supplies to the crown sufficient for the construction of the dreadnoughts. Certainly the usual practice is for parliament to vote the moneys needed for public works annually; if the money is not all expended during the year it must be revoted. If the government needs only $5,000,000 to begin work, why not take a vote for $5,000,000 at this session and then come back for more money as money is needed session after session?

The Welland canal, for example, Mr. German pointed out, will be constructed by the minister of railways under the supervision of parliament. He takes a vote for two million this year; he may ask for ten millions next year, but he does not ask, nor would he get a vote of $45,000,000 to be absolutely at his disposal and to be expended through a series of years.

FRENCH ARMY NOT SO STRONG AS GERMANY'S

Paris, May 10.—The perils of the present inferiority of the French army to that of Germany are to be called to the attention of the country by a placard posted in every village and town in France by the Republican Democratic party, which is represented by 70 members in the chamber of deputies.

It affirmed by them that Germany will have on the first of October 886,000 effectives in its army on a peace footing, against the 157,000 in the French army, without counting the colonial troops.

The manifesto is signed by Charles Jonnart, a former foreign minister, numerous other ex-ministers, as well as a large number of deputies and senators

WILL ASK BRITAIN TO RENEW TREATY

Arbitration Arrangements Between U.S. and England Expires by Limitation in June Next.

Washington, May 10.—Secretary of State Bryan said to-day that while the British Government had not been directly asked to renew the arbitration treaty which expires by limitation in June, he expected that it would be effectually renewed in time to preserve it.

Last January, former Secretary Knox invited Great Britain to exchange ratifications of the Taft peace treaties which were substantially amended in the Senate, and this offer yet remains open. An exchange of ratifications of that treaty would virtually be a renewal of the expiring one.

SUFFRAGETTES PERPETRATE STILL FURTHER OUTRAGES

Bombs Found at Liverpool Railway Station, Reading' Post-office and Cambridge Football Pavilion

Dundee, Scotland, May 10.—Farrington Hall, in the vicinity of this city, was destroyed by fire early this morning and indications pointed to the militant suffragettes as the authors of the outrage.

Flames broke out simultaneously in half a dozen places in the great mansion which was a beautiful specimen of architecture, belonging to Henry McGrady, a former lord-provost of Dundee. It was being prepared for occupation during the summer by the owner and his family.

Another Outrage.

Nwcastle-on-Tyne, May 10.—Dunholme, a large unoccupied house in this city, was set alight to-day by an "arson squad" of militant suffragettes. While at their work they were alarmed by the approach of passersby and they decamped, leaving behind them cans of petroleum and fire-lighters, as well as other inflammable materials. The fire was soon extinguished.

Bomb at Football Pavilion.

Cambridge, Eng., May 10.—The Cambridge Varsity Football pavilion narrowly escaped destruction by fire at the hands of suffragettes this afternoon. The militants had placed a bomb surrounded by quantities of inflammables in the building and the bomb, which apparently was of better construction than most of the suffragettes' machines exploded. There was a loud report, but the inflammable material was scattered by the force of the explosion and did not ignite. The usual suffragette literature was left on the scene by the women.

ADVOCATES A LOCAL FLEET UNIT TO PROTECT PACIFIC

Col. Allen of New Zealand at Winnipeg Canadian Club--Honor for Sir Charles Tupper

Winnipeg, May 10.—"What we should do—and I speak for Australia and Canada, as well as for New Zealand—is to utilize the national sentiment and local patriotism, not so much to build up a local navy—a tin pot navy—but to build up a local fleet unit that will protect the Pacific Seas, just as a local unit of the imperial navy now protects the North Sea and the Mediterranean."

This was the significant passage in a rousing speech on the navy question delivered by Hon. Col. J. Allen, minister of finance, education and defence for New Zealand. Col. Allen was the guest of the Canadian Club at a banquet at which there was an enthusiastic company numbering about 600.

Following upon the speech of Col. Allen, an interesting ceremony was performed of conferring life membership upon the veteran statesman Sir Charles Tupper, in whose absence the honor was accepted by his son, Stewart Tupper, who cordially thanked the Canadian Club.

MONTREAL MAN MAY BE VICTIM OF MURDER

William Sinclair Found Dead in His Room With Marks of Violence on Body.

Montreal, May 10.—William Sinclair was found dead in bed at 100 Mount Royal avenue this morning, with marks of violence on his body.

The police were notified and they are at work upon the case. An arrest is likely to be made to-day.

How long Sinclair has been dead no one knows, but when he did not appear this morning the door of his room was broken in and he was found dead. The body is at the morgue.

SUFFRAGETTES BURN UP TREES IN VANCOUVER

Vancouver, B.C., May 10.—Vancouver experienced an outbreak of militant suffragettes yesterday, when two trees in Stanley Park were burned, presumably by women.

The fire brigade assisted by the police and a downpour of rain, coped with the outbreak in fine style, after two trees had been burned.

On the burning trees were found the inscription "Votes for Women."

Great excitement prevailed over this latest development of militancy, especially in the monkey-house which was threatened.

MANAGEMENT BOARD

Those Who Will Control the Destinies of the Y.W.C.A. this Year.

In our issue of yesterday we gave a somewhat extended report of the annual meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Lack of space precluded insertion of the names of the Board of Management, which are as follows:

Mrs. Morris, Miss Dickson, Miss Wood, Miss Might, Miss Ferguson, Miss Rush, Miss Morrow, Miss Aldridge, Mrs. Stevenson, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. Roger, Mrs. Rollins, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Gardiner, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. Cressman, Miss F. KING LEAR WAS VERY WELL PLAYED

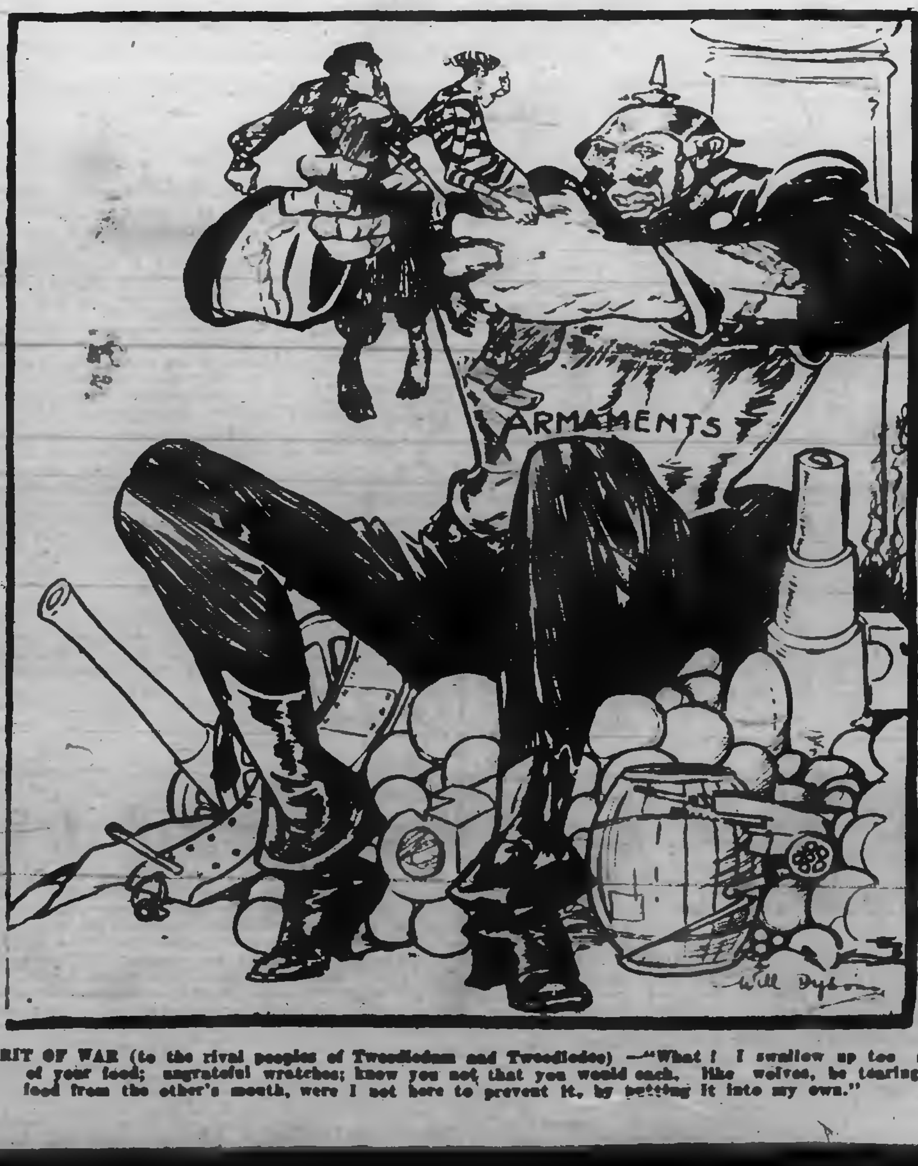
Nearly every seat in the Grand Opera House was filled when Mantell's strong Shakespearian Company presented King Lear. The company is a well balanced and intelligently selected lot of artists. The scenic and electric effects were far above the average. In the night scene, the thunder storm and flying thunder laden clouds were made highly effective by electric light, the apparently falling rain being very realistic.

Mr. Mantell, as King Lear, played the dual role of the doddering old king, alternately preserving the majesty of a monarch's bearing, and artistically portraying the senile dotage of the man.

A wonderful cartoon on the "Spirit of War" that threatened to devastate all Europe, drawn by William Dyson, the famous English cartoonist.



SPIRIT OF WAR (to the rival peoples of Tweedledum and Tweedledee) —"What ! I swallow up too much of your food; ungrateful wretches; know you not that you would each, like wolves, be tearing the food from the other's mouth, were I not here to prevent it, by putting it into my own."

HIGH WIND IN FRUIT BELT SAVES CROP FROM COLD

Slight Damage to Early Strawberries But There's Promise of Heavy Yield of all Other Kinds of Fruit--Twelve Days in Advance of Other Years.

St. Catharines, May 10.—It is estimated that six figures would be required to record the benefit in dollars to the Niagara fruit belt last night by the heavy wind which prevailed during the entire night and prevented an extremely sharp frost from injuring the embryonic tender fruit.

The entire district from Niagara River to Burlington Bay has been a bloom for several days, in fact the fruit is fully twelve days in advance of other years.

Last night's frost was severe enough to have created great havoc. Ice formed on various farms, and in numerous cases the clover is badly nipped.

Yet beyond some damage to the early strawberries, the indications for a tremendous fruit crop in all varieties is unimpaired. It is believed that the trees will be too greatly taxed if all the healthy blossoms mature.

Leading growers do not remember a year, when at this period there was such great promise of a heavy crop.

"It should be an early crop," said W. B. Bunting.

Conditions at All Great Financial Centres Show a Remarkable Similarity

New York, May 10. The London correspondent of the Evening Post cables the following comment on financial conditions:

Conditions of the moment at all great financial centres of the world, show remarkable similarity. London and the continent generally, with New York, are finding it difficult to read the immediate outlook, the reason in the case in each market being that conflicting influences making for recovery or relapse, are so evenly balanced.

The one great factor making for betterment here is the approach of peace, with probable growing improvement of international relations generally, with consequent release of the continent's hoarded money, and with a gradual return to confidence. The adverse influences include the still overstrained position of many great continental money markets the huge impending loans, and the other numerous demands on capital.

These latter considerations fully explain the slowness of the open market discount rates on the continent to fall especially at Paris. Moreover, the after-financing of the war, through flotation of Turkish, Balkan, Austrian and Italian loans, is complicated by the unfavorable conditions in France.

SAYS MAJOR MURPHY WAS ONLY A FRIEND

San Farncisco, May 10.—"At no time ever in my life have I received 'Major' Murphy alone, or gone with him unattended by members of my family either to theatres, restaurants or on automobile rides," sobbed Mrs. Bessie C. Merriam, while on the witness stand in the Superior Court before Judge Graham. "I thought people were true and honest. I didn't think of any wrong when I went out with 'Major' Murphy. I did't dream that such a construction as this would be placed on our friendship. I never dreamed that anything like this could come of it."

Efforts to bring about a reconciliation of Capt. H. C. Merriam, U.S.A., and Mrs. Merriam failed utterly Monday. Judge Graham appealed to both to make up for the sake of their little daughter, Charlotte, who was in court.

HE REFUSES A RECONCILIATION.

"It is impossible," declared Captain Merriam, tears streaming down his face. "I have given this case deep thought. Under all the circumstances as I know them I could never bring myself to live with her again. My honor and self-respect are at stake. I could not face my superior officers, nor my men, if I permitted myself to sway from the course I have mapped out."

Charlotte Merriam ran to her father and looked into his eyes appealingly. The scene was one of many dramatic moments that occurred during the course of the day.

MURPHY HAS LEFT COUNTRY.

Major Clarence Murphy, the former New Orleans man, who is the co-respondent in the case, has fled across the sea. The dapper "major" took passage for the far east, and will, it is understood, be off on his cruise for a year. He was to be a witness in the case, but is said to have avoided service, leaving Mrs. Merriam to fight her battle alone, with all the odds against her.

Much of the evidence outside of the testimony of Mrs. Merriam and the captain will be in the shape of depositions taken at Jackson Barracks, New Orleans, where Mrs. Merriam is said to have cut scandalous capers with the "major" while her husband was on scout duty on the Mexican frontier.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Fine and a little higher temperature.

SWINGS HIMSELF INTO FREEDOM

Chicago, May 10.—Bert Spencer locked in the ante-room of Judge Rooney's court on the third floor of the criminal court building, tied a rope to a radiator, swung through the open window to another open window of the state attorney's office on the second floor, walked past two girl stenographers, several court attaches, and a policeman, and disappeared in the street.

Spencer was recently fined $50 for disorderly conduct and was in court today while his attorney was arguing a motion for a new trial. He is supposed to have had the rope hidden on him when he entered court, and to have had a confederate in an automobile in front of the building.

When Spencer climbed into the window of the state attorney's office the two stenographers were too surprised to do anything.

Judge Rooney's court room was the scene of another nonchalant escape two weeks ago when two pickpockets got their freedom by walking out of the room past the same unsuspecting policemen who let Spencer get away.

PRESENTATION TO MESSRS FAWCETT AND COOKE

The president of the Church Women's Association at the conclusion of the "Lady Minstrels" programme on Friday evening, read an address and made a presentation to Mr. A. G. Fawcett, the stage manager and Mr. E. Massey-Cooke, who was responsible for the entire lighting effects.

The Address.

To Mr. Fawcett and Mr. Cooke,—

It gives me great pleasure on behalf of the Church Women's Association, to say to you how very greatly we appreciate all you have so kindly and voluntarily done towards making this entertainment the very great success which it has been. You have both given such a vast amount of labor and so much of your valuable time to help us through, that we feel we cannot in any possible way repay you for so doing. We request you to accept this token of our grateful appreciation of your assistance in putting before the public "The Ladies' Minstrels."

S. MORPHET.
President.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

Advertisements under above heads, 20 words and under, one insertion, 15c.; 3 insertions, 25c.; 6 insertions, 40c.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 75c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 75c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 356 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

TRACK LAYERS ACTIVE

Less Than Six Hundred Miles to be Completed of Transcontinental

After long months of uninspiring spade work, of contention with labor shortage, and of wrestling with engineering problems of a magnitude as great as the enterprise itself, the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has now reached that satisfactory stage where every effort seems to bring with it its own tangible result. At the opening of the present season the track laying situation was as follows: On the main line the track was 1,075 miles west of Winnipeg beyond the Yellowhead Pass on the western slope of the Rocky Mountains. On the Alberta Coal branch the track had been pushed 21.4 miles south of Bickerdike. On the Tofield-Calgary branch steel had been laid 105.3 miles south of the former point; while the rail-head on the Young-Prince Albert branch stood 67.3 miles north of Young. The head of steel on the mountain division stood 1 miles east of Prince Rupert. Great progress has been made on all these lines. During last year stations were constructed in the west and at least as many more are being added this year.

East of the twin cities the National Transcontinental was also well advanced. From Cochrane east to the Quebec boundary, the main line was graded and the rails laid, a distance of 72 miles. From Cochrane west the rails were laid for 178.4 miles and, with the exception of two or three cuts, the grading was completed for a further distance of approximately 75 miles. From Moncton to Quebec the N.T.R. was ready to be taken over from the contractors as also from Quebec westerly for a distance of 250 miles.

The present situation is that a gap exists on the section between Winnipeg and Prince Rupert of approximately 400 miles and another gap on the section between Winnipeg and Cochrane of 184 miles. Five hundred and eighty-four miles is all that remains to be completed on Canada's National Transcontinental Railway from coast to coast.

A TELEPATHIC CLOCK

Here is a strange yet absolutely true story, according to the Liverpool Post, in which a clock plays a mysterious part: It was a small timepiece which stood on a mantel-piece in a sitting room in a Liverpool builder's home. At 11.30 one morning the timepiece fell from the mantel-piece to the floor. When picked up it was found to be quite uninjured and still going, as if nothing unusual had happened. There seemed to be absolutely no reason why it should have fallen, but an hour later when the builder came home to his midday meal he remarked that at 11.30 he fell from the top of a building, but happily without sustaining any injury. His wife then described how the clock had fallen at the same time and the couple ponder in vain over the curious and utterly inexplicable coincidence.

Schools as Moving Picture Shows

Edison, the electrical wizard, is preparing to spend $3,000,000 and devote eight years of effort to the perfection of a series of educational moving-picture films for use in school-rooms. It is expected that moving pictures will in time become "an indispensable adjunct" of aschool course, and one of the special advantages claimed for the plan is that it will "interest boys who hate school and cannot learn from books."

CONSERVING FISH SUPPLY

Canada Interested in Investigation of Fishing by Steam Trawlers

The Governments of Canada, Newfoundland, and the United States will conduct an investigation into the effects of steam trawling on the adjacent ocean fisheries. This destructive method of fishing has ruined many important fisheries off the British and European coasts, but there seems to be little hope of preventive measures, owing to the recognized freedom of the high seas beyond each nation's three mile limit. The speed of a steam trawler is about ten knots an hour; it hauls a gigantic purse net along the bottom by two wire cables, one from either side. A square of boards is so fastened on each cable as to strike the water at an angle and spread the net. The strain on the wires tells when the purse of the net is full, and it is then hoisted aboard. The scouring of the ocean's bed spilled out on the deck is an indescribable mess. All kinds and all sizes of fish, spawn, weeds and the varied forms of aquatic life are heaped and matted together.

Such a method must be highly destructive. Defenders say the spawn and fry escape, but that is only at the outset of each haul. When there is a mass of fish in the purse everything in the way is scooped in, held and killed by the accumulating pressure of the increasing haul. There are generally large quantities of dead and crushed fish in an immature state shoveled overboard with the worthless fish of every haul. The lines of baited hooks which the hand trawler set on the bottom are frequently destroyed by the steam trawlers. There is naturally a strong objection by the men who see the good fishing grounds being depleted and ruined and their lines occasionally destroyed.

BULL DOGS THE VOGUE

Not for their good looks but for their artistic ugliness bulldogs have become one of the freaks of fashion in New York. Every bud and every matron must have a British bulldog accompaniment nowadays. At the associated specialty show in New York for the first time the Britishers beat out the Boston terriers in number of entries with 323 to 201 for the breed that has hitherto been the most popular there. The immense entry made a severe task for A. C. Madden, the judge, and long after the other classes had been disposed of he was still handing out ribbons to the bulldog owners. Mr. Madden has only recently "gone to the dogs." He was private chaplain to the alte Lord Salisbury when he was prime minister of the United Kingdom.

WALKED 5,000 MILES

Through Africa From Capetown to Cairo on Foot

Amid thronging dangers a historic walk of 5,000 miles across Africa was accomplished by Emil Lund, a Rhodesian settler, thirty-six years of age.

Lund walked from Cape Town to Cairo, not in fulfilment of a wager, or without money, or to test a system of diet or training, but simply from love of adventure. He has been a soldier and scout since he was seventeen.

"My wish," he said, in telling the story of his great walk, "was simply to be the first man to accomplish the feat. I am proudest of having walked across the Nubian Desert. That was the hardest tramp of all."

Until he left Elizabethville, in the Belgian Congo, he had a comparatively easy time, for he could obtain supplies, good food, and good water, but beyond that point he had a very trying time. He had no porters, carrying all his own baggage which weighed about 70 pounds.

During most of the time Mr. Lund was obliged to be a vegetarian, but he always ate meat when he could get it.

"Sometimes," he said, "I shot a buck; but I could only eat the liver, which I broiled in the ashes of my fire. Having no salt, I cannot say that I enjoyed my food. In passing through the great forests I camped on the ground, lighting a large fire to keep off the wild animals. I had to be very careful to keep this going throughout the night.

"At early dawn I renewed my march, tramping continuously till about eleven o'clock. After that I used to hunt round, collect wood, and cook my one daily meal. Then I slept till sundown.

"Lions and other carnivora do not usually attack in the heat of the day. They are asleep, and it is only when night falls that they set out in search of prey."

He met with a good many lions, but was never attacked by one. The idea that water will protect one from lions is, he says, erroneous, for lions are excellent swimmers.

In the Katanga district he was bitten by a black snake, and would probably have died, but he reached a native kraal, and was treated by a woman, who applied a decoction of herbs to the wound, and cured him.

One of the worst troubles with which Mr. Lund had to contend was the venomous flies and insects which swarm in tropical Africa.

He was bitten near the eye by a certain kind of malignant tick, and for a time was nearly blind.

In the course of his walk he fell in with the Baluba and Valeswi cannibals. When they have a cannibal feast the victim is usually a man accused of some crime. In such a case the man is offered a draught of a poisonous decoction.

If he takes a long drink the poison is inoperative, producing merely nausea. But if, from timidity or guilt, he drinks but a small portion, the effect is almost immediately fatal. Women are excluded from these feasts.

Reaching Khartoum after crossing the Nubian Desert, Mr. Lund went into the hospital to patch himself up for the last stage of his journey which he completed without further mishap.

Dressing Cows With Weed-Killer

A farmer named Wilkinson, of Crewe Green, Cheshire, lost fourteen cows through inadvertently dressing their hides with weed-killer containing arsenic in mistake for a fly-preventive preparation. The animals were treated early one morning, and by evening they were all dead.

Surprise Sentence

When a man named John Jones was sentenced at Llangollen, Wales, to three months' imprisonment with hard labor for stealing a bottle of port wine from the vestibule of a private house, he exclaimed, "Oh, dear! Why! I should have thought I could have taken the whole town for three months."

It all depends on the point of view. You pick up a Grit paper and read that the Whitney-Hanna investigation was a shameful sham, while a Tory paper is saying that Proudfoot looks a sorry spectacle. All of which goes to show that "politics is politics" and that party prejudice is apt to blow out the lamp of the mind.

THE KAISER'S YACHT.

A few short weeks ago the German Kaiser was calling his people in most ultra-patriotic strain to "a year of sacrifice." The fatherland was in danger and all must help to preserve the Empire. But just a few days ago the Imperial Parliament was asked to vote $2,500,000 for a new yacht for His Majesty. The times may be hard, but evidently they are not hard enough to compel the Emperor to travel in an old yacht. Strange to say, the Socialists, the Poles, the Danes, the Alsatians and a good many others have declared their intention of voting against it, and there is just a possibility that in this "year of sacrifice" the Kaiser may have to forego his little $2,500,000 yacht.

But the Healing Fumes of Catarrhozone, Which Are Breathed to the Farthest Recesses of the Bronchial Tubes, Bring Quick Relief and Sure Cure.

Every sufferer from coughs, colds, bronchitis and all throat and chest ailments needs a soothing, healing, medicine which goes direct to the breathing organs in the chest and lungs attacks the trouble at its source disperses the germs of disease, and cures the ailments thoroughly. And this medicine is "Catarrhozone."

The germ-killing balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure medicinal essences, whereas with a syrup the affected parts could not be reached, and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs.

"I have been a chronic sufferer from catarrh in the nose and throat for over eight years. I think I have spent four hundred dollars trying to get relief. I have spent but six dollars on Catarrhozone, and have been completely cured, and in fact have been well for some time. Catarrhozone is the only medicine I have been able to find that would not only give temporary relief but will always cure permanently. Yours sincerely, (Signed) WILLIAM RAGAN, Brockville, Ont.

For absolutely permanent cure use Catarrhozone. Two months' outfit costs $1.00 smaller size, 50c. at all storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y. and Kingston Canada.

charge is that no matter how completely the jury may exonerate the accused, some of the mud will stick. To be mentioned in a divorce case in the eyes of many is sufficient ground for a strong presumption of moral obloquy.

There should be considerable public sympathy with the decision just given by the House of Lords. It appears that a certain Mrs. Scott, who had been charged with infidelity, was exonerated by the Divorce Court sitting in camera. She rightly judged that the public, who had heard of the charge, should know the facts, and she circulated a report of the proceedings. Whereupon she was adjudged guilty of contempt of court, and had to bring her case before the House of Lords before her conduct was vindicated.

There is no doubt that certain newspapers disgrace themselves in the publication of salacious divorce proceedings. The remedy does not lie in the shutting out of the press, under the ordinary law, from publishing those details which are of no interest except to the morbid. It would be ridiculous to prevent all publication, for there is a quite justifiable human interest in many divorce cases.

EDUCATION IN ONTARIO

The report of the Minister of Education of Ontario for the year 1912 has been issued and weighs just three pounds and four ounces. But, as might be expected, it contains some valuable information. We cull a few facts from it for the benefit of our readers. It should be remembered that while the report is dated 1913, and is the report for 1912, it really contains the statistics for 1911. The total expenditure upon the elementary schools, both Public and Separate, was $9,904,284, an increase of about $913,000 over the preceding year. The Public Schools cost $9,006,394, the Separate Schools $897,890. In addition to this the Province spent $1,948,068 on High Schools and Collegiates and $262,060 in Continuation Work. The school population of the Province is given as 604,555. This includes all children from 5 to 21 years of age. There are enrolled, however, only 520,255. It would be interesting to have the enrollment of the different ages, but these figures are not given. The average daily attendance is 313,624, which means that on the average there is just about half the possible school population at school. The average cost per pupil based on the average attendance, and including sites and buildings, teachers' salaries, and all other expenses, but not so far as we can see making any allowance for interest on investment in building, etc., is $38.59, which is very nearly double what it was in 1902, when it stood at $19.93. There were 6,096 teachers employed in rural schools, of whom 899 were male and 5,197 female. Of these 6,096 teachers only 140 held first-class certificates, 2063 held second-class, while the rest held third-class and other certificates. There charges are entitled to have the grounds of their acquittal made known. The worst of this class of were 4,446 teachers, 600 male and 3,846 female, in the elementary schools of the urban districts, cities, towns and incorporated villages, and of these 507 held first-class certificates 3,213 second-class and the balance third-class and other certificates. The highest salary paid to a public school teacher is $2200, the lowest is not given, but the average in the cities is $1,395 for male teacher and $706 for female teachers. In the towns the average is $968 (male) and $496 (female), while the rural schools averages only $536 for male teachers and $464 for female teachers. These figures account, doubtless, for the small percentage of first-class teachers. When it pays a man better to hire out than to teach school in a farming section the educational outlook is poor. In the Collegiate Institutes and High Schools the cost per pupil (average attendance) was $96.51, not quite double the figure for 1902, which was $53.31. These figures are worth pondering.

CANADIAN GOODS IN FINE DISPLAY

The Second "Made-in-Canada" Train is Making a Tour of Western Canada

Western Canadians will be interested to know that the "Made-in-Canada" train whose initial trip through the three Prairie Provinces last year was so successful, is making another tour this year, though for the most part over a different route. This exhibition on wheels which is organized and conducted by the Canadian Home Market Association, presents in attractive and condensed form many products made in Canadian factories by Canadian workmen. While all the cities of the West are more or less familiar with the hum of factory life, the greater number of places visited by the "Made-in-Canada" train have few manufacturing industries as yet. The "Made-in-Canada" special with its numerous products proves to Westerners whose occupation is chiefly grain growing that practically every implement on the farm, every article in the home, and everything they wear is or may be of Canadian make. Canadians may be classified as Producers or Consumers, though every citizen is something of both. The Western farm produces grain in great abundance. The exhibitions of Western grain in Eastern Canada has done much to send Easterners to the West. But the Western farmer is also a consumer of manufactured goods, and one of the purposes of the "Made-in-Canada" train is to give him first-hand knowledge of goods made in Canada.

In Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are many thousands of farmers who have come from across the line. They are accustomed to American products and naturally continue their use in Canada. They are ready, however to hear and see what Canada is producing. The "Made-in-Canada" train gives them this information. At first hand they inspect Canadian goods.

Representatives of the firms exhibiting on the "Made-in-Canada" special are on the train, and are glad to learn of the natural resources and other advantages for manufacturing of Western districts visited. In fact, the manufacturer of the East is depending on information gleaned on this tr. to give him an idea of what can be done along industrial lines in the Prairie Provinces. The exhibition and the various features in connection with it are thoroughly in accord with the policy of encouraging industries to locate in the various Western districts. Than this train there is no better opportunity afforded of acquainting the citizens of the West generally with the meaning of industries to the community.

The Canadian Home Market Association found it easy to decide to send the "Made-in-Canada" train to the West again this year. In the attendance and in the sympathetic and intelligent interest of visitors to the train last year, the trip far exceeded the expectations of the committee. All along the route, leading citizens as well as the community generally heartily endorsed the train as an educational undertaking, declaring that such a purely Canadian project was worthy of unanimous support and of repetition from year to year.

Among the new exhibits on the "Made-in-Canada" train is a large display of fresh fruit under the direction of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Here the Western citizen will see a magnificent display of apples, pears, peaches, plums, grapes and other fruits. There will be other products of mixed farming, some of which it is believed can be successfully cultivated in the West to a very much greater extent than at present.

HUMAN LOCUSTS

Men Who Rob the Soil and Pass on to New Fields

As head of the Irish Department of Agriculture Sir Horace Plunkett has done marvels in raising farming conditions in the Emerald Isle. In a recent speech regarding agriculture on the North American continent Sir Horace spoke with some vigor of the men who exploited virgin wheat lands until they were exhausted and then removed on farther west. He said: "I have seen almost a generation of so-called farmers in a portion of the corn-belt passing like locusts over the soil, robbing it of its fertility—in order to meet the financial exigencies arising from purchasing on credit more farm land than they could cultivate—selling out on a profit made by immigration and railroad development, and passing on to repeat the process further west. Canada is now getting wheat, let us hope, is the last of these human locusts."

ANIMALS AS DOCTORS

Both Wild and Domestic Creatures Know How to Treat Illness

It is held that the simple remedies of nature generally suffice to cure beasts of their ailments and that they are guided to them by instinct.

A large number of species wash themselves and bathe—elephants, stags, birds ants, etc. Animals rid themselves of their parasites by using dust, mud and clay. Those suffering from fever restrict their diet, keep quiet, seek darkness and airy places, drink much water, and sometimes plunge into it from time to time. When a dog has lost its appetite it eats that species of grass known as "dog's grass." Cats also eat grass and catnip when sick. Sheep and cows in the same circumstances seek out certain herbs. An animal suffering from chronic rheumatism invariably keeps as much as possible in the sun. The warrior ants maintain regularly organized ambulances. Latreille cut the antennae of an ant. Other ants covered the wounded part with a transparent fluid from their mouths. If a chimpanzee is wounded it stops the flow of blood by placing its hand on the wound or dressing it with leaves and grass.

A terrier had an injured eye. It remained lying under a counter, avoiding heat and light, although it had been its habit to keep close to the fire. It adopted a general treatment—rest and abstinence from food. The local treatment consisted in licking the upper surface of its paw, which it then applied to the wounded eye, again licking the paw when it became dry.

Cats also when hurt treat themselves by this simple method.

WHY CHINESE ARE HARDY

Bad Sanitary Conditions There Cause Only Fittest to Survive

Peculiar power to resist disease is a characteristic of the Chinese, according to Professor E. A. Ross. For instance, out of ten children born in western homes three, normally the weakest three, will fail to grow up; out of ten children born in China about eight are doomed to die in infancy. The difference is due to the hardships that infant life meets with among the Chinese, and with such rigorous selection there results a stock displaying a peculiar hardiness. Living in the supersaturated, manstifled land, profoundly ignorant of the principles of hygiene, the masses have developed an immunity to noxious microbes which excites the wonder and envy of the foreigner.

"They are not affected by a mosquito bite that would raise a large lump on the lately come foreigner," says Professor Ross. "They can use contaminated water from canals without incurring dysentery. There is very little typhoid, and what there is is so attenuated it was long doubted to be typhoid. The physicians agree that among the Chinese smallpox is a mild disease. The chief of the army medical staff points out that during the autumn manoeuvres the soldiers sleep on damp ground with a little straw under them without any ill effects.

"Coolies, after two hours of burden-bearing at a dog trot, will shovel themselves full of hot rice, with scarcely any mastication, and hurry on for another two hours. A white man would writhe with indigestion. The Chinese seem able to sleep in any position. I have seen them sleeping on piles of bricks, or stones or poles, with a block or a brick for a pillow and with the hot sun shining full in their face. They stand a cramped position longer than we can and can keep on longer at monotonous toil unrelieved by change or break."

Newspapers and Children

Some one has asked the question:—"Shall we allow our boys and girls to read the newspapers?" Of course we all know why such a question is asked. There is much in our daily paper we wish might be eliminated, the murder trials, divorce proceedings, crimes without number in all their revolting aspects, and what Lowell calls the "stagnant goose ponds of village gossip." But, since fathers and mothers read the daily paper, they cannot consistently prohibit their children from doing the same. In its way, the newspaper is a great educator. It brings us each day in touch with the whole world. Its recapitulation of current events is timely and helpful. The newspaper is a necessity. We could not spare it from our table, in spite of its faults. There are newspapers and newspapers. It is for each parent to bring into his home as clean a sheet as he can, knowing that the innocent eyes of his little children will scan its pages.—Suburban Life.

GREAT DRY-DOCK TO LIFT WARSHIPS

Largest Vessels Can be Accommodated for Repairs at Montreal—A Perilous Voyage

For two years and a half dredges delved into the bed of the St. Lawrence River near Maisonneuve, scooping out a basin to act as a resting place for the huge Montreal dry dock "The Duke of Connaught" which was placed in position after an adventurous trip across the Atlantic in tow of two powerful tugs. During the voyage the hawsers broke five times and the unwieldy dock narrowly escaped being dashed to pieces on the rocky shores of Cape Breton.

The best speed the tugs made with the great dry-dock was four miles an hour. The dock itself is capable of accommodating the largest ships of the British navy, and is of the self-docking, double sided type, known as the bolted sectional. The pontoon is divided into three sections, surmounted by two parallel side walls, which when bolted together, form one huge dock. Each section may, if required be operated independently of the others, and this is likely to be of advantage in handling small ships. From the sea-level to the bridge the dock measures some sixty feet, length over platforms, 600 feet; beam 135 feet, depth of pontoon at centre 17 feet, draught of vessel 27½ feet, and lifting capacity, 25,000 tons.

Despite her long and stormy journey the dock arrived in perfect condition. The crew numbered fourteen all told and was composed entirely of Dutchmen.

When a ship, crippled by one of the many mishaps of the sea, is in need of repairs, it is towed toward the dry-dock which floats high in the water like an immense square ship with open ends. Slowly the dock commences to sink, this being accomplished by admitting water to its air-chambers.

Finally it rests on the bottom. Then the ship is towed in by tug, and is brought to a stop between the walls which now rise only a few feet above the surface of the water. Then an order is given, and slowly the mass begins to rise. Air is being pumped into the chambers, and the whole dock with the ship securely supported between its walls, rises to view again. It is a tremendous lifting force that is being brought into play. By it, a vessel weighing 25,000 tons may be raised completely out of the water.

The lifting accomplished, chains which pass through big pipes in the wall and are anchored inside, and which are attached to winches on the dock operated by electricity, begin to wind up, and the dock, ship and all, is drawn close to the wall of the basin. There all is made fast, and the work of repair begins.

FREE TRADE WAGES

Hours Are Cruelly Long and the Pay is Miserable

J. F. W. the regular English correspondent of the Toronto Globe, has recently had a little to say about the life of working people in free trade Britain. We quote:

"The London bakers, have scored in a dispute with the employers over the conditions—hours and wages—of work. The conditions are admittedly disgraceful; the work is done in many cases in dirty, underground bakeries, the hours are cruelly long, sometimes a hundred a week, and the pay is miserable 24s or 25s a week. The men have now got 30s a week and a fifty-four-hour week in shops, with sixty hours in factories, where the work is lighter. They are satisfied for the time being, but their next agitation will be for the abolition of night-work and for the inclusion of the baking industry in the Trade Boards act. This is an act that was passed by the present Government in 1909 as an experiment in the prevention of sweating in a few trades, where sweating was notorious."

Just Being Discovered

Writing in Industrial Canada Mr. Norman Lambert says: "Sufficient has been shown now to prove that the prairie provinces, besides admitting of cultivation in places which at one time were regarded as indomitable, have revealed great opportunities to the manufacturer. The development of the past two years shows also that the West is just being discovered, and that discovery will not be complete until more factories, and more mixed farms, and more routes of transportation are established, making the vast prairie territory the self-supporting country it should be."

Cost of Big Bullets

The Hadfield Steel Foundry of Sheffield was awarded a contract for five hundred twelve-inch shells for the United States navy at a price of $187 each. The contract was given to an English firm because its price was lower than that of American tenderers, who, however, were awarded contracts for 5,000 shells, at prices varying from $279 each for 12-inch to $490 and $500 each for 14-inch. Besides showing that Englishmen are still in the steel business, the incident throws some light on the cost of modern war equipment. Five hundred dollars is a lot to pay for one bullet.

TO MOUNT AUTO TIRES

Screw Device Compresses Edges Till They Squeeze Into Rim

As any motorist will testify, a man should have the fingers of a blacksmith to put the average tire on a wheel. A Western man has designed the following means of mounting tires. An outer casing with a filler of yielding material sets in a beading that forces its edges together and compresses the filler. To compress these edges still farther than it would be possible to do by hand, even by a strong man, there is a small clamping device with a screw that tightens it up. In this way the lower edges of the tire can be compressed to a point where they will slide into the wheel rim and the tire will be much firmer than it otherwise would be; or rather, a tire so firm that it could not be adjusted by hand can be put on in this manner.

BASEBALL.

New York, May 10.—President Lynch of the National league announced to-night that he had dismissed Umpire C. B. (Brick) Owens for violation of the rules of deportment. The violation alleged consisted in entering a gambling resort. In making the announcement President Lynch said:

"Umpires in the National League by their deportment on and off the ball field are supposed to add dignity to their position as representatives of the league. They are backed up by the president in the discharge of their duties, and in order to gain and hold the respect of the players, the press and the public, it is most essential that their conduct at all times be above reproach.

"Mr. Owens, by his actions, has forfeited the right to the protection afforded him by the president of the league, and for the good of the game he is discharged."

MILLIONS OF CASH COMING TO CANADA

The Canadian Pacific Railway is Bringing in $60,000,000 in Eight Months

The Monetary Times draws attention to the interesting fact that within the next eight months the Canadian Pacific Railway can bring no less than $60,000,000 of new capital from abroad for use in this country. This sum is that portion of the amount realized on the company's recent stock issue, which will be available for transfer to Canada. It will be poured into the company's coffers in London in four instalments, which are due this month and in June, August and October. This means that this one railway may bring $15,000,000 across the Atlantic every two months until the autumn

In Western Accounts

On reaching Canada these funds will figure in the company's accounts at Montreal, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver, and from these temporary resting places be scattered far and wide over the country "Much of the money will go in the ordinary course to settle the claims of the contractors who are engaged on the company's works." In this way these contractors' obligations to their own banks will be lessened, the money will be widely distributed in the settlement of commercial accounts, and the tendency will be to ease the financial situation at least to a moderate extent.

Perhaps never before has a single stock market transaction rendered such a huge sum of money available for this country, and it is remarked that the arrival of such a large amount in a period of stringency might work harm by causing merchants and speculators to abandon their present cautious and conservative attitude which is the salvation of the situation. What is required for a complete cure is a continuation for some time yet of the present abstention from speculation and from excessive borrowing. Bankers are advising men to go slowly and carefully, to keep their lines of credit well within control, and to postpone unnecessary extensions of plant or of business activity.

No Depression

Commercial payments may be slow for the time being, and real estate values may be weaker in the West, but our factories are overladen with orders and no signs of depression are descried. If speculation is checked and if business men and manufacturers are postponing new extensions it is because of a world-wide condition—a temporary shortage of money to finance an unprecedented universal prosperity together with a costly war and rapidly growing European armaments. Once Canadian corporations and municipalities can again draw money freely from London as the Canadian Pacific Railway has done monetary conditions will become easy again here and elsewhere. And the money must be forthcoming to house and provide for the immigrants who are arriving this year in larger numbers than ever. Tens of thousands of them are going on the land and the larger proportion the better.

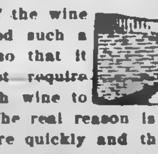
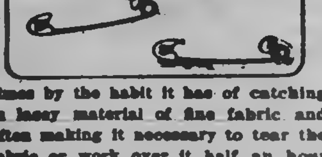
WHY A WINE BOTTLE'S BOTTOM IS CURVED UP



There is much more important reason for the dimple in the wine bottle than the usual idea of the wine purchaser who feels that the manufacturer of the wine has used such a bottle so that it will not require as much wine to fill it. The real reason is that wine cools more quickly and the temperature of the entire bottle is made more nearly equal if there is a dimple in the bottom than if there isn't one. And a scientist has discovered that what works well in cooling will have precisely the same effect in heating so that if a person desires to have a kettle or sauce pan that will heat water more quickly than is ordinarily to be obtained all that is necessary is to make a depression in the bottom as shown in the illustration. The discoverer of this fact has asserted that a quart of water may be boiled from the flame and heat of a burning newspaper if the water is placed in a covered vessel with an indented bottom.

Make Safety Pins Safer

While the safety pin is regarded as a great device its general shape causes some little inconvenience at times by the habit it has of catching in lacey material of fine fabric and often making it necessary to tear the fabric or work over it half an hour or more, to get it out. This is especially true with pins made of gold or silver and used to fasten the lacey parts of waists.



This trouble can easily be avoided if a small pearl button is slipped over the pin before it is pushed through the fabric. The button falls against the coiled part of the pin and effectually prevents entanglement.

If desired, another button can be placed over the end of the pin after it has been pushed through the fabric and thus prevent a tangle at the other end also.

Jan. 22, 1912.

Dear Sirs.—

It is just one year ago that we put in the first stock of SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES CURE, and we wish to state that we have been amazed at the remarkable sale of these remedies. We have had many repeat orders in both our stores and have sold retail $1000.00 worth of these remedies. In spite of all these sales we have yet to hear of one dissatisfied customer, while many have come back to tell us of the wonderful cures resulting from the Medicine.

Another striking feature of this business is that so many customers come in stating that SANOL has cured Mr.—— their intimate friend, and they wished to try it for themselves.

Wishing you continued success, we are, Yours truly,

AMERICAN BARRIERS TAKING A TUMBLE

Several Reductions Necessary Before the Tariff Schedule is Scaled Down to That of Canada

Under a consistent policy of protection the United States has risen to an immensely strong industrial position, but for twenty years past its tariff has been far too high—twice as high as that of Canada. It is only reasonable, therefore, that a new Democratic Administration should try to scale down the customs duties to a considerable extent. A few successive reductions of the kind now proposed would bring the average American schedules almost to a level with those of Canada.

United States industries have little to fear from lower duties on clothing, steel, lumber and other products. These industries are controlled by powerful capitalistic combinations, which could readily crush out competition from the lesser manufacturing enterprises of this country and of most other countries. Canadian manufacturers of steel rails and other articles have difficulty in meeting the demands of our own market. So that they have little leisure for an invasion of the United States.

Policy of Conservation

The new tariff bill would place many Canadian farm products on the free list and reduce the duties on many others. In this way our agriculturists would obtain access to the American markets without being exposed to the unbridled competition of half the food-producing countries in the world to which the reciprocity agreement of 1911 would have left them open. In population Canada is a small country alongside a great one, and for the time being our salvation lies in conserving our vast industrial wealth for our own people.

Under present unequal tariff conditions, every Canadian man, woman and child, spends $25 in the States for every $1 which Americans spend on Canadian goods. In this respect the new tariff bill should change things for the better, but, of course, it is designed only to meet existing economic conditions in the Republic. It may or may not reduce the cost of living there to some extent, but in increasing the taxation on luxuries and in levying upon large incomes the

CHINA MAY ATTRACT OUR WESTERN FLOUR

Another Reason Why Our Wheat Should be Milled in Canadian Mills

Men who have spent from ten to twenty-five years in the Orient are now saying that the long-awaited awakening of China is at last at hand. The change that has taken place in the country and people since the revolution is regarded as the greatest that has ever occurred in any nation during so brief a period. Wages are increasing, and if the projected foreign loans go through, there will be further improvement in this respect. The money will be used largely in the construction of railways, and a higher standard of living will follow.

This will mean a heavy increase in the Chinese consumption of flour, much of which must be supplied by Western Canada. The grain will be ground in this country and the by-products fed to cattle here, there being comparatively little live stock in the Orient. It looks as if the development of Asiatic markets and the opening of the Panama Canal must immensely encourage agricultural and industrial expansion in the Western Canadian Provinces and furnish plenty of traffic for our railways, new and old, which link up the plains via the mountains with Vancouver, Prince Rupert and other Pacific Coast ports.

A NEW INVENTION

A new invention for handling the Telephone Book has just come out and is being installed in the Times office. It does the work that it now takes two hands to do and in one quarter the time. A touch of the finger brings the book before you with the pages open at Peterborough allowing you to get your number instantly with one hand. Another touch and the book closes up out of the way. Can be attached to the wall, desk and switchboard. Holds the phone too, on the desk and revolves to any position, so you can do your talking by simply taking the receiver off the hook. The price is only a trifle, and it is being universally adopted. Trebilcock Bros., of this city, have procured the agency for this district. It is well worth seeing.

HIGH SPEED OF BATTED BALL

Close Decisions at First Base Are One of the Fascinations of the Game

Ask any baseball enthusiast how fast an average grounder travels during its first hundred feet from the bat, and his answer will be anywhere from 20 to 200 miles an hour. Split second watches and careful timing of many grounded balls have established the fact that the average speed of ground balls—that is, those struck by the bat of the batsman from a fair pitched ball, which strike the field before they are in a fielder's hands—is at the rate of almost sixty miles an hour. Sixty miles an hour is eighty-eight feet per second. The bases are ninety feet apart. A man who can run 100 yards in eleven seconds, which is fast running for any one, particularly so for a man with baseball shoes and uniform on, can run ninety feet in 3.3 seconds. Is it any wonder that a ball which is fielded in its first 100 feet of travel usually reaches first just a fraction of a second before or after the runner sets foot upon it? Every fan knows that the many close decisions at first base form one of the fascinations of the game. The speed of the batted ball, the speed at which a fielder can travel from his position to a point where he can meet and field the batted ball, pick it up, set himself for the throw, the speed of the ball across the diamond from his throw, and the speed of the travelling runner are so nicely balanced that it is always a question of whether or not the runner will get there in time for the crowd to see the umpire's hand go down or whether he will face a thumb over's shoulder.

FOUGHT IN MANY BATTLES

Death of Gentleman-at-Arms Who Was Descended From Rodney

The death occurred at Cheltenham of Colonel Edward Brown, one of the King's Gentlemen-at-Arms, and formerly commander of the 101st Foot, in his eighty-fifth year.

Colonel Brown was a descendant, through his mother, of the famous admiral, Lord Rodney, and he saw a great deal of active warfare in India. He was one of the last survivors of the battles of Ferozeshah and Sobraon, in the Sutlej campaign of 1846. Seven years after he was taking part in the recapture of Pegu and the relief of its garrison during the Burmese war.

The Indian Mutiny broke out a few years later, and he was present at the battle of Budleekeserai, the siege of Delhi, and the assault of Rodgate, where he was five times wounded, two wounds being so dangerous that his recovery was despaired of.

In 1863 he was in the North-West Frontier war, and was present at the capture of Umbeyla. He was appointed a Gentleman-at-Arms thirty-four years ago.

CHRISTENED UNDER THE FALLS

An Indian Girl Baby Receives a Flowery Name.

A party of Indians went to Niagara Falls for the purpose of christening beneath the great cataract an infant Princess of the Iroquis tribe, thereby repeating the ceremony which was performed in March 1864, upon the same spot. The christening ceremony took place beneath the Horse Shoe Falls on the Canadian side shortly before dusk, and Indians in full regalia participated. The child is a grandchild of Chief Thunderwater, who was christened in the same place. The girl is eleven months old, and was christened "Mahonicee," meaning "Morning Beauty," and "Au-paw-shee-kan-paw-qua," meaning "woman whose name shall never die." The christening was performed by Rev. Geo. Septimus Gerald Hares, pastor of St. Paul Methodist Episcopal Church.

The fishing grounds of Nova Scotia yield a large return to the fishermen, and the rapid development of transportation combined with improved methods of catching and curing will greatly enhance the value of the industry. It is only recently that the world has fully realized the value of fish as one of the best foods for mankind, and this province is admirably situated for supplying the increased demand. About 30,000 persons are at present actively employed in the industry, and about one-third of the total Canadian fish production comes from Nova Scotia.

SMILE ALL THE TIME

Example of What Good Nature and Originality Will Do for Any Man.

By FLORENCE LILLIAN HENDERSON.

For a week John Bartly had lived on two dollars and a half. The week ahead, unless he secured employment, would start with an empty pocketbook and no credit. The situation was a desperate one.

Still, John smiled. It was a habit with him, and no gloom or disappointment could change it or daunt him. A natural-born optimist, energetic, ambitious, clean cut in his character and habits, he had come from a little country village two months previous, full of enthusiasm and hope.

As he reviewed the sixty days in question just now, he was forced to confess that they had brought neither comfort nor encouragement. At his native town his exceptional good nature and accommodating ways had made him a favorite with everybody. The result was that he was popular; and, as a clerk, a success—but that was among people unspoiled by the rush and pitiless selfishness of the great city.

"Wish I'd stayed at home now," he soliloquized, as he walked thoughtfully down the street. "Two weeks' work out of two months won't do at all. I hate to go back and confess myself beaten, though."

It was the unfriendly ways of city folks that hit John the hardest. When he first arrived he kept on his old cheery smile. He recalled where he had picked up an umbrella for a lady, smiled back at her indifferent "Thank you," and had received an icy stare for the "familiarity," as she deemed it, not being brought up in the atmosphere of untarnished souls.

Then again, there was the man who nearly hired him. An owl-faced, dismal-spirited tyrant, he had sat down promptly on what he considered the "freshness" of a hired clerk, when John smiled his joy at the prospect of steady work.

Every succeeding day John had felt more and more friendless. People were suspicious if he got confidential, and edged away from him if he acted pleasant. He found the city world a hard, practical treadmill.

One morning, his worst morning pel, for he had lived up what he had earned three weeks previous, John was passing a large establishment given over to the manufacture of an improved carpet sweeper. In its office windows was a large advertising picture. It showed the delight of one of their clients in using their device. A neat, pretty-faced girl was running the machine in the picture and looking up, her face all abeam with smiles. Her eyes seemed to follow John as he kept looking back. So pleasing was the impression, that morning after morning he would go out of his way to come under the cheery, encouraging influence of that fascinating face.

"Well, I guess I'll have a smile at that girl of mine this morning, just to see if it won't bring me some luck," joked John. "Hello!"

He said this coming to a dead stop as he reached the store where the picture hung. It was not in its accustomed place—but another face was, a far prettier one, a face of real flesh and blood.

A girl, neat and bright as a new gold coin, had swung aside the pasteboard sign, and was bent close to the great plate glass window pasting a written sign upon it. She chanced to look up. She must have been both kind-hearted and a reader of human nature. The startled yet wistful expression of the face of John amused, interested her. She smiled at him in a pleasant, friendly way. It was like a benison to his thirsty, longing soul.

Then the girl disappeared, and then almost mechanically John read the sign: "Solicitors wanted—liberal commission."

"I never peddled anything," said John to himself. "Not because I wouldn't, but because I fancied I couldn't. Perhaps—"

A sudden resolution braced him up. He entered the place. At a telephone desk bearing the sign "Information," he stated his mission.

Almost Mechanically, John Read the Sign.

"See Miss Dennison about that," said the youth at the desk; "that's her at the first office. She has charge of the solicitors."

John removed his hat and entered the little office, to face the young lady he had seen putting up the sign. Again she smiled, again John felt his heart warm up.

"I saw the sign," he said, a trifle awkwardly, swinging his hand towards it.

"I know you did," replied the young lady. "You are a prompt caller."

"I have to be, you see," smiled back John, "seeing that I have no work. Tell you, miss, I don't know whether I will do or not, but I'm desperately ready to try."

"And not get discouraged, if at first you don't succeed?" challenged Miss Dennison playfully. "Keep on smiling under all circumstances?"

"I always do that," declared John.

Miss Dennison became all business at once. She explained their system of canvassing in detail. John listened attentively, then thoughtfully. Then he said:

"You couldn't let me have one of those smiling pictures with the sample, could you? I have an idea, you see."

"That's good. Originality pays," responded the girl. "You shall have one, certainly."

John Bartley's idea was based on a system of smiles. He took his sample and the pasteboard advertisement under his arm and left the store, the memory of the encouraging treatment of Miss Dennison buoying him up considerably.

He struck out for the suburbs. There seemed to be a different class of people among the trees and the flowers and the lawns. At the first house at which John stopped its mistress was seated on the porch.

John began diffident, he wound up eloquent. First he showed the picture. He declared that smiles meant health, wealth and happiness. He claimed that any one using his carpet sweeper could not help but become satisfied, well nigh gay over the economic, sanitary and labor-saving features it represented. He sold one sweeper. The purchaser gave him the address of a sister. The sister sent him to a neighbor, the latter to a cousin, the cousin to a friend. By nightfall eight sweepers were sold—all on smiles. "Fifty cents commission on each; four dollars. Hurrah!" John was all smiles as dusty, warm, but luxuriously tired, he persuaded his landlady that on Saturday night he could pay up.

Every morning John reported to Miss Dennison, every morning that encouraging smile of hers armed him for a day of striving and victory.

He learned that her name was Mabel. He discovered that she lived with an invalid mother. With his first new suit of clothes, proudly earned, he was prouder still to be invited to call at her home.

At the end of six months John was in charge of the solicitors and had money saved at bank. A year later he heard of a pretty suburban cottage at a bargain, and wondered to Mabel if he could get anybody to help him live in it.

There was a wedding so full of happy smiles that everybody had the best time of their lives, and the first picture to decorate the walls of the new home was the smiling advertisement that had brought cheer to loyal, earnest John Bartly at the darkest crisis in his business career.

EXCLUSIVE JOCKEY CLUB

Duke of Connaught and Son Prince Arthur Both Members

All Royal princes who desire to become members of The Jockey Club—England's most exclusive sporting organization—are elected without ballot. At the time when the prince, who was to become King Edward VII., was elected the only other members of Royal blood were the King of Holland and his son, the Prince of Orange. The King of Holland was a generous contributor to the English turf, and gave many rich prizes to be run for, principally at Ascot and Goodwood. This will explain the "Orange course" at the latter. It took some doing, as it was very little short of three miles.

Another Royal Prince was elected to the Jockey Club at a recent meeting of that body. This was the popular Prince Arthur of Connaught, whose father is also a member. The present King was made a member after the accession of his father to the throne in 1901. There is no other instance beyond the Duke of Connaught of "father and son" who are members of the club. Lord Derby had a seat in the Jockey Club during the lifetime of his father, and so had the Duke of Richmond.

It is something for the Scots Greys to say that they are the only regiment to supply to the Jockey Club one of its members—a real soldier actively engaged in soldiering. H.R.H. is a major in that regiment.

Other kings and princes that have been members of the Jockey Club than those we have mentioned are the Emperor of All the Russias, the King of the Belgians, the Grand Duke Michael, the Grand Duke Vladimir, Prince Christian, the Duke of Cambridge, the Khedive, and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg.

LADY WARWICK'S PETS

She Has a Great Fancy for all Kinds of Animals and Birds

Among the many things for which the Countess of Warwick is famous is her collection of pets at Warwick Castle. The countess has every opportunity to gratify her love for animals, as the estate has special advantages for the care essential to the different species. The birds have almost the freedom of a forest home. The Avon River, which separates just about the castle, surrounds a little island on which kingfishers and wild ducks mingle together.

Perhaps the best beloved of all her pets is the famous white peacock, which was presented to the late earl by Lord Beaconsfield some fifty years ago, before that having been the property of the author of "Lothair." It would thus seem to be quite an old bird, yet judged by peacock standards it is not yet middle aged, for a companion bird, also belonging to the aristocratic breed of white peacocks, which never mate with any but birds of their own feather, is established as being more than a century old, though by how much there are no authentic records to prove.

LADY WARWICK

A very old family servant remembers it as having been a vigorous bird in his childhood, while his father, who died a very old man, remembered it as having been a vigorous bird in his childhood. It is still hale and hearty, though it is losing its feathers and generally beginning to look aged.

Lady Warwick's most constant companion is a fine collie, which is never happy save when at her heels.

"Mother could never go about in disguise," says Lady Marjorie, the countess' daughter, "she would always be known by her dog."

Lady Marjorie is also fond of pets, and many pictures have been published showing her on the lawn with strange assortments of rabbits, lambs, terriers, collies and the favorite donkey. Lady Warwick is one of the best judges of a horse in England, and loves horses as only those who really know and understand them can.

THE MAGNETIC WEST

Roman Catholic Church Caring for Its People—Much Wealth From U.S.

So great has been the migration of United States farmers to western Canada during the past few years, that the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, finding that the movement included many of its members and communicants, has formed an association for the purpose of aiding and directing the settlers to a section where they could be in touch with communities of their own faith.

The association acquired a large acreage, known as St. Peter's colony, in the Quill Plains district of Saskatchewan. A monastery was established, and there is now a considerable Catholic population. The wealth of the immigrants settling in the west during the five years estimated as follows: British, cash, $37,846; effects, $18,773,000. United States, cash $157,260,000, effects, $110,962,000.

Prehistoric Cemetery

The discovery of a prehistoric cemetery and crematorium at Gors Goch, Wales, led to an examination which showed that the inhabitants of the uplands of Cardiganshire in the earlier part of the Bronze Age cremated their dead. Medical men pronounced all bones found to be human bones. A number of circular cavities opened at Gors Goch, which contained charcoal, but no vestige of bone, are a mystery. It is possible that these hollows were receptacles for food for the departed.

King's Gift for Tropical Medicine

The King sent a donation of $500 to Mr. Austen Chamberlain, for the fund opened by the Lord Mayor for the London School of Tropical Medicine, which, his Majesty notes owes its inception to Mr. Joseph Chamberlain. Mr. Austen Chamberlain wrote: "His Majesty's interest and approval encourage us to make a renewed effort to secure the $500,000 for which we originally asked. We have already secured nearly half that sum."

CHAPTER X—Major Lawrence is made prisoner by an Indian and two white men.

Irritated that I had even condescended to question him, I turned back up the road to where the men were yet busy about the wagons, spoke a few words to Duval, he explaining to me the best route toward the river crossing at Burlington, and then swung into the saddle and sent the black forward to the crest of the ridge.

I permitted the animal to go his own gait, and for a mile or more he kept up a hot gallop, finally tiring to a trot. So far as I could judge from the few stars visible we were traveling almost due north. However, I was certainly getting farther away from the British lines, and could swing to the left at daylight. It made little difference where I struck the Delaware; every mile north added to my safety.

My horse had fallen into a long, swinging lope, bearing us forward rapidly. The moon had disappeared, but the sky was glittering with stars, and I could distinguish the main features of the country traversed. I was on the summit of a slight ridge, but the road swerved to the right, leading down into a broad valley. There were no signs of habitations, until we rounded the edge of a small grove, and came suddenly upon a little village of a dozen houses on either side the highway. These were wrapped in darkness, apparently deserted, shapeless appearing structures, although I thought one had the appearance of a tavern, and another seemed a store. There was a well in front of this last, and water sparkled in a log trough beside it. My horse stopped, burying his nostrils in the water, and, suddenly made aware of my own thirst, I swung down from the saddle. My hands were upon the well-rope when, without warning, I was gripped from behind, and flung down into the dirt of the road. I made desperate effort to break away, but two men held me, one with knee pressed into my chest, the other uplifting the butt of a pistol over my head. There was not a word spoken, but I could see they were in uniform although the fellow kneeling on me had the features and long hair of an Indian. My horse started to bolt, but his rein was gripped, and then a third figure, mounted, rode into the range of my vision.

"Search him for weapons, Tonepah," said a boyish voice briefly. "There are pistols in the saddle holsters, but he may have others. Then tie him up as quick as you can."

There was no mistaking my captors—the young dragoon lieutenant, and the three who had escaped with him. But why had they ridden in this direction? What object could they have in thus attacking me? They afforded me little opportunity for solving these problems. Had I been a bale of tobacco I could not have been treated with less ceremony, the white man unclasping my belt, while the Indian, with a grunt, flung me over on my face, and began binding hands and feet. I kicked him once, sending him tumbling backward, but he only came back silently, with more cruel twist of the rope, while the boy laughed, bending over his horse's neck.

"Hoist him up on the black, lads," he said shortly, reining back out of the way. "Delavan's horse, isn't it? Yes, tie his feet underneath, and one of you keep hand on the reins. Peter, you and Cass ride with him. I want Tonepah with me. All ready? We'll take the east road."

Some one struck the horse, and he plunged forward, swerving sharply to the right in response to the strong hand on his bit. I swayed in the saddle, but the bonds held, and we went loping forward into the night.

CHAPTER XI.

Introducing Peter.

It was a new country to me that we traversed, a rolling country, but not thickly settled, although the road appeared to be a well-beaten track. The gloom, coupled with the rapidity of our movements, prevented me from seeing anything other than those dim objects close at hand, yet we were evidently traveling almost straight east. I endeavored to enter into conversation with the two fellows riding on either side of me, but neither one so much as turned his head in response to my voice, and I soon tired of the attempt. The night told me little of who they might be, although they were both in the uniform of the Queen's Rangers, the one called Peter on my right a round, squat figure, and bald-headed, his bare scalp shining oddly when once he removed his cocked hat; the other was an older man, with gray chin beard, and glittering display of teeth.

The movements of my horse caused the ropes to lacerate my wrists and ankles, the pain increasing so that once or twice I cried out. The fellows guarding me did not even turn their heads, but the lieutenant drew up his horse so as to block us.

"What is the trouble? Are you hurt?"

"These ropes are tearing into the flesh," I groaned. "I'd be just as safe if they were loosened a bit."

I saw him lean forward, shading his face with one hand, as he stared toward me through the darkness. I thought he drew a quick breath as from surprise, and there was a moment's hesitancy.

"Let out the ropes a trifle, Peter," came the final order.

The little bald-headed man went at it without a word, the lieutenant reining back his horse slightly, and drawing his hat lower over his eyes. In the silence one of the horses neighed, and the boy seemed to straighten in his saddle, glancing suspiciously about.

"Ride ahead slowly, Tonepah," he ordered. "I'll catch up with you." He turned back toward me. "Who are you, anyway?"

Surprised at the unexpected question, my first thought was to conceal my identity. These were King's men, and I was in ordinary clothes—the rough homespun furnished by Farrell. If, by any chance, I was not the party they had expected to waylay, I might be released without search.

"Who am I?" I echoed. "Do you mean you have gone to all this trouble without knowing whom you hold prisoner?"

"It seems so," coolly. "We know who we thought you were, but I am beginning to doubt your being the right man. Peter, take his hat off."

I straightened up bareheaded, the faint star-gleam on my face. The lieutenant remained quiet, but Peter broke his sphinx like silence.

"'T ain't him, is it?"

"No; he must have taken the other road after all," with a slight laugh. "We've been on a wild-goose chase. However, it's too late now to catch the fellow on this trip."

Peter rubbed his bald pate, his eyes on me.

"An' what'll we do with this lad?" he answered drawlingly. "Turn him loose?"

"Bring him along. We'll find out tomorrow who he is, and what his business may be. Men are not riding these roads at midnight without some purpose."

He wheeled his horse, and, with a touch of the spur, disappeared in the darkness ahead. Peter clambered back into the saddle and gripped my rein.

"Come on," he said disgustedly, kicking the black in the side. "It's a ways yet afore yer lie down."

We rode steadily, and at a good pace. Occasionally the older man swore solemnly, but Peter never uttered a sound, not even turning his head at my attempts to draw him into conversation. The situation mystified me, but it became more and more evident that I should have to wait until morning before learning the truth. Neither Peter nor the Indian seemed to belong to the class with which the army was recruited. Peter appeared more like a well-trained servant, and his riding was atrocious. And the lieutenant! There came back to me the haunting memory that he had joined Delavan as a volunteer—the Dragoon uniform sufficient proof that he was neither of the original foraging party of Hessians, nor of Grant's detachment of Rangers. Yet these others wore green and white, and must, therefore, have been in Grant's command. How did the four manage to escape from our attack, evidently animated by one purpose? Why was Grant so anxious to learn if I had seen the lieutenant, and whether we had a party out seeking him? Not one of these questions could I answer; not one could I even guess at with any degree of satisfaction.

We were coming out of the low, swamp lands into a more thickly settled, and cultivated region. Rail and stone fences could be seen on either side the road, and we passed swiftly by a number of farmhouses, some simple log structures, although one or two were more pretentious.

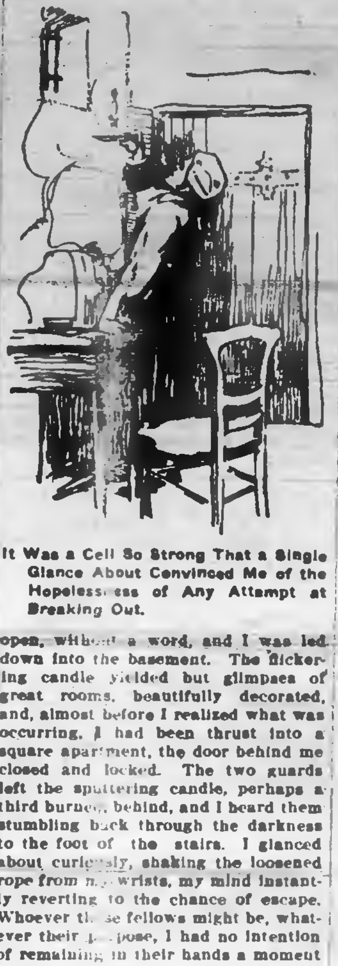
It may have been two miles further along, when the lieutenant, and his Indian companion, wheeled suddenly to the right, and, without slackening speed, rode through an open gate, and up a graveled roadway, circling through a grove of trees to the front door of a great square mansion. It was dark and silent, a wide porch in front supported by huge pillars, a broad flight of steps leading from the driveway. The Indian ran up these, leaving the lieutenant holding his horse, while we drew up some yards to the rear. I heard the boom of the iron knocker, followed by a gleam of light through a lower window. Then a negro's voice spoke, and the front door opened, disclosing two figures, one with sputtering candle in hand. The two exchanged a dozen words before the lieutenant asked impatiently:

"Is it all right Tonepah?"

The taciturn Indian made no attempt at speech, but gave an expressive gesture, and the young officer turned in his saddle.

"Take the prisoner to the lower room, Peter," he ordered curtly. "I'll decide tomorrow if he can be of any use to us."

The two fellows loosened the rope about my ankles, and Peter waddling ahead, the graybeard gripping my arm, we climbed the steps, and entered the hall. A tall, slim negro, evidently a house-servant from his sleek appearance, eyeing me curiously, handed the little fellow a second lighted candle, and the three of us went tramping along the wide hall, past the circling stairs, until we came to a door at the rear. This the black flung open, without a word, and I was led down into the basement. The flickering candle yielded but glimpses of great rooms, beautifully decorated, and, almost before I realized what was occurring, I had been thrust into a square apartment, the door behind me closed and locked. The two guards left the sputtering candle, perhaps a third burned, behind, and I heard them stumbling back through the darkness to the foot of the stairs. I glanced about curiously, shaking the loosened rope from my wrists, my mind instantly reverting to the chance of escape. Whoever these fellows might be, whatever their purpose, I had no intention of remaining in their hands a moment longer than necessary. Somehow their silence, their mysterious movements, had impressed me with a strange feeling of fear which I could not analyze. I could not believe myself a mere prisoner of war, but rather as being held for some private purpose yet to be revealed. Yet the room offered little promise. It was nearly square, the walls of stone solidly imbedded in mortar, the door of oak, thickly studded with nails, and the two small windows protected by thick iron bars. It was a cell so strong that a single glance about convinced me of the hopelessness of any attempt at breaking out.



It Was a Cell So Strong That a Single Glance About Convinced Me of the Hopelessness of Any Attempt at Breaking Out.

I was not there to exceed ten minutes when, without warning, the lock clicked, and Peter came in. I sat up quickly, but as instantly he had closed the door, and actually stood there grinning cheerfully. I would never have believed him capable of so pleasant an expression but for the evidence of my own eyes.

"Spring lock," he grumbled, a thumb over his shoulder, "opens outside."

Whatever resemblance to a soldier he might have previously shown while in uniform was now entirely banished. Bareheaded, his bald dome of thought shining in the candle-light, his round, solemn face, with big innocent gray eyes gazing at me, an apron about his fat waist, the fellow presented an almost ludicrous appearance. Somehow my heart warmed to him, especially as I perceived the tray, heavily laden, which he bore easily on one arm, and the towel flung over his shoulder. And as I stared at him his movements became professional. Silently, solemnly, his mind strictly upon his duties, he wiped off the table top, and arranged the various dishes thereon with the greatest care, polishing cups and glasses, and finally placing one of the chairs in position. Stepping back, napkin still upon arm, he bowed silently. I took the seat indicated, and glanced up into his almost expressionless face.

"Peter, you old fraud," I said swiftly, "have you eaten?"

"Not as yet, sir," his voice showing just the proper tone of deference, his eyes staring straight ahead.

"Then take that chair and sit down."

"Oh, no, sir; indeed, sir, I am not at all hungry, sir."

I squared myself, fingering the knife at my plate.

"Peter," I said, sternly, "I'm a better man than you are, and you'll either sit down there and eat with me, or I'll lick you within an inch of your life. There is food enough here for three men, and I want company."

He rubbed his hand across his lips, and I caught a gleam of intelligence in his eyes.

"Well, sir, seeing you put it in that way, sir," he confessed, almost as though in regret, "I hardly see how I can refuse. It is very flattering, sir." He drew up the other chair and sat down opposite me. "Would you care for a glass of wine first, sir?" he asked solicitously. "It has been a rather dusty ride."

CHAPTER XII.

I Interview Peter.

I accepted the wine gratefully, and sat in silence while he served the meat, wondering at the odd character of the man, and striving to determine how best to win his confidence. I was hungry, and, not knowing what to say, fell to work with some zest, insisting on his doing likewise. Yet even as I disposed of the food that stolid face opposite fascinated me, and held my gaze. The fellow was not so big a fool as he looked, for while the features remained expressionless and vacant, there was a sly glimmer to the eye, betraying an active, observant mind behind the mask. I began to suspect some purpose in his play acting.

"What is your name, my man?" I asked finally, made nervous by his silence.

"Peter Swanson, sir," humbly.

"Oh, a Swede?"

"By ancestry only, sir," he explained, wiping his mouth with a corner of the napkin, but not lifting his eyes from the plate. "'T is a hundred years since we crossed the sea."

"And you've been good King's men ever since?"

He cocked one eye up at me.

"It would seem so, sir."

"The fellow with the gray chin beard was Irish, wasn't he?"

"He might be, sir."

"A Swede, an Irishman, and an Indian," I said musingly. "That makes a nice combination for the Queen's Rangers. Come now, Peter, give me the straight of all this."

He stopped with his fork in a bit of meat, favoring me with another stare.

"I think I fail to comprehend, sir."

"No, you don't, you rascal," a bit of anger in my voice. "Did you bring this supper yourself, or were you sent here?"

"Under orders, sir."

"The lieutenant?"

He bowed solemnly, and asked:

"Would you object if I smoked, sir?"

"Certainly not; only answer my questions. Good heavens, man! do you think I am a log of wood? Act like a human being. Who is the lieutenant?"

"A Dragoon, sir."

"Peter," I broke out, irritated beyond patience, "I have some reason to believe you a liar. But I'm going to get the truth from you if I have to choke it out."

"Yes sir; very good, indeed, sir. However, there would seem to be no need of your resorting to such extreme measures, sir."

"Then you will tell me what I wish to know?"

"It will afford me pleasure, sir."

Somehow I could not rid myself of the suspicion that the fellow was secretly laughing at me, yet his round face was innocent and placid, his eyes discreetly lowered.

"Then kindly inform me, first of all, who this young lieutenant is."

"I fear, sir," solemnly, "that I may have misinformed you when I said he was a Dragoon."

"Yes!" eagerly.

"I would correct my statement somewhat—he is a Light Dragoon, sir."

In spite of my effort at self-control, I swore, tempted to batter that stolid face, yet realizing the utter uselessness of such violence.

"Now, see here!" I broke forth fiercely. "Have done with your play. You are no soldier; I doubt if you were ever on a horse's back until tonight. And those fellows with you are not Queen's Rangers, I'll swear."

"How do you know, sir?" he interrupted gently. "Are you in the army, sir?"

"Of coure I am," I cried, answering without consideration.

"I thought so, sir; although your clothes do not proclaim the fact. May I ask which army?"

He had turned the tables most neatly, and I glanced down over my rough garments, awakening suddenly to the knowledge that I was also in masquerade. To be sure I had one advantage—I knew these men had been part of Delavan's foragers, and hence at heart must be loyalists.

"That is not a question I intend answering to every ruffian who stops me on the highway," I returned shortly. "I wish to know what this outrage means? I will know, you wooden-headed image! I was about my business when the four of you attacked me. I wasn't the man you were after at all, and yet I am held prisoner, shut up here behind iron bars. What is this place, anyhow?"

"It is called 'Elmhurst,' sir."

"Elmhurst? A country estate?"

"Yes, sir, one of the old plantations."

"It's a name I never heard. Where is that precious lieutenant?"

"I presume he is in bed, sir," and Peter rose quietly to his feet, and began replacing the dishes on his tray. Apparently there was not a nervous throb to his pulse, and he remained blissfully indifferent to my presence. I stared helplessly at him, even words failing me.

"You refuse to inform me as to the truth of this affair?" I faltered at last, as he lifted his burden on one arm. He turned a stolid face my way.

"I would seem so, sir. I have to thank you for a most delightful evening, sir. Your conversation has been both instructive and entertaining. However, sir, the hour is now late and I should advise your retiring."

He bowed solemnly, backing toward the door, and I sprang to my feet, overtaken by a sudden determination to make a break for freedom. There was a slight glitter in Peter's gray eyes, as he rapped sharply with his heel on the door.

"I hardly think that would be advisable, sir," he warned softly. "The man outside is armed, and in the excitement might hurt you."

There was a click of the lock, and the heavy door swung open. I stood motionless, tempted to spring, yet not daring the venture. Peter backed majestically out, and I caught a glimpse of the graybeard, and the black outline of a pistol. Then the door closed, leaving me alone. The little scrap of candle left sputtered feebly, and, after walking across the floor a half-dozen times, striving to gain control of my temper, I blew it out, and crawled into the bunk. There was nothing I could do, but wait for morning; not a sound reached me from without, and, before I realized the possibility, I was fast asleep.

I must have slept long and soundly, for when I finally awoke a gleam of sun lay the full length of the room, and food was upon the table. Some one—Peter, no doubt—had entered and departed without arousing me. Sleep had left me in a pleasanter frame of mind, and I ate heartily, wondering vaguely what the day would disclose. I determined one thing, that when Peter returned for the dishes, I would back him into a corner and choke at least a portion of the truth out of his unwilling throat. I had hardly reached this decision when the door opened, and he stood there gazing at me with sphinx-like stupidity. I arose to my feet, gripping the back of a chair, but the utter vacancy in that face seemed to numb action. There was no positive expression, no dim glimmer of interest in his features; the shining bald head alone gave him a grotesque appearance, restraining me from violence. I could as easily have warred with a baby.

Vigorous Health Restored To Run-Down Woman

SEEMED TO HAVE LOST ALL AMBITION, WAS PALE AND ANAEMIC

Made Wonderful Recovery When Dr. Hamilton's Pills Were Used.

"I was never actually sick," writes Mrs. Norman La Pierre, wife of a well known resident of Labaniene, "yet I never could get strong like other women. I ate well enough, but somehow rich and red blood I could never make. When I married I took a great pride in my housekeeping, but it kept me tired all the time. Mrs. Lechance, my neighbor, looked well — she told me her health had been made up by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I only thought of pills as a physic, but now I know that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are more, for they quickened my stomach, liver and bowels—made me stouter and stronger, gave me such color in my cheeks as I never had before. I sincerely believe Dr. Hamilton's Pills should be used by every woman—that's why I write this letter."

No medicine invigorates and renews health and spirits like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, five for $1, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

The Ball Season Opens.

Everybody will be at Riverside Park to-day, when the Canadian League season will open locally with Brantford and Peterborough on the diamond. There is likely to be a record crowd across the river for the opener in spite of the fact that the White Caps dropped their first four games. The fans have not lost any faith in Manager Rowan or his players, because of this temporary setback.

MAINE MAN HUNT ENDS IN ARREST

Newport, Me., May 10.—After a four-day manhunt in which sheriffs and camp follower volunteers were aided by bloodhounds, Charles Roderick, a fugitive from the Foxcroft jail, was again taken into custody to-day.

With a rusty, unserviceable Queene Anne musket he had terrorized the countryside and forced farmers to give him food. The constabulary of two counties was convened in war council near here when Roderick appeared at the depot, was recognized by Officer Hefferon and surrendered on demand. Roderick is to answer serious charges preferred by young girls of this section.

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

St. George's Cross floated above St. John's tower yesterday—Whitsunday.

The funeral of the late Wm. J. Overend will take place from his late residence, 175 Lock street this morning.

The first meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the National Council of Women, will be held in the Young Women's Christian Association rooms on Thursday, May 15th, at 4 p.m.

Very little trouble is being experienced at the Police Department this year with the boys playing ball on the streets, owing to the fact that the Department have two men patrolling the streets on bicycles.

On the night of April 28th, a bicycle was stolen from a Harvey street verandah. It is understood that the local reincarnation of Sherlock Holmes has a clue. The bike is a Milleum of the vintage of 1912. It had, when stolen, Dunlop tires and odd pedals. A reward will be paid at this office for its return.

IF MEALS HIT BACK AND STOMACH SOURS

"Pape's Diapepsin" ends Indigestion, Gas, Dyspepsia and Stomach Misery in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.

THE INCENSE TREE

It is Small and Not a Bit Inclined to be Ornamental

Frankincense is a variety of gum that frequently forms a component of incense, but the term is not met with in commerce, to which incense means a gum that exudes from a tree flourishing in considerable quantities in British Somaliland and elsewhere. There is an inferior gum of this kind that grows in India and other countries of the East.

The incense tree seldom attains a height exceeding fifteen feet. It presents a thorny and unsightly growth and thrives in desert regions. Dealers grade incense according to color—bright yellow, medium and dark yellow. The chief market for it seems to be Aden, whence it is taken by Somalis during the winter months.

THE CALL OF CANADA

Canada is as large as 30 United Kingdoms and 18 Germanies, yet the stay-at-home Briton prefers to remain where he is, presumably content to fritter his humble life away either in the feudal surroundings of some English village, or to wander into towns, and working at a miserable pittance help to depress the market all the time. Yet Canada is calling aloud for Englishmen of every station and calling to take advantage of the great opportunities she offers and bidding them to participate in the Dominion's untold wealth and in the greatness of the wonderful land which will one day rival the glories of its mighty neighbors and become the pivotal State of the British Empire itself.—Mr. Leo Scheff, in "The Graphic."

COCAINE OR CARDS CAUSE OF MURDER

Montreal, May 10.—Jack Desroches who killed Louis Venne in a north end saloon a month ago, entered a plea of not guilty of the charge in court here to-day. He blamed the whole trouble on a game of cards that he played five years ago, when he lost $500, and ever since that time he says he has been "queer."

The police says, however, that he is a cocaine fiend and that is the reason for the shocking crime.

EXPECTED NAVY BILL TO REACH SENATE TOMORROW

Measure Has Not Yet Been Reported for Final Reading in Commons--Senators Fear Public Opinion

Ottawa, May 12.—The navy bill will be on the tapis again to-morrow for its final hearing. Contrary to the general understanding the bill has not reached a third reading. The additional clause which Premier Borden moved in the Committee stage will have to be voted on by the House before the bill can be reported on for third reading.

It is not believed that the Liberals will make another attempt to make a protracted fight and the bill will probably be passed and ready for the Senate by Wednesday or Thursday at the outside. It may not even be necessary to invoke the new closure rules.

Interest Centres in Senate.

Interest is now centred in the Senate. A Liberal Senate caucus is expected some time this week. The Liberals in the House of Commons seem to be under the impression that the majority in the Upper House is prepared to dance to their music and will throw out the bill.

However, it is well known that there are many of the Liberals in the Upper House who are opposed to such actions. The bill cannot be amended by the Senate, it must be either accepted or rejected and the Liberal Senators are frankly afraid of public opinion is they rejected the bill in its entirety and so prevented any action for possibly another year in rendering effective aid to the naval forces of the Empire. If the bill is thrown out it would not be surprising if the Government started a vigorous campaign for some plan of Senate reform.

Bulletin on Condition of Royal Sufferer Called More Optimistic by London.

London, May 12.—The Duchess of Connaught continues to make satisfactory progress, according to a bulletin issued to-day. Her Royal Highness had a good night.

This bulletin is regarded here to-day as optimistic and sets at rest a rumor that she could not recover, said to have been based on a statement from persons intimately connected with the Royal household.

BODY OF OLD MAN FOUND FLOATING IN LITTLE LAKE

Corpse Later Recognized as That of Robt McKee, Whose Wife Dropped Dead Last August

For some days employes of the McDonald Mill at Point St. Charles, have noticed that Gulls and crows paid particular attention to a spot just east of the centre pier in the Little Lake. Yesterday Mr. George Dwyer, of the McDonald Mill, was out on business in a punt with two fellow employes named Allen and Fredenburg. They watched the gulls hovering round the sport indicated, and rowed to the place where they found what looked like a lump of cloth floating under the boom. A pike pole was requisitioned. These sturdy lumbermen, used as they are to the perils of the inland waters, were horrified on pulling in the pike pole, to see the bald head of a man, fully 71 years of age attached. The men at once communicated the result of their gruesome find to the office. The police were notified and Detective S. H. Newhall hastened to the spot. On his arrival he found that Coroner Dr. Greer, by auto, a means of transportation faster than a street car, was there. As the detective arrived, the punt, containing the men named, was rowed by lusty arms and oars to the McDonald Mill, but made slow progress.

Behind the punt, towed by a three-quarter inch rope was the last mortal remains of an old man who had solved death's mystery. As the crowd present gathered at the edge of the water, the rope being hauled in, brought to light the badly fish and time eaten body of a man, evidently fully 70 years of age. The hair had been spent in the watery element but a stubby grey moustach remained. The body, judging by the clothes it wore was evidently that of an English immigrant. The upper part of the body was clad in a thick pea jacket, whilst the legs were covered by the leggings or tight fitting nether garments habitual to an English laborer. The body was taken to Comstock's undertaking establishment. Dr. Greer as no outward signs of violence, apart from those of fish and gulls, were visible, decided to hold no inquest.

The Times enquired of police, lumber companies and others and could ascertain of no one missing who could correspond with the ghastly relic found.

LATER.

The Times ascertained late last night that the body was identified by Detective Newhall and others as that of Mr. Robert McKee, whose wife dropped dead at the residence of their son-in-law Mr. W. Cotton, on Bolivar street. The old man, after his wife's death, became despondent and wandered away from home on January 11th last. No inquest will be held.

CAPTIVES OF THE TURKS LEFT TO DIE MOST CRUELLY

Gaunt, Weary, Hopeless, Miserable and Cold, Men Beg For Water in Vain--Some are Past Craving for Food

New York, May 12.—A cable to the Tribune from London says: A woman connected with the British Red Crescent staff gives an appalling picture of the treatment of the Turkish prisoners after the capture of Adrianople. She says the prisoners were left without food or shelter to shift for themselves as best they could. They stripped the bark from the trees to make tiny smoky fires, but as their hunger grew they were forced to make an attempt to eat the bark and do without fires.

They were all gaunt and weary, hopeless, miserable, hungry and cold, but the condition of the sick beggars all description. They had no attention of any kind, no one even to give them a drink of water or a piece of bread, exposed to the sun in the day and to the cold at night. Somehoarsely begged for water, one or two prayed, some groaned or even screamed in agony, but the majority lay in a dumb patience and silent misery more touching than any words or moans.

Soup Kitchen Started.

Their eyes were sunken in their heads, their cheeks fallen into great hollows, their bones projecting through their skin with hunger, and their lips and tongues cracked, blackened and useless. With the help of some missionaries, a soup kitchen was started for the starving men. Many of them were past craving for food, but at the sight of drink men who were seemingly almost dead sat up and begged for water in pitiful hoarse tones, drinking until they fell back exhausted.

One or two drank literally with their last breath. While to one man was given water there would be another close beside him who would lick up the drops that fell, or try to put his finger in it and at least have that to suck. It was impossible to do much for them and they had to die in this horrible way of disease, exposure, hunger and thirst.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Some local showers, but mostly fair.

EXPECTS TARIFF BILL TO WIN.

Washington, May 12.-President Wilson does not expect that the Tariff bill will be amended in any important particular. He has not suggested that any schedule be reopened; He has not been informed that the Senate contemplates changing the work of the house, and is confident that the measure will pass

CITY OF ST. CATHARINES IS THREATENED WITH DISASTER

Blaze Began in Junk Shop, Spreading to Ice House--Then Dwellings

St. Catharines, Ont., May 12.—Fire was under control this afternoon, the loss being not as great as at first feared.

Begg's cooper shop and ice house, were the two largest buildings destroyed, five houses gutted and a few others scorched Merritton firemen arrived at noon and gave help.

St. Catharines, Ont., May 12.—What looks like the most disastrous fire St. Catharines ever had, was still raging early this afternoon.

The blaze broke out in a small junk shop between Welland avenue and North street, and spread to the large house of the St. Catharines Fuel & Ice Company, containing 2,500 tons of ice, and practically wiped this out—all but the ice—and then destroyed three barns in the vicinity as well as two houses. A high wind was blowing at the time and several barns and houses in adjoining blocks were set ablaze.

Firemen were fighting the fire in different blocks and people were making a wild endeavor to save their effects.

The loss was soon over $30,000.

The water pressure was not adequate. The new duplicate main was not completed and will not be before another two months

HIS FRIENDS STILL TRY TO SAVE GIBSON FROM GALLOWS

Attorney-General Will be Asked for Leave to go to Court of Appeal

Toronto, May 12.—Application will be made to the Attorney-General to-morrow morning for permission to go before the Court of Appeal and present a stated case in a last effort to save Charles Gibson from the gallows. It is evident from the many enquiries that a large number of people will receive favorable reply from the Minister, with satisfaction. The following additional communications concerning the case here reached The News office:

Urges a New Trial.

(To the Editor of The News).

Having known Mr. Charles Gibson sr., for a number of years you will kindly excuse my trespassing on your valuable time and space, to urge through your influential paper that his son Charles, who is now under sentence of death, should get a new trial, as I am firmly convinced that all the evidence in his behalf was not brought out at the trial.

In the first place his parents are not in a financial position to help him, and as he has had a poor chance to get along owing to straitened circumstances, he may have been a "scape-goat" by the "vultures" who actually did the deed.

SEE THE COMET IF YOU SEE NOTICE IN TIME

Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville has received the following telegram that tells of the discovery of a new comet which may be seen this morning with a three inch telescope, as its position then will be directly over Peterborough:

SHE REFUSED $20,000 FOR EARL GREY AND SIR WILFRID

Miss Viau, Montreal Horse Fancier and Greatest Winning Owner at Recent Show, Says Her Prizes are Not For Sale

Montreal, May 12.—One of the best offers that has ever been made for a pair of show horses in Canada has been refused by Miss Viau, who was the greatest winning owner at the recent horse show. J. T. R. Laurendeau, a local owner, on behalf of a New York horseman, offered Miss Viau $20,000 for the pair, Earl Grey and Sir Wilfrid, Mr. Laurendeau offering a thousand dollars to bind the bargain. Miss Viau would not accept this amount, and stated that the horses were not for sale at any price. She also refused an offer for Eye Opener, which won the champion high stepper class. Earl Grey and Sir Wilfrid were big winners at the local show, and their record of a year ago has seldom or ever been equalled by any pair of horses.

CANADIAN ILL-TREATED BY U. S. OFFICIALS

Kincardine, Ont., May 12.—Hector McFadyen, a retired farmer with ample means to keep him until he passes away, left here on Friday to visit his sister at Buffalo. The immigration officers, McFadyen avers, ill-treated him and refused him admission into the States. He had not seen his sister, Mrs. William Kennedy, 169 Seymour street, Buffalo, for 30 years, and was going to spend a week with her. Heh ad $150 on him at the time.

BADLY BURNED BY LIVE STEAM

Ernest Perry and Albert George Victims of Accident at Imperial Oil Factory.

Toronto, May 12.—With terrible burns and scalds to their faces and heads and extending over their necks shoulders and their hands, Ernest Perry, a cooper employed by the Imperial Oil Company, Esplanade and Princess streets and Albert George, the fireman at the factory, were brought to St. Michael's Hospital this morning. Perry was going down into the boiler room with a bucket of paint when the water-gauge in the boiler blew out and both the men were enveloped in a cloud of live steam while the draft caused by the bursting tube and consequent outrush of steam blew the contents of the fire over the room, igniting the men's clothing.

Both of them were able to stumble out before overcome and were rushed to the Hospital, where the serious nature of their injuries were ascertained. Perry is a single man and lives at 333 Ossington avenue, while George is married and lives at 318 Wilton avenue.

SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER FROM HERE ARRESTED

Lindsay Warder: The police feel that they have discovered a man whose previous record is worth looking up, and as a result the party was remanded to the county jail to appear on Friday, May 16yth, by Magistrate Jackson at this morning's session of the police court. The prisoner formerly lived in Toronto, according to a police officer's story, and came through from Peterborough to Lindsay 10 days ago driving. He, in company with another male companion and two women, stopped over night in the church shed at Reaboro, and lit a fire in the building. In the morning they passed through in transit for Lindsay, and were followed by a white bulldog, which killed one sheep and wounded another on a farmer who resides in Ops. The party located on Lindsay st., north, one of the men going to work on the Sussex street drain. The women, it is understood, peddled alarm clocks, watches and other trinkets through the country.

RECORD CROWD AT OPENING GAME AT RIVERSIDE PARK

Baseball Season Opened Yesterday at Riverside Park--Mayor Bradburn Pitches First Ball, President Denham Fanned Out--Pets Defeat Brantford by Score of 3-2 in 11 Innings

Ideal weather conditions attended the opening game in the Canadian Baseball League in this city yesterday afternoon, and combined with the record crowd which turned out to greet the two respective teams, Peterborough and Brantford, proved beyond doubt that this great game has lost little or no interest in the eyes of our sport-loving public. The parade which started at the Y.M.C.A. at 2.30 p.m., was headed by the 57th Regimental Band, proceeded by an automobile which conveyed President W. H. Denham, Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Mr. E. G. Patterson and other prominent citizens; then came the two teams, all conveyed in automobiles, followed by many prominent citizens and city officials in automobiles. Several of the principal places of business along the route were gayly decorated with bunting and flags. The parade entered the ball grounds at Riverside Park at 3.30

A record crowd greeted the Pets in their opening game at Riverside Park yesterday. The main stand being crowded to its capacity as was also the bleachers. The fair sex were out in large numbers. The weather at the beginning of the game was all that could be expected, a nice warm sun shining and light breeze from the south west.

After the players arrived on the grounds, the 57th Band marched out to centre field, where the teams lined up on each side and marched to the home plate, where President Denham and Mayor W. H. Bradburn greeted them. Short speeches were given by the Mayor and Mr. Denham after which a little lady presented Manager Rowan with a beautiful bouquet of flowers. Manager Rowan thanked the little girl and stooped and kissed her—scoring the first hit of the day.

At 3.45 sharp the game was called. The Mayor tossing the ball around and getting loosened up. President Denham handled the willow, while Mr. Lynch stopped all that Mr. Denham didn't hit It was pie for the Mayor, who shot them over in good style. President Denham swatted thrice, but there was not in the air to connect with the bat—he wasn't used to the spit ball and consequently fanned.

The batting order:

Brantford—
Tesch—short stop.
Wagner—second base.
Orcutt—third base.
Ivers—first base.
Brundage—right field.
Diem—middle.
Lamond—catcher.
Donovan—pitcher.

Peterborough—
Brant—short stop.
Byrne—third base.
Rowan—first base.
McNeal—catcher.
Totten—middle.
Chapdelaine—right field.
Sargent—Second base.
Sterling—pitcher.

The game opened with the Pets shutting the visitors out in the first innings and scoring the first run on Davey Rowan's three-base bit.

The game was a good exhibition of ball all through and some spicey plays pulled off by both teams About five o'clock the weather turned very cold, and troubled the players greatly, a few errors crept in which could not be avoided.

Sterling, who did the twirling for the Pets put up a good game pulling himself out of many tight places and kept the visitors down to four hits.

At the end of the ninth the visitors tied the score, 2-2, and the game continued tight until the end of the eleventh when Sargent planted a long drive out between left and centre, bringing in Chapdelaine and winning the game.

Batteries—Brantford, Lamond and Donovan; Peterboro, Sterling and McNeal.

Umpire—McLaughlin.

RIOTOUS CROWD UPSET MILITANTS' PLATFORM

London, May 12.—The overturning of the speaker's platform by a riotous crowd ended the proceedings of the Men's League for Woman's Suffrage meeting in Hyde Park yesterday. 10,000 people greeted Mr. Laurence Houseman, poet and playwright with hisses and cat calls when he attempted to make an address. Other speakers met with even less success, interruption taking the form of clods of earth and other missiles.

One youth had an ingenious idea of annoying the speakers. By means of a piece of mirror he reflected the sun's rays on the faces of the speakers, causing such discomforture that they were obliged to turn round and address another section of the crowd.

Later one speaker made an illusion to the "ignorant hooligans." The crowd took this as a direct application to themselves, angry cries were raised and an ugly rush made for the lorry. The police made valiant efforts to keep back the excited crowd, but were practically powerless.

Watchman Breaks Into Gas Filled Room and Has Fight With Occupant.

Boston, May 10.—An attempt to commit suicide by a man who gives his name as Peter B. Siegel, of 9 Sargent street, Dorchester, was prevented at the Rexford Hotel yesterday morning by Edward De Breuyl, the night watchman. He was passing Siegel's door when he smelled gas. He broke in and found the man lying on the bed with the gas turned on.

Siegel was provoked at the interruption and tried to jump from the second-storey window. He grappled with De Breuyl and for several minutes the men fought. At last overpowering the man the watchman called on two other employees to assist him and then notified the police.

Siegel was sent to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation. He is 29 years old and unmarried.

KILLS AN INSANE MAN RAN AMUCK IN PARK

New York, May 12.—In a fight on Sunday with a maniacal foreigner, who had threatened the lives of women and children visitors in the botanical gardens at Bronx Park, Policeman Frank Anderson shot and killed the man after several times escaping injury by dodging a well-aimed stone and thrusts of a long knife.

The policeman grappled with the insane man and both fell, after Anderson's coat had been slashed with the knife. As the man was ready to strike another blow, Anderson drew his revolver and fired a single shot, killing the man instantly.

THE BIG TRENTON FIRE

Trenton, May 12.—Fire in Miller & Company's canning plant caused the total loss of the building and all its contents yesterday. The Barr Register Company was also completely destroyed. Miller & Company is a branch of the Dominion Canners. The company employes about 150 operatives, The Barr Register Company manufactures cash registers. It is a smaller plant than the adjoining one and has about 30 employes. The loss is about $100,000.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, the full dose, 50c, and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

NERVOUS DEBILITY

OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT will cure you and make a man of you. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers heal up; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear, the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and mental systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. You feel yourself a man and know marriage cannot be a failure. Don't let quacks and fakirs rob you of your hard earned dollars.

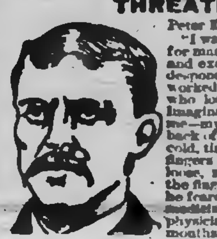
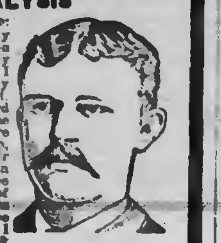
THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS



BEFORE TREATMENT



AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

DIVERSIFIED FARMING ONLY SAFE COURSE

Continuous Cropping Robs the Soil of Its Fertility and Results in Failure

It is a sad thought that the same process of soil exhaustion is going on in Saskatchewan that robbed the Dakotas and all the populated Western States of the fertility that had been stored for man's use through the ages. Could man see the absurdity of first robbing the soil of its stored up fertility; and then, in years to come, raising a number of minimum crops that do not pay expenses until he has run deeply into debt, possibly mortgaged his home; and then struggling through years of adversity to reach the haven that all older communities finally reach, namely, diversified farming, he surely would show himself a much wiser man. When men are raising maximum crops, if they would be careful to raise and buy all the young stock, colts and calves, that they can, it would not be long before they would see the necessity of preserving all the straw, for the use of the stock, as feed and bedding. Naturally they would be compelled to put the manure back on the land, and before they realized it they would be raising special crops to feed and fatten their growing animals, and thus find themselves diversified farmers without having gone through the wheat sweat, or lost the fertility of their farms, and therefore never forced into the necessity of raising minimum crops. The rich farm is a great asset for anyone who tills the same, but a poor farms keeps one slaving to make both ends meet. Most men know this, but are unable to grasp the importance of keping up the fertility rather than exhausting and then rebuilding. Ultimately the present owner or some future buyer must put back the present fertility if the lands are to be permanently cultivated; therefore, we are in hearty sympathy with the efforts of both state and Dominion governments and especially the agricultural press, in all they are doing to impress the importance of diversified farming upon the settlers who have taken up these rich lands on these wide spreading prairies.—Mr. John R. Lowe in the Saskatchewan Farmer.

ERIN'S SOOTHING WEED

Tobacco was first smoked regularly in the British Isles by Sir Walter Raleigh at Myrtle Grove, Youghal, and it seems only right that Ireland should now give promise of being a tobacco-producing country.

ADVOCATES CHANGES CANADA'S SCHOOLS

Kingston Professor Would Abolish Frills and Teach Essentials, Especially Writing and Spelling

From all over the Dominion apparently complaints arise from time to time as to the wretched results of the various systems of education in vogue, says Prof. A. Knight, of Queen's University, Kingston. Business men are loud in their denunciation of systems which turn out so called educated young men, who when taken into offices are found unable to write decently, to spell correctly, and, consequently, to compose an ordinary letter. The same complaint is heard from the authorities of many colleges throughout Canada: that students come to them without a right grounding in "the very foundation of knowledge, the ability to write good English.

The impression is growing, at all events amongst the public, and in some cases among the educationalists themselves, that the cause of it is a too full curriculum. Before a proper grounding has been laid in reading, writing, and arithmetic, the three R's which used to be considered the true basis of all education, other subjects are crowded in, with the result which we see.

Speaking of country correspondents who write for city newspapers, Prof. Knight says: "The writing of most of them is exceedingly bad; uneven, untidy, slipshod, and what is usually regarded as uneducated. In the second place the contents of the letters show no signs of education; that is of an education which would lead the writers to choose subjects beyond trivial ones. It may be, of course, that gossip is what people want to read in these letters; but can it be of any great interest to learn that 'house cleaning is the order of the day,' or that someone has finished painting his buggy, which makes a fine improvement on it?

"Then the mistakes in grammar are shocking," continues the Professor. Over and over again such items appear as "Mr. and Mrs. — was in town Saturday."

"Here, then, are positive proofs of the failure of our educational systems in the first absolute essentials. That they can be found among others than the country correspondents no one can deny. Surely there must be something hideously wrong with educational systems that force people not to be able to write their own language properly, and to have to acknowledge in this sad way that they cannot. Would it not be far better that our children should be taught to speak and write in pure English, even if half or more of the extra subjects be cut out?"

SCARCITY OF BUTTER

Lessons to be Learned From Importation From New Zealand

To quote from the Toronto Globe: Toronto imports butter. Toronto, in fertile Ontario, with pastures sufficient to feed a nation with butter, has just received [illegible] of very choice butter from New Zealand, at the other side of the world. The consignment was purchased by the Swift Canadian Company, and laid down there at a figure that will enable them to market it with profit. The purchase was made in view of the anticipated shortage of real good butter here. This is actually the condition of the market now. While there is plenty of winter butter and other off grades, first-class June and September stocks are limited, so that there is a ready market for the new imports. Profits on this experiment would have been considerable had it not been for the recent mild weather and the consequent unexpectedly large production of butter in the country. More New Zealand butter is on the way to the city. While this purchase does not mean that Ontario is to become a regular importer of butter, the fact or the possibility that profit can be made out of such a deal is significant. Canada's dairy industry is not progressing in proportion to requirements, and the situation is rather serious. In 1912 Canada exported only 192,953 pounds of butter against 1,186,125 pounds the year before. Official figures show that stocks of milch cows on hand in Ontario on July 1, 1912, were 2,000 less than in 1911 and about 4,000 less than in 1910. Meanwhile the Province has been shipping many of its finest grade cattle to replenish the depleted farms of the Canadian west. Thirty-seven million dollars, the total value of the dairy industry in Canada during 1910, sounds like a good deal. Yet it is not sufficient or we could not bring butter half way round the globe to supply our neds. Not only is Toronto taking New Zealand butter, Montreal and the Prairie Provinces are buying freely, and British Columbia has been liberally supplied from there.

Harry Lauder as Poet

Harry Lauder, the Scottish comedian addressing the Dunoon Gaelic Societies, regretted that he had had no opportunity to learn the Gaelic language. He hoped every mother would see that her children learned Gaelic. He recited a poem of his own composition relating to the Covenanter period, with the principal verse:

Auld Scotland, I adore ye
I love ye because ye bore me;
I love your name,
I love your fame,
I love ye because ye are my hame

—WHO OWNS MEXICO?

Who owns a country, the men who live in it, or the men who own its industries? Mexico has some $800,000,000 invested in Mexican industries, while the United States investments in Mexico exceed $1,000,000,000. There is nearly $650,000,000 of United States capital in Mexican railways alone, and about $225,000,000 in Mexican mines. The English have about $321,000,000 in Mexican investments, and the French have about $143,000,000. But unless the political atmosphere clears up a little it is safe to conclude that the immediate dividends upon these investments will be somewhat small. If Mexico had a little more of the right kind of religion, Mexico would be a vastly better place to live and incidentally investments would be safer, and more remunerative.

"BATTLE ABBEY"

There should be no resentment in the North over the protests throughout the South against an invitation to Grand Army men to the opening of the "battle abbey" in Richmond. The attitude of the protesting southerners does not mean that they are still fired by the spirit of secession and rebellion. It simply shows that the people of the South, being intensely human, and having their undying memories of loss and sacrifice in the hell of war that raged over the ashes of their homes for four years, have some things that are sacred to themselves and which they wish to be allowed to cherish within the circle of those who understand.

The veterans of the gray and their sons and daughters are intensely loyal to the reunited and indivisible Union. That was shown, if proof were needed in 1898. They are the most hospitable people in the world, and there is nothing a Confederate veteran enjoys more than a reunion with a soldier whom he fought fifty years ago. But they have a feeling—and the North should never resent or misunderstand this feeling—of pride in the wonderful fight that the South made against the invasion of her soil by a superior force in 1861-65. They revere the memory of the great soldiers of the Confederacy with a love that is little short of adoration.

Offensive Breath Caused Usually By Catarr

Simple Remedy Discovered That Cures Without Drugs.

The American people suffer more from Catarrh than from any other disease. It undermines more constitutions and creates more sickness than all other diseases combined. It is, therefore, very dangerous.

You can't successfully treat catarrh by internal dosing—you must in some way send a purifying, healing agent through the breathing organs so that the germs can be reached. This you do every time you inhale Catarrhozone. Its rich essences and healing balsams are breathed all through the nose, throat and lungs and effectively destroy every trace of Catarrh. This is a proven fact.

I endorse Catarrhozone because I know of six bad cases of Catarrh, including my own, that it has cured. It is a sensible remedy because it is capable of going where the disease is. I believe it cures quicker than other remedy because it gets sooner to the source of the disease than anything else I know of. I had headaches, bad breath and much stomach trouble associated with my Catarrh, but they have disappeared since using Catarrhozone, which keeps me free from colds, headaches, catarrh and all winter ills." OTTO E. KRAMER, Belleville, Ont.

Catarrhozone is needed in every home. Large size lasts 2 months, price $1.00; small size 50c; trial size 25c. At all storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y. and Kingston, Canada.

DANCED IN CAREER JUST 16,000 MILES

St. Petersburg Society Interested I Memoirs of Countess Lambsdorff.

St. Petersburg, May 10.—Widespread interest has been created in society circles here by the publication of the memoirs of Countess Lambsdorff.

The authoress, who, in her youth was an enthusiastic dancer, states that, prior to her marriage she attended 225 balls, and after her wedding 357 more.

At the different dances she received 18 offers of marriage. Afterwards 272 men sent her love letters and hundred of her admirers threatened to shoot themselves in their despair.

The number of dances which the countess takes to her credit is stupendous. Altogether she took part in 2934 square dances, 1,500 waltzes and 600 polkas, her partners numbering 1700.

Of the latter she described 1200 as stupid, 300 horesome, 120 offensive, 28 nice and 3 witty.

Countess Lambsdorff estimates the total distance danced by her at not less than 16,000 miles.

MOB SHERIFF WHO IS AFTER "SLAVER"

Denver, Col., May 12.—Rose Hart, alleged leader of a "white slave" gang, and Alexander Rossi, accused the head of a "black hand" band operating in Denver, was arrested at midnight by Sheriff D. M. Sullivan, During incidental fighting the officer was severely beaten.

Sheriff Sullivan arrested the Hart woman on orders from the grand jury, investigating alleged police graft and vice conditions in Denver county. A crowd insisted that the sheriff release the woman. After Sullivan had fought for half an hour against the crowd, a man struck him over the eye with a pair of brass knuckles. Sheriff Sullivan, releasing his hold on the Hart woman, turned upon his latest assailant. Instantly a man's arm encircled his neck and the woman disappeared.

Sheriff Sullivan, with the aid of several police officers, then arrested Rossi in front of a hotel a block away. The Hart woman went to the city police station, where she told her story to Chief of Police O'Neill, who released her without bond.

Chief O'Neill dismissed the driver of the patrol wagon who had obeyed the order of Sheriff Sullivan and taken Rossi to the county jail.

SAYS DREAMS BAFFLE DOCTORS

Dr. Scripture Declares Scientists Have Learned Almost Nothing About Subject.

Washington, May 10.—The ninth triennial congress of American physicians and surgeons began its session here to-day. Col. William C. Gorgas, the army surgeon who made the canal zone habitable, presided.

At the meeting of the American Neurological Association, Dr. E. W. Scripture, of New York attracted much attention with a paper on "The Dream of a Sleep Talker" in which he discussed the nature of dreams generally.

He said that ambi-dextrous persons never dream, while right-handed persons dream with the right hemisphere of the brain because they use the left brain for conscious thinking.

Comparatively speaking, he said, modern scientists know as little about dreams as man did when the first sleeper had his first dream.

AVIATOR ATWOOD'S WIFE ASKS DIVORCE.

Seeks Custody of Child, But Does Not Demand Any Alimony.

Reno, Nev., May 10.—Suit for divorce against Harry N. Atwood, the aviator, was begun to-day by Mrs. Sarah J. Atwood. She charges that he has refused to live with her. She seeks an absolute decree, asks for the custody of their child, and makes no application for alimony.

Though she persistently declined to grant an interview that would disclose the details of the grounds on which she is suing, Mrs. Atwood let it be known that many interesting facts will come out at the trial which is scheduled for next week.

The filing of her divorce libel came somewhat as a surprise, for, when she took up her residence here last November, with her three-year-old child, she denied emphatically that she was seeking a divorce.

It is understood that Atwood favors the divorce and will offer no opposition.

Health and Beauty Advice

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Annette: (1) Sometimes a druggist endeavors to discourage the making of home-remedies because he thinks it interferes with his business. I never suggest the use of anything that is not sold in first-class drug stores. (2) To make kardene spring blood-tonic and liver-remedy get 1 ounce of kardene, mix it with ½ cupful of sugar and add ½ pint of alcohol and 1½ pints of hot water. This formula makes a full quart of tonic, of which you should take 1 tablespoonful 5 minutes before each meal and before retiring. As an all-round tonic this has no superior. It will restore your lost appetite and tend to strengthen and build you up. It purifies blood and your pimples and ugly blotches will soon disappear.

Virginia: A good "liquid-powder" or face-wash which when on seems a part of the skin is made by dissolving 4 ounces of spurmax in ½ pint of hot water or witch hazel and adding 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine. This home-made complexion-beautifier whitens the skin without the use of powder and is particularly recommended for the use of anyone who has a sallow, dark or oily skin.

Constance: To remove dandruff and stop falling hair, apply once a week a quinine hair-tonic, made by dissolving 1 ounce of quinzoin in ½ pint of alcohol, adding ½ pint of cold water. Rub into the scalp and hair with the finger tips until absorbed. This treatment will promote the growth of hair and tend to make it luxuriant and glossy. (See answer to Molly.)

Molly: It is not necessary to shampoo the hair oftener than twice a month if you use a shampoo that will thoroughly cleanse the hair and scalp. An inexpensive shampoo that makes the head feel good and helps the hair is made by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cupful of hot water. Pour on the hair and rub well. You will find that this makes a good lather—and plenty of it—thoroughly cleanses the hair and scalp and relieves irritation and stimulates roots to helpful action.

Viola: Yes, healthy eyes are clear and sparkling. If yours are dull, red and inflamed you need an eye-tonic. Get an ounce of crystos from your druggist and dissolve it in a pint of water. One or two drops in each eye every day is all that is required. This eye-tonic will not smart or burn and will give relief when the eyes are tired, inflamed or sore. It strengthens the eyes and will benefit you if you wear glasses.

Laura: Your friend is right in saying that I know a certain wrinkle-remover, which can be made at home at very little expense. It is a vegetable product and is unlike creams containing oils or animal fat as it neither grows hair nor makes the flesh loose and flabby. Just dissolve an ounce of almozoin, which you can get from any druggist, in one-half pint cold water and add 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine. Stir and let stand for one day. To remove wrinkles apply a thick coat of this cream-jelly and leave on over night. This protects the skin and allows all the blood action to be used in constructing new texture. Then wash it out of the pores and massage thoroughly with more of the cream. It makes the skin soft and velvety, while it is unequaled in reducing large pores.

Student: It will be good news to you to learn that what you eat is now thought to have little to do with obesity and that if enough exercise is taken, even a fleshy woman may eat what she wants. To half starve oneself means to look haggard and altogether unlovely. Don't drink while eating, even water, and don't drink alcoholic beverages at any time. The best flesh-reducer I know of is parnotis. Get from your druggist an original 4-ounce package of parnotis, take it home and dissolve it in 1½ pints hot water. Take one tablespoonful 3 times a day, before meals.

O. T.: Your eyelashes will grow long and have a pretty curl if you apply pyroxin at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. Thin eyebrows can be made to come in thick and glossy by putting pyroxin on them frequently with the finger. You can buy pyroxin in a small, original package, but be careful and don't get any where hair is not wanted.

Olga N.: The disfiguring hairy growth can be permanently banished by using a delatone paste. Get a small, original package of delatone and mix enough of the powder with water to cover the objectionable hairs. Let remain 2 or 3 minutes, then remove and wash the skin. This simple treatment dissolves the hairs and leaves the skin free from blemish.

WORKMAN ON BARGE CANAL GOES INSANE.

Labor in Hot Sea Causes Man to Become Mentally Deranged.

Albion, May 10.—Jailor Daniel Drennan to-day responded to a telephone call for police assistance from the home of Henry Hewitt, in Densmore road, two miles east of Albion. When he arrived at the farm where Mr. Hewitt is a tenant farmer he found that Raffaele Terrie, barge canal laborer, employed by the Lathrop, Shea & Henwood Company, at Hindsburg, had gone violently insane, and after entering the Hewitt home in the absence of the family, had created a disturbance.

It required three men to overpower and handcuff the man who had become crazed by working in the hot sun. He was brought to Albion by the B., L. & R. electric train and placed in the padded cell at the jail. Within five minutes of being locked up he had ripped his shirts, trousers, shoes, suspenders and belt into strips of less than six inches long and was making the jail echo with wild, inhuman screeches.

Jail physician Ralph E. Brodie and Health Officer Dr. John Dugan attended the man at the jail and will examine him Monday as to his mental condition.

INDIANS RAID THE TREASURY

Demand $800,000 of McAdoo, but Bloodshed Is Prevented by the Secretary.

Washington, May 10.—There was a raid to-day on the United States treasury by a band of Sioux Indians, in full war regalia, demanding money. However, Secretary McAdoo resorted to diplomacy and prevented bloodshed.

The Sioux were from Pine Ridge, S. D., and were led by Chiefs Pine Bird, Bear in the Wood, and Bear Shield. They swooped down on Secretary McAdoo's office and squatted on the floor in war council fashion.

McAdoo was asked to pay $800,000 to the tribe, that sum being the amount due them under tribal allotments. The secretary didn't have much cash in his pockets and didn't want to hunt in the safe, so he referred his visitors to Secretary of the Interior Lane, declaring that they must get some documentary evidence as to the correctness of their claims.

MUSIC & DRAMA

"The Witness for the Defence."

Blanche Bates comes to the Grand Opera House for an engagement of one night, Saturday, May 17th, in A. E. W. Mason's play, "The Witness for the Defense," under the direction of Charles Froham.

The story opens with a powerful scene laid in India, with a drunken civil-service official and a much-abused wife. A visitor brings to this latter a realization of the extent of her misfortune, and, in an attempt to end her own life, she is interrupted by her husband, against whom she turns the weapon for self-defense. The other three are laid in England, where the wife is justifying her action to herself and seeking long-denied happiness.

The heroine contracts a happy marriage in England, although for the time being a second one. In the third act a friend, who knows of the tragedy connected with her life in India, insists that she must tell her husband and his whole family the truth, and it is here that Miss Bates shows her great gifts to advantage.

The supporting company is an exceptionally strong one and includes such well known names as Frank Kemble Cooper, Ernest Stallard and Gaston Mervale. The scenes of the play show picturesque contrats from Kiplingesque glimpses of India to rural Sussex in England.

Frank Kemble Cooper of the Blanche Bates company traces his lineage back to Mrs. Siddons, that queen of tragedy immortalized by Sir Joshua Reynolds in his famous painting of "The Tragic Muse." Mrs. Siddons, as all students of the drama are, of course, aware, was the sister of John Phillip Kemble and Charles Kemble, the foremost tragedians of their day. Their descendants married into the Cooper family, another rare histrionic family in England. Mr. Cooper first came to this country in 1892 with Sir Henry Irving, playing the romantic "leads"—the same line of parts that William Terriss essayed on Irving's previous visit to this side of the water. Another member of the same famous family was recently seen here — H. Cooper Cliffe, the "Nobody in "Everywoman." He is a cousin of Frank Kemble Cooper.

BRADLEY WEDS SWEET SINGER

Son of Fertiliser King Waits Three Years for Miss Clark.

Boston, May 10.—Enthralled by a girl's voice as she sang the part of "Patience" in an amateur theatrical four years ago; ordered by his father to sever his friendship and not even communicate with the girl he loved until he proved himself able to support a wife, Frederick G. Bradley, son of Peter B. Bradley, millionaire chemical manufacturer of Hingham and Brookline, yesterday married Miss Jessie Louise Clarke, the girl of his choice at the home of the bride, Ship Street, Hingham.

The Rev. George B. Spurr, of the Third Unitarian Church, Hingham, performed the ceremony.

Owing to the illness of the bride's father, Joseph C. Clark, the wedding was informal and none but the immediate relatives and friends were present. The young couple will leave presently for an extended honeymoon in Europe.

When young Bradley first met his bride Miss Clarke was singing the title role in a play given by the Hingham Players' Club, of which Bradley was then treasurer. When Bradley heard Miss Clarke sing he lost his heart completely.

When he went to his father and declared he wanted to get married, the stern father said that if his son would promise not to see or communicate with the girl he loved for three years while the son went into business and proved himself able to support a wife, he would give his consent to the marriage.

Young Bradley consented reluctantly. He went into business and prospered. Now he is superintending a large phosphate chemical works at Savannah, Ga.

RING.

In killing the proposed anti-boxing bill in California and enacting enough legislation that makes the present law sufficient to handle the situation, pugilism had a narrow escape from a knockout wallop on the coast. The nose finish will probably serve as a lesson to the money-grabbing pugs who persist in taking money from the fans without giving them a run in exchange, also the promoters who are apt to observe the handwriting on the wall by this time.

The people who favored the law governing boxing at present had a rather tough fight, for a defense had to be rigged up that not only covered some of the other "Brodie" affairs, but also a blanket for the recent Kilbane-Dundee mill to pass unnoticed. And, judging from comments of Coast dailies, Kilbane probably figured a return bout with the Italian fighter a profitable set-to, regardless of what happens to the sport.

ATHLETICS.

Philadelphia, May 12.—Mike Murphy, the veteran athletic trainer, who has been ill for some time from a complication of diseases which physicians think were brought on by too great exertion during his athletic days, is now very seriously ill, with little chance of recovery. It is reported that he has been unable to take nourishment and that his condition is alarming.

Murphy has trained the University of Pennsylvania athletes since the fall of 1905, when Pennsylvania got him from Yale after Yale had taken him away from Pennsylvania. He is one of the most widely-known collegiate trainers in the country and on two occasions has been abroad with the American Olympic teams.

MOTOR.

Maine motorists are regarding the new highway law with mingled pleasure and pain. The pleasure part comes when it is considered that the bill provides that all trees must be removed from dangerous turns and at railroad crossings, and that no advertising signs can be erected within 500 feet of crossings. All state roads must be furnished with signposts of a uniform size and height by the various towns.

Part of the bill legislates against the motor truck, providing that trucks having a total weight of over nine tons must obtain a special license. Speed limits are set for all machines, ranging from 15 miles an hour for light trucks to six for the heavy ones.

BASEBALL.

"What? You didn't let your office boy off this afternoon simply because he told you his grandmother was dead? Don't you know that the moment he left here he went straight to the ball game?"

"Yes, but what could I do? The little rascal taking a long chance, looked me straight in the eye and asked me politely would I like to attend the funeral. You can't call a man's size bluff like that, can you?" —St. Louis Republic.

A Gotham expert has figured out that the reason for the Giants' failure to get started has been their recklessness on the bases. The aforesaid expert has compiled a table of statistics, showing just how many of the McGraws have perished in the act of attempted burglary. Still, we stick for the McGraw brand just the same, believing as we do that there is no chance for the Coogan Bluffers unless they are more or less dashing in their plan of attack. They may run into bad breaks now and then and drop a few ball games because of their hasty cushion work, but in the long run the system tells. There isn't a club in the league that would not like to see the Giants adopt a more conservative offense.

PROTECTING JUTE

A Canadian Industry Which Requires Adequate Protection

United States manufacturers of jute yarns, bagging and twine fear that the new Democratic administration will reduce the protection which they have enjoyed. Jute is a long vegetable fibre, the cheapest commercial fibre in the world, grown exclusively in India. It is used to manufacture bags, sacks, twine, carpets, etc., the chief centres of the industry being Calcutta, Dundee, Dunkirk, Hamburg, Vienna, Turin, Brooklyn and Ludlow.

The weaving of jute fabric has not yet been established as an industry in Canada, but jute yarn and fabrics are further manufactured here to such an extent that Canadian concerns supply the greater part of the home market. In the United States, the spinners and weavers of jute are protected by a tariff of 45 per cent. In Canada there is practically no duty on jute yarn and plain jute cloth.

Why should not adequate protection be given to spinners and weavers of jute by Canada, so that large industries, similar to those enjoying protection of 45 per cent. or more in the United States, might be established in this country?—Industrial Canada.

GENERAL DECREASE IN THE LAND VALUES

The Globe's Correspondent Indicates What is Taking Place in Free Trade England

"It is learned that among the farms ranging from 2,000 to 10,000 acres less than 5 per cent. have shown an annual profit in the last ten years. One writer in The Daily Mail goes into details in regard to a Midland farm of 2,100 acres, valued at £19,772 under the Finance Act, but which ten years ago could have been sold for three times that amount. The receipts from this farm amounted in 1912 to £1,222 7s 10d, and the expenditure to £2[illegible] 8s 6d, plus that amount.

Owing to the general fall in the value of land the landlord has lost a large capital sum since he came into possession. It is calculated that in England the capital value of land fell by over £100,000,000 or $500,000,000 within a generation, and his due proportion of the national loss has fallen on this landlord. If put into the open market the estate would probably not fetch nearly £26,000, but if it sold at half this price the landlord would be richer than he now is by several hundreds of pounds a year.

"One need not go into his reasons for holding, but it is clear that at present he acts as a sort of agricultural credit bank to the estate. Whatever requires capital to be done he does. When the farmers were in a bad way he reduced the rents to a minimum. In the eyes of both farmers and laborers, schoolmaster and parson, who complete the population he is regarded as the pivot of the organization. "Without his capital there would be chaos, and without his personality much less confidence, which is the moral side of credit."

Worn Out.

Said the man in the aisle to the man sitting down: "You ought to stand up and give that seat to me. I am the tiredest man in America. I have just taken part in a sixty-mile motor-paced bicycle race."

Said the man in the seat to the man in the aisle: "You have nothing on me in the line of exhaustion. Maybe you rode in the race, but I sat and watched it."

Sanol's Remedies

THE SANOL MFG. CO.,
WINNIPEG.
Jan. 22. 1912.

Dear Sirs.—

It is just one year ago that we put in the first stock of SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES CURE, and we wish to state that we have been amazed at the remarkable sale of these remedies. We have had many repeat orders in both our stores and have sold retail $1000.00 worth of these remedies. In spite of all these sales we have yet to hear of one dissatisfied customer, while many have come back to tell us of the wonderful cures resulting from the Medicine.

Another striking feature of this business is that so many customers come in stating that SANOL has cured Mr.—— their intimate friend, and they wished to try it for themselves.

Wishing you continued success, we are, Yours truly,

Story of the Nerviest Doctor.

"Shortly after I started in practice," relates a physician on the Kansas side, "our next door neighbor came over to our house one evening and asked to use the telephone. He called a downtown doctor and asked him to come out at once. In a few minutes he was back to ask my wife to come over until help could reach them from the city.

"The M. D. having arrived, neighbor was back to request the loan of my case of instruments. The other doctor, coming without his emergency bag, was unprepared.

"I thought this the limit, but presently he made a fourth trip, bringing his small son along this time. He kindly pointed out the fact that having my own child to look after it would be less bother to have them both, as they could amuse each other.

"Is there a nervier case on record?" he challenged.

"One," replied the householder.

"Agents make life miserable in our ward, but the most persistent one I have had to deal with recently was selling a door plate which reads "Positively No Agents!"

Mean Thing.

They (of course were girls) were talking (of course in the nicest manner possible) about a third girl—a mutual friend.

"Yes," remarked one of them, "she quarreled with Jack, and returned all his presents."

"Oh, really? And I suppose he very naturally returned hers?"

"Every one of them," replied the other. "Why, he even went so far as to send her half a dozen boxes of face powder, with a note explaining that since he first met her he must have taken that much home on his coat."—London Opinion.

That Boy Again.

"Why, your hair is black, Mrs. Wepton."

"Of course it is, Johnny. Did you think it was some other color?"

"Yessum, 'cause I heard my father tell my mother that when Mr. Wepton stayed out late you got red-headed."

GIRLS AS HUSBAND HUNTERS

Experience Proves They Don't Want Much Help in Choosing a Life Partner

To the many fads of vocational training in the public schools a new one was proposed at the recent Teachers' institute in Cincinnati by Doctor Holmes, a psychologist of the University of Pennsylvania. He says, "All teachers should teach their girl pupils how to distinguish a real man from an imitation one. When a girl marries she is married to the family of the man for four or five generations back. If his grandparents were deficient she will have to expect trouble with her children."

There is a certain sex partiality in the inference that the proposed instruction be given only girl pupils, remarks the New York World. Surely, on equal grounds, boys should be taught to know a real girl from an imitation one. A boy may not have to marry a girl's family five generations back, but he certainly has to accept the old folks, and if he has been careless he will have to expect trouble with his mother-in-law.

But waiving the issue of partiality and considering only the vocation of the girl as husband chooser, very little reflection will bring out the well nigh hopeless absurdity of the proposed education. Nearly three thousand years of experience recorded in tales and histories proves that the more a girl is taught and educated to marry a particular man the more she doesn't do it. And who shall decide between what is a real man and what the imitation? Can any school teacher do it better than the school girl of marriageable age?

More Mills Needed

Western Canada requires more flour mills, biscuit factories, cereal mills and pickle factories, etc. There is plenty of wheat and other grain in the raw state of the finest quality ready to be manufactured into the finished product, but in spite of this tons of biscuits, breakfast foods and pickles are imported from Europe and the United States for the local markets.—From The Dominion.

ENGLAND'S TEAM WAS NOT READY

Their Coach Was Not Optimistic About Team for Stockholm—Carelessness in Training

The outstanding feature of the Olympic games was the failure of the British teams to make good against other teams of big nations, and some of the small ones as well. It was no surprise that the British athletes did not beat those of the United States, because that was forecasted by the trainer of the British team away last winter. At that time he said to a newspaper correspondent: "We are not going to Sweden this year prepared as we should be, nor are we going to get together enough good men to make a proper showing. Athletics in England have gone to the bow-wows. We should have started preparing an Olympic team two years ago, but now with the games only a few months away we have not yet made a start.

"I am absolutely astounded at the absolute ignorance of many of our best athletes. Why, some of them do not know the first principles of conditioning themselves. Many of them do not know enough to rub themselves down after a race. When I ask these fellows what system they follow in training they say: 'We haven't any system; we really haven't thought much about training, you know.' It is typical of England's haphazard way of doing things. This putting off everything till the last minute and then making a frantic rush to get ready for the games. England may make a fair showing in the running events in Stockholm, but in the field we will be nowhere. Great Britain will have to depend on Scotchmen and Irishmen to hold the Yankees in check, and even then I expect little more than an absolute rout for our boys.

"In the past it has been a matter of boast that Englishmen could win track events without having to go in to the [illegible] training required in the United States. But there is, of course, no use of attempting to make a showing without some training."

England had some notable victories at that, and when Jackson pulled the fifteen hundred metres race from the best the world could put against him, he did a thing well worth sending that telegram home to his mother to tell her what her boy had done. But Jackson was one who won among many who lost, and the general results of the Stockholm Olympiad must be very discouraging to the athletic world of Great Britain. And yet it may well be a good thing in the end because the lesson taught is that to win against other nations in these big world's meets, British athletes must conform to the practices of the winners, and make the men who are to uphold the honor of the Old Land at Olympic Games take better care of themselves and train with greater diligence.

SCHOOLGIRL AN ATHLETE

For Five Years Nellie Stockwell, Aged 13, Has Been a Champion

For the fifth year in succession a Rotherhithe girl won the sports championship of the London County Council Schools in South London.

Nellie Stockwell is 13 and the daughter of the keeper of the Rotherhithe mortuary. Her latest trophy was the championship medal won at the school athletic meeting, where she was first in six events and second in four others.

She won the championship first when she was 9, and has secured it every year since, although the girl competitors have numbered more than 1,700 each time.

"I don't train in any special way," she said. "My father gives me plenty of sugar and I have running exercise, but that is all."

TWENTY MILLIONS IN THIRTY YEARS

An Estimate of the Future Population of Saskatchewan and Alberta Provinces

A Canadian correspondent of an English newspaper predicts that in thirty years from the present time the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta will have a population of from twenty to twenty-five millions, an annual agricultural wealth of 3,500,000,000 and an output of manufactured products of $3,000,000,000 or more; one city of over two million population; two cities with populations between four hundred thousand and seven hundred thousand, three cities of from one hundred thousand to three hundred thousand, and nine cities between fifty thousand and one hundred thousand, and in addition several dozens of large towns. He bases his calculations on the growth of the Middle West of the United States within the past fifty years.

Big Immigration

At present Western Canada has an annual immigration of three hundred thousand, while the average number of people who entered the Middle Western States from 1880 up to the present time has been only two hundred thousand per year; yet the Middle Western States, covering an area no greater than that of the two Canadian provinces, have now a population of twenty millions. Before 1880 there was no real development in this territory, and even after that there were obstacles to its settlement and advancement which do not exist in the Canadian provinces. For the development of her West Canada has the advantage of three transcontinental railways, facilities for obtaining a very abundant capital for productive purposes on a scale which contrasts most favorably with the conditions which obtained thirty years ago when the United States West was being developed. Besides this the markets of the world are open for the profitable disposal of everything that Canada can possibly raise, a factor which assures continued prosperity and cumulative growth.

Splendid Opportunities

Commenting upon this glowing estimate, the Vancouver Sunset says:

"On its face this calculation may appear exaggerated, but a little reflection will convince the most conservative mind that the picture is not overdrawn. Immigration is increasing year by year, and increasing at an astonishing rate. It is not too much to expect that within seven or eight years it will be double what it is to-day. All of this, of course, will not be taken by Saskatchewan and Alberta, but the greater part will go to the West, and a simple arithmetical calculation will show that an estimate of twenty millions of people for the territory from Manitoba to the Pacific Coast in thirty years' time is in reality a modest one."

The West affords splendid opportunities for the Canadian manufacturer if he will only take advantage of them by establishing branch factories at strategic points. At the moment United States manufacturers are showing great enterprise in that direction.

U. S. FACTORIES ARE COMING IN

And the Canadian Customs Tariff Is the Lever Which Forces Them to Our Side of the Line

In a long letter dated at Medicine Hat, Alberta, on February 17th, Mr. Norman Lambert, a staff correspondent of the Toronto Globe, dwells upon the fact that American salesmen sell vast quantities of United States factory products in the Canadian prairie provinces, but he adds:

"When the manufacturer of the United States sees that he can get such a large proportion of the rapidly increasing trade of western Canada, obstructed as he is by tariff restrictions, it is an easy guess that he will come over here and compete harder than ever for business by actually manufacturing his products on this side of the line wherever it is possible to do so. Western Canada is rapidly finding itself. The interest which is being shown by the manufacturer of the United States in western Canada is distinctly related to the interest which has been shown by his farmer brother."

Industrial Opportunities

To quote the correspondent further:

"That American capital is most assuredly taking advantage of the industrial opportunities in western Canada was borne upon one's mind very much more forcibly after looking about Medicine Hat and the little town of Redcliffe, which is situated only six miles west of it. During the past year nine separate industries entered Redcliffe, representing an invested capital of $1,750,000, and of that amount only $600,000 is Canadian money; the bulk of it came from the United States. In fact, the man who induced industries to go to Redcliffe is an American. He founded the place three years ago, because natural gas was to be found there, and he knew that it would not be difficult to establish an industrial community at Redcliffe. Medicine Hat also during the past year has seen eighteen new industries located within its boundaries, representing investments of from $4,000 to $1,000,000 each, the total amount of invested capital being $4,500,000. A very large proportion of Medicine Hat's new capital is also of American origin. At Calgary, too, one finds a company from Minnesota investing two million dollars for the purpose of manufacturing traction engines, and another concern from across the border spending a hundred thousand dollars in a brick and clay products plant.

Where is Jack Canuck?

The Globe man continues:

"This industrial development is illustrated rather graphically on the cover page of a special factory edition which The News of this city will publish this month. The artist pictures Miss Medicine Hat standing before long, lanky, benevolent-looking Uncle Sam, whose hat she holds in her outstretched hands, and into which that wise old gentleman is pouring factory buildings and dollars. John Bull is shown in the distance, hurrying forward over the prairie with a bulgy looking grip in each hand. But nowhere, even on the far distant horizon is there to be seen a sign of young Jack Canuck.

In this frank testimony three points are worthy of especial emphasis:

(1). The Toronto Globe's accredited agent admits that the national Policy of moderate protection is encouraging American industries to establish important branch factories at a number of strategic points on the Canadian prairie. In this way important centres of population are created as profitable markets for the neighboring farmers.

(2. British capital is following the American lead.

(3). Eastern Canadian manufacturers are slow to take advantage of the great opening made for them in the already great and rapidly developing western market.

OLDEST EXISTING GAME

Tennis Made its Appearance in Europe in the Middle Ages

Most people, when they speak of "tennis," refer to lawn tennis and not to the far more ancient game which was the forefather of the modern adaption. Tennis proper is perhaps the oldest of all existing ball games. It is also one of the most difficult games to learn, on account of the number and intricacy of its rules, which, however when learned make it one of the most interesting.

It has an additional interest, also, owing to its historical associations. Tennis first made its appearance in Europe in the middle ages when it was played in open courts and in the parks belonging to the feudal castles of France and Italy.

The name of tennis is suggested to have sprung from the exclamation "Tenez," which was used by early French players when serving the ball. In France the game was called jeu de paume. It would seem from this that originally the ball was struck with the palm of the hand only. Afterward the players wore a glove. Strings and cross strings were next stretched upon the glove to give a greater impulse to the ball, and from this to the addition of a short handle was an easy transition.

The game was much improved by the building of closed-in tennis courts, at first with walls only, then with both roofs and walls. In France they still play it, sometimes in the open, and in Italy a rough version of it called pallone, can still be seen. In England there are 27 courts, and there is one in Dublin.

Warren Overpack has purchased the Purmal Brick Company's plant, Medicine Hat, Alta., and will greatly increase its capacity by extending and installing new machinery. When completed it will have a capacity of 100,000 bricks per day.

The shareholders of the Alberta Rolling Mills Company have increased the capital stock from $150,000 to $[illegible]00,000. The increase will be used to make further additions to the present plant.

It is stated that Mr. Felix Frank, Prince Albert, Sask., will erect a factory to produce nitrogenous fertilizers and other chemical substances, which would employ 2,000 workmen.

The William Galloway Co., Waterloo, Iowa, U.S.A., has purchased a site and will erect an agricultural implement plant in St. Boniface, Man.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will erect a nine-storey hotel, costing $2,000,000, in Regina, Sask.

Old Tug Back to Work

After lying at anchor in Duluth harbor for twelve years, the tug Constitution, one of the oldest on the lakes, is being fitted out for service at St. Clair River points. The Constitution was built in the sixties and was one of the first tugs on the St Mary's River. Her engines are still good and her hull is in first-class condition. She has an interesting history and is known to nearly every marine man on the lakes.

A Soldier's Remains

The skeleton of a man, probably one of the soldiers slain when York was attacked in the War of 1812, was unearthed by workmen engaged in excavating for a sewer at the eastern entrance of the Exhibition grounds, Toronto. The bones were those of a large man, and were in a remarkable state of preservation. They were reinterred close to where they had lain for a hundred years.

Most cricket bats come from the willows that grow in the east of England, but a few come from the North. As a rule, the former are of the better quality. Good bats have the grain running down the blade like parallel railway lines. A careful player will oil his bat every two days for a month before it is used. It is usually advisable to keep it a year before use. This ensures its being well-seasoned.

Stars in Baseball

The star system is as profitable in baseball as in the theatre. Ty Cobb, "Matty," and others are as big an attraction at the gate as Maude Adams is for the box office. Brush would not take $50,000 for Mathewson. The picking of stars, however, is a risky business. Marquard, for example, "fell down" for three seasons after Brush paid $11,000 for him. Hailed as the "$11,000 beauty," he became known to the fans as the "$11,000 lemon." But finally he made good, and today the announcement that Marquard is going to pitch at the Polo Grounds is good for a crowd that will more than pay his $11,000 purchase price at the gate.

Squirrels Safe in Norfolk

Black and grey squirrels may run about as they please in the County of Norfolk, for the next few years. The Ontario Government has issued an order under the Game and Fisheries Act prohibiting the killing of squirrels in the county until November 15, 1915.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife is a L[illegible], is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a waltz, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel.

CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

CHAPTER VII—The Major arrives at the shop of a blacksmith, who is friendly, and knows the Lady of the Blended Rose.

CHAPTER XIII—Captain Grant and Hessians arrive and search the blacksmith shop in vain for the spy.

CHAPTER X—Major Lawrence is made prisoner by an Indian and two white men.

"I trust, sir, you slept well," he said soothingly, "and that the service is satisfactory."

I choked back my indignation, the quiet deference of his manner causing me to feel like a brute.

"Nothing could be added to my happiness," I answered, "unless it might be a little information which you seem disinclined to furnish."

He waved one hand, as though brushing calmly aside some imagined insect.

"Disinclined? Oh, no, sir; there is nothing to conceal, sir, I assure you."

"Then, for God's sake, let it out of your system, man!" I burst forth impatiently. "Whom am I a prisoner to? What am I held for? What sort of treatment is this I am receiving?"

Peter bowed, without the tremor of an eyelash.

"Do not mention it, sir," he murmured smoothly; "we are only too proud to have you as our guest at Elmhurst. It has been very quiet here now for some weeks, sir, and your coming was welcome to us all."

I could only stare at the fellow with open mouth, so dumbfounded as to be speechless. Of all the idiots I had ever met he was the worst, or else his acting was magnificent. To save me I was not certain which might be the correct guess. He continued in stately solemnity:

"I trust there remains nothing more you desire to learn sir? If not, I am requested to conduct you to the library. Ah, thank you, sir—this way, please."

He stood aside, statue-like, his eyes looking directly past me, and pointed with dignity to the open door. I obeyed the calm movement of that hand as though it had been a military order, but, as I stepped into the twilight of the outer basement, I suddenly perceived the presence there of the attendant graybeard. He moved in advance, and I followed, aware that Peter was closely at my heels. A glance told me here was a library, not only in name, but in fact, a large square room, well lighted, the furniture mahogany, shining like glass, three of the walls lined with books, mostly in sombre bindings. A green-topped table occupied the center of the apartment, a massive affair, flanked by a leather upholstered reading chair, while before the front windows were cushioned ledges. My rapid glimpse about ended in Peter standing in dignified silence barely within the door, his hand upon the knob.

"I am authorized, sir," he said impressively, gazing directly across my shoulder, not a feature expressing emotion, "to permit you to remain here on parole."

"Parole! What do you mean?"

"Parole was, I believe, the word used, sir," in calm explanation. "It is, as I understand, sir, a military term signifying pledge."

"Oh, I know that. Kindly concede that I possess some small intelligence, Peter. But to whom is this parole given, and what does it imply?"

"To myself, sir. This may seem slightly unconventional, sir, but I trust you will repose sufficient confidence in me not to object. The sole requirements are that you remain in this room until sent for."

"That will not be long?"

"I think not, sir."

"And who will send for me?"

Peter's eyes surveyed me, but without expression.

"I am quite unable to answer that, sir."

He was enough to provoke a saint,

"I Hardly Think, Sir, That Would Be Advisable. The Man Outside Is Armed and Might Hurt You."

but I had already butted my head against that stone wall sufficiently to learn the uselessness of any further attempt. Peter was Peter, and I crushed back my first impatient exclamation to say humbly:

"All right, my man, I'll wait here."

I sank back into the upholstered chair, and for a moment after he had closed the door I did not move. Then, scarcely knowing whether to laugh or swear over the situation, I crossed the room, and gazed out through the window. Far down the winding driveway, half concealed behind the trees, a body of British troops was tramping toward the house.

CHAPTER XIII.

A New Combination.

My first thought was that this must prove a trap, and I drew hastily back behind the curtain, believing myself justified in an effort at escape. Surely, under such conditions, my word of parole to Peter had no binding force. Yet I waited long enough to glance forth again. The advancing body was less than a hundred strong, Queen's Rangers and Hessians, from their uniforms, straggling along on foot, limping, dusty and without arms. These must be the remnant of Delavan's command, released by their guard of partisans, and now wearily seeking refuge. But why were they coming here? Surely this was not the Philadelphia road?

They turned in upon the open lawn in front of the door, and I could plainly distinguish the faces. There could no longer be any doubt but what these were the men we had fought and defeated the evening before. Grant, with the two Hessian officers, was in advance, and the former strode directly toward the house, while the majority of his following flung themselves at full length on the ground, as though utterly exhausted. Some strange fascination held me motionless, watching the man climb the front steps. The iron knocker rang loudly twice before there came any response from within. Then I could hear voices, but the words reaching me were detached, and without definite meaning. Finally the door closed, and the two men passed along the hall, beyond the room in which I waited. Then Peter's voice said solemnly, as if announcing a distinguished guest:

"Captain Alfred Grant!"

There was an exclamation of surprise, a quick exchange of sentences indistinguishable, although I was sure of Grant's peculiar accent, and the other voice was that of the young light Dragoon lieutenant. Uncertain what best to do I stole toward the door and gripped the knob. This was the only known way out, for I dare not venture to use the window which was in plain view of those soldiers resting on the lawn. Whether Peter had retired or not, I possessed no means of knowing, yet I opened the door silently a bare inch to make sure. At the same instant my ears caught the lieutenant's dismissing order, even as my eyes had glimpse of Swanson's broad back blocking the open doorway of a room nearly opposite.

"That will do, Peter, for the present. Have the table prepared for three guests at once."

He backed out, casting a quick glance of caution in my direction, and disappeared down the hall, rubbing his bald head industriously. I opened the door wider, wondering if I dare venture upon slipping by unobserved. Then Grant spoke, his voice loud enough to be easily heard:

"How did we come here? Why, where else could we go? The damned rebels stripped us clean; we had to have food. This was the nearest place where we were certain of getting any. Of course I didn't know our foragers had left Elmhurst alone, and that—for some cause which mystifies Clinton—these Jersey outlaws have been equally considerate. There was plenty to be had here, and I meant to have it in spite of the servants."

"You must have marched straight past your own place," the boyish voice interrupted.

"Well, what if we did. There was nothing there, as you know. The house has been stripped to a mere shell. Not a nigger left, nor a horse. I'd like to know what influence keeps this property untouched!"

"That's easily answered. You forget we are a divided family, with fighting men on either side."

"Little these outlaws care for that."

"At least they appear to, as we remain unmolested. There has not been a raiding party halted here since the war began."

"Well, if you hadn't been at home, there would have been one along now," burst forth Grant rather roughly. "Those fellows out there are desperate enough to sack the house if that was their only method of getting food. And I promised they should have the chance."

"Oh,—you did, indeed! That would have proven a friendly act."

"Necessity does not take much account of friendship. I was responsible for a hundred starving men. Under such conditions force would be justified. I doubt if I could control the fellows now if provisions should be refused."

"There is no necessity for indulging in threats, Captain Grant," said the boy's voice coldly. "Elmhurst has never yet turned a soldier away in hunger. Peter will instruct what few servants remain to attend to the immediate needs of your men. May I ask how long you expect to remain?"

I thought Grant was walking nervously back and forth across the room.

"How long? Until night, probably. Then with a bite in our haversacks we'll take the road again. That is, providing you condescend to act as our host for so long a time. Odds life! but this reception is not over warm to my thinking."

"Elmhurst is not a tavern, sir."

"No; but the home of a loyalist—the commander of half those men out yonder. However I am not pleading for them, but myself personally. What welcome have I had? By all the gods, I was almost compelled to fight that bald-headed old fool to even gain admittance to the hall. Were those your orders?"

"Assuredly not. But you must consider circumstances, and forgive Peter for being over zealous in my service. I received you as soon as I knew who you were."

I Opened the Door Wider, Wondering If I Dare Venture Upon Stepping by Unobserved.

"Yes," somewhat mollified, "I presume that is true, although you are chilly enough, the Lord knows. But what brings you here?"

"That must remain my secret, Captain Grant—for the present."

"Oh, very well. I thought it might have some connection with Eric's presence in this neighborhood."

"With Eric! What do you mean? Have you seen him?"

"Ah! so I've got below the surface at last! I thought I might with that thrust. Yes, I saw him last night. I didn't know what the devil the fellow was up to; so I thought I'd let him play out his game. It was a right nervy trick, so far as it went, but unfortunately the rebels came in before I discovered what it all led up to."

"You do not make it very clear to me."

"I told you it was not even clear to myself. This is all I know. When I joined Delavan last night just after dark, he had a young officer of Light Dragoons in charge of his advance guard. I merely got a glimpse of the fellow as we rode in, and he looked so devilishly like Eric that I asked Delavan who the lad was. He said he had joined at Mount Holly with three men, was going through to Philadelphia with despatches from New York, and was only too glad of escort the rest of the way. Being short of officers Delavan gave him charge of the van."

"Did he recognize you?"

"I hardly think so; it was pretty dark, and I was put on guard over the rear wagons. I supposed I would have ample opportunity to learn the truth after it became daylight."

"But you believed him to be Eric?"

"Yes, and after the attack I was convinced. He and the three men with him bolted and got away. Must have run at the first fire, for the fellows had us completely hemmed in. It was Eric all right, and that is about half the reason why I led my men back here—I wanted to find out if he was hiding about the old place. Is it true you haven't seen him?"

"Quite true; indeed I had no reason to suppose him in the Jerseys at this time."

Grant remained silent, probably not wholly convinced that he was being told the truth, and yet not venturing to state openly his suspicions. However the other said no more, and finally the Ranger felt compelled to answer.

"Of course," he explained rather lamely, "I couldn't altogether blame you for concealing the boy if he had shown up here, but you will realize that as a King's officer I have a serious duty to perform."

"You would apprehend Eric? Would betray him into British hands? Is that your meaning, Captain Grant?"

"What else could I do? Don't be unreasonable! Boy as he is, no one in all that crew of ragamuffins has done us greater harm. Again and again he has learned our secrets and brought Washington information of our plans. How he does it is the mystery of this department—Howe has personally offered a thousand pounds for his arrest. Surely you know that. Last night I thought we had him in our power, but the very devil seems to protect him from capture, even when luck brings him fairly within our grip."

"And so you came here to search for him?" I could feel the bitter scorn in the voice. "In his father's home!"

"I certainly did," angrily. "I shall search the house from cellar to garret before I leave."

"But you are on parole."

"Damn the parole. What do I care for a pledge given to a band of plundering outlaws? And what do I care for Eric? He chose for himself, and has no right to expect any mercy from me, and by all the gods, he'll receive none. I half believe that attack last night was his planning, and that now you have him hidden away here. Now listen to me! I do not desire to be harsh, but I'm a soldier. My men are not armed, but there are enough out there to handle the servants barehanded. No one can get out of this house without being seen; I've attended to that."

"And you propose searching the rooms?"

"I do. If you had been a little more genial I might have exhibited greater courtesy. But I haven't any use for Eric, and never had. Now you know the truth."

"It merely illustrates more clearly your character."

"You are always free enough with your comments. I shall do my duty to the King."

"Very well, sir," and the incensed lieutenant pushed back his chair. "Then we clearly understand each other at last. I am sincerely glad of it. From [illegible] I shall never again be guilty of mistaking you for a friend or a gentleman. No, I have no wish to listen to another word; you have spoken frankly enough, and I understand the situation. Perhaps it is only [illegible] gives me the excuse I have been seeking after a long while in vain. Whatever claim you may have had upon my regard in the past is over with, forever over with, Captain Grant."

"But—but, surely—"

"I mean precisely that. You can cover your despicable actions with the gloss of military duty, but I know you now as a revengeful liar. Treat this house as you please. I refuse to have any more dealings or words with you. I'll provision you and your men, as I would any others suffering from hunger, but that ends all. If you search this house do it by force, and in any way you please, but expect no assistance from me. I bid you good-day, sir, and will send Peter to call you when breakfast is ready."

I closed the crack of the door as he came forth into the hall, having no desire to be caught listening. My own position was more unpleasant and hazardous than ever. Whatever reason the lieutenant might have for holding me prisoner I was convinced he possessed no knowledge as to my real identity. The probability was that after an interview I would be released. But Grant would recognize me instantly, and he proposed searching the house, room by room, seeking this man Eric. I must make my escape first. Yet how could this be accomplished? I heard Peter pass along the hall, and solemnly announce the serving of breakfast. He and Grant exchanged a few sentences, and then the latter strode to the front door, where he gave orders to the men. I watched the German officers come up the steps, while the majority of the others forming into irregular line, marched around the corner of the house. A small squad remained, however, on guard, facing the front entrance.

DRIVEN FROM ENGLAND

By Free-Trade, Noted Lace Manufacturer Starts Factory in Hungary

A well-known lace manufacturer of Nottingham, England, in the person of Mr A. Metheringham, who resides at Chilwell, near Nottingham, has left for Roob, Hungary, where he is transferring the whole of his machinery in order to get inside the tariff walls. In the course of an interview just prior to his departure Mr. Metheringham declared in a most emphatic manner "I have been driven abroad by Free Trade. Under present conditions in this country I haven't much faith in its future. We find ever-increasing difficulties in getting our goods into a foreign country, owing to the prohibitive tariffs, whilst the competition from abroad in the home and neutral markets [illegible] keener every year."

Mr. Metheringham's factory is a huge three-story building capable of housing 2[illegible] of the latest type of lace machines, [illegible] inches in breadth, accommodating a staff of [illegible] hands in making lace, bleaching, dressing, and finishing the article from beginning to end. The site, however, which the Hungarian Government have given is capable of accommodating six mills equally as big. In addition to making a substantial cash grant towards the expenses of removing the machinery from Nottingham, they have freed the new mills from local taxation for ten years and Imperial taxation for fifteen years. Not only that, but, as a start, the Hungarian Government have offered Mr Metheringham a very large order for curtain lace used as antimacassars in the carriages on the State railways, the only proviso they make is that after two years a substantial percentage of Hungarian workpeople shall be engaged in the industry.—Draper's Record, London, England.

BIRTHPLACE OF ASTORS

Famous Old House in Montreal to be Torn Down

In the course of demolishing old buildings to make way for modern structures in Montreal there is to be pulled down an historical building.

It is the house in which the Astor family had its birth; that is, so far as the laying of the foundation stone of the fortune of the family is concerned. The original Jacob Astor lived in this house, which looked out upon the river, before the view was obscured; counted his skins in the basement; counted, also, no doubt, his profits, as one of the originators of the fur company, which proved a formidable rival to the Hudson's Bay Company and made Montreal its headquarters.

Admires Canadians

In the comparison of the numbers of millions of population our country is so far ahead of what we call Canada that the figures are never used in relation to respective advancement. We think not so much about the increase of population up there as upon the magic development of vast stretches of plains; the rapid opening of a new country. And those who have had opportunity to observe with their own eyes must admit that our neighbors in the north-west, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia, have been doing things in a few years past to satisfy our pride in them as neighbors and relatives. They show vigor, enterprise, daring and the nerve for great expenditures. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Is Your Back Full Of Aches all Day Long?

THAT STAB-LIKE PAIN IN THE BACK IS SURE INDICATION OF KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Mrs. Anna Rodriguez writes as follows from her home in Valencia:—"For a long time I suffered with failing strength and nagging headaches. My condition grew steadily worse my limbs become bloated and shaky. I was sallow and thin, felt rheumatic pains, dizziness and chills. I unfortunately didn't suspect my kidneys and was nearly dead when I discovered the true cause of my sufferings. I read so much about the wonderful health and strength that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills that I felt sure they would help me. Such blessings of health and comfort I got from Dr. Hamilton's Pills I can't describe. They speedily put me right, and their steady use keeps me active, energetic, strong and happy. I strongly urge others to regulate and tone their system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut."

No greater medicine exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills for the cure of indigestion, constipation, flatulence, liver, bladder and kidney trouble. Refuse substitutes. 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid by the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Yesterday morning the Civil Service Exams for offices in the Dominion Service began in the old Collegiate Institute. There were eight candidates writing. The exams. were the preliminary for jobs as messengers, etc. the "qualifying" for positions in the Inside and various Outside branches of the Government, and 2nd grade, for the Inside service, and 3rd grade for stenographers, etc.

Yesterday's Drunks.

A local young man, whose fulness of waistcoat is only equalled by his good nature and love of booze, was charged yesterday with having been drunk. He pleaded guilty. The Chief is going to put the defendant on the "black list."

At yesterday's police court a young man was charged with having been found drunk, and pleaded not guilty. Detective said there was no doubt about the prisoner having been drunk. The prisoner is only 20 years old. It cost him $2.00.

Gum Drops and False Teeth

On Saturday afternoon at 3.45 a young lady living on Blank (?) Street was walking South on George street. She was eating gum-drops, and incidentally giving two rows of artificial teeth just paid for, a work out. As she reached the Dominion Bank a gum-drop and a cough met simultaneously. The upper set of procelain fell to the pavement and broke. Two nice front teeth, carefully filled with gold, rolled into the gutter, but were afterwards recovered.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

Late Mr. Overend's Funeral.

The funeral of the late W. J. Overend took place yesterday morning from his late residence, 175 Lock street. The large number of friends and acquaintances testified to the general respect felt for the deceased. Rev. Father McCauley sang the Requiem at Sacred Heart church, while Rev. Dr. O'Brien officiated at St. Peter's Cemetery.

The pallbearers were six brothers, Harry and Thomas, of Toronto; Jamet, of London; John of Havelock; Charles of Buffalo, and George of Orillia.

Charles Long.

Advice has been received here concerning the death at Irma, Alta., of Mr. Charles Long, formerly of Harvey Township on May 4th. The deceased was born in Wiltshire, Eng. He came to Canada in 1868, taking up farming in Smith for a short while, afterwards moving to Harvey where he resided until thirteen years ago, when he left Peterborough for the west. He took up land near Edmonton, but he passed away at his son's home, near Irma. He leaves to mourn his death a wife, three sons and three daughters.

The funeral took place last Tuesday in Edmonton.

HE'S YOUNG AGAIN AT SIXTY-THREE

WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR JOSEPH AYRE

Grand Old Man of Thedford Tells Where and How He Found New Youth and Abundant Health.

Thedford, Ont., May 12.—(Special)—Sixty-three years old but feeling like a young man, Joseph Ayre, a highly-respected resident of this place gives all the credit for his splendid health to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Twenty-two years ago while working in the cold mines," Mr. Ayre states, "I caught cold working in water. Rheumatism set in my arms and back, and my kidneys got so bad that it was a trouble to go to work.

"The company's doctor could not do me any good and I was off work three or four days every month.

"Reading of cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills I decided to try them. By the time I had taken five boxes, I could get up on the plate and nail rafters without getting dizzy.

"Now I feel like a young man. I felt like a new man. I gained in weight twenty-six pounds, and I can walk four miles an hour with my kit of tools on my back.

"I cannot recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills too highly. They are worth their weight in gold to me."

Keep the kidneys right with Dodd's Kidney Pills, and the pure clear blood coursing through your veins will make you feel like a young man.

NO NEED TO HAVE SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

(The Modern Beauty)

In delatone, a simple way has been found to remove hairy growths from the face, neck or arms, and one application usually is sufficient to permanently banish every trace of disfiguring hair or fuzz. This treatment consists in applying a paste made with water and a little of the powdered delatone. After remaining on two or three minutes, rub it off and wash the skin, and it will be white, firm and hairless.

Short, straight eyelashes will grow long and have a silken sheen and delightful curl if pyroxin be applied at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. Thin eyebrows come in thick and lustrous by rubbing on pyroxin every day. Use care and don't get any where no hair is desired.

VOL. XL, NO. 113. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, MAY 14, 1913 PRICE, TWO CENTS.

BORDEN ANNOUNCES NAVY BILL THIRD READING WEDNESDAY

Pugsley Makes Final Effort to Have Carroll Amendment Considered, But is Warned That His Action Is Reflection on the Chair

Ottawa, May 13.—Hon. William Pugsley moved, seconded by Mr. Oliver, last night at 10.30, that the Naval Bill be not now read a third time, but that it be referred back to the Committee of the Whole House for further consideration.

The bill was introduced for its third reading about 10.45 quite unexpectedly.

Dr. Pugsley immediately moved that the bill be referred back to the committee for consideration of the Carroll amendment, which had been wrongfully refused by the chairman, and the Speaker held that reference to the Carroll amendment was not proper, and it reflected on the chair, so Dr. Pugsley made his motion more general.

Dr. Pugsley argued that the chairman had not rightfully reported the bill from committee as Hansard would show. The Speaker remembered to the contrary. And he objected to a member reflecting on the chair. Dr. Pugsley said that a lawyer might criticize a judge and point out his error. The contrary idea was now considered barbarous. He argued the same principle applied to the Speaker and was interrupted by the Government side, and told to sit down.

Oliver Seeks Remedy.

Mr. Oliver pointed out that a large number of members considered the bill had been improperly reported, and asked the remedy. The Speaker said that the House could be appealed to put the bill back into committee exactly where it was on Saturday.

Dr. Pugsley maintained that the matter should be discussed, giving reasons for referring back.

If the facts reflect on the chair so much the worse for the chair," said he.

"If we gave as our reasons that we believed the Right Hon. Prime Minister and the member for Portage La Prairie, had used their influences with the chairman, reflecting on those honorable members, and not the chair, would we be in order then?" asked Mr. Knowles of Moose Jaw.

Motion Necessary to Give Carroll Floor.

The Speaker refused to allow that the chair be dragged into the discussion. The chairman had given the floor to the Prime Minister. Nobody had any right to question his ruling. If the House had desired Mr. Carroll to have the floor a motion to that effect was in order and should have been made. Reasons for the motion to refer back the bill to the committee could not be made on those grounds.

Dr. Pugsley appealed from this ruling to the House, and at 11.10 a division was called.

Neither Sir Wilfrid Laurier nor Mr. Graham was in the House, and the attendance was slim on both sides when the vote was taken.

The result was announced: Yeas, 74;nays, 37, sustaining the chair by 37.

EMPIRE WOULD SUFFER

Ottawa, May 13.—In view of his past utterances the present attitude of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his followers is apparently quite incomprehensible to the British press and people.

Commenting on the possible blocking of the Naval Bill by the Senate at Laurier's dictation, the London Daily Telegraph had the following to say the other day:

The whole Empire will suffer in prestige if the Imperial aid offered by the Canadian Government is after all withheld by a vote of the Senate, as Laurier's speech suggests. The mere possibility of such an affront to a responsible cabinet and to the ideal it cherishes ought to be avoided at all costs."

DUCHESS IMPROVING STEADILY THREE DAYS

Ottawa, May 13.—A private message from his Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught to Lieut.-Col. Lowther, Governor-General's secretary at Rideau Hall, reads:

"During the last three days the Duchess of Connaught has shown steady improvement."

KNIFED WHEN HE ANSWERED DOOR

Bell Boy on Lake Steamer Received Gashes In His Arm and Shoulder.

Toronto, May 13.—With a long gash in his arm and a [illegible] the left shoulder, James Cook was brought to St. Michael's Hospital last night, where it was found that five stitches were necessary to close the wound in the arm. The stab in the shoulder was only a graze.

The man, who it colored, is the head bell boy on the SS. Kingston, and stated that this morning that the wounds were inflicted by another colored man who had a grudge against him for keeping him out of a job on the boat. His assailant called at the boarding house last night at 254 Adelaide street and when Cook answered the door pulled out a knife and it was when he went to ward off the blow that was aimed at his chest that Cook got the gash in the arm.

The man whom he charges with the wounding is well known to the Toronto police, having been in trouble before but no complaint has yet been laid at headquarters about the stabbing.

HOSPITAL MATRON'S SALARY INCREASED

The Board of Health met in regular session yesterday morning. Chairman Dr. Young, Dr. McPherson, Medical Health Officer; Jas. Murty, Mayor Bradburn and Sanitary Inspector Spence were present.

It was also decided that Jordan Bros. be awarded the contract to look after the fixing of the flower beds at the Isolation Hospital, at the same price as last year.

An application was received from Miss Bertha M. Mowry, matron of the Isolation Hospital asking for an increase in salary.

It was moved by Dr. McPherson, and seconded by Jas. Murty, that Miss Mowry's salary be increased $100 to take effect from May 1st, 1913. This will make a salary of $700.

Dr. McPherson asked that a by-law be passed by the City Council giving the Board of Health power to deal with such cases as having old closets in the rear of houses when there was sewer connection on the street. Dr. McPherson's motion was seconded by Jas. Murty.

Dr. McPherson said that they needed more help in the sanitary department. The work is accumulating and more help is needed.

The following tenders for the installation of fire apparatus in the Queen Mary Hospital were received:

R. P. Best	$138.00
E. J. R. McPherson	190 00
A. Archibald	232 00
Adamson & Dobbin	166 00
G. A. Brenton	225 00

It was moved by Dr. McPherson, seconded by Cas. Murty, that the Chairman and Fire Chief go over the tenders and make a report for next meeting.

A UNIQUE TALE OF THREE PUBLIC OFFICERS WHO DIED

Police Chief, Fire Chief and Constable Victims of Stratford Blaze--Lightning Struck Half Way Up Spire

Stratford, Ont., May 13.—At their post of duty during a fire which completely gutted the handsome Knox Presbyterian Church in this city at an early hour this morning, Police Chief J. A. McCarthy, Police Constable Mathew Hamilton and Fire Chief Hugh Durkin were instantly killed, when the huge burning belfry crashed from a height of 160 feet catching the unfortunate men before they could rush to safety.

The three men were bachelors and all were well known in Stratford for years. Fireman Sidney Vanstone was also struck by a flying timber and badly cut about the face and head. He is resting comfortably today.

Steeple Burned Through.

During the progress of a light electric storm about midnight, the one sharp flash struck the high steeple about half way up and it immediately took fire. The brigade was at the scene within a minute or so, but owing to no water tower, the men were helpless as the streams did not approach the burning spot.

The fire ate its way through the steeple and the burning embers set the roof ablaze.

Died on Way to Hospital.

Chief Durkin who was standing by his ladder, placed against the building to enable the men to reach the roof proper, noticed the top of the ladder burning. He called for assistance to move the ladder and Hamilton and McCarthy jumped in just as the heavy timbers and thousands of brick toppled and fell with a tremendous thud. McCarthy and Hamilton were instantly killed by the two timbers. Durkin died on the way to the hospital, after being taken from the debris which had half covered his body.

Loss Will Be Very Heavy.

The blaze has burned itself out, but at noon to-day the ruins were still smoking. The loss will be very heavy but can not now be estimated. The insurance on the church is $34,000. A splendid new organ which cost $10,000 and which was to be finished in order to to hold a formal opening this month was destroyed.

If the standing walls are solid, work on the rebuilding of the edifice will be commenced as soon as possible.

It is likely that a public funeral will be held for the dead officials.

BRITISH CRUISER SAILS FULL SPEED FOR SMYRNA

Salonica, May 13.—The British cruiser Gloucester left to-day at full speed for Smyrna after receipt of an urgent summons from that city, where disturbances are threatened.

PROSPERITY KEYNOTE BUDGET SPEECH, AID BY REDUCTIONS

Fiscal Year Marked by Reductions of Twenty-three Millions in the Net Debt of the Dominion--Surplus on Ordinaro Account of Fifty-five Millions

Ottawa, May 13.—Hon. W. T. White's second budget statement is a statement of prosperity. For the year just closed, the year 1912-13, the Finance Minister announces a surplus on current account of $55,000,000; and a reduction of debt of $23,300,000. These figures are not final, as all the accounts for the year are not yet in; but they are conservative estimates and the final results may be even better.

The total revenue for the year just closed, according to the statement of the Finance Minister, will probably reach $168,250,000. The revenue of the year previous showed an increase of $18,000,000 but this year the increase is over $32,000,000. The expenditure on current account in 1912-13 was $113,250,000, leaving a surplus on ordinary account of $55,000,000. To this is to be added $1,300,000, which was set aside during the year as sinking fund; and when the capital expenditures of $33,000,000 are deducted from this sum the result is a reduction of $23,300,000 in the net debt of the Dominion.

A Budget of Tariff Reduction.

It was a budget of tariff reduction Ever since the Borden Administration took office, the Liberals have been railing at it as the Government of the interests. Mr. White yesterday afternoon gave this fairy tale its quietus, when he announced no less than seven reductions in the existing tariff.

Liberals Are Turning

"I have received hundreds of letters from Liberals in various parts of the country, who say they are disgusted with the conduct of the Opposition and will work and vote for the Conservative party next time."—Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden in the House of Commons, May 6, 1913.

SUGAR WILL BECOME CHEAPER TO CONSUMER IMMEDIATELY

Montreal Companies Dropped Price to Trade to-day and Say It Will Work Back--Biggest Single Cut in Years

Montreal, May 13.—The immediate results of the announcement made in the House of Commons yesterday that the Government would reduce the duties on the importation of raw sugar into Canada is a reduction in the price charged for the finished article by the refineries.

O. W. Donner, vice-president of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Company said this morning that the price to the trade would be lowered to-day 20 cents per hundred pounds, or $4 per ton. A meeting of the officials of the company was held this morning and at the conclusion of the deliberations, this announcement in the reduction of prices was made.

This movement of the Government in reducing the sugar duties will have the immediate effect of cheapening the article to the consumer.

"The reduction that the refineries are making to-day is the biggest single change in price for many years."

Mr. Donner stated that as a result of the heavy crop of beets abroad, prices in Canada had been low this year and the reduction of the tariff enabled the refineries to make the present heavy cut.

"The Government has been the means of enabling the people to get cheaper sugar immediately," concluded Mr. Donner.

"Hon. Mr. White in his speech in the House points out that the Government will lose a revenue of $600,000 per year through this reduction in the sugar duties but the benefit to the public will be great. Mr. White outlines the situation perfectly and further comment is unnecessary."

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Northerly to easterly winds; comparatively cool.

THEY THINK GIBSON INNOCENT OF THAT CRIME

Opinion of Hospital and Jail Chapter of Brotherhood of St. Andrew

Toronto, May 13.—Mr. G. P. Duffield, of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew to-day declared that in the opinion of all the members of the Hospital and Jail Chapter of the Brotherhood, Charles Gibson is innocent of the murder for which he is now under sentence of death.

"There is hardly a man there but what thinks Gibson is innocent. He has sworn before God that he is innocent and he has told each one of the boys separately that he did not murder Rosenthal.

"There are eight or nine of the Brotherhood men there every two weeks under Canon Green, the Chaplain, and there is not one of us but who believes in Gibson and would be willing to help him get a new trial.

"Very rarely do we get any sympathy from the jail-keepers, who, owing to their long connection with prisoners, are inclined to become hardened, but in the case of Gibson they all feel very deeply and, without exception, shake their heads and declare that 'that boy never committed the deed.'

Solitary Confinement.

"The boy is now in solitary confinement, and we are not allowed to see him. None but his spiritual adviser can visit him."

Mr. Duffield felt that his spiritual adviser should see him every day. He called for a Presbyterian minister but the clergyman's health had been poor, and he sends his assistant, who, Mr. Duffield believes, is unable through pressure of other duties to visit the condemned man daily, and the Brotherhood representative thinks that some other minister of the Presbyterian faith should take the matter up and see that Gibson's last few weeks on earth are brightened daily by spiritual consolation.

FIVE HUNDRED LYING DEAD ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE

Trainload of Oil and Firewood Rushed to Cremate Bodies of Soldiers Who Fell in Three Days of Desperate Fighting.

Nogales, Ariz., May 13.—More than five hundred dead are lying on the field above Guaymas resulting from three days' desperate fighting last week. Col. Juan Cabral, who arrived to-day at Hermosillo from the front, reported that he had estimated the killed to exceed six hundred.

A trainload of oil and firewood was rushed south with which to cremate the bodies.

The official report of General Alfero Obregon, the insurgent commander, stated that the Federal killed numbered five hundred, with two hundred Huerta soldiers taken prisoners. Both sides have been executing all commissioned officers captured.

BRANTFORD WHITEWASHED IN SECOND GAME OF SERIES

The Petes got off to a good start in yesterday's game with the Brantford aggregation, and showed the visitors that they were in the game to stay. They notched a run every other innings and shut the Brantford's out.

There was not a very large attendance, the chilly atmosphere no doubt keeping many away. The sky was heavy and several times it threatened rain.

In the last half of the first innings Dave Rowan made a nice two bagger Swartz following with a single, McNeal walked and Davie Rowan scored the first run. There was some very fast playing throughout the game and good support was given Brodie who did the twirling for the Petes, Harry Brant was there with the old time snap and during the progress of the game was credited with two stolen bases, while Davie Rowan took one. Claremont, the pitcher for the visitors, went wild on several occasion while the support given him was of a poor quality.

In the ninth innings Collins replaced Claremont at the bat for the visitors, but he also fell short of Brodie's speed, and the game finished with the score of 4—2.

The batting order:

Brantford—
DIEM—Short Stop.
WAGNER—Second Base.
ORCUTT—Third Base.
IVERS—First Base.
BRUNDAGE—Right Field.
TESCH—Centre Field.
LAMOND—Catcher.
CLAREMONT—Pitcher.

Peterborough—
BRANT—Short Stop.
BYRNE—Third Base.
ROWAN—First Base.
McNEAL—Catcher.
TOTTEN—Centre Field.
CHAPDEL[illegible]—Right Field.
SARGENT—Second Base.
BRODIE—Pitcher.

Peterborough had 7 hits and 1 error, while Brantford had 2 hits and 2 errors.

Umpire—McLaughlin.

INSANE WOMAN'S GREAT BIG FORTUNE

Grows From $365,000 During Her 46 Years as Inmate of Hospital at Waverley.

Boston, Mass., May 12.—While Miss Margaret Folsom, formerly of New York, has spent 46 years as a patient at the McLean Insane Hospital, at Waverly, Mass., her estate, which was valued at $365,000 at the time of her commitment, has grown in value to nearly $2,000,000. Of her wealth she is unconscious. She is now 70 years old, blind, and in feeble health.

The increase in the value of the estate has been effected by the careful management of her brother, George W. Folsom, of New York, who yesterday returned his annual accounting to the supreme court of that state. The income of the estate is something like $86,000 a year, in addition to liberal fees allowed by the court to Mr. Folsom as its manager and allowances to seven of Miss Folsom's nieces.

Although no expense is spared in providing every possible comfort for Miss Folsom her maintenance costs the estate only about $4100 a year. The insane hospital management has instructions to gratify her every wish at any cost, and two nurses are constantly in attendance upon her.

A few years ago, when the estate had grown to $1,500,000, Mr. Folsom asked the court to allow $3000 each to the seven nieces of Miss Folsom. He explained that he was the only heir of Miss Folsom and that if she survived him the nieces would receive her estate. It was his believe that they should not be made to wait until after her death to share in it. A referee appointed by the court took this view of it, and the allowance was granted. The court also directed a special payment of $20,000 to Mr. Folsom in recognition of his efficient management of the estate.

Miss Folsom is the daughter of Geo. Folsom, diplomat author and historian, who died at Rome in 1870.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 384 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

HARE AND TORTOISE

Another Instance Where Honesty Proved the Best Policy and Won Out.

By GEORGE ELMER COBB.

"Tortoise" Mowbray they called him at school, in contradistinction to "Hare" Snyder; and never were two sobriquets more fairly earned. Snyder was the particular bright boy of the class, and always at the top, while "Tortoise" Mowbray lagged respectably near the bottom of it. When "Hare" Snyder took advantage of the honor code to cover his cuffs with hieroglyphics and passed his examination for college with honors, "Tortoise" Mowbray got in by the skin of his teeth and kept his soul unsullied.

After college it was the same. "Hare" Snyder and "Tortoise" Mowbray obtained positions in the same corporation, Snyder through a "pull," Mowbray because the straightforward, clean-cut appearance of the young man favorably impressed Henry Davenrich, the president. And Snyder went up and up by means of sundry devious and doubtful short cuts, while "Tortoise" Mowbray remained pretty much where he had started, in the accounting office.

The "hare" made money and spent it recklessly, while the "tortoise" put his aside, added to it, and lived modestly and soberly. They were always friends of a sort, for Mowbray was patronized by Snyder and never openly resented it.

The test of this friendship came when they both fell in love with the same girl. Cynthia Lanfrey was a niece of Davenrich and lived in a big building on Madison avenue where she kept house for him. At this period the "hare" and the "tortoise" had been working with the corporation for nearly ten years. Snyder was pretty near the top, thanks to the "pull" aforementioned, and was a constant visitor at Davenrich's home. Mowbray was invited casually, on some grand occasion; but Cynthia liked him and he was invited again.

Then, one evening, Mowbray told Cynthia his story in a plain, slow-spoken, manly fashion. He had loved her for a long time, he said simply, and he was quite sure he would never love anyone else. He could not ask her to share his thirty-five dollars a week, but could he dare ask her to wait?

And Cynthia had laughed a little and cried a little and treated him like a big, overgrown school boy. Somehow everybody treated Mowbray pretty much in the same fashion.

"You're too late," she said, with a little sob and a following laugh. "James—Mr. Snyder—asked me yesterday."

But that was always the "tortoise's" way. He was always one lap behind the "hare." So, because he had not expected anything different, he went away. Next day Snyder, who had somehow guessed his secret, began laughing at him. He told some of the men in the office, and they laughed at him, too. But these men were toadies of the "hare."

It was about this time that the "tortoise" was temporarily placed in charge of the books of one of these toadies and discovered something that made him sit up all night, thinking. In the morning he went straight to Snyder and told him what he had found. Snyder leaped out of his chair.

Discovered That Snyder Had Taken His Nine Thousand.

"My God, 'Tortoise,'" he yelled, "did old Davenrich put you in charge of the books?" Then he came to his senses.

"You'd have done the same if you'd been in my place, 'Tortoise,'" he whined. "How did you suppose I was going to keep up my style of living on seventy-five dollars a week? Besides, it wasn't really a crime, for Davenrich is going to make way for me next year, and he owns half the stock in the concern. Then, when I've married Cynthia, it will be practically my own business, won't it? What are you going to do about it?"

"These defalcations," said the "tortoise" slowly, clenching his fists—for somehow he always hated to hear the "hare" pronounce Cynthia's name—"amount to nine thousand dollars and seventy-three cents."

"Cut out the cents," said Snyder. "Yes, I guess that's about the figure."

"I have four thousand dollars," answered the "tortoise." "I can borrow five thousand more. I will pay the amount if you promise me to run straight in future for—" he clenched his fists again—"for Miss Lanfrey's sake."

"You good old 'tortoise.' Of course I will," said Snyder, clapping him upon the back. "And when I'm in Davenrich's place I'll make you assistant manager."

"When you are in Davenrich's place I shall look for another position," said Mowbray quietly, and turned on his heel and went back to his desk.

The wedding was set for June, three months ahead. The "tortoise" went no longer to the house on Madison avenue. The whole course of his orderly life was changed. After he had paid in the nine thousand dollars he began looking around for another position in anticipation of Davenrich's retirement. But Davenrich retired earlier than had been expected, for he died.

Then rumors began to spread concerning the financial condition of the corporation. Inquisitive men, connected with the state, began poring nightly over the books. Then one day they summoned Mowbray before them.

"There is an item of nine thousand dollars paid in by you on March 9 last, according to the books," they said. "Can you explain this?"

"Yes," answered the "tortoise" unflinchingly. "I stole that money to play the races, won, and paid the money back. What are you going to do about it?"

"Where is that nine thousand dollars?" asked the chief inquisitor. "It was entered but never deposited."

The "tortoise" could not think quickly enough to answer. So they arrested him and closed the business. Next day the world learned that nearly two hundred thousand dollars had been embezzled by a high official in the corporation. And the "tortoise," sitting in his cell, discovered that Snyder had taken his nine thousand and added it to his other plunderings. The "hare" was moving much more swiftly than the "tortoise."

The lock clicked and the jail governor stood before him, accompanied by the lawyers for the state.

"You want me?" asked the "tortoise" quietly.

"Yes," answered the lawyers. "As a witness. You are free. Mowbray blew his brains out yesterday evening."

"Good Lord!" said the "tortoise." Then, "I am really free?" he asked. "I must go—I have an important engagement." And, finding that he was really at liberty, he went to the house on Madison Avenue. In the window was a bill announcing that it was for sale. In the parlor sat Cynthia.

"I—I came—I came to say how deeply sorry—er—" began the "tortoise."

Cynthia was crying, but it was not all through grief. She knew that, unaided, the "tortoise" would never get to the goal. So she put her arms round his neck and kissed him.

DISTINGUISHED COAL-HEAVERS

The learned English judge who recently set himself to break stones in order to test a case submitted for his judgment was, after all, only copying the excellent example set by Judge Moss, who on one occasion travelled specially to Bethesda to investigate the conditions under which quarrying was done, to help him decide a lawsuit. He seized the trucks and pushed them himself wth both hands. Mr. Justice Warrington of England has also toiled as hard as any coal-heaver. A few years ago some eighteen tons of coal near his residence set up combustion, and all his servants there were called upon to remove it urgently to the open. His lordship thereupon took his wheelbarrow and worked vigorously with the rest.

NORTHERN ONTARIO

It is reported that further exploration of the James Bay slope of Ontario, as well as the Moose River estuary and the James Bay shore, will be undertaken next spring under the direction of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Commission.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Bernard Shaw has become a motorcyclist. His next drama will probably have a strong gasoline flavor.

Montenegro has found that while it is perhaps possible to get some things for nothing, experience is not one of them.

A headline in a Toronto paper says that "Laurier Hits Progressivism." Well, considering the awful swat that progressivism hit Sir Wilfrid in 1911 turn about is only fair play.

It is said that a fire works factory may be established in Lindsay, but just imagine how much more pleased her citizens would be if it were a plant for the manufacture of firewater

"England is able to take care of herself," chirps the Liberal leaders. Quite so, but is it the part of true manliness to permit the old mother to do all the work?

Those who pinned their faith in the ability of the band of obstructionists to force a general election are beginning to lose hope. Parliament is dissolved in Canada by the Governor-General on the advice of his ministers, and Sir Wilfrid does not happen to be one of these. Sad, isn't it?

A LOSING POLICY.

The Liberal party will have to do something better than obstructing measures such as the Highways' Bill, and the legislation to promote agriculture, if they are to win over the farmers of the country. It is a hard task to make the farmer believe you are his friend when you deliberately try to kill legislation which is directly in his interests.

DR. FRIEDMANN'S TEST.

Dr Friedmann says that he is quite indifferent to criticism of others, for the test of his remedy is the effect on his patients. He declares that they are progressing so well that they make the very best answer that anyone can ask.

Dr. Friedmann's position is the correct one, for after all, the proof of anything, like the proof of the pudding, is in the testing of it in the trial and if the new remedy is not speedily successful, it may be passed up among the efforts made by the medical profession to remove humanity from one of its heaviest burdens.

It may be observed that the official report of the government study of the Friedmann vaccine is that observations thus far do not justify that confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by publicity.

In a word, people hope too much of any announced cure of so prevalent and so fatal a disease as consumption. That is rather to the credit of human nature than a reproach to the mind of those who would welcome so eagerly any discovery that would put mankind in command of the tuberculosis disease, whatever its form.

New Treatment Now Advocated for Bronchitis

Is Having Wonderful Success, and is Making Most Remarkable Cures

For bronchitis a different form of treatment is now advocated. It consists of a scientifically devised vapor that penetrates to the uttermost recesses of the lungs and bronchial tubes. Every spot that is sore, every surface that is irritated is at once bathed with soothing balsams and healing essences that make chronic bronchitis an impossibility.

This treatment now so universally employed in bronchitis, throat troubles, colds, etc., is called CATARRHOZONE. It acts just as air of the pine woods acts, as a healing antiseptic remedy for all diseases of the breathing organs.

Just think of it—a remedy that can be carried with the very air you breathe to the seat of bronchial or catarrhal inflammation. A remedy powerful enough to kill germ life and yet so healing that disease flees before it. Catarrhozone is truly a wonderful remedy. In many lands it has lands it has won its way, and is affording grand results to sufferers from colds, catarrh, throat weakness, asthma and bronchitis. There is no sufferer from a grippy cold or any winter ill, that won't find a cure in Catarrhozone, which is employed by physicians, ministers, lawyers and public men throughout many foreign lands. Large size lasts two months and costs $1.00 and is guaranteed; small size 50c., sample size, 25c., all storekeepers and druggists, or The Ctarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

PARTY BADLY RATTLED

It is said that the Liberal party in the House of Commons are busily engaged these days in quarreling amongst themselves. Some of the recent caucauses have not been good old-fashioned love feasts. Rancour and jealousy have held sway, and the party is hopelessly divided. All the trouble, it is said, is over the question as to who shall succeed Sir Wilfrid Laurier as leader. It is notorious that the man who for fifteen years was Premier, does not relish the task of leading a disunited opposition, and would willingly drop out. Mr. Pugsley is making a bold bid for the job, with George P. Graham hanging on for dear life to the Laurier coat-tails. And over these two men the thunderclouds are hovering. Already the mutterings of the storm are heard, and the party is at loggerheads.

Those who believe that Sir Wilfrid is still the greatest asset the Liberal party has are clamoring for an election before the inevitable retirement. They are of the opinion that a last desperate effort with Laurier might be successful, though what ground there is for such optimism cannot be seen. In his fight against aiding the Empire Sir Wilfrid has alienated the strong British support. He is forever looking to Washington rather than to London.

With a disreputed party, internal dissention, and bickering, and disloyalty in his own ranks, Sir Wilfrid's task is a thankless one. He cannot restore public confidence and trust. He showed he was totally unaware of the real sentiment of the Canadian people in the reciprocity campaign, and in regard to the present naval proposals of the Government, he is blind to the public's opinion.

Sir Wilfrid to-day by his anti-British campaign, probably has condemned the Liberal party to roam for years in the dreary desert of defeat. And for that sentence he alone is responsible.

CHUCK CONNORS DEAD; TONGMEN CALL TRUCE

Chinese Clansmen to March Shoulder to Shoulder Behind Hearse.

New York, May 13.—"Chuck" Connors is dead. The picturesque character of the old Bowery, best known, perhaps, as the "Mayor of Chinatown," died of heart disease in the Hudson Street Hospital to-day.

The secrets of Chinatown's dark hallways, subterranean passages and hidden shadows had been his for many years. Slant-eyed veterans of its warring tongs, the Four Brothers, the Hip Sing Tong and the On Leong Tong, declared a truce when the news of his death became known, and they will march shoulder to shoulder in a parade to honor his memory.

"Chuck" Connors was sixty-one year old. Most of his life was spent in Chinatown. Of late he had made a living as guide to sightseeing parties visiting his stamping ground.

AIRSHIP HITS TREE U. S. OFFICER DEAD

Lieut. Jos. D. Parks Plunges to Eternity on Flight in California.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 12.—Lieutenant Joseph D. Park, a military aviator, who started from San Diego this morning on a flight to Los Angeles, was killed at Olive, nine miles north of Santa Ana.

Lieutenant Park met his death in a fall of less than fifteen feet. He had alighted a quarter of a mile from the Olive School House, on account of a heavy mist that confused him as to his bearings, and after giving a message to a little girl to telephone to Glen Martin in Los Angeles he rose again. Then he swooped over a low hill and crashed into a tree. He was dead when the child and her father reached his side.

Had Fine War Record

Lieutenant Park was attached to the Fourth Cavalry, but for several months has been detailed with other army officers for active service near San Diego.

Park has made many flights there and attained the army altitude record record recently. It was to demonstrate the efficiency of the aeroplane in long distance army scouting operation that he attempted to-day's fight.

Lieutenant Park has a notable record for service in the Philippines, especially in the operations against the Moros.

SAYF HUSBAND, WOUNDS BABE AT DINNER

Yancey Barron, Planter, Killed By Insane Wife At Sturgis, Mississippi.

Starkville, Miss., May 12.—As he sat at his dinner table at Sturgis this afternoon, holding a nursing bottle for his six months' old baby, Yancey Barron, a prominent planter, was shot and instantly killed by his wife, and the baby fatally injured.

Mr. Barron's back was to the door when his wife entered the room with a shotgun, and without warning discharged the weapon. Mrs. Barron had recently been treated for insanity, but was believed to have recovered.

When an officer came to put her under arrest he found her apparently unconscious of what she had done. She stood in the dining room with the weapon still clenched in her hands, staring at the bodies of her husband and the suffering baby.

Mrs. Barron was Louanna Saxon daughter of Dr. I. G. Saxon of Gulfport. She is a native of Lowndes, county. The couple had five sons.

Dr. Saxon was notified and is on his way to Sturgis with the mother of the unfortunate woman. Mrs. Barron has several brothers in Mississippi and one sister, Mrs. Heidelberg, of Clarksdale.

The dead man operated a sawmill and large plantation. He was highly educated.

MY WORD! THE GENERAL IS IN A FIX-EH, WHAT?

The Summer Underwear of Maj.-Gen. R. Fowler-Butler, British Army, Is Making Some Mileage Record.

New York, May 12.—The red flannel underwear of Maj.-Gen. R. Fowler-Butler, British army, retired, was not changed on May 1 this year for the first time in fifty springs. Therefore, when the general sailed for home on the Cedric to-day he made remarks that curdled the cream in the captain's tea.

My word! The things he said!

Here beginneth the odyssey of the general's summer undershirts and — the rest of his warm summer undergarments.

April 9, Maj.-Gen. Fowler-Butler took his first vacation, after having served their majesties Victoria, Edward, and George for about half a century. He sailed on the Magdalena for a round about voyage to New York, touching at South American and West Indian ports.

Three trunks the general had. In two of them were just clothes. In the ther was the summer underwear of a peculiar texture, all his pajamas, and a few bottles of his favorite brandy.

Third Trunk Missing.

The first day out the general discovered that the third trunk had not been shipped.

"Egad, sir" said the general to the captain, his complexion growing richer, "I cannot lose that trunk."

They wirelessed Southampton from a Royal Mail ship, and then to Barbadoes by a fuit steamer. The general breathed easier. He would have his light underwear by the 1st of May.

The trunk reached Barbadoes before the Magdalena and was sent to the public stores. Steamship officials, police and health officers helped the general hunt for it, but it had been lost. The day after the Magdalena sailed for Cartagena the trunk was found.

"Send trunk to Cartagena," wired Gen. Fowler-Butler, who by that time could not trust himself to speak of the trunk except by wireless.

In The Tropics.

By mistake the trunk was sent to Colon. Just after it had been forwarded to Cartagena the Magdalena arrived in Colon. The general was not in good humor. Friends, to divert him, showed him the canal.

"But what do the bloody Yankees want to build the things for, anyhow?" he asked. "It isn't any good."

The general's friends gave up. They didn't even date to mention the trunk.

The trunk came back to Colon, but the general had to stick to the Magdalena to make connection in New York. So he missed it again. May 1 [illegible] caught him in Jamaica.

"It's a nice day, general," said a friend on that fateful morning.

"There are no nice days in this hemisphere," answered the warrior. "And moreover, sir, I'm not too old to fight if you maintain that there are!"

The matter was dropped.

Recovered at Last

When the general arrived here the trunk was waiting for him.

HARVARD TRIO RISK DEATH FOR SCIENCE

For the purpose of securing data for the new school in trophical diseases which has been opened by Harvard University, Dr. R. P. Strong, former chief of the health department of the Philippines; Dr. E. E. Tyzzer, assistant professor in pathology, and director of the Harvard cancer commission, and C. T. Bruse, the noted scientist, have sailed for Ecuador. They will spend most of their time in Guayaquil, said to be the most unhealthy city in the world

The expedition will remain in the tropics until about September, and during its sojourn there will study every known sort of tropical disease. Mr. Bruse will make a special collection of tropical insects and will obtain fresh material in the plague, yellow fever and like diseases. The three men will be in imminent peril throughout the greater part of their trip.

YATCHING.

London, May 13.—The Royal Ulster Yacht Club today received a letter from the New York Yacht Club replying to Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge to a race with Shamrock IV. for the America's cup, in which it was stated that the New York Yacht Club since 1902 has made radical changes in its system of measurement and time allowance, and that important changes also have been made in the racing rules. The letter continues:

"Your reference, therefore, to the regulations of the last contest as governing the present challenge, leaves uncertain whether you mean a challenge for a match sailed with or without time allowance, and, if with time allowance, whether you propose it to be sailed under the New York Yacht Club system of measurement and time allowance and under the racing regulations of 1902 which governed the last contest, but which are not in force at the present time."

The letter concludes by asking for information on these points, "as it is essential that our committee be informed of the specific nature of the match proposed before it can take any action on the challenge."

BASEBALL.

Pittsburgh needs tuning up considerably if the club is to win the pennant, as has been predicted all over the well known universe. The trouble lies not in the pitching department, which is as good as one could wish for at this time of year, but in the clouting division the 11 time harshness of the Buccaneer attack is sadly lacking! A great pitching staff has a hard enough time keeping down the hostile total without expecting it to boost in a few runs here and there, which, however, has been done by certain and sundry hurlers of the Corsairs.

New York, May 12.—The New York American league announces that Manager Chance had signed Catcher William Reynolds of the Houston baseball club.

Ray Keating, the mervelous young spitball pitcher who has won New York's three games for them and deserved to win some more, is touted as anothwe Ed Walsh by the man who sold him to New York, and also by Scout Ted Sullivan.

Director Noonan of the Lawrence club in the New England league, who sold Keating to the Yankees last fall, thinks Keating will be another Walsh.

Boston, Mass., May 14. — Four straight defeats of the Pirates at the hands of the Braves cost on Boston man $500 because of a playful bet he made when Pittsburgh came to town. After the first game a friend remarked to him that he wouldn't be surprised to see Boston win the series.

"I'll bet you one hundred to one they don't," said the second man.

"Just for the fun of things," the man said, "I'll take the short end to the extent of $5."

Yesterday afternoon the short end man left the Walpole street park $500 richer. Another man had resolved never to bet on a ball game.

A review of the first baseball week at Toronto Island shows one fact sticking out above all others — that Toronto has the best looking lot of young pitchers they have had in years. Brant, Goulait, and Hearne all showed grand form in the games they worked. And they were pitching under a handicap of a cold, raw wind.

HELD FOR DEATH OF SECOND WIFE

Sutherland o' Whitman Served Term in Prison for Causing Death of First.

Arlington, May 12.—James H. Sutherland of Whitman was to-day held without bail for the grand jury on the charge that he caused the death of his second wife on April 28th.

Dr. S. J. Beaulieu testified that the body bore marks of "great violence"; that the bed clothing in one of the rooms in the house was spattered with blood, and that, in his opinion, the bruises which covered her body had been sustained before the burns, which extended from her neck to her knees.

Dr. Beaulieu said that he was called to the house by Sutherland who told him that his wife had fallen down stairs. Under cross-examination he said that when he told Sutherland the woman was dead he knelt beside her and exclaimed: "For God's sake, Minnie, say something!"

James King testified that when he met Sutherland, soon after the death of his wife he said: "It's all off with me now."

Police Chief Brouillard testified that he found blood stains on one of the rooms, with dents in the side walls which the legs of broken chairs fitted exactly. Sutherland's shirt was bloody he said, when he arrested him.

Medical Examiner Payne testified that the bruises were made before the burns, and that they could not possibly have been sustained in a fall down stairs.

Sutherland was taken to the jail at Plymouth.

Before his marriage to his second wife Sutherland served a term in jail for causing the death of his first wife.

HOME HEALH CLUB

DR. DAVID H. REEDER,
Chicago, Ill.

GETTING DISCOURAGED: Part 1—Its easy to get blue and discouraged when sick, even though the sickness may be only a cold or a headache, but when more serious troubles arrive real sickness takes hold of you then indeed it's hard to smile and be cheerful.

I have known invalids, however, hopeless cases, who were always bright and appeared cheerful to others and thus became an inspiration to all who knew them or came under their influence. Some people realize that the cultivation of gloom and despondency lessens their chances of regaining health and so they refuse to look upon the dark side of the picture. While they laugh at the sickness, they at the same time adopt every rational means for restoring health. A sound and well mind will do more for your body than all the drugs that can be read about, while a morbid fear and persistant belief in hopeless disease will counteract the best efforts of the most skillful physician.

One of the most powerful factors in the success or failure of a physician is the confidence of his patient. If he fails to secure that confidence, he is handicapped from start to finish. Confidence, cheerfulness and sensible treatment are the most potent factors for success in health as well as business.

Let me tell you about the case of a dear mother who wrote to the Club from Oklahoma. She just would not give up and be sick, but finally the doctor was called and he said the case was so serious that he wanted the council of some other great doctor, well, that naturally frightened the family and they insisted that she should go to a hospital where she could have the best of care. Now that part was all right, but when the great specialist finally reported on the case he used a vast number of profound medical terms that sent cold chills down the spine of her husband, although they were absolutely meaningless to him.

CLUB NOTES

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

Dear Doctor: I am a young man 31 years of age, do not use tobacco, liquors, and am troubled with a very distressing condition. Whenever I go anywhere and become a little excited, the sweat rolls down my face. I feel ashamed of myself, but I cannot help it. I would be grateful if you could suggest anything to cure this trouble.

H. M.

Your annoying complaint is simply a symptom of what is known as Neirasthenia, though in a very light form. It is caused by a high degree of self consciousness and is closely allied to blushing. Your worrying about the trouble, simply aggravates it and you undoubtedly look forward to it and expect it to occur, for instance, in the presence of others. You will have to learn to ignore entirely this tendency for such is practically amounts to and to do this you must seek the company of others on every possible occasion. As it really is of no consequence, you must stop worrying about it and it will gradually appear less often and ultimately disappear entirely, if you can only keep the idea of it out of the mind. A study of the subject on Dynamic Magnetism contained in Vol. 2 of the Home Health Club books would be of the greatest assistance to you in learning to regain control over your mind and nerves. Medicine is of no use whatever in such conditions.

Dear Doctor: I am a man nearly 60 years of age, and am getting very stiff, which condition has been coming on gradually for the last twenty years. At first I noticed it only upon getting up after sitting in a chair for half an hour or more on a damp day. Now I am stiff all the time and it is growing worse, though not much pain is connected with it. I have used alcoholic drinks nearly all my life moderately, not every day, when I do drink I do not notice the stiffness so much. If you think alcoholic drinks bad for me, I will stop their use. There is no fever or swelling in connection with it and I never had inflammatory rheumatism. Could it be chronic rheumatism? Could ts be chronic rheubaths at Hot Springs, Arkansas, would cure me, but I am a poor man and cannot afford to go there. Can you kindly suggest something that will help me?

F. W. C.

The condition of stiffness of which you complain is that commonly known as Chronic Muscular Rheumatism. There are other diseases, accompanied by varying degrees of stiffness and involving in one case the bones and joints, and in another the nervous system particularly, but the symptoms mentioned by you do not indicate the presence of either of these affections. Chronic Rheumatism though very common is not yet a well-understood disease and there seem to be different varieties due to different causes. The commonest cause probably is the failure of the kidneys, skin and other excretory organs, to entirely eliminate the waste matter formed in the body. To correct this condition the diet and general care of the body must be regulated according to the principles so frequently explained in these lectures and so clearly set forth in the Home Health Club books. In short the food taken must be easily digested, and laxative in nature, at least four to six pints of water drunk daily, meat, eggs, cheese, etc., used very sparingly, if at all, fruits, green vegetables, fats and oils taken in considerable quantities. Tea and coffee should be avoided, and also in particular alcoholic liquors. The Hot Springs treatment, undoubtedly, would be beneficial, but by taking frequent hot baths or vapor baths, drinking plenty of water and keeping the bowels active, much good can be derived at home from similar methods. Also he sure to have all defective teeth properly attended to.

GOTHAM HOLDUP MAN IS HELD UP

Doesn't Bother Police, Who Get on The Trail of the Thug Next Day —Exciting Time in New York.

New York, May 12.—These are stirring days for Hellas, and her sons, abroad, are heartened by the splurge of glory at Janina and Salonica. Take Charles Peragallo, the little old man who is waiter, cashier, manager, at Frank's restaurant, a cubby hole of an eating place at 301 West Fourteenth street, just off Ninth avenue. Although he is 56 years old, 5 feet 5, with hair growing thinner and thinner and the tides of life subsiding slowly, his youth came back to him, and in the name of King Constantine he tweaked a wrist, captured a gun and a $1.50 hat and booted a highwayman down the street.

There was only one late walking customer at the lunch counter about midnight, when Peragallo hung the service cloth over his arm and stepped out on the sidewalk for a breath of fresh air after the night's rush. After looking aloft for Castor and Pollux, early Greek emigrants who had made good, his eyes turned east toward distant Greece. That was how he noticed three men of stealth reconnoitring the United Cigar Store, at the corner of Ninth avenue. Now, Peragallo had read in the Attic type of the local press about the $100 reward offered by the United Cigar Stores' management for the arrest and conviction of any molestor of its property.

"Give Me That Money."

While Peragallo watched the suspicious men the customer finished his meal and laying his quarter on the cigar show case, the cashier's token of office, walked out. Peragallo doesn't allow money to suffer from exposure, so he turned into the restaurant, walked around behind the counter. He plunged down one of the keys of the register and was about to drop in the quarter, when a voice back of him said:

"Don't shut that drawer!"

Peragallo turned and saw a tall man with a slouch hat pulled over his eyes and a pistol in his hand—one of the three he had seen a moment before.

"Give that money to me," the man commanded.

Greek honor and $20, in Peragallo's eyes, were worth fighting for, so he temporized by pretending he thought the holdup one of those jests that tickle the rude fancy of Tenth avenue.

"Now will you hand it over" said the slouch hat, poking the pistol in Peragallo's indignant ribs.

Seizes Bandit's Wrist

As the Greek slammed the drawer shut he seized the highwayman's gun wrist with a grip Hercules, the original strong arm lad, might have used on the serpents.

"Ouch!" exclaimed the thug as his wrist snapped out of place.

In a twinkling it was Peragallo's pistol. The little old man hopped over the counter, yanked the surprised robber out on the sidewalk and planted a kick along the medicine line that gave him a good start down the street. The holdup man dropped his hat, but didn't stop for it.

The two thugs who had waited outside rushed toward Peragallo, but just at that moment Frank, the cook came out with a cleaver and besides, Peragallo had the gun. So the holdup men fled.

Clang! went the cash register, and into the drawer Peragallo tossed the gun and rang it up.

He didn't think it worth while to bother the police, but early morning customers learned the story and told Patrolman Boyle of the West Seventeenth Street Station. Detectives went around and got the hat and gun and a description of the men.

BEAT BUSH FOR TRAIN BANDIT

Kansas City, Mo., May 13.—The police to-night beat through the underbrush along the Missouri river, three miles east of the business district, searching for the bandit who robbed a Kansas City Southern train last night, shot and seriously wounded Jesse M. Short a mine owner of Joplin, Mo., and who is belived to have been dangerously wounded in a pistol duel with Short.

A thorough search of the river lowlands near the Kansas City Southern tracks began today when a switchman found the bloody footprints that led toward the lowlands.

Later an empty pocket-book the property of Short, which had contained $1,00, when taken by the bandit, was found.

Mr. Short has been resting well since the bullets were removed from his shoulder and left leg and reports from the hospital indicated his chances for recovery were good.

The train was just pulling out of the depot here last night when a tall man climbed up the steps of the observation car. He carried two pistols.

Oscar Allen, a negro porter, ordered him away. The robber covered him with his pistol and said:

"I am going to put over a trick here. You sit down there and be quiet; I will need you."

After the train had proceeded about three miles, the robber ordered Allen to go ahead of him through the train. In the sitting-room of the observation car were W. J. Seals of Neck City, Mo., and F. A. Seaman of Eureka Springs, Ark. The robber's voice trembled as he demanded their valuables, but they offered no resistance and gave him money and jewelry amounting to about $200

Preceded by the frightened negro, the robber then entered the chair car where there were about a dozen passengers, all men.

"Hold up your hands," was the command with which the robber greeted them. The passengers readily complied with his demand and he passed along, collecting their money and jewelry.

The Pullman car was entered next. After robbing two passengers, from whom he secured small amounts of money, the robber came to the berth occupied by Short.

"Give me your money," the robber demanded in a whisper as he shook the sleeping man. When awakened sufficiently to realize the import of the command, Short handed over $1,000 in money and a large diamond stud. As the robber turned to leave Short seized a revolver and fired through the curtain.

The robber returned the fire and both men emptied their weapons, each shooting blindly through the curtain. One bullet struck Short's forehead, another went through an arm and a third lodged in his knee.

Short fell back in his berth and the robber fled toward the rear of the train. Passengers in other cars, aroused by the shots, followed him. They saw him back out of the door of the observation car and drop from the train, which was just being brought to a stop. He left blood stains in aisles and on the car platform, and the passengers said he appeared to be badly hurt.

Short is one of the wealthiest mine owners of Jasper county, operating zinc and lead mines in that district. Six years ago he was a miner working for wages.

Chivington Sees Time When Liquor Will be Banned by Ball Club

"The time will come in baseball when there will be a temperance clause inserted in every player's contract," said President T. M. Chivington of the American association in a talk to newspapermen.

"The sooner that time comes," continued the A. A. head, "the better it will be for players, public, and club owners. I would welcome the immediate adoption of such a universal rule by the magnates of the American association. There is absolutely no reason why an athlete in training should drink.

"I cannot see the force of any argument why any player should need to drink during the season. The supposed danger of going stale is foolishness. There is no necessity for drinking, and the sooner it is stamped out effectually the better. There are some men to whom a drink is no menace; to others one drink is a positive danger in stimulating their appetite. Temperance is of great value, even more to the players than to the club owners."

Splendid Gold Trophy

The trophy presented by Mr. R. W. Darnell, vice-president of the Royal Life Saving Society in Canada for annual competition is said to be the handsomest piece of work of its kind in the Dominion. The cup stands nearly three feet high and is of wrought gold of the finest workmanship.

Mr. Louis Rubenstein, of Montreal, as president of the Canadian branch of the Royal Life Saving Society, has charge of the trophy. Its value is estimated at over fifteen hundred dol-

SPORTING HOBBIES OF BRITISH NOBLES

Aviation, Swimming, Yachting, Golfing and Shooting Figure Largely in Outdoor Life

English society boasts of many adept swimmers, most of whom learnt the art of natation at the fashionable Bath Club, where Princess Mary Prince Edward, and Prince Arthur were taught their strokes. Clever diving displays are sometimes given there by Lady Rosemary Leveson-Gower, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland. She is also a keen follower of the foxhounds, and looks her best on horseback. At least, two society women have distinguished themselves in deep water swimming. Lady Marjorie Dalrymple swam across Loch Ryan, Stranraer, a distance of three miles, against a strong current, and Mrs. Arthur Hamilton, youngest daughter of the late Sir Charles and Lady Fairlie Cunninghame, swam the Solent from Stokes Bay to Ryde in the Isle of Wight, a distance of three and a half miles, in two hours.

The Duchess of Bedford is the finest lady shot in the kingdom, while the Marchioness of Graham and the Marchioness of Breadalbane are always to the fore in the Highland shooting season.

Lady Arthur Grosvenor's hobby of gypsying in a caravan keeps her expounding the joys of the simple life in the open air for several weeks each summer. She journeys under the name of "Syeira Lee."

The Duchess of Marlborough is a keen golfer.

The Duke of Westminster, whose chief hobby is polo-playing, was one of the first Britishers to purchase a Wright biplane, and the Earl of Hardwicke and Lord Howard de Walden have both made a practical study of aviation. Somers Somerset, son of Lady Henry Somerset, possesses the French aviation brevet, and the Hon. Maurice Egerton, heir to Lord Egerton of Tatton, and the Hon. A. Boyle, the Earl of Glasgow's youngest son, hold pilotage certificates.

That rich man's hobby, yachting, has several enthusiastic devotees, all of whom are to be seen at Cowes during the first week in August, when the Royal Yacht Squadron's regatta takes place. Sir Thomas Lipton is the best known of them all.

Lord Dunraven and the Duke of Leeds, joint commodores of the Royal Yacht Squadron, are the official chiefs of the yachting world. Both of them possess master's certificates. Lord and Lady Leith, of Fyvie, are never happier than when afloat in the steam yacht Miranda and the same can be said of Lord Brassey, a veteran sportsman, whose voyages in the Sunbeam belong to the classic history of marine pleasuring.

Viscount Acheson is seen a good deal this year about the Solent in his yawl Betty, where the Marchioness of Ailsa's cutter, the Bloodhound, and the new 23-meter yacht Lord Michelham has had built is much in evidence. Several well-known women not content to be mere passengers on such floating hotels as Lord Anglesey's Semiramis or the Duke of Bedford's Sapphire, go in for practical boat sailing. The Duchess of Westminster Lady Margaret Macrae, and Mrs. W. L. Wylie, wife of the marine painter, are accomplished helmswomen.

BACKWARD ALBANIANS

Like the Welsh in Britain and the Basques in Spain, the Albanians are a native stock. They speak the only original Balkan language. The Turks did not permit the Albanian tongue to be taught in schools. There is no literature, no agreement even as to how it shall be written. Of the few who can write, some use Greek letters, some the Roman. The Albanians themselves are nearly all Moslems, but 400,000 Greeks, Serbs, Vlachs and Bulgarians in their land belong to the Greek Church. The famous seven highland clans of the north, known as the Malissori, are Roman Catholic.

Blood feuds, lack of roads and Turkish misgovernment, make travel in the interior unsafe. One-quarter of all the deaths in the country are violent, either in clan warfare or in clashes with Turks. Much of the country is as independent as Montenegro. The Turk never cowed or taxed its rugged hills.

Of all fallow and backward races the Albanians have perhaps the greatest possibilities. Haeckel said that they have the best shaped heads in Europe and their natural ability is great.

AWFUL DEATH TOLL OF SNAKES IN INDIA

According to a report published in Simla the number of wild animals destroyed in India last year was 25,840 as compared with 19,262 the year before. This total included 1,426 tigers, 6,862 leopards and 4,251 wolves. Nearly 172,000 snakes were destroyed, more than twice as many as in any previous year.

This increase is largely accounted for by the offering of rewards by the Burma Government. That this action was necessary is proved by the fact that in one area the paddy fields were so snake infested that their cultivation was impossible.

Altogether 1,347 persons were killed by wild animals and 24,264 by snakes. The number of cattle killed by wild animals was 91,709, and by snakes 10,582.

With regard to snake bite of human beings it is said that the use of Sir Lauder Brunton's lancets is reported in a number of cases to have to have Lauder Brunton's lancets is reported As in previous years, however, the statistics relative to the successful use of this instrument can only be accepted with reservations.

The Girl Who Thinks.

"My estrangment, if you can call it that, from my mother, dated from the moment I began to think," says a writer under the title of "My Mother Didn't Tell Me," in Harper's Bazar. "I had been very much a 'mother's girl.' My mother and I planned my frocks, we sewed a great deal together, we chatted together, we read poetry aloud together, and also a good deal of modern fiction. My mother was very fond of books, and kept abreast of the times. Our companionship was of a very beautiful sort and still is—as long as I keep within those prescribed limits and as long as I do not venture into any question that has to do with the life or thought of the country today. My mother is as much interested in my frocks today, now that I am twenty-seven, as she was when I was seventeen. She still has that interest in books, nor does her dislike of the tendency of modern thought extend very far into literature."

DO YOU BELIEVE ALL THAT YOU SEE

You May Not Always See What You Think You See

Did you ever think a person lied because they told something about a thing you both saw—but which you didn't see as he told it? Be careful about doing that sort of thing. You might not have seen what you thought you saw.

Which one of these figures has bowlegs and which knock-knees? Easy to see that the knees of the one on the right incline toward each other, while the other gentleman carries his legs on a gentle outward curve?

Easy, is it?

Well, it so happens that neither of them is knock-kneed or bow-legged. In fact, the legs of both of them are perfectly straight. Take a ruler and prove it. It's just simply a case of the eyes being deceived. An optical illusion and a very common one.

There are a lot of things like that. No two persons see the same thing alike when a thing is made with intent to deceive, as this was, it would take an expert to discover the deception.

Actors take advantage of this fact in their makeup on the stage and dressmakers are known to use it. For instance, a short, stout woman wearing a dress with horizontal stripes will look still shorter and fatter and a tall thin woman wearing a dress with perpendicular stripes will look taller and thinner.

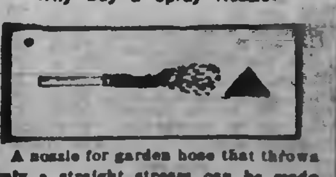
Why Buy a Spray Nozzle?



A nozzle for garden hose that throws only a straight stream can be made to spray by the attachment of a triangular piece of wire netting to the end. The base of the triangle is made long enough to permit the ends to meet around the nozzle just below the outlet. This will cause the apex of the angle to bend over the outlet, but at an angle and the angle is sufficient to deflect the water in a fine spray. The netting is attached tightly to the nozzle with wire.

WIVES FOR WESTERNERS

Ontario Young Women off to Prairie Provinces—Do Their Own Courting

The eighteen prospective brides who left Toronto in a party for the West, are only the first of a large number of Ontario girls who will shortly go to the prairie provinces to find husbands, according to Mr. A. E. Duff, District Passenger Agent of the Grand Trunk Railway. Mr. Duff has had numerous letters from G.T.R. agents throughout Ontario stating that there are many girls in the country desirous of taking a chance in the matrimonial market, and he expects that parties of fifty will soon be the order.

Mr. Duff stated in an interview that it must not be supposed that he was playing the part of Cupid; he was merely acting as lieutenant for the little fellow with the darts. The girls who had not been able to satisfy themselves with the choice of a husband in the East were given a special rate on the railway and packed off in parties to the wider field of the West, in charge of a competent woman. They then entered domestic service and cast about for a suitable young man. "They have to do their own courting," said Mr. Duff. "All I do is get them out where wives are wanted and young women are few and the census returns show that there is a preponderance of young unmarried men in the West."

Artificial Method by Use of Electricity Highly Successful

A novel electrical method of treating timber is said to have given striking results in France and to have changed the greenest wood into perfectly seasoned material. A watertight tank of suitable size is required.

The timber is piled on a large lead plate at the bottom until the tank is full, when a second lead plate is placed on top of the pile and connected to the negative pole of a dynamo, the bottom connected to the positive pole. The space around the timber is then filled with a solution containing 5 per cent. of resin, 10 per cent. of borax and a trace of carbonate of soda.

On turning on the current, it passes from plate to plate, through the wood, driving out the sap, and the resin and borax takes its place in the cells and interstices. The process being completed the timber is taken out and dried, when it is ready for use.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a waltz, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel.

CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

CHAPTER VII—The Major arrives at the shop of a blacksmith, who is friendly, and knows the Lady of the Blended Rose.

CHAPTER VIII—Captain Grant and rangers arrive and search the blacksmith shop in vain for the spy.

CHAPTER IX—Lawrence joins the minute men who capture Grant and his train.

CHAPTER X—Major Lawrence is made prisoner by an Indian and two white men.

CHAPTER XI—Lawrence's captors [illegible] him in a strong [illegible] where [illegible] Peter the jailer.

CHAPTER XII—Peter [illegible] rance not to attempt [illegible] one" will send for him.

CHAPTER XIII—[illegible] adds mystery to the [illegible] cumstances.

CHAPTER XIV.

Again the Lady.

I must think rapidly, and act as quickly. Yes, if what Grant had said was true, that he had already posted guards on each side the house, then escape by daylight was practically impossible. From all I could see there was no concealment close at hand, and while the fellows were without arms, yet their numbers were sufficient to make any attempt at running their lines extra hazardous. And I had much at risk, for if taken it would be as a spy, and not a mere prisoner of war. There was no place for concealment in the library, but there might be upstairs, in the attic, or on the roof. The chance was worth the trial, and there could be no better time for such an experiment than while the three officers were at breakfast. Whatever servants remained about the house would be busily employed also, and probably I should have the entire upper portion to myself. Deciding to make the venture I had my hand on the knob of the door, when it was opened quietly from without, and I was startled by the sudden appearance of Peter. Whatever excitement may have prevailed among the other members of this peculiar household this model servitor remained with dignity unruffled. He surveyed me calmly, rubbing his bald head with one hand.

"You will pardon the delay, sir," he said calmly. "But circumstances have arisen changing the original plans. Will you kindly accompany me?"

"But where, Peter? I don't wish to be seen by these new arrivals."

"Have no fear, sir," condescendingly, and with an authoritative wave of the hand. "The officers are at table, and will know nothing of our movements."

I followed meekly enough, and he led the way up the broad stairs to the second story, turning to the left in the upper hall, and coming to a pause before a partially opened door. A glimpse within made me deem it a music room, although I could see merely along one wall.

"You will enter, sir, while I return to the guests below."

With one glance into this perfectly expressionless countenance, half suspicious of some new trick, I stepped across the threshold. The curtains were drawn, and the room seemed dark after the sun-glare of the hall. I advanced a step or two, almost convinced the apartment was unoccupied, when a voice addressed me.

"Under more favorable conditions, Major Lawrence, it would give me pleasure to welcome you to the hospitalities of Elmhurst."

I swung about as on a pivot and saw her standing with one hand upon the high back of a chair, her blue eyes smiling merrily. I felt the hot rush of blood to my cheeks, the quick throb of pulse, with which I recognized her. I was so surprised that, for the instant, the words I sought to utter choked in my throat.

"You have not suspected?" she smiled. "You did not know this was my home?"

"Nothing was farther from my thoughts," I exclaimed hastily. "All I knew of your home was that it was situated somewhere in the Jerseys. But wait, perhaps I begin to understand—the lieutenant who brought me here; his voice has been echoing in my ears all night in familiarity. He is some near relative of yours—this Eric?"

"You Have Not Suspected?" She Asked. "You Did Not Know This Was My Home?"

"Oh, you have overheard? You know the name through hearing Captain Grant speak?"

"Yes; I could not very well help doing so. Peter had stationed me in the library, but there was nothing said between you two to make me suspect your identity."

"You supposed me to be the lieutenant?"

"Why should I not? The voice was the same; at least sufficiently similar to deceive me, and he never addressed you in a way to arouse my suspicions. Is your brother named Eric?"

"Yes; I told you, did I not, that we are twins? The physical resemblance between us is very strong; no doubt our voices sound alike also, or would to a comparative stranger. Will you not be seated, Major? We shall not have long to converse, and there is much to be said before those downstairs complete their rather frugal meal—Peter has promised to delay serving as much as possible, but, as our larder is not extensive, at best it will not be long. You overheard Captain Grant's threat?"

"To search the house for your brother—yes."

"He will carry it out," quietly, her eyes, no longer smiling, on my face. "There has never been friendship between those two, and of late my own relations with Captain Grant have become very unpleasant. I think he is almost glad of an opportunity to thus exercise some authority over me. He is the kind of a man who must either rule or ruin. Convinced that Eric is concealed here, he will search the house as much to spite me as for any other reason. I should only laugh at him, but for your presence."

"Then your brother is not here?"

"Certainly not; Eric is in no danger—but, Major Lawrence, you are."

The earnestness with which she spoke made my heart leap. Whatever the girl's political sentiments might be, she was plainly desirous of serving me, of once again exposing herself in my defense. Yet her words, the frank expression of her eyes, gave no suggestion of sentiment—she was but a friend, an ally, performing a woman's part in the war game.

"But I fail to understand—"

"You mean me? Oh, well, you are not the first; and no doubt it is best so. The less you understand, the better we shall get along, Major; the only question being, will you obey my orders?"

"Had I inclination otherwise I fear I should find it impossible."

"I hardly know whether that remark be complimentary or not. You might mean that no other course was left you."

"Which I suspect is true, although if it proved so I should willingly trust myself to your guidance, because of my faith in you."

"That is much better," her eyes laughing, yet as swiftly sobering again. "But it is foolish of us to waste time in such silly speeches. There is too much waiting attention. Fortunately this house is not without its secrets, for when built by my grandfather this was the frontier."

"But does not Grant know?" I asked soberly. "I understood he played here as a boy, and there is not much a lad fails to learn."

"He is not without knowledge, surely, but here is something he never discovered. I would never have trusted him with the secret, and yet, as short a time as I have known you, I have no hesitancy. Isn't that a frank confession, sir?"

"One I mean you shall never regret."

"I am sure of that; yet I shall not betray everything even to you. Please face about with eyes to the front window. Yes, so; now do not look around until I tell you."

I heard her cross the room, her skirts rustling slightly, and then the faint clicking of some delicately adjusted mechanism. As this sound ceased, her voice again spoke.

"Now, Major, the way is opened for a safe retreat. Behold what has been accomplished by the genii of the lamp."

She was standing at one side of what had been the fireplace, but now the entire lower portion of the great chimney had been swung aside, revealing an opening amply large enough for the entrance of a man. I took one step forward to where I could perceive the beginning of a narrow winding stair leading down into intense blackness. Then I glanced aside into her eyes.

"The concealment was perfect," I exclaimed in admiration. "Where does the staircase lead?"

"To a very comfortable room underground. It had not been used for a generation until this war began. Eric and I learned of its existence by accident, while rummaging over some of our grandfather's old papers. I was about sixteen then, and shall never forget our first exploration. We found nothing down there then but a rough bunk, an old lanthorn, and the leathern scabbard of a sword. But since then Eric has been compelled to hide there twice to escape capture, and we have made the room below more comfortable. You will be obliged to grope your way down the stairs, but at the bottom will discover flint and steel, and a lantern with ample supply of candles. Peter will bring you food, if you need remain there for long!"

"Peter! Then he is in the secret?"

"Peter is in all secrets," she confessed. "From him nothing is hid, at least so far as may concern the Mortimer family. You have yet to learn the deep subtlety of Peter, Major Lawrence. He sees all things, retains all things, and reveals nothing."

"A discovery already made."

"No, barely glimpsed; no short acquaintance such as yours has been could ever serve to reveal the character of Peter. Since babyhood he has been my monitor and guide, and still he remains to me a silent mystery."

"An old servant?"

"Yes, born to the position, his father serving before him. There is no doubt in my mind but what he knew of this secret passage before Eric and I were born. Not that he has ever confessed as much, yet I am convinced our discovery of it brought no surprise to Peter. What do you suppose his age to be?"

My mind reverted to that expressionless face without a wrinkle in it, to that totally bald head, and my answer was the merest guess.

"Oh, possibly fifty."

"I told you you were far from knowing Peter," she laughed. "He is seventy-two, and, would you believe it, until this war came, was never ten miles from this spot."

"And since?" recalling the events of the night before.

"He has made it his duty to attend me; he has become my shadow. From the humdrum experience of a respectable house servant he has become the very spirit of reckless adventure—he has journeyed to New York, to Trenton, to Philadelphia, to—"

"Night riding with Hessian foragers," I broke in, "disguised in a Ranger's uniform."

"Well, yes," she dimpled quietly, "even that."

I waited for something more, some explanation of what all this concealed.

"You trust me with so much," I ventured, when she continued silent, "it would seem as if you might tell me even more."

"I cannot perceive whereby any further confession would serve you. Yet I have not refused to answer any question surely. It is hardly safe for us to remain here so long, and yet if there be something you wish to ask—"

"You could scarcely expect me to be entirely without curiosity. I have been captured on the highway, brought here a prisoner, and held under guard all night. I supposed myself in British hands, only to discover that you have again intervened to save me. Surely there must be a key to all this mystery. If, as I suspect, it was your brother, Eric, who led the attack on me, having mistaken me for another, then what was his purpose? And what has become of Eric?"

She wrinkled her brows in perplexity, her hands nervously clasping the back of a chair.

"It is like being cross-examined by a lawyer. Perhaps if the secret was all my own I might freely confide it to you. I do not promise I would, but I might. As it is, I do not yet know you quite well enough. I believe you to be Major Lawrence, that you are all you represent yourself, but I am pledged to silence, and the lives of others depend upon my keeping faith. You cannot urge me to do what I deem wrong?"

"No; I shall always believe in you."

"I thank you for that," and her hand was extended frankly; "I would reveal one of the mysteries of last night if I was not fearful it might cost me your respect."

"How could that be possible?"

"Because it might appear to you that I had been unwomanly. My own conscience is clear, for my purpose exonerates me, but this you might fail to understand unless I made fuller explanation than is now possible. I have a duty which cannot be betrayed."

I gazed into her eyes, her hand still in mine, conscious that her cheeks were flushing. It was impossible for me to conceive of her performing an unwomanly action.

"I prefer to ask nothing," I said frankly, "although I should never misconstrue anything you might care to say."

"I think you suspect already, and I should far rather tell you the truth myself than have you learn it in some other way. The lieutenant of Light Dragoons who attacked you last night was not my brother."

"Was not Eric? And yet you knew him?"

"Very well, indeed," her eyes falling, "because it was myself."

CHAPTER XV.

Entombed.

I had not suspected it; however obvious it may appear now to those who read this tale, the possibility that she had been masquerading in an officer's uniform, indulging in warlike deeds, had never once occurred to me. She was so thoroughly feminine that her acknowledgment came as a distinct shock. I had, it is true, seen sufficient of life to be of charitable mind, and yet there was that within me which instantly revolted. She read all this in my face, but fronted me without the quiver of an eyelash, firmly withdrawing her hand.

"It is easy to perceive your disapproval," she said more coldly, "but I have no further explanation to make. I am sorry to have you think ill of me, but I felt that perhaps you might realize my action was justified."

"It is not that," I hastened to explain, ashamed of myself. "I have not lost faith in you. But I was brought up in a strict school; my mother was almost puritanical in her rules of conduct, and I have never entirely outgrown her conception of feminine limitations. I am sure you have only done what is right and womanly. Do not permit my first surprise to end our friendship."

"That is for you to determine, Major Lawrence. I have confessed, and thus cleared my conscience of deceit. Some day you may also learn the cause of my action, but in the meantime it must bear your disapproval. However, we need discuss the matter no longer—"

She sprang to the door, and glanced out into the hall, stepping back once more as Peter appeared. His eyes swept the room in silent observation.

"Captain Grant and the two officers with him have concluded their meal, Mistress Claire," he announced calmly, "and one of them has gone for a file of soldiers to begin the search of the house."

"Very well, Peter; go back and assist them. I will see to the safe concealment of Major Lawrence."

He bowed graciously, and disappeared.

"You have not given me your pardon," I implored as our eyes again met.

"There is nothing to pardon to my knowledge. I respect you because of your sense of propriety, but we cannot talk [illegible]. You must enter the passage at once."

"You will give me your hand first?"

"Gladly," and I felt its firm pressure, her face brightened by a smile. "Now let us remember rather the danger, the necessity of concealment, and not delay too long. Wait a moment, major; is it true you absolutely trust me?"

"It certainly is."

"I am going to put that to the test. You have papers you desire to give at once into the hands of General Washington. You may be detained here some time, but I have with me an Indian who could take them across the Delaware tonight. It is not the first time he has made that journey. Will you confide them to me?"

Our eyes were looking directly into each other. I may have hesitated an instant, confused by the unexpected request, yet there was something in the expression of the girl's face which swept doubt swiftly aside. Without a word I took them from an inner pocket, and gave them to her. The red lips smiled, the blue eyes brightening.

"Tonepah shall leave within the hour," she promised, thrusting the small packet into the bosom of her dress. "Now step within, major, and I will close the door."

I did as she requested, hearing the click of the lock behind me, and being as instantly plunged into darkness. I waited a moment, my foot upon the first narrow stair, listening. No sound reached me from without, and, with her animated face still before me in memory, I began to slowly feel my way down the circular staircase. There was nothing dangerous about the passage, but with only the bare stone wall to touch with the hand I was obliged to grope along blindly. The huge chimney had evidently been erected merely for concealment, and I marveled at the ingenuity of its construction. I failed to count the steps, but I went around and around so many times, pressed against the smooth wall, that I knew I must be well below the basement of the house before I finally stood at the bottom. I groped forward in the intense darkness, feeling with outstretched hands. The first object encountered was a rough table, the surface of which I explored, discovering thereon a candlestick with flint and steel beside it. With relief I struck a spark, and a yellow flame revealed my surroundings.

What I saw was a low room some fifteen feet square, the walls and roof apparently of stone securely mortared, the only exit the narrow circular stairs. The floor was of earth. Opposite me was a bunk slightly elevated, containing a blanket or two, and a fairly comfortable chair built from a barrel. An old coat and hat hung from a nail at the head of the bunk. On a shelf near by was an earthen crock, and two candles, and beneath this, on the floor, was a sawed-off gun, and two pistols, with a small supply of powder and balls, the former wrapped in an oiled cloth. It was in truth a gloomy, desolate hole, although dry enough. For want of something better to do I went over and picked up the pistols; the lock of one was broken, but the other seemed serviceable, and, after snapping the flint, I loaded the weapon, and slipped it into my pocket. Somehow its possession yielded me a new measure of courage, although I had no reason to suppose I would be called upon to use the ancient relic.

It Seemed as Though These Walls, That Low Roof Were Crushing Me; as if the Close, Foul Air was Suffocating.

There was little to examine, but I tramped about nervously, tapping the walls, and convincing myself of their solidity, and, finally, tired by this useless exercise, seated myself in the chair. It was like being buried in a tomb, not a sound reaching my strained ears, but at last the spirit of depression vanished, and my mind began to grapple with the problems confronting me.

Heaven alone knows how long I remained there motionless, my mind elsewhere, drifting idly backward to the old home, reviewing the years of war that had transformed me from boy to man as though by some magic.

Dizzy Headaches Cured in One Night

If Troubled With Head-Fullness, Ringing Noises, Specks Before the Eyes, the Stomach is at Fault.

Quick Relief and Certain Cure Came From Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I had terrible pains in my head. My appetite faded away, and when I did eat anything it disagreed and made me very sick for hours after each meal. The pains in my stomach and the dizzy headaches I had to endure almost set one wild. Sometimes attacks came on so severely that I had to go to bed. I would feel so worn, depressed and utterly miserable that for hours I wouldn't speak to my family. My system was poisoned with wastes and nothing helped me till I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Without this grand system-cleaning remedy I would still be sick, but each day brought me better health and spirits. I was cured and made strong, ruddy, and healthy, and will always use and recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

ABOUT USING THE TELEPHONE.

There's a phone in the Annex, placed there specially for those who are unable to visit this department. The "Shopper" will take your order and make purchases for you in a most careful way. Just phone 138 or 139 if you need anything.

REVERSIBLE AWNING DUCKS, 22c YD.

Just now, the ardent rays of the May sun cause the housekeepers to think of awnings. So the Annex has prepared a seasonable offering of awning ducks of reversible blue and white stripes and red and white stripes. This standard Canadian line is sold most places for 30c. The Annex price for one Wednesday is, per yard 22c

EGYPTENE HEATHERBLOOM UNDERSKIRTS FOR 99c EACH

THE MOST POPULAR $2.00 AND $2.50 SKIRT FOR WARM WEATHER WEAR, and particularly so with the prevailing close fit of the top skirt. The reason of the low price is because they were made a shade wider than we desired, but it is a simple matter to remedy. A snip and a stitch and they are converted into the modish narrow lines. Lengths 38 to 42 with deep fancy flounce. Colors black, navy, reseda, myrtle, rose, grey, tan, purple and cream. The maker's mistake gives you a $2.00 and $2.50 Skirt on Wednesday for 99c

Shown in the window.

WOMEN'S WHITE NAINSOOK GOWNS, 79c

Made in the popular French slip over style, these gowns represent the best of our $1.00 values. The yoke has deep embroidered and insertion trimming, and the sleeves are edged with lace. Lengths 56, 58 and 60. Exceptional value at 79c

MILLINERY FLOWERS, 15c.

Odd lots of Millinery Flowers and Foliage gathered from our regular stock. The prices were 50c, 69c and 75c. A big assortment to choose from. All one price Wednesday 15c

DRESS GOODS MILL ENDS 99c AN END

Surely this exceptional value will induce you to come early on Wednesday morning and thus get the best choice of these "All Wool" Dress Goods Mill Ends. They are Tweeds and Suitings, mostly 54 and 56 in. wide, in browns, greys and blues, and from 1½ to 2 yds. long. Some a little longer. The regular price for an End would be $2.00 to $3.00. MUSIC & DRAMA

Annie Russell's Old English Comedy Co., Grand Opera House, Monday, May 19th.

Annie Russell enjoyed her first big success when only a girl of fifteen, in Esmeralda, by Frances Hodgson Burnett, a play given not less than three hundred and fifty times in the good old days of the Madison Square Theatre, New York. The eighties may seem a long way off for the new generation of playgoers, but those days are not so far away for the many who still recall Annie Russell's girlhood triumphs, in A. M. Palmer's Madison Square Stock Company, where she played the ingenue roles and won marked success as Lady [illegible] in W. S. Gilbert's "Broken Hearts," as Sylvia in "Our Society," as Elaine in George Parson Lathrop's adaptation of Tennyson's "Idylls of the King."

From 1890 to 1894 Annie Russell was lost to the stage owing to illness. Early in 1891 a monster benefit was held for her, the performance at Palmer's Theatre, New York netting her $5,000.00.

She made her reappearance fully recovered, under the management of Charles Frohman in A. M. Palmer's Company at Wallack Theatre, New York, in the spring of 1894 in the leading part in Sidney Grundy's "The New Woman." This was followed by "Leth's Dream," and Rosalind in "Romeo's First Love." The following season she was leading woman for Nat Goodwin in "David Garrick," "Ambition" and "In Nizzoura." There followed in succession star appearances in Bret Hartes "Sue," and as Betty in "The Mysterious Mr. Bugle," and the support of Sol Smith Russell in "A Bachelor's Romance." After playing in the one act play "Daingerfield, '95," and a special matinee of "The Scenario," Miss Russell went to London in 1892 and played "Sue," and "Daingerfield, '95" at the Garrick, meeting with much praise. She returned to the United States at the head of her own company the same year.

HOMELY, YET ADMIRED AND ENVIED; HER SECRET

The convention crowd in the lobby made a path for her, cast admiring side glances, then with longing eyes followed her to the elevator. It was at the Ponchartrain in Detroit. The incident was recalled when I chanced to sit across table from the woman. What was it about her that caused all that commotion? She wasn't handsome; she was lacking in form and feature. Yet she did seem marvelously fascinating. Her complexion must be the secret. Really, I've never beheld its equal. Venturing to pick up acquaintanceship, I learned the reason.

"I know I'm not built for beauty," she confided, "but I've tried to make the most of my one charm. I've learned that men abhor made-ups and artificiality. I bar cosmetics; there are just two things I ever use and they promote natural loveliness and youthful appearance.

"When my complexion begins to age, I get an ounce of mercolized wax at the drug store, apply at night like cold cream and wash it off in the morning. This gradually flakes off the outer skin; then I have a brand new complexion, magnetically beautiful, as you see.

"Wrinkles never bother me. At their inception I bathe my face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. It works like magic."
—Mona Morrow in Town Tattler.

MAY NOT NEED THE CLOSURE NAVY DEBATE WILL END TO-DAY

Semi-official Announcement That Agreement Has Been Reached for a Vote Without Invoking the New Rules--Hon. William Pugsley Still Advocating Obstruction--Vote on Friday

Ottawa, May 14.—Tomorrow will see the end of the famous and long drawn out naval debate. It is possible that closure may not be necessary and there was a semi-official announcement last night that an agreement had been reached for a vote without the invoking of the new rules. However, it is said that Hon. William Pugsley, who has been responsible for most of the disorders and for the obstruction of the session has objected. In that case the bill will be called to-day when Mr. Borden will give notice of the closure and the vote will come at two o'clock on Friday morning.

The Opposition, it is understood, intend to move the six month hoist to the bill. The amendment of W. F. Carroll, Cape Breton, which was the cause of last Friday morning's disturbances, will be moved to-morrow on the third reading. Outside of lots of noise and cheering it is not anticipated that there will be any of the riotous scenes which marked the end of the other stages of the measure.

PETITION OUT FOR NOVEL WAY TO GET HIM CLEMENCY

Crown Prosecutor to be Asked to Accompany Prisoner's Counsel to Ottawa--Petition is Out at Collingwood

Toronto, May 14.—Mr. W. G. Thurston, K.C., Assistant Crown Prosecutor at the Gibson murder trial will be asked by Mr. Aubrey Bond counsel for the condemned man to accompany him to Ottawa and express his private opinion of the case. Just what that opinion is neither Mr. Bond nor Mr. Thurston would state when asked this morning.

"Nothing has been said to me about such a step," said Mr. Thurston positively. "However, if I am asked by the Minister of Justice to do so, I shall of course go to Ottawa and express what opinion I may have formed."

"Of course, any man can conjecture and form theories and one man's theory may be as good as another's, but after all an opinion would only be a conjecture. Further than that I am unwilling to say anything."

Petition in Collingwood.

That the many friends of Mr. Gibson, Sr., who have known him during the past years are rallying to his assistance is shown by the following letter, received by Mr. Bond this morning. The letter is on the office paper of T. Long & Brothers, Limited, wholesale merchants, of Collingwood, where the Gibsons resided for some years. It reads:

"Dear Mr. Bond: We enclose a copy of a petition which we are circulating in Collingwood re Charles Gibson, jr., and which we expect to have universally signed. When completed we will forward to the Minister of Justice, through our member Major J. A. Currie, and we hope it will strengthen the effort you are making to save the young man's life. We would be glad for his father's sake, to do anything we can to help you in the matter.

"Wishing you every success.

"N. B. BYRNES."

The Petition.

The petition reads:

"Hon. C. J. Doherty,
Minister of Justice,
"Ottawa.

"Honorable Sir,—We the undersigned friends and acquaintances of the father and family of Charles Gibson, jr., who has received sentence to be hanged on July 9, next in connection with the murder of Joseph Rosenthal, in Toronto, on Nov. 26th, 1912, humbly petition your executive clemency on the prisoner's behalf. As you are undoubtedly aware the young man was convicted on purely circumstantial evidence, and there is a strong feeling abroad that he might be the victim of unscrupulous and perjured evidence.

"Mr. Gibson, Sr. and his family resided in Collingwood for some time and were all highly respected by all who knew them. Therefore, as there is a doubt of Charles Gibson's guilt, and as his family are not in a financial position to fight his case as they otherwise would, we pray, as an act of British justice and fair play, that his sentence be at least commuted, and his family spared the stigma and suffering the death sentence would inflict on them."

GEO. BALL SECURES CONTRACT FOR UNIFORMS

His Tender of $555.75, the Lowest—800 Feet of Fire Hose Wanted—Five New Fire Alarm Boxes to Be Purchased.

The City's Fire, Water and Light Committee met yesterday evening at 5 o'clock. The following tenders for firemen's uniforms were to hand:

Geo. Evans	$603.00
Geo. Ball	555.75
T. L. Anderson	598.50

On motion of the Mayor, seconded by Ald. Langford, the tender of Geo. Ball was accepted, the goods to be in accordance with the specifications in every detail.

On motion of the Mayor, seconded by Ald. Green, the chairman was instructed to advertise for 800 feet of fire hose.

On motion of Ald. Green, seconded by Ald. Buller, five fire alarm boxes the same as those now in use will be purchased.

The committee here adjourned.

THE BILLION DOLLAR PARLIAMENT

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Permit me to address your readers briefly upon the epoch-making announcements of our Finance Minister in his budget speech. For the first time in history, Canadian trade has reached the billion dollar point. It exceeds that point by no less than 85 millions of dollars. The increase has been sudden and tremendous. This parliament is already beginning to be known as the Billion-Dollar Parliament. In accordance with the principles of protection, reduction in the tariff is being made where possible. The making of ditching machines free will be of vast benefit to the country at large. Why this was not done before it is difficult to say. The machines are not made in Canada and yet for many years this very serious handicap was suffered to remain in the tariff. The same fact applies to type-setting and type-casting machines which will enable the public ultimately to reap the very great benefit. The reduction in cement might also have been made before but was not and the reduction in sugar, molasses, rice, etc., ought to help out the house-keeper. The debt has been reduced by over twenty-three millions. With the attempt to give ten millions to agriculture and a large aid to good roads, (both likely to be held up by the Senate) besides parcels post, etc., etc., the Borden Government has undeniably by far the most brilliant record in the history of Canada. I do not think anybody will dispute that statement.

Imperial Co-Operation.

But the most inspiring achievement if such as yet it can be called is the policy of the Government looking to Imperial Co-operation. For the first time Canada is invited to join in the task of defending the Empire. It is not a question of union or even federation, it is merely a question of an alliance in case of war. Yet it meets with the fiercest opposition. We are all in favor of building what we can at home, but what excuse can there lurk in that for refusing to agree to do, in the event of war what another administration was prepared to agree to do with the United States in a far more involving way. Moreover, who is so mad as to wish Canada to enter upon a policy of independent naval action. What would we do if attacked suddenly in such an event—would we cry out for the alliance that some would have us now reject? But I can best sum it up in what Conservatives regard as the real truth of the matter. On the 10th of April this year, a Liberal M.P. spoke to Mr. Dawson Kennedy and myself in the city of Ottawa, the following words: "The issue in the navy debate and in the country is really independence and separation against Empire and particularly so in Quebec."

The Opposition and the Nationalists join always in every effort to overthrow us in this regard. But it cannot be done. God bless Emperor and Empire!

Yours,
J. M. Barsham.

C. P. R. CONDUCTOR DEAD

Mr. Bernard H. McAllister Succumbed to Bright's Disease.

The dead occurred on Tuesday at his home in Toronto, of Mr. Bernard H. McAllister, for 30 years an employe of the C.P.R., after an illness of three weeks at St. Michael's Hospital. Bright's disease was the cause of death.

The late Mr. McAllister was a prominent member of the Toronto Council, Knights of Columbus, and was one of the most widely known conductors on the C.P.R. He was about 50 years of age, and was married. His widow and two daughters survive. Mr. McAllister lived at 282 St. Clarens Avenue. He formerly resided at Havelock, and for seven or eight years had charge of the C.P.R. local between Toronto and Havelock.

CANADA'S BILLION DOLLAR PARLIAMENT

The trade of Canada during the year passed the billion dollar mark. Exports were $393,000,000, and Imports, $691,000,000.

There is a surplus of $55,000,000 on current account for the year just closed.

For the same year there is a reduction of $23,300,000 in the net debt of the Dominion.

The revenue for the year was $168,000,000; it paid all our expenditures, ordinary and capital, and left a balance of $23,300,000.

The duty on sugar, raw and refined has been reduced and the result is expected to be a reduction in price.

The duty on cement is cut more than eight cents per barrel.

Traction ditching machines, such as are used by the farming community, are placed upon the free list.

Glassware, scientific apparatus and sterilising apparatus, for use in public hospitals, are placed on the free list.

Type setting machines are placed on the free list.

Appliances for the rescue of miners are placed on the free list

The duty on thread is reduced by two and one half per cent.

The bounty on lead ores is extended for another period of five years.

The expenditure for the current year, 1913-14, is estimated at close to $200,000,000; and the Finance Minister hopes that the revenue will meet all ordinary expenditure, and the greater part, if not the whole, of capital account.

THE INNER SIDE OF WAR BY WOMEN AT POLICE TRIAL

Pay of Suffragette Leaders Not so Princely as Public Expected

London, May 14.—Striking evidence as to the extensive operations of the suffragettes engaged in the militant campaign, and of the bad effect on the women's cause of the outrages committed by them was given during to-day's resumed hearing at Bow street police court of the charges against the suffragette leaders of infringement of the malicious damage to property act.

Testimony was given by letter-carriers and post office officials as to the great damage done to the mails by chemicals and other fluids being poured into the public letter boxes

The former business manager of The Suffragette gave evidence as to the responsibility of the various prisoners for the different departments of that newspaper. The witness explained that his services were dispensed with by the militant society as Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst thought it was better that only women should conduct the paper.

The witness' evidence as to the loss of circulation by The Suffragette after militant acts had been committed, was somewhat surprising. He said that at first 30,000 copies had been printed, but the sales were only 17,000. The circulation then dropped to 7,500, but 8,000 copies were circulated in other ways. Just before last Christmas he told Mrs. Pankhurst that this falling off was due to the letter box raids, but the suffragette leader shrugged her shoulders and said that could not be possible because when the women were most militant they were most successful.

The accountant, while on the witness stand, produced the salary book of the Women's Social and Political Union, from which it appeared that the salaries of the leaders of the militant movement were not princely. Miss Annie Kenney received $21 weekly; "General" Mrs. Flora Drummond and Miss Harriett Rebecca Kerr, $17.50; Miss Beatrice Saunders and Miss Rachael Barrett, $15 and Miss Laura Lennox $10.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Fresh north-westerly winds fair and cool, becoming showery.

TOWN WIPED OUT THREE KILLED

Uniontown, Pa., May 14.—The explosion of five hundred sticks of dynamite in the magazine of the Sunshine Coal and Coke Company's mine No. 1, three miles from Masontown, Pa., at 1 o'clock today, practically wiped out the little mining settlement, killed three men, and injured forty persons, twenty of them seriously. The cause of the explosion is not known.

Of the dead only one has been identified. His name is given as Harry Bossa. The other two men were in the magazine when it exploded and were blown to pieces.

The general store, the residence of Francis Rocks, an official of the company, and twenty-five small dwellings were made uninhabitable, and tonight the residents were forced to move to another mining settlement.

It is said that the body of Bossa was thrown 200 yards. Mrs. Ella Barnhart, who is blind, was thrown across a room and was found beneath a pile of debris.

There were freight cars near the magazine, one of which was loaded with dynamite. According to reports received in Uniontown this afternoon, the cars were blown across the street, and it was later ascertained that the roof was blown off one of the cars and the others were hurled from their tracks.

Physicians were sent from Uniontown and gave medical attention to those who were not brought to the hospital in this city.

CANADA WILL GIVE A BIG DONATION TO SCOTT MEMORIAL

Finance Minister States That Provisions Has Already Been Made

Ottawa, May 14.—Before the orders of the day were called this morning, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux called the attention of the Prime Minister to the fact that provision was being made by the British Government for the family of Captain Scott, who perished in the Antarctic. He asked if the Canadian Government intended to do anything. The Prime Minister replied that the bringing down of the supplementary estimates had been delayed owing to the absence of the Minister of Finance. When they were brought down, however, it would be found that some provision had been made.

Mr. Hazen's bill to amend the Customs and Fisheries Protection Act received its third reading and passed.

Hon. T. L. Pelletier's bill to amend the Government Annuities Act came up for second reading, and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, late Postmaster-General, raised a discussion about the posters with which the Government was advertising the Annuities' system. Mr. Lemieux admitted that the posters were very effective, but it was not the usual custom to take contracts for a sum exceeding $5,000 unless tenders were called for. Mr. Pelletier said there was no statutory provision holding the department down to such a course.

CAN'T USE POWDER MAGAZINE AFTER AUGUST FIRST

Hardware Men Must Get Own Store House in Which to Store Explosives--Will be Offered A Lot on City's Farm For This Purpose at A Nominal Rental

The City's Property Committee met last night, Chairman Ald. Geo. Duncan presiding. Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen Wm. Langford, McIntyre, Green and Duffus, were also in attendance.

The committee will visit Babb's Lane to-day with a view to ascertaining what is most desirable to do with the Campbell house in the lane, purchased by the city to facilitate widening the lane. The committee is not quite clear if a street of sufficient width can be obtained without moving the house back or not. At present it is suggested that the verandah in front be transferred to the side of the house in the hope that that will leave the property a desirable one for sale in its present situation, and afford a thoroughfare of the requisite width.

The proposed sale of the powder magazine was left in abeyance for the time being.

On motion of Ald. Green, seconded by Ald. Duffus, that the committee recommend to Council that city merchants be notified to discontinue using the powder magazine by August 1st.

Ald. Green moved, seconded by Ald. Duffus, that this committee recommend that the City Trust Commissioners be requested to lease a piece of land on the city's farm in North Bity to the hardware merchants, at a nominal rental of $1 a year, on which to erect a powder magazine.

The question of conveying dynamite and other explosives through the city's streets came up for discussion. It was offered that large quantities of dynamite is carried through the city from time to time, contrary to the by-law prohibiting such action. This matter was referred to the Chief of Police to report on.

Orders for coal for city's buildings will be distributed amongst the local dealers.

The caretaker of the refuse ground on Water street, opposite the Market will be retained until June 1st, at the Property Committee's expense. After that date the unloading of any refuse at this point will be strictly prohibited.

CANADIANS ARE LOSING PATIENCE WITH SIR WILFRED

The Liberal Party Faces Annihilation if The Senate Holds up The Naval Aid Bill

Canadian public sentiment has become decidedly aroused over the conduct of Laurier and his followers in the House of Commons. If the Senate is foolish enough to listen to the seductive voice of Sir Wilfrid and holds up the Naval Bill the Liberal party will assuredly face annihilation at the next election. Regrettable as would be such action by the Senate it would strengthen the hands of Mr. Borden and the Conservative party as nothing else would. But the point at issue is there should be no delay in giving what assistance Canada can at the present time to the maintenance of the world-wide supremacy of the British Navy.

BRANTFORD AGAIN TRIMMED PETS ARE CLIMBING UP

It was a real ladies' day at Riverside Park yesterday. The main stand being crowded to its capacity, and many of the fair sex took up positions in automobiles around the grounds.

The weatherman seems to be getting over his grouch, he handed out a fine day with a nice warm sun.

Byrne, the Petes 3rd sacker, was on the bench with a sprained ankle, Totten taking his place, and Hilliard playing centre field.

In the first innings, the visitors scored two runs and the hearts of the fans dropped about a foot. In the last half the Petes tallied one and then tightened up, holding the visitors down to 4 runs during the balance of the game.

A feature of the game was the brilliant playing of Totten, who had four runs to his credit, with two hits and two bases on balls. In the third innings Cresswell was replaced by Belting, who made a double play almost before he got set in the box. Pitcher Coose worked hard, but a noise like the moving of chains and old iron, reminded him of the derrick and at last it was brought into play and he was hoisted high and dry, being replaced by Reilly, who was pounded all over the lot.

Sargent was there again yesterday with the willow and landed out a three bagger, bringing in two runs. In fact the Petes to a man were right on edge, and gave the fans all the spice they wanted. Manager Davie Rowan's smile could be plainly seen from the grandstand as he coached his men along to victory.

In the 8th, Umps McLaughlin called for a ball and Manager Rowan tossed him out two. They were quickly tossed back, the Ump wanted new balls. A argument ensued with the result that Umpy went back with the old balls. Manager Kane, not wishing to be left out of any little dispute, butted into the Ump. and he was warned to keep quiet. Mr. Kane kept right on and Ump. McLaughlin put him out of the grounds. The game then proceeded, the visitors securing one more run making the score 10—4.

Peterborough had 13 hits and only 2 errors, while Brantford had 6 hits and 3 errors.

The Batteries—Peterborough, Cresswell, Belting and McNeal; Coose, Reilly and Lamond.

Umpire—McLaughlin.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 39c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 39c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 226 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

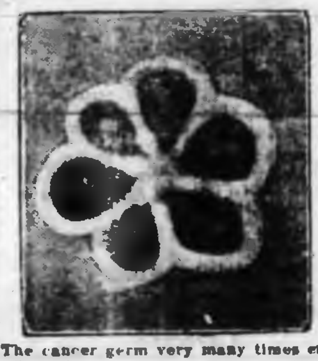
FRENCH DOCTOR HAS CANCER CURE

Will Give Secret to the World When He Proves its Worth Beyond Doubt

Can cancer be cured? This is a question which many physicians of the highest international repute will answer in the negative, but Dr. Gaston Odin, a 38 year-old Parisian declares that not only is the disease curable, but that he has discovered the cure. To an interviewer he told a most interesting story of his work.

"Cancer fascinated me," he said, "and I studied the blood of cancer patients. To my astonishment I discovered that, in the blood of cancer sufferers, some of the blood corpuscles were shaped like chestnuts instead of being perfectly round. It dawned on me that perhaps the cancer germ was hidden within the blood corpuscles, like the yolk of an egg is hidden within the shell. How could I break the shell of these tiny blood corpuscles? I tried many chemicals.



The cancer germ very many times enlarged

"One day after one of these tests I picked up a piece of glass, on which I had been experimenting, and, behold the blood was swarming with microbes. That was the cancer germ released from the shell. I have proved that fact beyond doubt.

"Now, I have found the cure. I have made a serum that kills this germ. I must have thirty more cures and then I shall tell the entire secret to the world. Do not think that all of this has been done suddenly. I have worked on it for 18 years. It will not be long before physicians in any part of the world will be able to give my treatment."

Four men sat in the outer office of Dr. Odin's place. Two of them had their cancer-eaten faces bound in cloths. The other two were also cancer sufferers.

"The doctors told me I should die," one man said. "They had cut and cut at my neck without avail. I have traveled over Europe, seeking help. I have been coming to Dr. Odin for a week, and the swelling has gone down by one-half. My pain is gone."

Dr. Odin took the newspaper man into one of the largest hospitals in Paris, where the cowled monks who act as nurses have absolute faith in his ability to accomplish perfect cures of the terrible disease. A patient there—a man of huge frame—said he had been given five weeks to live by his doctors. A cancer was eating his throat away and he could scarcely breathe. After three weeks of Dr. Odin's treatment he was able to speak a little and a week later he could eat and talk without difficulty. The swelling and the pain had vanished and he hoped to leave the hospital as soon as he regained his strength.

DR. GASTON ODIN

Dr. Odin's treatment consists of injections of serum, usually into the thigh, even when the disease is located in the throat. Operations, he says, are useless. By his method the cancer is dissolved and the fluid removed by lancing.

Cross-ties for Railways

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

BAGGED A HUGE LION

Member of British Parliament Had Close Call During African Hunt

Captain P. K. Glazebrook, M.P. for South Manchester, had a thrilling escape from a lion whilst shooting in the wilds of Somaliland.

The story centres round the lion's fight against the rifles of Captain Glazebrook and his companion, Lieut. George Wilbraham. The honors ultimately rested with the sportsmen, and, as the firer of the first shot, Lieut. Wilbraham was able to bring home the largest lion that has fallen to the gun of a modern sportsman.

The lion made a night attack upon a donkey that had been used for baggage purposes by the travellers. Lieut. Wilbraham was in waiting in the zareba, and, seizing his heavy rifle, which was lying handy, he sent three shots into the beast. There was a terrible roar, followed by silence. Captain Glazebrook and his companion approached cautiously to where they believed the brute to be hiding. When five yards distant they halted, and the Somali attendants, from behind the sportsmen, tried the effect of throwing stones at the lion, but it was too cunning. It still made no move. Thereupon Captain Glazebrook, believing that it was dead, approached still nearer.

The lion saw his opportunity, and leaped. The sportsmen however, maintained an admirable nerve. Both emptied a rifle into the angry beast, with the result that it rolled dead six inches from the foot of the member for South Manchester. Lieut. Wilbraham's shot pierced the heart, whilst Captain Glazebrook's entered the mouth, and passed through the head, smashing the skull into five pieces. The total length of the lion before skinning was 10 feet 6 inches, or an inch longer than the previous record lion.

In accordance with the recognised rule amongst sportsmen, Lieut. Wilbraham became the possessor of the skin.

BOILING WATER FOR FROST BITES

Dr. J. M. Johnston Claims It is a Real Cure in Spite of Popular Fancy

Frost bite, frozen ears, noses and fingers may be cured without any ill effects by boiling water, according to Dr. J. M. Johnston, Toronto. The doctor stated that in spite of the popular fallacy to the contrary boiling water was the best remedy which could be used. He had said, used it himself and on his patients, and it always gave perfect results. Dr. Johnston told of experiments on rabbits, which were carried on in Germany. Two ears of a rabbit were frozen, one of which was treated with boiling water; and the other with various other cures. The result, he said, was always the same. The boiling water cure worked while the others were quite inadequate, and often brought on serious complications.

DON'TS FOR WIVES

If a wife or prospective bride wishes to have a happy married life, she may rest assured that her desires will be gratified if she bears in mind the following "don'ts."

Don't marry a man for a living, but for love. Don't over-dress, or the reverse. Common sense is better than style. Never, when married, get the idea that the way to run a house is to run away from it, or that it is right to lecture your neighbors on how to bring up their children, while you are neglecting your own.

Don't nag. Nothing is so likely to send your husband out of the house as that.

EDITORIAL NOTES

In China when a man is sick the doctors stick him with long needles, but in this more civilized country of ours they stick him with a long bill.

A news item says a new explosive has been discovered ten times more powerful than dynamite. Probably it is the condensed extract of the Opposition speeches on the navy bill.

Lord Curzon recently said in an address that the "Lord Chancellor is the greatest Master of copious irrevelance who has ever spoken in the House." He has evidently not heard our own and well beloved Sir Richard.

Sir Charles Tupper, sole survivor among the fathers of confederation, has sailed for Great Britain. All Canadians will trust that he will live to see many more anniversaries of confederation.

We are told that the American suffragettes in London are not taking an active part in the militant demonstrations. To have food pumped down their throats through a garden hose is, no doubt, an experience they do not care to invite.

New Mexico has brought a $2,000,000 boundary trespass suit against Texas, which shows that land hunger is something not entirely confined to individuals. Either state could give the other a nice strip of border territory without missing it.

St. Paul cathedral, one of the landmarks of time, history and architecture, is not exempt frommilitancy. Inhabited buildings are not safe. It might not be lawful but itwould be just if some militant anti-suffragist would blow up the suffrage headquarters when it was blessed with a full quorum of the militants.

PUBLIC BUSINESS FIRST

Sir Wilfrid may petulantly complain of being "gagged"but the people of Canada are taking little notice of such whimpering. The man in the street and the ploughman in the furrow are not interested in the political fate of the Liberal party, but they are deeply concerned in the speedy and decent despatch of public business. And to bring this about the rules had to be amended.

INTERESTING STATISTICS

Statistics gathered by the painstaking Germans say that there were in Europe, atthe last count, more than seven thousand persons over a century old. The richer the country, apparently, the fewer persons attain extreme old age. Bulgaria heads the list with 3,888 centenarians, with its neighbors, Roumania and Servia next with 1,704 and 573. Spain had 410 and France 213; no other country had more than two hundred. England had only ninety-two, and the three Scandinavian states were at the bottom of the list, Denmark having only two. Evidently the Balkans, scene of almost constant war for the last century, is the most likely place to attain old age.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS.

During the years 1911 and 1912 in the state of New York, 967 persons were killed and 6,167 seriously injured in automobile accidents. This awful record, which is being repeated in slightly modified form in other states is due partly to the carelessness of pedestrians, partly to what may be termed unavoidable accidents, but mainly to reckless driving and incompetence in handling the machines. Governor Sulzer wants more adequate laws to deal with this evil. It is claimed that speed is an inconsiderable factor, that in certain sections forty miles an hour may be safe enough, and at other times ten miles an hour may be criminal recklessness. Some are urging that the only question in cases of accident be whether the driver used the necessary caution and good judgment. But others will urge that if the speed were left to the driver's discretion the number of accidents would increase enormously. One thing is sure, no drinking man is competent to run an auto.

Your Bad Taste In the Morning Is Due to Catarrh

Destroy This Poisonous Disease Before Your Health is Seriously Injured.

Perhaps you haven't thought of calling those unpleasant symptoms that affected your nose and throat by any particular name—but it's Catarrh just the same.

When the attack is severe, your eyes are watery and look weak. Your breath is offensive, due to inflammation in the nose and throat.

At last science has discovered a real remedy, a new scientific marvel which acts like no other Catarrh remedy on earth. "Catarrhozone" operates on a new plan; it is a direct remedy, goes instantly to the source of the trouble. Its rich, fragrant essences and healing balsams are breathed in vapor form through a special inhaler and give instant relief.

Catarrhozone doesn't stop at the relief stage—it goes further—keeps on going till a cure is affected. Bad cases are cured, as you can judge from the following letter:—"Every morning for six months last winter I awoke with a bad taste, an awful breath and stuffed up feeling in my nostrils," writes Rob E. Rutland, of Regina. "It was simply an awful case of chronic Catarrh. Relief first came from Catarrhozone. I used that inhaler twenty times a day and took it to bed with me at night. I am cured, and by the use of Catarrhozone stay well. Now I am free from irritable throat trouble, coughs, colds, headache, or catarrh."

No medicine on earth is so certain to cure every form of Catarrh or throat trouble as "Catarrhozone." Get the large $1.00 size, lasts two months and is guaranteed; medium size, 50c.; sample size 25c. all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

THE BELLS OF ST. JOHN.

At golden eve, or roseate dawn,
Sweet chime the bells of old St. John;
Refreshing noontide's sultry glare,
Or tremulous on night's cool air.

Borne on the breeze their silvery notes,
Over the noisy city floats;
Above the roar of traffic loud
Benison on the busy crowd.

From sacred tower that crowns yon hill,
Peal forth a message of good will,
Peace, equal rights and love to all,
Of every creed or great or small.

Ring pleasant tones of greetng clear,
The lonely stranger's heart to cheer,
Bid him kind welcome in His name,
Who once to earth a stranger came.

The cradle hush with softest swell,
Slow o'er the bier a passing knell,
And joyous melodies prepare.
With blessings for the bridal pair.

Waft on the winds a mystic spell,
A cadence to the prison cell;
Whisper of pardon freely won,
On Calvary's cross, by God's dear son.

Chime on sweet bells, your blest refrain,
Will soothe the sufferer's drear pain;
Or light the shadow valley dim,
With radiance of holy hymn.

Ring out, sweet bells, a warning strain,
Where pleasure lures the thoughtless train,
Teach them the nobler good to prize,
And fashion's trifling way despise.

In dulcet tones of pity win,
The erring from the paths of sin,
Rescue from death the periled soul,
That dallies with the tempting bowl.

Chime on, sweet bells, glad songs of peace,
Till strife and jarring discord cease;
And righteousness around the land
Goes with true knowledge hand in hand.

But, sound a clarion alarm,
If ere oppressions forces arm,
Inspire our sons at duty's call,
For liberty to stand or fall.

From ancient church tower's weird height,
Keep watch and ward for truth and right,
And still this loyal anthem ring,
God save our country and our King.

S. CALDER.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I have lost a note given me for $50. The man who signed the note refuses to pay the amount unless I produce the document. Can he escape payment if I do not find the note?

Charles J.

Reply—The maker of a promissory note which has been lost is not on that account released from the payment of same. He may be forced to give a new note or to pay the note if it is overdue. He is, however, entitled to security of a reasonable nature or to satisfaction of the court, that he will not be called upon to pay the original note if same is found.

ALLEGE BIGAMY

Groom, Two Days After the Second Ceremony, Disappears.

Grand Forks, N.D., May 14.—Raymond O'Day, who recently disappeared from this city after having spent two or three days as the groom of Miss Luella K. Wright, of Grafton, may have to face a bigamy charge.

A second Mrs. O'Day who has appeared in the scene has taken the matter up with the officials of Walsh county, and special agents of the Great Northern railroad are also working on the case.

The others Mrs. O'Day who has come to the front has been making her home at Walhalla for some time. She was at one time a resident of Grand Forks. On the occasion of his first marriage, O'Day is said to have gone under another name.

A request was made in this county for warrant for his arrest, but the crime of bigamy if committed at all, occurred in Walsh county, where O'Day and Miss Wright were wedded.

Carmangay
"The Star of Alberta"

PAST The splendidly strategic site of Carmangay was discovered by a far seeing, shrewd railway engineer attracted to the district by the lure of the finest wheat in the Canadian West. He snapped up lands where the wide canyons of the Little Bow River narrows to a point. Here must all railways cross. The C. P. R. came and the shipping centre created went ahead by leaps and bounds.

PRESENT Carmangay today is a thriving incorporated town, with not less than 53 business places. Her up-to-date electric and natural water supply systems are owned and operated by the people. Carmangay boasts an eight-roomed schoolhouse, two banks and four big elevators, shipping over a million bushels in 1911 and 1½ millions in 1912. Carmangay has coal mines operating, and the entire district is underlaid with coal of finest Galt quality.

FUTURE Carmangay grows as Alberta grows. That means a wonderful future. Four new railroads are heading for Carmangay. Four new elevators are trying to cope with the tremendous wheat yields of the district. The mines are opening up splendid prospects. Carmangay is being rapidly developed into one of the greatest towns in the Canadian West. YOU can just as confidently invest in Carmangay as her own people do, who are building in brick and stone for a tremendous future. Carmangay has her own supply of finest brick clay and stone right at her doors, and will soon supply her sister cities in Alberta.

TURF.

Word has been received in Toronto of the death of S. W. Streett, a well known horseman, at Kenilworth D. C., Sunday night, from typhoid fever. "Doc" Streett was associated with Jas. R. Keene for a number of years in the west before entering the racing business for himself. He was 64 years old and leaves a widow.

THE OAR.

Princeton outrowed Harvard and the University of Pennylvania in a 1¾-mile dash down the Charles River Basin.

It was a stern chase for the winners most of the way, for their start was a poor one. Pennsylvania was overhauled at the half-way mark, and Harvard one mile down the course. Tigers had a length to the good at the finish. Pennsylvania finished three lengths behind Harvard.

The victory of Princeton was the first success that has come to Princeton in a triangular contest since rowing was resumed there four years ago.

MOTOR.

Interesting traits in King Edwards character are revealed in the book, "What I Know," by C. W. Stamper, private automobile expert to the late monarch. I says: "The King like speedy travelling, but insisted on careful driving through towns and villages. His walk was never leisurely. He was in and out of a motor or a train in a moment.

"He spoke rapidly, ate very fast and smoked hard. Speed was the essence of his nature

The King's chauffeur always was instructed by the equerry to observe the legal speed limit, but if the King complained he was to increas the speed temporarily and gradually to slacken it again. The King was very strict as to always being on time. His favorite dog, Caesar, always accompanied the King in his auto, except when His Majesty was going to the races

LAWN BOWLING.

There will be a change in the team for Britain after all, and one that every bowler in Canada will regret, Mr. R. R. Farrow, undoubtedly one of the best bowlers in eastern Ontario, who is assistant commissioner of customs, having been refused leave of absence to take part in the trip. The Ottawa rink will now be Dr. Macmillan, lead; Mr. McGregor Easson of the Ottawa Club, second; Mr. Warne, vice-skip; Mr. McJanet, skip, with Mr. Liddell, of Montreal, as the extra man.

GENERAL REGRET.

Much regret was expressed by the committee at Mr. Farrow's inability to take part in the tour, and though strong representations had been sent to the Minister of Customs asking that Mr. Farrow be allowed leave of absence.

The games to take place with the team before sailing are as follows: Team will leave Yonge street wharf at 11.45 on June 3, where they will board the Royal Canadian Yacht Club's launch and journey to the Island, where the R.C.Y.C. will entertain them to lunch, after which a six-rink game will take place from 1 to 3.15.

BASEBALL.

Montreal, May 15.—That Montreal will be playing Vancouver for the baseball championship of Canada, and that the winners of that series will be playing the winners of what is now known as the World's Series in the Uanited States is the prediction made by Mr. Joseph Page, the well-known local baseball expert, and founder of the City League here, in the introduction of the Canadian Edition of Spalding's Baseball Guide which has just come to hand.

"Joe" reviews baseball in Canada for the past twenty years and believes with the continuation of the progress made in that time a Canadian team in a world's series is a question which will come up within a very few years.

Spalding's Canadian Guide, besides containing information to be had in the regular edition of this book, gives a complete record of baseball in Canada, with the official records of every organized Canadian league from Sydney to Vancouver.

Mr. Page, who is the inventor of the Eureka Baseball Rame, which was put on the Canadian market last winter, has just returned from a trip to New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Pittsburg, in which cities he has been successful in placing the baseball game on sale. It was the first glimpse the Americans had of the game and the dyed-in-the-wool fans who inspected it there declared it to be an excellent winter game, and it has already met with a large sale there.

RING.

Fistic promoters are commencing to realize that while Willie Ritchie will not consider a guarantee of less than $10,000 for a ten-round scrap. Ritchie, according to a statement made by Billy Nolan several days ago, proposed giving Leach Cross a chance to win the title, ~~but~~ somehow or another, promoters of boxing refused to ante up.

The latest scrap rigged up for the lightweight champion was a ten-round mill with Freddie Welsh, but, like the proposed match with Cross, Ritchie's manager explained that he would have to get $15,000 for his end, or there will be nothing doing for none of the Eastern clubs are willing to take a chance for a purse of this amount.

It isn't likely that Ritchie will be seen in the ring before July 4, if then, unless his terms are met. The champion has been a good money-getter since he won from Wolgast on a foul, and, like all other pugilists, realizes that he might just as well get all of the money he can while the title belongs to him, for once he is counted out, there'll be nothing doing but small purses.

San Francisco, Cal., May 14.—The "Gunboat" Smith-Jess Willard twenty-round boxing contest, scheduled for the afternoon of May 17, was postponed to-day until the night of May 20

There is no truth in the report in the statement that Tom Johnson and Jack Flanagna were two of the colored "pussons" who were refused a meal of 'possum in a Greek restaurant.

WORLD INVITED TO CELEBRATE PEACE

All Countries are Asked to Join In Commemoration of 100 Years of Good Will Through Conferees' Manifesto

New York, May 14.—The nations of the world are urged to join the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Newfoundland and Australia and the municipality of Ghent in making the celebration of 100 years of peace among English speaking peoples signalize a new era of international good will.

The invitation was issued by the international conference now in this country, arranging this celebration for December, 1914. The American secretary of state and the British secretary of state for foreign affairs are asked to transmit the invitation to other governments. Following is the manifesto adopted by the conference.

The Manifesto

"Representatives of Great Britain, of Newfoundland, of the United States, of the Dominion of Canada, of the Commonwealth of Australia and of the municipality of Ghent, having been in conference concerning an appropriate celebration of the centenary of the signing of the treaty of Ghent, which marked the end of the last international war between the British and American peoples, unite in offering to the governments and the peoples of the civilized world an earnest invitation to take part in making this celebration in every way worthy of the 100 years of peace that it commemorates.

"We invite such co-operation to the end that it may be made clear and unmistakable to public opinion everywhere that the time has come when international rivalries and differences, though numerous and severe, may be settled without the carnage and horrors of war.

Small Chance of War.

"Although it be unreasonable to disregard the possibility of conflict arising in the future, out of mutual or partial misunderstanding, yet we gratefully recognize that the chances of misunderstanding have been largely eliminated by the degree in which modern science has faciliated intercourse and accelerated communication.

"We are, therefore, encouraged to hope that the development of letters, science and the arts of commerce, industry and finance, of mutual knowledge, trust and good feeling on the part of those who owe different allegiances and who speak different tongues, may profitably absorb the energy of mankind, as well as offer opportunity for the display of the noblest and finest traits of mind and of character.

Century of Peace.

"Great Britain has been a colonizing nation and the United States has drawn to its population various and powerful elements from different countries and from different flags. Therefore, a century of peace between Great Britain and her dominions beyond the seas on the one hand, and the United States on the other hand, touches directly both the interests and the imagination of every land to which Great Britain's sons have gone as well as those of every nation from which the present-day population of the United States has been drawn.

"Such a celebration will not only close a century of exceptional significance and importance, but it will call attention to an example and an ideal that we earnestly hope may be followed and pursued in years to come. What nations have done nations can do.

"We respectfully request that his majesty's secretary of state for foreign affairs and the secretary of state of the United States transmit this invitation, through the proper official channels, to the governments of the world, in order that both by the participation of governments and by the co-operagion of men of good will in every land, this celebration may be carried out as to mark not merely the close of 100 years of peace between English speaking peoples, but of the opening of what we sincerely trust will be a fresh era of peace and good will between all the nations of the world."

Moscow Survivors.

That soldiers—once they escape the risks of war—are long lived is shown by Russia's finding four or five survivors of the Moscow campaign, the centennial of which is now being celebrated.

These veterans must be 115 years old, at least, unless small boys were enlisted in those days.

After the 20 years of war of the Napoleonic era, of the 36 marshals of France, 26 survived. Of the 10 who were gone, only two died of disease; three fell in battle, one was drowned, one was assassinated, one was a suicide and two were executed.

The survivors reached an average age of 72 years, 10 of them dying a octogenarians.

Many other generals have reache extreme old age. Marshal de Richlieu was 94 years old when he died in 1788. Two years before his death he married a girl of 16, who was able to say to Napoleon III. in 1862: "Sir, Louis XIV asked of my husband"—

She was then 92 years old and lived two years longer.

Diagnosis Wrong for Once.

"It's a dangerous thing," said the physician, "to jump at a diagnosis before getting all you can of the patients' personal history. I knew a doctor who while still a young man had attained considerable repute as a specialist in nervous diseases. One day a man visited him with a tale of woe, and after listening the physician leaned back in his chair, joining his finger tips with the true professional air, and said:

"'What you need, my dear sir, is a broader vision. You have got into a rut. You ought to read more. Get the opinions of able writers on the current topics of the day. Your mind has become stagnant. It has been dulled by the petty commonplaces of your own little sphere. Read the newspapers. Get familiar with what is on in this country—in the world. By the way, may I ask what is your occupation?'

"'I'm an exchange editor,' replied the patient with a melancholy smile."

NINE HOURS UNDER WATER

Remarkable Recovery of Russian Submarine and its Crew of Twenty

St. Petersburg, May 14.—The results of the inquiry into the remarkable experiences of the Russian submarine "Minoga" ("Lamprey") are partially available, but several matters of great technical interest remain to be cleared up.

The "Minoga" is one of the submarine flotilla stationed at Libau. On Saturday, two weeks ago, she was out for exercise in the neighborhood of the lightship off Libau with her full crew of nineteen men, under the command of Lieutenant Garsoev, and, as usual, atender was present during maneuvers. The "Minoga," which was apparently proceeding either well on the tender to take a plunge in somewhat abnormal fashion, throwing her stern well into the air.

For some time it was not supposed any accident had happened, and the return of the submarine to the surface was expected, but the appearance of the emergency buoy gave the alarm. These buoys not only serve precisely to locate the whereabouts of a sunken submarine, but are fitted with telephonic apparatus enabling the crew to communicate with the upper air.

Rescue of Boat and Men

The accident happened at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, but owing, it would seem to the dispersal of the men on a Saturday the message was not acted on for several hours, and it was not until 9 at night that the salvage vessels reached the spot. The weather conditions remained happily favorable, and divers having fixed the lifting chains the "Minoga" was successfully brought to the surface by midnight, having been nine hours at the bottom of the sea.

When the after hatch was opened three men stagged out, barely able to crawl. Fifteen of the crew and the captain were got out conscious from the after part of the vessel. There remained only the coxswain, who was in the conning tower amidships. It was necessary to raise the submarine well out of the water, to get at the conning tower, and this took another three hours' work, but the coxswain, when released after twelve hours' confinement, was in the best condition of any of the crew.

Thus the whole command of twenty men was saved and the submarine recovered after lying nine hours at the bottom of the sea helpless. This constitutes a record for submarine work. It is due chiefly to the fact that the depth of water at the spot where the accident happened was only seven fathomsm and also largely to the facilities for salvage work afforded by the emergency buoy. No time was lost in sweeping to discover the whereabouts of the sunken vessel, and it may be surmised that the means of communication by telephone with the surface helped not a little while they retained consciousness to keep up the hearts of the poor fellows doomed apparently to a horrible fate

What Caused the Accident

The cause of the accident has been ascertained to have been a defective ventilator, Before exercising these ventilators, which are indispensable to the proper action of the accumulators which provide the motive energy of submarines, are screwed home from the inside. A ventilator in the forward part of the vessel was either defective or had not been properly screwed home. The latter might happen owing to the presence of some foreign body, a cleaning rag, for instance, which would suffice to prevent a proper watertight closing of the ventilator, while leaving the man who had charge of it under the impressionthat he had duly screwed it home. Whatever the inquiry may show to have been the immediate cause of the defect it is known that the accident happened by water leaking in through this forward ventilator until the delicate trim of the submarine was affected and she plunged head foremost to the bottom. Water continued to enter until the air with in the vessel was so far compressed as to resist the entrance of any more at a pressure of seven fathoms' depth

On this air the screw of twenty survived, the captain and fifteen men in the body of the vessel suffering also from the fumes of chlorine was given off by the accumulators. The three men who crawled out unaided by the after hatch, and the coxswain, who, after being confined in the conning tower three hours longer than any of his mates, was yet the least affected, were apparently out of reach of the chlorine gas fumes, and the latter, in addition, appears to have had more and better air to breathe, all have now recovered from the effects of their terrible experience.

A HOG NEAR LINDSAY SWALLOWS GOLD WATCH

Lindsay Warder ' An Ops farmer who was out feeding the hogs on Sunday afternoon, dressed in his best suit of clothes and sporting a $50 watch, dropped the shining chronometer into the feed trough. The time-piece was promptly swallowed by a hungry hog with as much gusto as a mouthful of corn and the same apparent relish. The wily porker took a side look at his keeper, gave a knowing wink and uttered a squeal as the time-piece passed down to his stomach.

The owner does not know what to do under such conditions as the hog is a valuable one, and if he kills him for the watch he may lose money at the expense of time. It is the hog and the watch now fir first run.

IN THE GARDEN

Keep the hedges clipped.

Thin the apples and plums if too heavily loaded.

Lawn clippings and green waste from the garden make good chicken food.

Keep the cultivator and weeder going. They not only kill weeds, but conserve moisture.

Keep the sweet peas picked. It is better for the plants, and the house can be made more attractive by their use.

Keep the new strawberry bed clean cultivated until the runners are matted too much to permit the cultivator to go through.

If the strawberry plants are vigorous, and the bed not too weedy, it may pay to renovate it for another year. Mow the plants close to the ground, rake off the foliage and burn it. Plow a furrow, cutting out all but about one foot of the row, and then go through and take out the weeds and diseased plants in this row. Fill the furrow with thoroughly rotted manure and cultivate the soil back. Keep up a thorough cultivation of the soil all the season.

MIXED FARMING

Vice-President Bury is Much Interested in the Subject

Vice-president Bury, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, while in Calgary returning from a trip to the Coast, said the company is very much interested in the question of mixed farming, and will do everything in its power to encourage the farmers to engage to a greater extent in this branch of agriculture. He believed that more mixed farming was essential to the welfare of the country and it is astonishing to find so much agricultural produce being imported. "On this trip," he said, "I was served with butter from New Zealand, mutton from Australia, fruit from the United States, marmalade from England and potatoes from Virginia. At Vancouver I noticed a shipment of twenty-five carloads of condensed milk from Eastern Canada being loaded on a vessel for export. All these articles should be produced in Western Canada."

AGRICULTURE AT COAST

Development of the Farming Industry in British Columbia

Agriculture is more and more giving promise of becoming to British Columbia what it has already become to the Provinces of the prairies—not only the staple, but the leading industry. This Province produced in the year 1911 agricultural products valued at $21,641,928, an increase for the year of $7,342,538, or 50.3 per cent. This sum of nearly twenty-two millions was made up in large part as follows: Milk, $3,295,000; fruit and vegetables, $5,084,241; hay, $4,912,566; grain, $3,160,227; eggs, $255,113; honey, $35,173. These figures are official and are from a bulletin issued recently by the Department of Agriculture at Victoria. To their total one must add the year's share of the ten million dollars' worth of live stock held on the farms and ranches of the Province. This would bring the value of farm products for the twelve months within easy distance of the output of British Columbia's two greatest industries, mining and lumbering and would place it far in the lead of fishing, the next industry. The mines of the Province yielded in 1911 $23,211,816; the forests, $24,823,000, and the fisheries, $11,000,000.

SYNOPSIS OF DOMINION LAND REGULATIONS

ANY person who is sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties.—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Men's Block, New Barracks, Toronto, Ont.," will be received until 4.00 P.M., on Tuesday, June 24, 1913, for the construction of a Men's Block, New Barracks, Long Branch, near Toronto, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the office of Mr. Thos. Hastings, Esq., Clerk of Works, Postal Station "F", Yonge St., Toronto, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.
Department of Public Works,

POULTRY RULES

A great source of contagion is in the drinking troughs.

Remember, if roup should make its appearance in your poultry house.

In place of "tonics" drop a nail into the drinking trough and allow it to remain there. It will supply all the "tincture of iron" required.

If you feed whole corn place it in the oven and parch it occasionally and feed smoking hot. The fowls appreciate it in frosty weather.

A little linseed or oil meal given once a week in the soft feed will promote laying. This will not come under the heading of "dosing the fowls with medicine."

Do not throw your table scraps into the swill barrel, but give them to the chickens.

One of the most important points in the keeping of ducks is to give them clean, dry quarters at night. They are very prone to leg weakness in cold, damp quarters.

Feed your fowls just what they will eat up clean.

Fat hens or pullets are not good layers. The latter is just what you want when the eggs are 28 cents or more per dozen.

Fowls over three years old are not as a rule good breeders. The males are unable to properly fertilize the eggs for hatching while the stock is usually weak. Four years is generally a ripe old age for a fowl.

Each hen if properly kept will lay from 200 to 250 eggs a year.

Liver and intestines are an excellent food to make hens lay.

Keep an abundant supply of lime where the hens can easily get it if you desire your hens to lay well.

Always clean the nest well and put in fresh straw before the hens begin to sit.—H. J. K.

What is a Gentleman?

A gentleman is the man who dissolves company with the snob who relates at the club his latest conquest of a woman.

A gentleman is one not having loud clothes and loud talk as part of his equipment.

A gentleman is one who does not forget that the washerwoman in the crowded street car belongs to his mother's sex.

A gentleman is the man "higher up" who is big enough to grasp the hand of the man "lower down."

WAS DUKE'S ORDERLY

Fifty-Two Years Spent as Soldier and Gate Keeper of Park

Gatekeeper John Burrows, one of the best-known of the Royal park-keepers, who is retiring after having served his country as soldier and park-keeper for fifty-two years, was practically the whole of his 106 days' foreign service the selected orderly of the Duke of Connaught, who was commanding the Brigade of Guards in Egypt.

Mr. Burrows is the possessor of the Egyptian medal, with a bar for Tel-el-Kebir, the Khedive's star for the same campaign, the medal for long service and good conduct, and the Coronation medal of King George. He had been a soldier for twenty-two years before he saw active service, having volunteered for the Egyptian campaign at the opening of the war in 1882.

"On arrival at Alexandria," he said in an interview, "I was appointed the Duke of Connaught's orderly, an appointment I held all through the campaign. When Sir Garnet Wolseley came out to Alexandria he found that Arabi Pasha had some troops near Ismailia, and we were re-embarked at Alexandria for that town, which was on the Suez Canal, and went up the desert after him.

"I was on the field with his Royal Highness during the battle of Tel-el-Kebir, but was never able to get into the fighting line. Next day we went to Cairo, and there the cavalry captured Arabi.

"We returned home in December, 1882. Without any loss of time I obtained my discharge and received the appointment of park-keeper at Regent's Park in 1883. After a time I was sent to Kensington Gardens; from there I went to Queen Anne's Gate, and finally they transferred me to Buckingham Gate, giving me the Prince of Wale's Gate lodge, at Hyde Park, for a residence." Mr. Burrows intends to spend the remainder of his life with his sister near Nottingham.

MEN OF NERVE

Most Structural Steel Workers Are of Irish Blood

It is a curious fact that most of the structural steel workers engaged on various huge structures in Canadian cities are of Irish blood. In fact, the Irish and Swedes, or "square heads," as they are called, have almost a monopoly of this dangerous trade. The Irish will take more chances than the men of any other nationality, but the Swedes are not far behind, and how they divide the honors was illustrated recently. Two steel columns for the top storeys of a skyscraper had just been set in place at the corners, and stood starkly up fifty feet above the nearest cross girder. Each column was about eight inches square. When the news spread that a photographer was about to take a picture of them, two workmen "shinned" up the columns and stood on the top. The man at one corner was an Irishman, the other was a Swede. Sometimes these structural ironworkers lose their nerve. Why it happens, or how, they do not know; but sometimes a sudden panic will overwhelm a man. Then, if he knows his business, he will shout for help, for he cannot help himself. Now and then a man gets a mad desire to hurl himself from the roof, and if he is not restrained he will go as surely as though a great magnet were drawing him down to the earth. Oddly enough, one terrible fright rarely causes a man to give up the business. He gets back his nerve in a few days and becomes as daring as ever. It is said that an ironworker who goes to a new job when a building is already high in the air has not the nerve of a man who has been on the building from the ground up. Accidents are more likely to occur while the first few storeys are under construction than later on, for the men take more chances, forgetting that a 40-foot fall is about as deadly as one twice as long.

ROBBED SOLOMON'S TEMPLE

Sheikhs Who Are Accused Have Been Sent For Trial

The Sheikhs of the Mosque of Omar and other officials, including an Armenian, who are accused of aiding and abetting a party of explorers in the alleged removal of priceless relics of Solomon's Temple from the hill on which the mosque stands, have been sent, under an armed escort, to Beyrout to undergo trial by a special court. The arrests are in connection with excavation work by an English syndicate, at the head of which was Captain Parker, brother of the Earl of Morley, to find the treasures of King Solomon, which were supposed to have been indicated by a cryptogram in the Talmud. Rumors that sacrilege had been committed led to a riot and the excavations were abandoned. Captain Parker's work was carried on with the approval of the Turkish Government. The Englishmen emphatically deny that anything has been taken away.

Urging Mixed Farming

Mayor Nelson, Medicine Hat, in the course of an interview in Toronto said that the farmers of the West are just beginning to realize that wheat raising alone cannot compare with mixed farming when it comes to making money. Eggs and butter never go below 75c the dozen and pound in a large section of the west, and now threaten to reach the dollar mark. The cities of the west are now endeavoring to bring this point home to the western farmers, and an organized effort will be made to encourage mixed farming in preference to wheat only. The main argument that is being used in this regard is the fact that bigger money and in shorter time can be made in this way than would be possible from the same effort in wheat.

Blind Worker's Fortune

Although he never earned more than a workingman's wage, the late Thomas Schofield, manager of Preston workshops for the blind, left an estate of $80,000. Blind from birth he once walked from Farnworth to London in search of work, and besides being of frugal habits he was extremely fortunate in his speculations. He bequeathed $5,000 to the Preston Industrial Institution for the Blind and Homes for Blind Children for North and East Lancashire.

My Lady of Doubt

BY RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "Love Under Fire," "My Lady of the North" and other stories

ILLUSTRATIONS BY HENRY THIEDE

Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1911

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a waltz, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel.

CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

CHAPTER VII—The Major arrives at the shop of a blacksmith, who is friendly, and knows the Lady of the Blended Rose.

CHAPTER VIII—Captain Grant and rangers arrive and search the blacksmith shop in vain for the spy.

CHAPTER IX—Lawrence joins the minute men who capture Grant and his train.

CHAPTER X—Major Lawrence is made prisoner by an Indian and two white men.

CHAPTER XI—Lawrence's captors lock him in a strong cell, where he meets Peter the jailer.

CHAPTER XII—Peter advises Lawrence not to attempt escape as "someone" will send for him.

CHAPTER XIII—Grant's [illegible] adds mystery to the combined circumstances.

The silence and loneliness caused me to become restless. I could not entirely throw off the sense of being buried alive in this dismal hole. I wondered if there was any way of escape, if the secret door was not locked and unlocked only from without. A desire to ascertain led me to take candle in hand, and climb the circular staircase, examining the wall as I passed upward. The interior of the chimney revealed nothing. While I felt convinced there must also be a false fireplace on the first floor, so as to carry out the deception, the dim candle light made no revealment of its position. I could judge very nearly where it should appear, and I sounded the wall thereabout carefully both above and below without result. Nor did any noise reach me to disclose a thinness of partition.

Convinced of the solidity of the wall at this spot, I continued higher until I came to the end of the passage. To my surprise the conditions here were practically the same. Had I not entered at this point I could never have been convinced that there was an opening. From within it defied discovery, for nothing confronted my eyes but mortared stone. I was sealed in helplessly, but for the assistance of friends without; no effort on my part could ever bring release.

Yet I went over the rough surface again before retracing my steps down to the room below. All this must have taken fully an hour of time, and the strain of disappointment left me tired, as though I had done a day's work. I can hardly conceive that I slept, and yet I certainly lost consciousness, for when I aroused myself I was in pitch darkness.

I felt dazed, bewildered, but as my hand felt the edge of the table I comprehended where I was, and what had occurred. Groping about, I found flint and steel, and that last candle, which I forced into the candlestick. The tiny yellow flame was like a message from the gods. How I watched it, every nerve tingling, as it burned lower and lower. Would it last until help came, or was I destined to remain pinned up in the darkness of this ghastly grave? Why, I must have been there for hours—hours. The burning out of the candles proved that. Surely I could doubt no longer this was a trick, a cowardly, cruel trick! If help had been coming it would have reached me before this. The day must have passed, and much of the night. Grant and his party would have marched away long before this on the road to Philadelphia. What could have occurred, then, to prevent Peter or the girl from setting me free? Could they have been forced into accompanying the soldiers? Could they have forgotten? Could they deliberately leave me there to die?

My brain whirled with incipient madness, as such questions haunted me unceasingly. I lost faith in everything, even her, and cursed aloud, hearing the echoes of my own voice. It seemed as though those walls, that low roof, were crushing me, as if the close, foul air was suffocating. I recall tearing open the front of my shirt to gain easier breath. I walked about beating with bare hands the rough stone, muttering to myself words without meaning. The candle had burned down until barely an inch remained.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Remains of Tragedy.

It must have been the shock of thus realizing suddenly how short a time remained in which I should have light [illegible] restored my senses. I know I stared at the dim yellow flicker dully at first, and then with a swift returning consciousness which spurred my brain into activity. In that instant I hated, despised myself, rebelled at my weakness. Faith in Claire Mortimer came back to me in a flood of regret. If she had failed, it was through no fault of hers, and I was no coward to lie there and rot without making a stern fight for life. When I was found, those who came upon my body would know that I died struggling, died as a man should, facing fate with a smile, with hands gripped in the contest. The resolution served—it was a spur to my pride, instantly driving away every haunting shadow of evil. Yet where should I turn? To what end should I devote my energies? It was useless to climb those stairs again. But there must be a way out.

I gripped the old musket as the only instrument at hand, and began testing the walls. Three sides I rapped, receiving the same dead, dull response. I was in the darkest corner now, beyond the stairs, still hopelessly beating the gun barrel against the stone. The dim light revealed no change in the wall formation, the same irregular expanse of rubble set in solid mortar, hardened by a century of exposure to the dry atmosphere. Then to an idle, listless blow there came a hollow, wooden sound, that caused the heart to leap into the throat. I tried again, a foot to the left, confident my ears had played me false, but this time there could be no doubt—there was an opening here back of a wooden barrier.

Half crazed by this good fortune, I caught up the inch of candle, and held it before the wall. The dim light scarcely served as an aid, so ingeniously had the door been painted in resemblance to the mortared stone. I was compelled to sound again, inch by inch, with the gun barrel before I could determine the exact dimensions of the opening. Then I could trace the slight crack where the wood was fitted, nor could I have done this but for the warping of a board. Wild with apprehension lest my light fail before the necessary work could be accomplished, I drew out the single-bladed knife from my pocket, and began widening this crack. Feverishly as I worked, this was slow of accomplishment, yet sliver by sliver the slight aperture grew, until I wedged in the gun barrel, and pried out the plank. The rush of air extinguished the candle, yet I cared nothing, for the air was fresh and pure, promising a clear passage.

God, this was luck! With new courage throbbing through my veins I groped my way back to the table after flint and steel, and relit the candle fragment, shadowing the flame with both palms as I returned to where the plank had been pressed aside. However, I found such precaution unnecessary, as there was no perceptible draft through the passage now the opening was clear for the circulation of air. There had been two planks—thick and of hard wood—composing the entrance to the tunnel, but I found it impossible to dislodge the second, and was compelled to squeeze my way through the narrow twelve-inch opening. This was a difficult task, as I was a man of some weight, but once accomplished I found myself in a contracted passageway, not to exceed three feet in width, and perhaps five from floor to roof. Here it was apparently as well preserved as when first constructed, probably a hundred years or more ago, the side walls faced with stone, the roof supported by roughly hewn oak beams. I was convinced there was no great weight of earth resting upon these, and the tunnel, which I followed without difficulty, or the discovery of any serious obstruction, for fifty feet, inclined steadily upward, until, in my judgment, it must have come within a very few feet of the surface. Here there occurred a sharp turn to the right, and the excavation advanced almost upon a level.

Knowing nothing of the conformation above, or of the location of buildings, I was obliged to press forward blindly, conserving the faint light of the candle, and praying for a free passage. It was an experience to test the nerves, the intense stillness, the bare, gray walls, cold to the touch, the beams grazing my head, and upholding that mass of earth above, the intense darkness before and behind, with only the flickering radius of yellow light barely illuminating where I trod. Occasionally the wood creaked ominously, and bits of earth, jarred by my passage, fell upon me in clods. Altogether it was an experience I have no desire to repeat, although I was in no actual danger for some distance. Old Mortimer had built his tunnel well, and through all the years it had held safely, except where water had soaked through, rotting the timbers. The candle was sputtering with a final effort to remain alight when I came to the first serious obstruction. I had barely time in which to mark the nature of the obstacle before the flame died in the socket, leaving me in a blackness so profound it was like a weight. For the moment I was practically paralyzed by fear, my muscles limp, my limbs trembling. Yet to endeavor to push forward was no more to be dreaded than to attempt retracing my steps. In one way there was hope; in the other none.

With groping fingers I verified the situation, as that brief glance ere the candle failed had revealed it. A beam had fallen, letting down a mass of earth, but was wedged in such a way as to leave a small opening above the floor, barely sufficient for a man to wiggle through. How far even this slight passage extended, or what worse obstruction lay hidden beyond was all conjecture. It was a mere chance in which I must risk life in hope of saving it—I might become helplessly wedged beneath the timbers, or any movement might precipitate upon me a mass of loosened earth. It was a horrid thought, the death of a burrowing rat; and I dare not let my mind dwell upon the dread possibility. Slowly, barely advancing an inch at a time, I began the venture, my hands blindly groping for the passage, the cold perspiration bathing my body. The farther I penetrated amid the debris, the greater became the terror dominating me, yet to draw back was next to impossible. The opening grew more contracted; I could scarcely force myself forward, digging fingers and toes into the hard earth floor, the obstructing timber scraping my body. It was an awful, heartrending struggle, stretched out flat like a snake in the darkness, the loose earth showering me with each movement. There was more than one support down; I had to double about to find opening; again and again I seemed to be against an unsurpassable barrier; twice I dug through a mass of fallen dirt, once for three solid feet, throwing the loosened earth either side of me, and pushing it back with my feet, thus utterly blocking all chance of retreat. Scarcely was this accomplished when another fall from above came, half burying head and shoulders, and compelling me to do the work over. The air grew foul and sluggish, but I was toiling for life, and dug at the debris madly, reckless of what might fall from above. Better to be crushed than to die of suffocation, and the very desperation with which I strove proved my salvation. For what remained of the roof held, and I struggled through into the firmer gallery beyond, faint from exhaustion, yet as quickly reviving in the fresher air. I had reached the end of the passage before I comprehended the truth. It opened in the side of a gulley, coming out between the roots of a great tree.

I was a wreck in body and mind, my face streaked with earth, my hair filled with dirt, my clothing torn and disreputable. Laboring for breath, my fingers raw and bleeding, I lay there, with scarcely enough strength remaining to keep from rolling to the bottom of the ravine. For some moments I was incapable of either thought or action, every ounce of energy having been expended in that last desperate struggle. I lay panting, with eyes closed, hardly realizing that I was indeed alive. Slowly, throb by throb, my heart came back into regularity of beat, and my brain into command. My eyes opened, and I shuddered with horror, as I recognized that dismal opening into the side of the hill. Clinging to the tree trunk I attained my feet, still swaying from weakness, and was thus able to glance about over the edge of the bank, and gain some conception of my immediate surroundings.

It was early dawn, the eastern sky that shade of pale gray which precedes the sun, a few, white, fleecy clouds sailing high above, already tinged with red reflection. I must have been in that earth prison since the morning of the previous day; it seemed longer, yet even that expiration of time proved that those who had imprisoned me there had left me to die. God! I couldn't believe that—not of her! Clear as the evidence appeared, I yet fought down the thought bitterly, creeping on hands and knees over the edge of the bank, to where I could sit on the grass, and gaze about in the growing light. The house was to the left, an apple orchard between, and a low fence enclosing a garden. I could gain but glimpses of the mansion through the intervening trees, but it was large, imposing, a square, old-fashioned house, painted white, with green shutters. It appeared deserted, and no spirals of smoke ascended from the kitchen chimney. Apparently not even the servants were yet stirring. However, there was smoke showing farther to the right, but I had to move before I could see the cause clearly—the smouldering remains of what must have been a large barn. I advanced in that direction, skirting the orchard, and a row of negro cabins. These were deserted, the doors open, and two of them exhibited evidences of fire. A storehouse had its door battered in, a huge timber, evidently used as a ram, lying across the threshold, and many of the boxes and barrels within had been smashed with axes. The ground all about had been trampled by horses' hoofs, and only a smouldering fragment of the stables remained.

I stayed about perplexed, unable to decipher the meaning of such destruction. Surely Grant would never dare such a deed with his unarmed force. Besides Elmhurst was the property of a loyalist, ay! the colonel of his regiment. Not even the madness of anger would justify so wanton an act. Whatever the mystery I could never hope to solve it loitering there; the house itself would doubtless reveal the story, and I turned in that direction, skirting the fence, yet exercising care, for there might still remain defenders within, behind those green blinds, to mistake me for an enemy. I saw nothing, no sign of life, as I circled through the trees of the orchard, and came out upon the grass-plot facing the front porch. The sun was up now, and I could perceive each detail. There was a smashed window to the right, a green shutter hanging dejectedly by one hinge; the great front door stood wide open, and the body of a dead man lay across the threshold, a dark stain of blood extending across the porch floor.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Queen's Rangers.

A bullet had struck the head full, shattering one of the supports, and the broad steps were scarred and splintered. The man lay face upward, his feet inside the hallway, one side of his head crushed in. He was roughly dressed in woolen shirt and patched smallclothes, and wore gold hoops in his ears, his complexion dark enough for a mulatto, with hands seared and twisted. Surely the fellow was no soldier; he appeared more to me like one who had followed the sea. I stepped over his body, and glanced the length of the hall. The chandelier was shattered, the glass gleaming underfoot, the stair rail broken into a jagged splinter, and a second man, shot through the eye, rested half upright propped against the lower step. He was a sandy-bearded fellow, no better dressed than the one without, but with a belt about him, containing pistol and knife. His yellow teeth protruding gave his ghastly features a fiendish look. Beyond him a pair of legs stuck out from behind the staircase clad in long cavalry boots, and above these, barely showing, the green cloth of the Queen's Rangers. Then Grant had not gone when this attack was made, or else he had left some men behind? I dragged the body out into the light so I might see the face—it was the Irishman who had helped in my capture.

LOTS OF BIG GAME IN SOUTH AFRICA

Buck Are Raised in Thousands For Sport And the Market—Pays Well Both Ways

The average person, no doubt, regards the springbok, wildebeeste, and blesbuk as rare specimens of South African game. It will no doubt come as a surprise to know that there are still thousands upon thousands of these game in existence, and in fact, in some parts of South Africa farmers derive huge incomes from their game alone.

One farmer goes in almost exclusively for breeding game, and during the season he shoots some hundreds of buck and sends them to market. On his farm there are about 15,000 head of game, consisting mainly of wildbeeste and besbuk, with a few thousand springbok. The farm is about 19,000 acres in extent and one portion of it is reserved as a sanctuary, and as soon as the buck go on to this portion they are perfectly safe, as never a shot is fired at them while in their special reserve.

This reserve is only divided from the rest of the farm by a road or cart track, and it is really wonderful how the buck know they are safe there. On other parts of the farm they are so wild that it is difficult to get within rifle range of them, whereas in the sanctuary one can ride within a hundred yards of either the wildbeeste or blesbuk.

The method usually employed of shooting buck for market is as follows: A couple of men who are good shots hide behind antheaps or mounds of earth, at a distance of about 400 yards from a fence, not far from and leading to the sanctuary. Knowing that the buck as soon as they are frightened immediately rush for their reserve, a couple of native boys, well mounted, are told off to round up the buck and drive them so that they gallop along the fence to the reserve. As soon as they draw level with the hidden sportsmen these start firing, and before the buck are out of range each man will have fired nine or ten shots, accounting for perhaps a dozen buck. They go through this manœuvre a few times during the day, and as soon as there are sufficient shot to make a good waggon load, they are dispatched to Johannesburg or one of the principal markets, to grace the tables of both poor and rich, who all regard venison as a special treat.

The farmer mentioned seldom makes no less than $7,500 during the six months' shooting season. The bulk of this amount is derived from shooting and sending buck to the market, but he has other ways of making his buck a source of profit. When the buck have young he always catches a few pairs and rears them by hand, later selling them at a big price to zoological gardens or to private individuals who want to stock their farms with buck.

Shooting parties are permitted to shoot on this farm at a fixed price of so much per head for each variety of buck shot, and it is no unusual thing for a party to spend as much as $250 for a few days' shooting.

These sportsmen have a more arduous, if less effective, method of shooting, as they drive over the veldt until they get within range of the buck, and then jump out of the cart quickly and fire a few shots, usually at a long range. If successful in shooting any they tie a white rag around the dead buck; this serves the double purpose of marking the spot where the buck lies and also frightens off vultures, which would soon attack the carcasses.

RAILWAYS IN B. C.

Hundred Millions to be Spent in Next Few Years

Sir Richard McBride estimates the amount to be spent in railway construction in British Columbia during the next four years at $100,000,000 and expresses the opinion that the expenditure will in all probability be over that amount. Mention of the figures brings one to a realization of what is being done and what is contemplated by the different railway companies that are anxious to do business on the Pacific seaboard. Activity is not confined to any one road, but to all of the four which already have lines in British Columbia, namely, the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Great Northern, The Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific, and also the Pacific Great Eastern, which is reckoned practically as the Grand Trunk Pacific. Work has been begun on the large pier of the Canadian Pacific Railway which will cost three-quarters of a million dollars, and excavation is proceeding on the site of the new depot. The Canadian Pacific Railway will spend more in British Columbia during the next few years than for many years past. The Great Northern will double track its lines between Vancouver and New Westminster.

Sufferer of Twenty Years States Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a Real Cure

"I can't remember any time during the past twenty years when my heart wasn't aching. If I bent over, dark specks would come before my eyes, and it seemed as if all the blood in my body wanted to rush to my head." Thus opens the letter of Mrs. Enoch S. Spry, of Putnam P. O., and continuing her interesting statement she says: "Work or exertion made my heart beat terrible, and going upstairs caused such shortness of breath that it fairly frightened me. I tell you how I feel to-day and you can understand what a great cure Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made. I feel strong enough now to work like a man, as for going upstairs on the run, it doesn't bother me at all. I eat and sleep as any person ought, and as for dizziness which used to frighten me so much, it has entirely disappeared. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a wonderful medicine. They helped me, and I know every woman that uses them will have comfort and good health.

The Borden Meeting.

Fifty invitation cards for the Borden meeting in Toronto on Monday night, were received yesterday by officers of the West Peterborough Liberal-Conservative Association and these are being distributed to the members. Train arrangements will be announced later.

Change in Marriage Law.

The new marriage regulations of the Ontario Government come into force to-day. These will prevent such catastrophies as a marriage performed in this city last December when the groom was drunk and the minister did not register the marriage for over three months after its solemnization (?).

A Lindsay Bird Goes Home.

The Lindsay bird of Paradise, caught at Nicholl's Oval, a few days ago, was shipped back to the wilds of Kent street yesterday.

Later.—The cage containing this bird missed the noon train by 3 minutes but was forwarded during the evening.

The City Dump.

Residents of North Monaghan, in the vicinity of May's School house, are complaining that the city dump there is offensive. The Board of Health and other township officials will request that the city stop using that locality as a sepulchre for dead animals and garbage.

A Prophesy Realised.

Mr. John Gormergan, the Hastings hotelkeeper, was a guest at the White House yesterday.

Mr. W. J. Doxee, of Campbellford, was a guest at the White House yesterday.

Well Known in Peterborough.

The Gerhardt Manufacturing Company, Limited, manufacturers of whitewear and blouses, 77 York St., Toronto, have assigned to G. T. Clarkson. The liabilities are placed at $15,000, with assets of about $10,000. The company have been in business for some years. A meeting of the creditors will be held next week. The firm did considerable business in Peterborough.

A Prophesy Realized.

Thirty years ago yesterday, Bowmanville "Statesman" said "Peterborough is the most steadily growing town in Canada. With a large circle of splendid country, magnificent water power and railway facilities, she seems destined ere long to become one of the cities of Canada. During the last year the population increased 830." The Stateman's prophesy has become realized.

Monaghan's Population Grows.

Owing to the rapidly growing population of North Monaghan, especially that portion of the township adjoining the city, more school accommodation is required. May's school house, just outside the city limits, is a two roomed building. It will either have to be enlarged or replaced by a bigger building. One hundred scholars are now in attendance there. The school trustees are now considering whether to add an additional story or erect another building.

A Keene Girl Caught?

Effie Wilson, of Keene, seems to have met a recently arrived immigrant on Dickson Tuesday night. The 7th Commandment was somewhat strained. The young man, at yesterday's police court was fined $5 and costs, on a charge of disorderly conduct. Effie was remanded for a week to enable the police to chase up her record. Detectives Newhall and Meagher were the ones wise to the combination mentioned and laid the information.

Rev. Dr. Gordon Coming.

Sunday, June 15, will be anniversary day at Murray street Baptist church. Rev. J. A. Gordon, D.D., pastor of the First Baptist Church of Montreal, will be the special preacher of that day. Dr. Gordon's name and fame have reached far beyond his own denomination and his own country, and he will doubtless be greeted by a congregation that will tax the capacity of the new building.

Another Lindsay Girl.

Another Lindsay bird of paradise (?), named Edith Brooks, who is a married woman, was charged with transgressing the strict lines of morality. Edith hankered for the great white way of Kent street and asked to be sent to Lindsay where her husband waits with open arms to welcome her. She will again satisfy her scenic desires, by sitting on the banks of the Scugog, and watch motor boats run on submerged

The company are plaintiffs in an action to recover from the City of Peterborough a sum varying from $7,000 to $20,000 for work said to have been done in connection with the construction of the Waterworks dam.

Police Court Paragraphs.

At yesterday's police court, Leonard Clark, charged with being drunk and disorderly, was fined $2 and costs, amounting in all to $5.75.

The case was one in which Clark was accused of starting a disturbance on George street, using complimentary remarks to P. B. Bullied on Monday evening.

The case of a local liquor dealer, charged with selling small quantities of liquor in unbroken packages, came up before the Magistrate. No authorities had yet been discovered by either Mr. G. N. Gordon or the Crown Attorney on the question of what constituted "unbroken packages," so the case was further adjourned until Friday.

57th For Belleville.

On June 3rd Belleville is to have the greatest celebration in its history. At the enthusiastic meeting of the citizens' celebration committee held last evening in the city hall, every man present was chuck full of desire to make the King's Birthday, 1913, a red letter day in the old city. There will be aeroplane flights, motor cycle races, etc. Col. Marsh announced, like everyone else, he had the event of the day, a grand military tournament, by the 15th Regt., 49th Regt., 24th Battery, and that he was in communition with Lieut.-Col. Clegg of the 57th Regt., Peterborough, and was nearly assured of the participation of that Regt., together with other branches of the services in a grant military spectacle

A DASTARDLY ACT

Paterson, N. J., May 14.—The west bound Erie train, known as the Chicago Express, had a narrow escape from wreck tonight when the locomotive crushed into a pile of rocks on the track here. The engineer sighted the obstruction in time to slow down. No one was hurt.

Last Monday the Erie board of directly in New York received a letter of the Black Hand type, which read "If you continue to stop trains for the accommodation of scabs at Paterson, we will cause an accident which will cause the Erie railroad to have damage suits for amounts running into millions."

Detectives were put on guard near the tracks of the road in this city where the strike of the silk mill workers is in its third month.

VOL. XL, NO. 115 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, MAY 16, 1913 PRICE, TWO CENTS.

IS NOT WITH NATIONALISTS PREMIER DENYS COMPACT

Hon. Mr. Lemieux Refuses to Accept Statement and Repeats Charges--Acting Solely on Admiralty Advice

Ottawa, May 15.—A question of privilege was raised at the opening of the House this morning by Dr. Clark, of Red Deer, in reference to an incorrect report that he had had luncheon with the Minister of Militia yesterday.

"I want it understood," he said, amid laughter, "that I have no objection to lunching with the Minister in his private capacity. Lest there should be any doubt about it, I would leave the idea rather that I am open to invitation. But the gathering yesterday was a gathering of militarists and I want the country to understand that I was not present in justice to my well known reputation as a man of peace."

The naval bill was then called, and Mr. W. M. German opened the discussion.

Proved Their Worth.

He began by referring to the fact that the debate had been long. But he did not regret that. It had shown the debating capacity and the physical capacity (laughter) of the members of parliament.

Mr. German asserted that he was as anxious that there should be unanimity over the bill as any member of the Government. The man who was responsible for the absence of any unanimity was the Prime Minister himself.

Cries of "Oh, Oh."

The Premier, Mr. German continued, had known in advance that this bill must prove contentious. He had known that it contained a principle that was contained in the Highways Act. Yet Mr. Borden had thrown this bill down into the arena of contention. There could be only one explanation. That was that the Premier was bound hand and foot to the Nationalists. Mr. Graham invited Mr. Borden to throw the Nationalists overboard and then his dreadnoughts could be launched in still water.

Annual Appropriation.

The member moved an amendment providing for annual appropriations of the sums for the construction of the dreadnoughts This was the same amendment which he moved in committee.

Mr. German then proceeded to declare that he would support the Premier if he would proceed under the Naval Service Act of 1910.

The division followed and Mr. German's amendment was defeated by 85 to 46, a majority of 39. All the Nationalists present voted against the amendment.

A Second Amendment.

When the vote was over the Hon. Mr. Lemieux rose with a second amendment.

"I would like," he began, "to say a word on behalf of Canada. We are all loyal to the Empire, but we are all devoted to Canada." He went on to sketch the organization of the Canadian Militia and to argue that the navy should be organized in the line Sir George Cartier took in regard to the militia. He renewed the charge that there was an alliance between the Nationalists and the Conservatives and asserted that the Tory jingo organization paid for the circulation of the Nationalist organ in the last election.

DOCTOR BILLED FRIEND FOR MONTH HE WAS IN EUROPE

Judge Scores Physicians, Lawyers, Notaries, and Other Professional Gentlemen for Their "Bad, Excessively Bad." System

Montreal, May 15.—Physicians, lawyers, notaries and other professional gentlemen, were scored by Judge Lebouf in the course of the hearing of a case in the circuit court yesterday.

"I myself sometime ago," said the judge, "happened to receive a bill from a physician—one of my good friends. He billed me for $85.

"I was surprised at the moment. I could not make it out and asked for details. My good friend, complying with my request, sent me in a detailed bill or account. Would you believe me when I say that he had quite a few itemized entries dated a certain month—and the interesting part of it all is that during that particular month I was away in Europe, and hence could not have had any consultations with him. The system is bad, excessively bad."

CAPACITY OF GAS PLANT TO BE INCREASED

Peterboro' Light and Power Co. Intend to Develop Gas Lighting Business to its Fullest Possible Extent

EXTENSIVE ALTERATIONS

Extensive alterations and improvements are being made to the gas plant of the Peterborough Light and Power Company at the foot of Simcoe street and a large construction gang has been at work for some time. The Light and Power Company will spend $5,000 in this work, which has for its object the increasing of the capacity of the plant and the improving of the quality of the gas produced.

It is is the intention of the company to develop the gas lighting business in Peterborough to the fullest possible extent. During recent years vast strides have been made in Europe and in the larger cities of the continent in the developing of gas lighting. Such improvements have been made that gas lighting is now cheaper and more satisfactory that the el[illegible]. It is especially adapted to large stores on account of the fact that it more nearly approaches the properties of daylight. The modern gas arc lamp can be controlled from a distance as conveniently as can the electric lamp. No matches are required and a steady and better distribution of light is provided. The Light and Power Company feel that it is time the citizens of Peterborough were made acquainted with the improvements that have been made in gas lighting, and with this end in view have undertaken the present alterations. They intend to make gas lighting the main branch of the company's gas business in this City, and will devote particular attention to the business section, the light being particularly adapted for use in stores.

A new purifier house, very solid in construction and built of brick and concrete is being erected. New boilers will be installed and high steel stacks substituted for the brick chimney now doing service. The air fans and gas blowing machinery throughout the plant will be duplicated, and the capacity of the works increased 30 per cent., while the gas will be greatly improved in quality.

SIX MILITANT SUFFS SENT TO OLD BAILEY FOR TRIAL

They Promise to Behave During Intervening Time--Out On Bail

London. May 85.—Six militant suffragette leaders and a male adherent of the "Cause" were committed to-day by Henry Curtis Bennett, the magistrate at Bow street Police Court, to take their trial at the Old Bailey Sessions on charges of conspiracy under the Malicious Damage to Property Act. All of them pleaded "not guilty" and reserved their defence. Bail was allowed on the usual undertaking given by the prisoners that they would refrain from all participation in militancy during their trial.

The amount of the bail ranged from $4,000 in the cases of Miss Alice Lake, Miss Laura Lennox and Mrs. Beatrice Saunders, to $15,000 in the case of the analytical chemist Clayton.

Kept Tab on Convictions.

The militant "roll of honor" entitled "The crimes record book." created profound interest when it was produced at Bow street police court during to-day's proceedings against the suffragette leaders. Miss Harriett Rel[illegible] Kerr, Miss Alice Lake, Miss Rachael Barrett, Mrs. Beatrice Saunders, Miss Annie Kenney, Miss Laura Lennox and the chemist. Clayton occupied the prisoner's enclosure.

Particulars of some 1,400 convictions for suffragette outrages in which 456 persons were concerned were entered in the list exhibited which was accompanied by receipts or money paid to some of the perpetrators.

Dissatisfaction With Senate

The right of the Senate to revise the acts of the people's representatives in parliament is being questioned more and more. It is freely conceded on both sides of politics that any revising that is to be done, ought to be done by the people by a referendum. The result will probably be that the "cabinet of party hacks" as it has been ungratefully called, will disappear after the next election.

NEW WITNESS IS FOUND IN THE GIBSON CASE

Mr. Bond Will Appeal For New Trial on Unusual Grounds --Statement Based on Hebrew Custom

Toronto, May 15.—An interesting affidavit is being prepared by Mr. Aubrey Bond, counsel for Charles Gibson, in readiness for his application for an appeal. This is a document signed by one of the most prominent Hebrews in Toronto, relating to the custom of his people of covering the faces of their dead, especially where there are signs of suffering, or blood marks.

"Considerable curiosity was awakened at the trial by the production of a big piece of granite, which had been laid on the face of Rosenthal, as he lay with his head turned sideways, in the pool of blood," said Mr. Bond this morning. "Apparently this had been very carefully placed in position, and, at the time of the trial, there was no explanation of the fact offered by the Crown.

WAS NOT DROPPED ON HEAD.

"I have made careful inquiries and find this custom of covering their dead, is very strong among the Hebrews. Now, Charlie Gibson knew nothing of this custom.

"Clearly the stone could not have been dropped on Rosenthal's head. It was heavy enough to have crushed it. Therefore, the clear implication is that someone familiar with the Hebrews, placed the stone where it was found.

"Who this is, I will not say, but, the fact is significant enough for me to present, in the form of an affidavit, in the appeal for a new trial."

SOME GREAT FEATURES IN MONDAY'S BIG PROCESSION

Borden Welcome Will Eclipse Any Previous Demonstra- in Canada

Toronto, May 15.—The demand for information in regard to the coming of the Premier to Toronto next Monday indicates the high state of enthusiasm among the citizens.

The headquarters of the Central and the Ward Liberal Conservative Associations are hives of activity, the stalwarts making preparations for the procession and demonstration, which is calculated to eclipse any political celebration that has ever taken place in Canada.

Battleships on Floats.

The Conservative Association of Ward One and Two are co-operating in their preparations for the big parade and demonstration. At an executive meeting last evening it was decided to have a huge joint float for the two wards, emblazoned with one or more battleships and decorated with bunting and flags. Each ward will in addition have one or more smaller floats all emblematic of the Conservative policy of participation in Imperial naval defence.

Members of the two wards will assemble in Victoria Hall, Queen street east, at seven o'clock on Monday, where a line will be formed and the delegation will march along Queen street to York and thence to the York street bridge, where the other contingents will fall in line. The procession will start along Front street at 7.30 o'clock sharp.

Will Leave to Make Room.

Mr. James Norris, President of Ward Two Association, stated this morning that there would be a "bumper" contingent from both Wards One and Two. "We are not going to play hoggish, however," he said, "because we are at the head of the line. The impossibility of all the parade being admitted has been explained to our men and it has been explained to only a limited number will stay, allowing room for the members of other associations farther back in the line." A meeting of the executive was held this morning, at which final arrangements were made.

DR. WRIGHT IN SAN FRANCISCO

San Fransico, May 15.—Two members of the relief party that recovered the body of Captain Robert Scott, overcome by a blizzard on his return from the South Pole, arrived here to-day on the Royal Mail steamer Tahiti, from Sydney. They are Charles S. Wright, of Cambridge University, England and Frank Debenhem, a graduate of the University of Sydney, Australia. They will make their way to England by way of Vancouver and Chicago.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Girl of Fifteen Years Said to Have Been Living With a Fenelon Falls Man in Tent.

Special to the Times.

Lindsay, May 15.—A girl of the tender age of 15 years has been handed over to Matron Sharpe of the Children's Shelter for care. It is alleged that the child has been living with a man from Fenelon Falls, in a tent at Burnt River. The County and town police are investigating this case and an arrest is momentarily expected.

ST. THOMAS TAKES FIRST GAME FROM PETERBOROUGH

A heavy sky greeted the players yesterday at Riverside park, and it threatened several times to give the fans a shower. The weatherman must have slipped a cog and handed out a "nice cool day." No, it was not cold, the fans could not hear the decisions of the Umpire for the chattering of teeth. As for the players, why they just couldn't play ball. They were kept busy dancing around to keep their feet warm.

There was nothing of a startling nature took place yesterday, the cold weather having taken all the "old life" out of the boys and the game just dwindled along in favor of the visitors. Only 15 hits was secured of Treacy and he pitched a good, steady game at that. Several times the Petes got around to third base, but the boys couldn't connect with Clements of the visitors.

The visitors played a good steady game all through, and although Pitcher Clements looked a little wild, he always managed to steady down before any real damage was done. Timely hitting was also a feature of their game hitting just when a hit was required.

The batting order:

St. Thomas—
CRAVEN—Right Field.
KUSTUS—Centre Field.
WRIGHT—Third Base.
ORT—First Base.
GURNAY—Second Base.
POWERS—Catcher.
CLEMENTS—Pitcher.

Peterborough—
BRANT—Short Stop.
TOTTEN—Third Base.
ROWAN—First Base.
McNEAL—Catcher.
HILLIARD—Centre Field.
CHAPDELAINE—Right Field.
SARGENT—Second Base.
TREACY—Pitcher.
Umpire—Black.

SPORTS continued on page 5.

PETERBOROUGH..........	0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 0---1
ST. THOMAS..............	0 0 1 2 1 0 1 0 3---4

McCarty and Pelky are matched to fight on May 24th.

THE GERMAN ARMY

French Villagers to Learn of German War Preparations

Paris, May 15.—Perils of the present inferiority of the French army to that of Germany are to be called to the attention of the country by placards posted in every village in France, by the Republican-Democratic party. This party is represented by seventy-six members in the Chamber of Deputies, and is one of the most important groups supporting the present ministry.

The placards assert that Germany will have on October 1, 866,000 effectives in its army, against 457,000 in the French army.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

Advertisements under above heads, 20 words and under, one insertion, 15c.; 3 insertions, 25c.; 6 insertions, 40c.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, we make a speciality of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 385 George St., directly opposite Croseman's store.

MADE HIS WAY IN THE NORTH

A Fine Story of a Real Character in Northern Ontario, With Its Old Country Connection

The younger son of a younger son of an English house so illustrious that some decades ago it furnished Canada with a Viceroy, came in advanced middle age to northern Ontario and with his own hands built himself a house, not much to look at, certainly, but enough to shield himself and his wife and children from the wind and the rain and the frost and the snow. It was Home. Years passed. But what a change! The little beeches he had planted yesterday to screen the shack from the public gaze now embowered a colonial mansion, with deep verandahs for the quick, hot summers and wide fireplaces for the long, cold winters. In the gully, where the turf was as close as on an Oxford lawn and as green as emerald, three or four of the herd of pedigree cattle he had bred drank at the creek, lazily flicking off the flies. He walked through a paddock where he was feeding cattle for the Toronto market, till he came to the tennis court, where his sons were flying to and fro after the ball. Fred, the elder, had just returned from his first term at 'Varsity, and to-morrow he was going to Moose Factory, where he was going to work during his vacation as shipping clerk to an elevator company. He remembered what he told him when he left for his first term.

"Now, my boy, after I've given you a start you've got to pay your own way; It's no disgrace to work in this country, and you can get real hard practical experience of the workaday world in the vacation to make real the theories you will learn in the class room. In Canada there's room for everybody, and you don't have to worry for the future."

Turning back, he looked over his farm, stretching clear to the railroad which ran north to James Bay and south to Toronto. It was green with crops. He must presently go down to the men who were picking strawberries for the Cobalt market, and if he saw any more bugs on the potatoes he must have them sprayed. And all this land was his own; his, the younger son's, who had no more chance of becoming a landed proprietor in England than of damming the St. Lawrence.

He could now look back with pleasure to the years of hope, of transitory disappointment and of final achievement since the time he and his wife and the children came to the old log shack on the bank of the creek. He lived again the despair of the first year, when a June frost froze all the crops, and his surprise and relief when he found that it was only the tops that were brown, the nights when the mosquitoes would not let them sleep and the triumph of the first harvesting.

With that money he had bought his first calves, and erected the little old barn which he was still using as a place to keep his buggies and harness. The first year he had been president of the local agricultural society he had commenced the present house, a very modest frame building as at first designed, but which he had enlarged and added to as years went by. The year before last he had entertained a visitor from the old country, who had told him that the old estate had at last been broken up, and was in small holdings, and he had wondered when he had found himself comparing his own lot with that of the present head of the house, much to his own advantage. Next year, perhaps, he would take a trip to the old country and see what things were like for himself.

WESTERN RELICS OF RARE INTEREST

Interesting Historical Objects Gathered at Selkirk—Links With the Long Past

Few places in Canada can show more relics of Canadian historical interest than Selkirk, Manitoba. These were displayed at a Winnipeg exhibition. The first to be seen at the end of the room was a gun, the property of Magnus Harper, which was used with the powder horn at Seven Oaks. A pair of snowshoes were of special interest and wonderful workmanship. They were brought from the mouth of the Mackenzie river over 30 years ago. The fine gutted work of the shoe is seldom seen in the present days. They are the only kind that can be used to much purpose in the far north. In the case at the side were a number of interesting historical articles. A bayonet which was used in the "Thin Red Line" at Inkerman by one of the Sutherland Highlanders is one of the first. Then came the axe which was the property of Senator John Sutherland, and is over 100 years old, yet still fit for use. A picture of Sir John Moore and the battle of Corunna was an heirloom of one of the early settlers. Of interest also was the spinning wheel, the property of Mrs. Polson. Behind the simple machine was a row of blankets spun by the wheel and though over 100 years old they look as new and fresh as many of the pieces of work which one sees to-day. Besides the spinning wheel were the other instruments for the art, the card, the reel, the clipping shears, and a number of other domestic articles, compasses of somewhat rude construction, a pot hanger, a catfish gaff, an old bow tie for cattle, the yard stick, the dog whip and the stone sledge.

An Old Hammer

An interesting article was the old steel stone hammer which was used by Duncan Macrae, one of the first masons in the valley. He was the man who did most of the mason work on Lower Fort Garry, on St. Andrews church, the old St. John's cathedral and the old Kildonan church. The gauge of the Hon. William Fraser was also to be seen, and side by side an old pot hanger which bears the date 1770. A whip saw and the stillyards for weighing, a pair of old tongs of prehistoric style, an ox hauling pin, a sewing champ, and a pair of candle moulds, were also of special interest, as also were the grain sickle and flail, a number of tiny Indian brooms and an old shoe last which had done many a good day's work. Side by side were a white man's cradle and an old Indian cradle for the papoose which had served its excellent purpose for 99 years and looks still good for the century.

Of more recent years but of no less interest was the mace of the first Manitoba legislature, which had been loaned by the provincial government and which was carried first over 40 years ago. A fine rabbit robe from the early days was seen at the end of the southern case in the museum.

In the centre of the room was one of the cannon which was brought out to the settlement by Lord Selkirk himself and which was picked out of the Red river some time ago. It is now located at Dauphin but was sent down specially on loan to the exhibition. Behind it was the first bell that was in use in Rupert's Land and its deep resonant tones were just such as were needed in those early days of scattered settlement. The bell bears the date 1826 and was in use for many a year at York Factory. Loaned by the Hudson's Bay Company were a couple of sleighs of unusual interest, the first, a gentleman's cariole, and the other a dog pack sled all packed up ready for the journey.

Next came a table made by one of the early settlers, John Francis. It was surmounted by an old Indian mat as strong and substantial as on the day when it was made. The western wall of the room had in the centre the portrait of Hon. Donald Gunn, justly termed the "Nestor of Manitoba," for his work on the history of the province. A number of old chairs were to be seen underneath, the most interesting being that which was the property of Hon. William Fraser.

On the northern side was the charter of the Hudson's Bay company which extended over four big pages of parchment. The document was loaned by the company officials. Beside it was a picture of the company officials from the year 1873 till 1881. Near it also a York boat, in miniature, the work being very cleverly executed, and in front were six pictures giving scenes from western life and lithographed by William Day.

The seal of the Red River Settlement was also on view side by side with the shoe buckles which Lord Selkirk wore in 1812, the year of the first settlement in Winnipeg. An Indian tom-tom, a rogan and a number of moccasins of fine manufacture made the first Indian exhibits. Most interesting in this section were the full leather dresses of an Indian woman and man with loon neck vest, all of which were many years old.

Six picture scenes from western life adorned the walls and were loaned by the provincial government, and gave some idea of the life of the earlier days, the times of the buffalo and Indian warfare.

Outside near the arts building was the other section of the museum, which included a log hut brought from St. Peter's reserve. There were several boats of varied construction, an Eskimo canoe, a birch lined canoe, and the old-time dug-out boat. There were also an old Red river cart, several plows of English and Scottish make, as well as the ruder Red river type.

Perhaps the most interesting historic relic was the sleigh in which Monkman drove Lieutenant-Governor Schultz, as the latter came to he, in 1869 from Parkdale to the mouth of the Red river, whence he escaped east from the plotting designs of Riel on his life.

STOP TRAINS BY WIRELESS

Signalman 20 Miles Away Can Apply Brakes, Says Inventor

Herr von Kramer, the inventor of the system of communicating by telephone from moving trains, says he has developed an invention in conjunction with Herr Kapp, who has evolved a sensitive detector, whereby it is possible to pick up the feeble currents received by a train and relay them up into stronger currents so as to operate electric bells and hooters and even apply brakes. He declares that a signalman from ten to twenty miles away will thereby be enabled to stop a train by merely pressing a button.

MAY REVOLUTIONIZE OYSTER FARMING

One of the most important discoveries that has ever been made with respect to oyster culture was explained for the first time to the Committee on Fisheries of the Commission of Conservation by Dr. Joseph Stafford of McGill University, who made the discovery as the result of many years' close scientific investigation. The great difficulty in oyster culture heretofore has been the inability to determine the exact time when the swimming oyster eggs are ready to sink to the bottom to attach themselves to hard, clean bodies called cultch, put there for that purpose. This cultch, which usually consists of old oyster shells, has to be put in the water only a few hours before the young oysters sink or it becomes slimy and useless. Dr. Stafford, after years of patient investigation, has discovered a means of telling just when the eggs are ready to sink to the bottom, so that the oyster farmer knows the exact time he should put down the cultch. The committee passed a resolution recommending that the Government instruct fishermen how to apply Dr. Stafford's discovery.

INCONSISTENCY

Liberals in the House of Commons are as opposed to the closure to-day as they were in favour of it in 1911. Which shows that the swallowing capacity of the Opposition has not been impaired, whatever else may have happened. The men who advocated closure in 1911 vote against it in 1913. The men who obstruct in 1913 were loud in their condemnation of obstruction in 1911.

BRYAN SPARRING FOR TIME.

In the California controversy it is clear that the Federal Government, acting through its Secretary of State is sparring for time, which, under the circumstances, is not at all a bad thing to do. Time is often a great sedative, and a little delay may quiet the nerves of the anti-Japanese politicians on the Coast.

There are, however, other and higher reasons for delay. California, in the minds at least of its own citizens who are not much concerned about treaties, has taken its stand on the doctrine of State rights, and a Democratic administration hesitates to assail a doctrine of which the Democratic party from time immemorial has been the unwavering champion. Before confronting State rights with national treaty obligations, the Administration seeks time to carry the position by a flank movement.

Possibly the whole matter can be arranged by an enlargement of the existing treaty with Japan—an enlargement that would restrict the kind of Japanese emigration that rouses California's alarm, and at the same time would satisfy the Japanese already in the State respecting occupation and ownership of real estate. If all parties can be satisfied by an agreement, then an agreement is the best possible solution.

But if time and diplomacy fail then the Federal Government will have to face the issue, either with California or with Japan.

It is within the jurisdiction of a State to make laws, with respect, to ownership; but it is within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government to make treaties which are binding on the inhabitants of every State.

In the treaty with Japan, the Japanese were given the right to hold land for certain purposes—commercial purposes, for instance. Farming operations are not mentioned. Are they too included in the treaty? Here is a point for judicial interpretation: so that when delays provided by diplomacy have been exhausted, a new set may be provided by the courts.

If Breathing is Difficult, If Nostrils are Plugged, You Have Catarrh

At Last a Remedy that already has Permanently Cured Thousands.

Perhaps you haven't heard of the new remedy—it's so pleasant to use—fills the nose, throat and lungs with a healing balsamic vapor like the air of the pine woods. It's really a wonderful remedy—utilizes that marvelous antiseptic only found in the Blue Gum tree of Australia.

The name of this grand specific is Catarrhozone, and you can't find its equal on earth for coughs, colds, catarrh or throat trouble. You see it's not longer necessary to drug the stomach—that spoils digestions—just simply inhale the balsamic essences of Catarrhozone, which are so rich in healing that they drive out every trace of Catarrh in no time.

"I look upon Catarrhozone as the most valuable medical discovery of recent years," writes R. V. Potter, of Prince Albert. "As a long sufferer from nasal and throat catarrh I was obliged to take considerable medicine and, although it helped me, my digestion was always disturbed and the catarrh didn't go away. With Catarrhozone it was different. It cleaned my nose and throat of all phlegm and discharged a stuffy feeling in my nose and frontal headaches. To-day I am entirely free from Catarrh, and I use my Catarrhozone Inhaler a little every day in order to prevent the disease from returning."

With Catarrhozone experimenting ends. A permanent curative action begins. Lasting relief from Catarrh results. The large size costs $1.00, last two months and is guaranteed. Small size 50c.; sample size 25. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

N. MONAGHAN COUNCIL

May 12th, 1913.

All the members of the council being present, the reeve in the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting were dispensed with. Mr. C. J. Carroll, representing the Hamilton Realty Co., came before the council and asked them to consent to the annexation by the City of Peterborough of a portion (about 12 acres) of lot 12, Con. 3, North Monaghan, which they are anxious to have within the city limits.

Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Morrow, that the council hereby agrees and consents that the above described property be annexed to the City of Peterborough on condition that the debenture debt for the school section No. 2, be provided for and also subject to the approval of the Township solicitor.—Carried.

Mr. Carroll also made application for to have King George St. and Wilson Ave. graded.

Moved by Mr. May, seconded by Mr. Dobbin, that Wilson Ave. and King George st. be graded, providing the stumps are removed from Wilson Ave., as provided in the resolution passed by the council last year. —Carried.

Mr. A. E. Dixon came before the Council with a plan of part of lot 13, Con. 11, park lot 15, Township of North Monaghan, for acceptance by the council.

Moved by Mr. Dobbin, seconded by Mr. May, that providing Mr. J. T. O'Connell consents to give his share of Rose Ave., as shown on plan of the above mentioned property, the Reeve and Clerk are hereby authorised to attach their names and also the corporal seal of the Township, to signify the acceptance by this council of the same.—Carried.

Mr. John Williams came before the council and asked that the ditch along the road on which he lives be cleaned out.

Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Morrow, that Mr. Williams' request be granted.—Carried.

A communication was received from Mr. H. Rush, asking permission for the City of Peterborough to run a sewer from Lock street on Lansdowne street to Maude, a distance of 240 feet.

Moved by Mr. May, seconded by Mr. Dobbin, that Mr. Rush's request be granted and that he protect the Township from all damages during the construction of the same.

A petition was presented from the Toronto Savings and Loan Co., and Mr. W. D. Morris asking that sidewalks be built on the north and south sides of Morrow street from Sherbourne street to Haggart street; on the north and south sides of Albertus street from Sherbourne street to Morphet Ave; along the north-western side of Morphet Ave., from the northern boundary of lot No. 136 to the southern boundary of Morrow street, and along the western side of Haggart street from Morrow street, to the northern boundary of lot No. 122 together with the necessary crossings at the intersection of each of the said streets.

Signed on behalf of the property owners, by The Toronto Savings & Loan Co., W. G. Morrow, manager.

W. D. Morris, Lots 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, Morrow street.

Moved by Mr. May, seconded by Mr. Morrow, that the request of the petitioners be granted and that the sidewalks be built as requested above. The same to be paid by a yearly frontage tax on the property and that debentures be issued covering a period of twenty years.

A communication was received from the Peterborough Automobile Association, asking the Township for permission to rake the rolling stones off some of the public highways and also to fill in depressions in the road in some places.

Moved by Mr. May, seconded by Mr. Morrow, that the request of the Peterborough Automobile Association be granted.

Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Morrow, that Mr. Gordon's communication be received and the same be placed on file. No action being taken.

Moved by Mr. May, seconded by Mr. Dobbin, that the communication of Mr. R. H. Parsons, City Engineer, regarding having some work done at an eary date on Monaghan Road from Charlotte street to Jackson Park, be received, and that Mr. Ward road commissioner for that division, be instructed to attend to this work from Weller street north to Jackson Park, as the portion of street on Monaghan road from Charlotte street to Weller street, is shortly to be annexed to the city.

The Council then proceeded to take up the appeals to the Court of Revision.

COURT OF REVISION

May 12th, 1913.

Each member of the council was duly sworn a member of the Court of Revision, to try the appeals presented to the court to-day.

Moved by Mr. May, and seconded by Mr. Morrow, that Mr. J. H. Forster be chairman of the Court of Revision.

The first appeal taken up was that of Mr. Robert Ingram. He complained of being assessed too high.

A communication was also received from Mrs. Margaret Ingram, stating that they had sold a house and half the lot to Mr. H. E. Lucas, being w. ½ lot No. 5, plan 32.

Moved by Mr. May, seconded by Mr. Morrow, that Mr. Ingram's assessment be confirmed, with the exception of the portion sold, and that Mr. H. E. Lucas be assessed for the w ½ lot 5, plan 32, as Mr. Ingram requested.

Mr. R. J. Waller's appeal was next dealt with. Mr. Waller stated that his assessment had been raised $300 owing to his tearing down an old barn and erecting a new one.

Moved by Mr. May, seconded by Mr. Howden, that Mr. Waller's assessment be reduced $200.—Carried.

This being all the appeals the court of revision then adjourned, and the council then proceeded with business.

By-Law No. 662 to authorize the construction of a bridge near Crawford's Grove, on Monaghan road, between lots 12 and 13 in the 11th Concession of the said Township of North Monaghan.

By the consent of the Minister of Public Works for the appropriation of $300 by the Legislative Assembly, and by a tax levied upon the ratepayers of this Township, to the amount of $400. This by-law was given its third reading, and a resolution was moved by Mr. Forster and seconded by Mr. Morrow, that By-law No. 662, as read a third time be accepted and finally passed, and the Reeve and Clerk are hereby authorized to attach their names and the corporate seal.

Moved by Mr. May, seconded by Mr. Dobbin, that the clerk write the Dixon Bridge Co., Campbellford, Ont. for plans and specifications for the above mentioned bridge.—Carried.

Mr. Waller asked the Council to take some action to have the Smith boundary road repaired as it is in very bad condition, and was informed that Mr. Ward, the road commissioner, was the proper man to see regarding having work done in that division.

An application was received from the Henry Hope and Sons, Limited, for permission to build a siding from the C.P.R. across Monaghan road (as per plan presented) into their property in the city limits.

Moved by Mr. May, seconded by Mr. Dobbin, that the Henry Hope & Sons be given permission to build a siding across Monaghan road into their property.

Moved by Mr. Dobbin, seconded by Mr. Morrow, that Mr. May be appointed overseer for the construction of the bridge to be built near Crawford's Grove in the 11th Con.

Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Morrow, that the following accounts be passed and ordered to be paid:

T. M. McFadden, repairs town hall $4.25; The Municipal World Debenture Registrar, $4.25; E. McGregor, repairing roads, $1.00; John Scott, repairing roads, $1.75; James C. Morrow, cleaning ditch, $1.50; Geo. H. May, cleaning ditch, $1.50; Bert Sanderton, postage, etc., $4.75. Total, $19.10.

A communication was received from Mr. J. T. O'Connell, asking the council to have a culvert built on Romaine street, running through his property where the creek crosses the street. He also asks the council to grade St. James Street on the Morgan lot sub-division.

Moved by Mr. Morrow, seconded by Mr. May, that a culvert be built on Romaine street.

Moved by Mr. Dobbin, seconded by Mr. Forster, that Mr. May and Mr. Morrow be authorized to oversee the construction of the culvert on Romaine street.

The following sessional allowances of the council and salaries provided by By-laws, were made as follows:

W. G. Howden, sessional allowance, $20.00; J. H. Forster, $15.00; Jas. C. Morrow, $15.00; Geo. H. May, $15.00; Robt. A. Dobbin, $15.00; Bruce Johnston, ¼ year's salary, clerk, $62.50; W. H. Bradburn, ¼ year's salary, treasurer, $37.50.

Total, $180.

The council then adjourned until Saturday, June 14th.

BRUCE JOHNSTON,
Clerk.

KILLS MANIAC AMID CROWD

New York Policeman Shoots Man Who Chased Woman With Knife

Stone Thrown at Patrolman's Head by Man Before Death Shots

New York, May 14.—With a knife, the blade of which was six inches long and which was whetted to the sharpness of a razor, in one hand, and in the other a round rock that weighed more than a pound, an Italian who had every appearance of being homicidally insane, journeyed to the Bronx park this afternoon, where his murderous actions threw thousands of persons into a panic.

When Policeman Frank Anderson arrived on the scene and tried to capture the maniac, the man turned on him and hurled the rock in the direction of his head. When Anderson dodged the rock the man rushed at him, knife in hand, shouting in his frenzy that he was going to kill him.

Anderson whipped out his pistol and two shots rang out in quick succession and the maniac fell dead at the feet of the policeman.

One of the biggest crowds that has visited Bronx park was there, the number of persons who were in the park in the early afternoon hours being placed at 50,000. At the entrance at Fordham road and the Southern boulevard the open space is large and a crowd estimated at about 5,000 people, more than half of them children, had gathered.

It was a few minutes before 3 o'clock when the trouble started. An Italian about 35 years old, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, with a three weeks growth of beard and dressed very shabbily, entered the park at Fordham road and Southern boulevard. He was hatless and his unkempt appearance attracted the attention of the crowd. A moment later he jerked a long-bladed knife from an inside pocket. The knife was in his left hand. With his right he reached down and picked up a rock.

The women had noted the man's strange actions, and when they saw the gleam of the knife of the blade they caught the little children and ran screaming into the park. The Italian yelling at the top of his voice started to follow, but changed his mind and charged the crowd that was massed several hundred strong in and near the gate.

Anderson was on post about a block away when he heard the screams of the frightened women and children. He ran to the entrance and saw the Italian rushing after half a dozen panic-stricken people. The policeman shouted to the maniac and the Italian stopped.

The Italian backed away slowly as Anderson came toward him, and when the policeman was within 20 or 30 feet suddenly drew back his right hand and hurled the rock at Anderson's head. Anderson fell to his knees and the rock whizzed over his head. As he let the rock go the Italian rushed at Anderson, and as the policeman jumped to his feet, he found himself face to face with the Italian who had the knife poised in the air ready to strike him down. With a shout to the people to run, Anderson fired twice. A score of witnesses gave their names and said they would come forward whenever needed to testify in vindication of Anderson.

JUDGMENT FOR PLAINTIFF

Mr. Justice Hodgins delivered judgment in the well known case of Cardwell vs. Breckenridge. The judgment is in favour of the plaintiffs and an injunction is granted restraining the defendant after cessation of the spring freshets, or after the 10th of May, whichever is the latest, and until the autumn freshets begin, or until November 1st, whichever is the latest, from maintaining water of his dam so as to overflow the embankment mentioned in his deed.

Damages are awarded to the plaintiffs as follows: Thomas Cardwell, $100; Benjamin Cardwell, $50; Patrick Fitzpatrick, $75; and William Garvey, $75.

The defendant is ordered to pay the general costs of the action. The judgment finds that the plaintiffs succeeded in their claim for an injunction and damages, but not that the dam had been raised. While, therefore, the plaintiffs are entitled to the general costs of the action other than those relating to the taking of Lobb's evidence, there will be deducted from these costs one-half of the counsel fees taxed against the defendant for the trial.

This action was commenced in March, 1912, and came on for trial before Mr. Justice Hodgins in December, 1912, and January, 1913. The trial lasted upwards of a week, with the above result. All the parties to the action reside at and in the neighborhood of Westwood, in the Township of Asphodel.

Messrs. Hall, Hayes & Hall appeared for the plaintiffs, and Messrs. Peck, Kerr & McElderry for the defendant.

Calgary, Alberta, May 15.—Luther McCarty, who meets Arthur Pelky in a ten-round bout here May 24, arrived Sunday night from New York. He will get into good shape in two weeks, he said. He will open training quarters this afternoon.

Pelkey has been working with Tommy Burns for ten days and already is showing great improvement.

Odds have shortened to ten to seven, with McCarty the choice.

New Orleans, May 15.—A large number of fans witnessed the workout at the North Side Club Sunday. Lee Johnson showed up well in his workout, and from all appearances may give the Mexican Kid the fight of his life. Battling Nick and the "Black Diamond" will go eight rounds in the semi-wind-up. Young Peter Jackson and "Kid Frenchy" will go six round, the winner to take all the purse. The usual battle royal will take place and no doubt a large crowd will be out Wednesday night to witness the bouts.

A CHALLENGE

The Times' sporting editor was yesterday in receipt of the following letter from Toronto

"Dear Sir,—We would like to arrange a game with some intermediate team (average age 21) for May 24th, in your city. Could you give us the name of a manager or person in charge so that we can communicate with him.

(Sgd). "A. G. Hartman, Sec.,

"Dovercourt Baracas,
"Toronto."

Pittsburgh, May 15.—Barney Dreyfus, president of the Pittsburgh baseball club, has been fined $25 or sentenced to ten days in the workhouse on charges made by the city ordinance officer that he had failed to pay park license for this season under a new city ordinance, which raises the cost from $120 to $1200. Barney had absolutely refused to separate himself from the additional $1080, and this year, following the enforcement of the new ordinance, his ball park has refused to give out attendance figures.

Three theatre managers were fined in like proportion, they coming under the provisions of the new license law, which affects all amusement places according to attendance and admission fee.

Dreyfus's lawyer paid his fine and asked, as did the attorneys for the other amusement men, for a transcript of the case. It is their intention to appeal from the decision of the magistrate and fight their contention that the new fee system is unjust through the higher courts.

"Bobby" Lowe, Detroit scout, and for years one of the greatest infielders baseball has ever known, has resigned his job of searching for talent for the Tigers. Lowe has decided to quit baseball and go into the real estate business in Detroit. Jim McGuire and Joe Sudgen, old time back stops, will continue as scouts for Jennings' Club.

New York, May 15.—Lynch law for the poor umpire! Swat him again, boys, he has no friends.

In deeply dignified terms, President Lynch of the National League, explains to the public just why the National League is rending itself sorrowfully away from the services of Mr. Owens, once an umpire.

"Umpire in the National League, by their deportment on and off the ball field, are supposed to add dignity to their positions as representatives of the league. It is essential that their conduct be at all times above reproach," &c.

Mr. Owens was discharged by President Lynch because he "entered a gambling resort," according to the report sent out.

It was very careless in Mr. Owens to "enter a gambling resort." Possibly he just wanted to play a game of pinochle, but what he wanted to do is neither here nor there. The heinous, unpardonable offense still exists. He "entered" a gambling resort. It is not specified that he "entered" it with burglarious intent, which might be regarded as an impropriety even in an umpire. He just "entered." Therefore he is no longer an empire in the National League.

It seems rather hard that umpires should be expected to "add dignity" to the National League. One might as well try to lend light to the sun. The National League, we see by Mr. Lynch's statement, is a very dignified affair. And as for an umpire keeping his actions "at all times above reproach"—well, did you ever hear a crowd reproachfully remind an umpire that he needs a pair of new eyes?

The question now arises: What can an umpire do to while away the time when he is neither on the ball field nor in the hospital? Can he play casino? Ask Mr Lynch. It might not add anything to the dignity of an umpire's position in the National League to play casino. Can an umpire tango? Can he turkey-trot? Can he "add dignity to his position" by "entering" an aquarium by going to the circus; by visiting the monkey cage in the park?

Just how far does the personal liberty of an umpire go, when he is off duty?

Yes, the poor umps seem to be up against it. Nobody is going to take their case to Congress.

MORMONS ARE ACTIVE

Two Hundred Converts a Day, According to Salt Lake Man

An interview of extraordinary interest was given a Montreal newspaper man by Mr. J. Alton Robb of Salt Lake City, who was on a visit to that city. Mr. Robb studied the Mormon question at first hand over a period of ten years, during which he came into contact with the Mormons in every possible way.

"Seriously and without a single degree of exaggeration," said Mr. Robb, "I have come to the conclusion that the Mormon problem presents features of such grave consequences that it promises to become a national menace to the United States and, I may add, to other countries in a future by no means remote. The success which has attended the great missionary campaign inaugurated by the Mormons three years ago is remarkable. This cult is now firmly entrenched in twenty-four States of the Union and is adding to the lists of its proselytes at the rate of 200 a day throughout the United Sates alone, according to confidential statistics to which I recently gained access."

THREE MILES IN AIR

Aviation Has Plenty of Thrills Even For a Professional

This is the way Garros, the French aviator, describes how it feels to climb 16,400 feet up in the air with an aeroplane:

"According to the diagrams of my two barometers I reach 6,500 feet in less than ten minutes. At 9,840 feet I have the impression I am being driven back from the coast, although my machine is making over seventy miles an hour. At 12,120 feet there is no longer any doubt. I am being carried backward by the wind.

"Four thousand six hundred again! The machine begins to waver. I note my supply of oxygen won't last out. Here is 15,744 feet, the height of Mont Blanc! I have not a mouthful of oxygen left, and my motor misfires so frequently that I climb no longer. But I shall stick to it till the motor gives up. I try to find a more favorable air current and call upon all my resources, those of an old acrobat. At last the diagram shows again a slight ascent. Breathing is now very difficult, but here is 16,400 feet.

"An alarming shock and a great noise! I am rather astonished not to feel my wings part company from me in the air. With a movement quicker than thought I cut the ignition and start planing down.

"Every turn of the propeller shakes the whole machine violently, and I do what I can to come down as slowly as possible in order to spare my wings which have already been too severely tested. Evidently some important piece, probably a valve rod, is broken in the motor.

"But gradually the vibrations diminish, and at last the propeller sticks fast. Thus I glide down with the stay wires whistling more or less shrilly, according to my speed. I am still 4,500 meters up, but I have the conviction that I am out of danger. I pass through the clouds again at 1,500 meters and see with joy beneath me the most beautiful pasture land. Finally I land in safety."

Racial Pigmentation

Investigations with reference to the effects of tropical light on the white man have led to the conclusion that the pigmentation of the skin in dark races affords protection against the effects of too much sunlight, and that its absence in the light races is a bar to their survival in hot and cloudless lands.

It is pointed out that where the Northern races have survived on removal to lighter countries, it has been in cloudy localities.

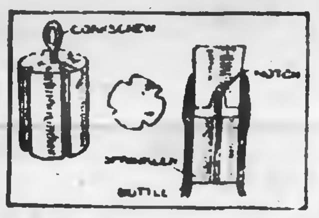
Shaker Top That Fits Any Bottle



There are many times the cook wants to use a sprinkler bottle when she hasn't one. Shaker tops are very easy to make for any bottle. Two corks and a small corkscrew are all that is necessary.

Put the corkscrew into a cork that will go down into the neck of the bottle. Notch the cork so that there will be four channels for the contents of the bottle to flow out. Have the top of the bottom cork low enough to permit a top cork to fit in the neck.

The corkscrew is there for the purpose of pulling out the notched cork when it needs cleaning.

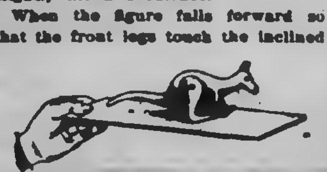
A JUMPING KANGAROO

A Mechanical Toy That May be Made Easily

The newest kind of mechanical toy, according to the toy dealers' bulletin is a jumping kangaroo that jumps without the aid of a spring or any sort of inner works—simply utilising a well known section of the law of gravity. Any one clever enough to carve rude figures in wood can make one.

The large hind legs of the beast are fastened immovably on an axle or pin and are attached, one on each side, so that they will swing together. Then the kangaroo is placed on a slightly inclined surface.

When the figure falls forward so that the front legs touch the inclined surface the tail flies up and causes the swinging hind legs to forward until they come in contact with the incline again and relieve the weight from the front legs which go up and then come down again by force of gravity, the operation being continued as long as the surface is inclined and the kangaroo moving forward by little leaps and bounds throughout the operation.



Adjust the weights in the body carefully or at least the weight of the body so that the proper balance is obtained.

Bread-and-Butter Studies.

The complaint that colleges are moving too rapidly away from the old learning is one very frequently heard in our day. Many people have attributed this drift to the fact that undergraduates are permitted to map out their own courses of study, and to do this under the influence of a delusion that only the so-termed "practical" subjects are apt to prove of any service to them in after life. Hence the classes in accounting, or in industrial chemistry, or in political science are large enough to tax the capacity of college lecture rooms, while professors of Greek or Sanskrit discourse to half-empty benches on the beauties of the "Odyssey" and the aphorisms of the "Rig-Veda."

But the experience of the university extension courses which have been offered in Boston during the last three or four years seems to prove that the superior magnetism of the so-called bread-and-butter studies is just as pronounced in the outer world as it is within the college gates.—Boston Herald.

POPULATION IN IRELAND DOWN

More Births Than Deaths But Emigration Movement Still Continues

Dublin, May15.—The general report of the census of Ireland has been issued. The population of Ireland, according to a census taken in April, 1911, was 4,390,219 (2,192,048 males and 2,198,171 females), as compared with 4,458,775 in 1901, a decrease of 1.54 per cent.

The province of Leinster with a population of 1,162,044, shows an increase of 9,215. For the other provinces the populations are as follows, the decrease being given parenthetically: Munster, 1,035,496 (40,693); Ulster, 1,581,696 (1,150); Connaught, 610,984 (35,948). One province only—Leinster—shows an increase of .8 per cent. In Ulster there was a decrease of .1 per cent.; in Munster a decrease of 3.3 per cent, and in Connaught a decrease of 5. per cent.

Of the total number of families in the country—the average number of persons per family being 4.7—173 occupied part of one room only; 58,250 families, or 6.4 per cent. of the total occupied one room; 194,135, or 21.3 per cent., occupied two rooms; and 28,558, or 25.1 per cent, occupied three rooms. In 9,666 cases one-roomed tenements were occupied by five, six or seven persons; and in 1,957 cases the occupants of a single room exceeded seven in number, there being 30 cases of a dozen or more persons occupying one room, 95 cases of 11 occupants in a single room, and 280 cases of 10 occupants in one room.

THOSE WHO SPEAK IRISH.

The number of Irish-speaking persons was 582,446, or 13.3 per cent. of the total population. Of these 16,873 could speak Irish only, and 565,573 could speak Irish and English. In 1901 the number who spoke Irish only was 20,953, and the number of those who spoke both languages, was 620,189.

Centenarians are diminishing. There were in 1901 no fewer than 497. In 1911 there were only 314. The latter figures, however, include one person of 114, while four are returned as 113 and upwards, one of 111, and five of 110.

The number of natives of Ireland who left the country during the last decennial period with the intention of permanently settling elsewhere amounted to 345,159—171,875 males and 173,284 females. During the previous decade the number was 430,993—200,125 males and 230,868 females.

HOW RELIGION STAND.

The pauper returns show a big decrease. In 1901 there were 101,297 in receipt of Poor Law Relief, while in 1911 the number was 77,184. The marriages registered during the ten years number 27,628, while in the same period there were 1,023,211 births. The deaths during the decennium numbered 764,911, an average annual rate of 17.3 per 1,000.

A table of religions shows that 3,242,670 are Roman Catholics, 576,611 are Protestant Episcopalians, 440,525 are Presbyterians and 62,382 are Methodists, while 65,662 belong to other denominations.

The emigration statistics for Ireland for the last year show that 15,675 males and 14,124 females left the country, all except 465 being natives of Ireland, and the emigration rate being 6.7 per 1,000 of the population. Since the enumeration of Irish emigrants began on May 1, 1851, 4,247,360 Irish people have emigrated; 2,207,687 of the emigrants being males. Roughly, two-thirds of last year's emigrants were between 15 and 25 years of age, and one-quarter were between 26 and 35 years of age. Nearly 70 per cent. of the emigrants went to the United States.

A PECULIAR DIVORCE

New York, May 15.—Mrs. Harry Cahoon, daughter of Davis Bellamore, a wealthy New York manufacturer, obtained a divorce from her husband, formerly a lieutenant in the United States army. Miss Bellamore left school in England to marry Cahoon when he was stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., with the Thirteenth Infantry.

His offenses, she says, began on their wedding day, when he left her to spend the night at a New York hotel and afterwards explained that he had been kidnapped by a party of brother officers. Cahoon did not defend the suit.

A SHINING EXAMPLE

"He must forever shed lustre on our young nation," says Hon. James Young, biographer, in giving his impression of the late Hon. Edward Blake. He adds:

"I have known a considerable number of distinguished statesmen and other eminent and other men, and so far as my judgment goes Mr. Blake possessed at once the most powerful, most acute, and most cultivated intellect of any person I ever had the pleasure to meet. He was the soul of honor. He would never even overstate the argument against an opponent, but this rather strengthened his supremacy as the most powerful and effective parliamentary debater heard within the ornate walls of our Canadian House of Commons. He was popular both in the House and in the country, won many supporters wherever he addressed the people, was a constructive statesman of a very high order. That he did not accomplish all that he had intended in his heart to do for Canada, gives a touch of pathos to Mr. Blake's life and career. But he did enough to prove himself the greatest of all native Canadians and his remarkable gifts as a jurist, a statesman, and a patriot, coupled with all the graces of a Christian gentleman, must forever shed lustre on our young and furnish a shining example for the youth of Canada to admire and to follow."

A CHEF'S RECORD

He Cooked Chops for Fifty Years for Hungry Londoners

Of very few men can it truthfully be said, "He has cooked a million chops." Yet "William" of Edwards' in Fishmonger Alley, Fenchurch Street, London, who will presently celebrate the jubilee of his professional career, is believed to have cooked a million and a half. About ten thousand of these he has eaten himself. The calculation was made on the table cloth by a distinguished statician, who was so shocked by the figures that he dared not go on to estimate the tons of steaks, the mountains of kidneys and the miles of sausages. "I wonder, William," he said, "that you are not ashamed to look a flock of sheep in the face."

HABITANT FARMER

Victor Sylvestre is a Leader in His Community

In the parish of Clairvaux de Bagot, near the western boundary of the Eastern Townships, Quebec dwells a habitant farmer whose career is particularly interesting for the reason that he appreciates the importance of the application of science to the practice of agriculture. Born and raised in Quebec, amid surroundings typically "habitant," which inspire progressiveness in very few youths, Victor Sylvestre upon attaining his majority and assuming manly responsibilities resolved to break loose from many of the customs of his fathers and farm his land according to the most approved methods of which he could learn. He is now thirty-one years of age, and though only a comparatively short time actively engaged in farming, he is called at among the first breeders of live stock in the St. Hyacinthe district, as well as the possessor of a well-conducted holding. Apart from his progressive nature, which is the subject of common discussion, not always complimentary among his fellow-parishioners, Victor Sylvestre is an interesting character. At a young age he insisted upon an education, and his father, yielding to his demands, sent him to the Seminary of St. Hyacinthe and Ottawa University. He made good use of his time spent at these halls of learning, and to-day he is able to parade the decorations of B.A. and B.Sc., conferred by Laval, after his name. With such a fund of learning it is a matter of universal amazement among his neighbors that Sylvestre persists in remaining upon the farm. "I love this life better," was the reason he advanced when I asked him why he had not taken to the city. Not only is Victor Sylvestre considered a leader in agricultural affairs in his parish, but he is also active in the social and political life of the community.

ANY person who is sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties.—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

CANADIAN GIRL CYCLIST WON FIRST 6 DAY RACE

Now that six-day bicycle races are being boomed not only in Canada and across the border, but also in Europe it is interesting to note that the first six-day ride ever done on this continent was made by a Canadian girl—Louise Armaindo, of St. Anne, near Montreal. She rode a high wheel bicycle six days, twelve hours a day at the Guards Armory in St. Louis, Mo., and she rode 760 miles on a track 14 laps to the mile. That was the first time any bicycle rider on this side of the Atlantic had ridden 100 miles inside of 24 hours. On a later occasion Louise was one of the three starters in the first six-day and night race in the world. This was at Minneapolis. Louise was only to ride 1,000 miles during the week, but she finished her 1,000 miles on Friday night and got Tom Eck to pay her $2,000 more to ride until Saturday night and she was in the best physical condition of the three riders at the end of the race. She made over 1,300 miles in six days and nights on a high bicycle. Schock won the race, covering 1,421 miles, a world's record at that time.

The Hohenzollerns.

The house of Hohenzollern, of which is the present emperor of Germany, had its origin in Thassilo, who built the castle of Hohenzollern about the year 800 In 1417 Frederick of Nuremberg, his descendant was made Elector of Brandenburg. The Prince of Hohenzollern abdicated in favor of the King of Prussia in 1849 Charles, son of Charles Anthony, was elected Prince of Roumania in 1866 His brother, Leopold, was nominated for the throne of Spain in 1870, but withdrew on account of the excitement of the time, brought on by the Franco-Prussian difficulty.

Tolerably Well.

The last pig-tail has disappeared from the Chinese embassy in London It belonged to the majordomo of the Chinese ambassador, and it is now on its way to China as a present to that functionary's wife. A story is going the rounds that at an official reception recently a member of the Chinese embassy was presented to a well known lady

"We no talkee Chinee velly well," she said

"Never mind your ladyship," was the smooth reply, "I can converse tolerably well in English!"

OUR WATERWAYS

Their Development of Great Interest to all Parts of Canada

The development of Canada in [illegible] waterways should be proceeded with. A pamphlet lately issued by the Waterways Union deals with the problem in a comprehensive and convincing manner. Transportation, we are reminded, is the most important material and economic question before the people to-day. Transportation by water on a firstclass highway is not only cheaper than by rail but often much quicker. According to the United States Interstate Commerce Commission, the average cost of moving freight by rail in a recent year was 7.48 mills per ton per mile. For the same year the cost of moving freight by the Sault Ste. Marie Canal route was .84 of one mill per ton per mill, or one-ninth of the average rail rate. The average cost of handling freight by the various water ways of the United States is one-sixth of what it is by the railways. All money spent on the improvement of American waterways has returned to the people of the United States dividends of 100 to 200 per cent. annually in reduced freight rates

From Lake Superior Westward

In European countries where the people own and operate the railways, the most is made of natural water transportation for the benefit of trade and the general public. In countries, however, where railways are operated chiefly by private corporations, natural advantages are more likely to be neglected. The result of this neglect in Canada is to be seen not only in the inadequate development of water connection from Montreal to the Upper Lakes It is quite as noticeable in the failure to provide water transportation from Lake Superior to the Western Provinces via the Lake of the Woods, Lake Winnipeg, the Saskatchewan and other rivers. Were this route developed, not only would it provide for an enormously increased volume of traffic, especially of grain and coal, but it would result in a great lowering of the freight charges by the railways.

OLDEST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

A Sketch of Historic Presbyterianism at Williamstown

Williamstown is the oldest Presbyterian congregation in Ontario, having been established in 1787 by the Rev. John Bethune, who had been Chaplain of a British regiment, the 84th, in the War of the Revolution. At the close of the war, this regiment was disbanded and many of the members settled in Glengarry, which was then unbroken forest.

Mr. Bethune remained in Montreal and got together the congregation of St. Gabriel Street Church, to whom he preached from March 12, 1786, to May 6, 1787, when he removed to Williamstown and started the organization of the Presbyterian church there.

The site of Williamstown was a grant from the Crown to Sir John Jhonson, and the village was so named in memory of Sir John's father, Sir William Johnson, who died in 1774, just before the breaking out of the War of the Revolution. The first church built at Williamstown, shortly after Mr. Bethune arrived there, was an unpretentious log building, the seats being planks laid on cedar blocks. During the week it was used as a school.

About 1809 a stone church was put up a little to the east of the present structure, but through some defect in the foundation it fell.

The erection of the present church was commenced in 1812, when the walls were put up and the roof put on. Little more was done till the close of the war of 1812-14, and it was not till early in 1818 that the church was completed

SHANTYMEN OF CANADA

A Splendid Virile Type That Has Not Changed in Seventy Years

Of all classes of laborers, the Eastern Canada shantyman—particularly the French-Canadian woodsman of Quebec Province—is the most strenuous, while at the same time the most genial of workers.

Skilful in all that pertains to log-making and the use of the axe, which he has learned to handle from early childhood, he is ever at home in the forests and wilds. Like the Indian, were he unable to find his campground before nightfall, he would assure that it was not he, but the camp, that is lost, for he is at home everywhere in the forest, while cold and hardship have no terrors for him, since he can usually make himself comfortable in spite of the worst conditions imaginable.

Tracing the history of the shantyman through romantic legends, the impression is gained that those of the early lumbering days were of the roughest and most formidable character—physical giants with whom the shantymen of the present day would be but miserably contrasted. From truer, though less romantic sources, it is found, however, that those old bushwhackers could not chop more logs in a given time than the present day lumbermen. In fact, the whole system of log-making in Eastern Canada is, with few exceptions, the same to-day as it was some sixty or seventy years ago.—British Columbia Magazine.

Boy Hanged on a Trapeze

The Birmingham coroner investigated a case in which the thirteen-year old son of Mr. Leonard Albrecht was accidentall, hanged on a trapeze on which he had been practising. The boy had been taught gymnastics at school, and in a loft at home had fitted up a trapeze. In some unexplained way he got his head fast in a loop formed by the rope, and was found hanging in the loft dead. A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a waltz, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel.

CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

CHAPTER VII—The Major arrives at the shop of a blacksmith, who is friendly, and knows the Lady of the Blended Rose.

CHAPTER VIII—Captain Grant and rangers arrive and search the blacksmith shop in vain for the spy.

CHAPTER IX—Lawrence joins the minute men who capture Grant and his train.

CHAPTER X—Major Lawrence is made prisoner by an Indian and two white men.

CHAPTER XI—Lawrence's captors lock him in a strong cell, where he [illegible] Peter the jailer.

CHAPTER XII—Peter advises [illegible] not to attempt escape [illegible] "one" will send for him.

CHAPTER XIII—Grant's [illegible] adds mystery to the combination of circumstances.

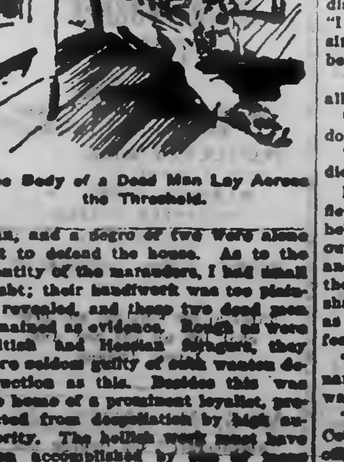
I stood staring down at him, and about me into the dismantled room, endeavoring to clear my brain and figure all this out. It was not so difficult to conceive what had occurred, every bit of evidence pointing to a single conclusion. Grant had searched the house for Eric, and discovered no signs of his presence; whatever had subsequently happened between the girl and himself, she had not felt justified in releasing me while he and his men remained. They must have departed soon after dark, well provisioned, upon their long march toward the Delaware, leaving Elmhurst unoccupied except for its mistress and her servants. The fact that neither the lady nor Peter had opened the entrance to the secret staircase would seem to show that the attack on the house must have followed swiftly. It had been a surprise, giving those within no chance to seek for refuge. There had been a struggle at the front door; some of the assailants had achieved entrance through the window, and that had practically ended the affair.

But what had become of Peter? Of the girl? Who composed the attacking party? The Indian had been despatched to Valley Forge with my memoranda; probably Peter, the Irishman, and a negro or two were alone left to defend the house. As to the identity of the marauders, I had small doubt; their handiwork was too plainly revealed, and those two dead men remained as evidence. Rough as were British and Hessian foragers, they were seldom guilty of such wanton destruction as this. Besides this was the home of a prominent loyalist, protected from despoliation by high authority. The hellish work must have been accomplished by one or more bands of those "Pine Robbers" who infested Monmouth county, infamous devils, hiding in caves among sand hills, and coming forth to plunder and rob. Pretending to be Tories, their only purpose of organization was pillage. Even in the army the names of their more prominent leaders were known, such as Red Fagin, Dehow, West and Carter, and many a tale of horror regarding their depredations had I heard told around the campfire. These came back to memory as I gazed about those lower rooms, dreading my next discovery, half crazed to think that Claire Mortimer might be helpless in their ruthless grasp. Better death a thousand times than such a fate.



The Body of a Dead Man Lay Across the Threshold.

I pushed forward into the rooms of the lower floor, more than ever impressed by their original magnificence. Now, however, they were all confusion, furniture broken and flung aside, walls hacked, dishes smashed into fragments. The scene was sickening in its evidence of wanton hate. Yet I found no more bodies, or proof of further resistance. In what must have been Mistress Claire's private apartment I stood with beating heart staring about at the ruin disclosed. The large closet had been swept clean, garments slashed with knives, and left in rags; drawers turned upside down in search after jewels; the very curtains torn from the windows. It was a scene of vandalism of which vagabonds alone would be guilty.

I stepped across the pile of things to the window, glancing out at the still smouldering ruins of the stable. Whatever had occurred, neither the lady nor Peter remained about the house. Of this I was satisfied, yet with the realization there came a sudden comprehension of my own helplessness to be of any aid.

From the window where I stood not a house was visible. Just beyond the orchard the roads forked, a well-travelled branch circling to the left, and disappearing over the edge of a hill. As I traced it with my eyes a considerable body of mounted men suddenly appeared on the summit. Without fear that they could see me at that distance I watched eagerly as they trotted down the long slope. They were plainly a squadron of British Dragoons, their arms and cross-belts shining in the sun, in spite of the dust kicked up by their horses' hoofs.

I waited until convinced they were coming to the house, before drawing back out of sight. It was difficult to decide what was best for me to do. Should I wait, trusting to my rough clothing, and pass myself off as a countryman, or take advantage of the brief time left in which to escape? If I essayed the first choice I could explain the situation, and start these troopers on the trail; if not they might fail to understand and ride on thoughtlessly. What such a body of mounted men were doing in the neighborhood I could merely guess at—either they were riding through to New York on some matter of importance, or else had been sent out hurriedly to discover what had become of Delavan's foragers. This supposition was the more likely, and they had taken the wrong road, thus missing Grant and his men in the darkness.

They must have cut through the orchard, leaping the low fence, for I heard the thud of hoofs even as I drew back into the upper hall. Then a voice gave a sharp command.

"Circle the men about the house, Simmons. There is something wrong here, and I saw a fellow at that upper window as we came down the hill. Move quick, now!"

I must face them, and went forward to the head of the stairs, anticipating an easy explanation of my presence within. Already quite a squad was inside the front door bending over the bodies and staring about curiously.

"Pine Robbers, eh, colonel?" said one contemptuously. "That fellow has cutthroat written all over him. Don't see any signs of our men here."

"Queen Ranger lying back of the stairs, sir," reported a soldier briefly; "Irish lookin' mug."

The man addressed as colonel, a Ranger himself from his green uniform, looked up quickly and saw me. He called out an order, and three or four men sprang up the stairs, grasping and leading me down. I made no resistance, not realizing I was in any danger. The colonel, a tall man with gray mustache and goatee, and dark, searching eyes, faced me sternly.

"What are you doing here, sir? Come, speak up! What does all this mean?" and he swept his hand about in gesture.

"I came along about thirty minutes ago," I explained, beginning to appreciate my situation, from the suspicious glances cast at me, and recalling how disreputable my appearance must be. "I found things just as they are now, sir. There's been a fight and robbery."

"That's plain to be seen; are these all the bodies?"

"Yes, sir, but the house is upside down from end to end."

"You saw no one? No British soldiers?"

I shook my head, conscious of the fierce grip with which I was being held. A couple of the men dragged out the body from behind the stairs, and as the face came into the light, the colonel's eyes saw it. I heard the sharp breath expelled through his lips, as he stared down into those ghastly features.

"Good Lord! Mike! What in the name of heaven does this mean? He was supposed to be with Claire!"

"There must be some mistake, Colonel Mortimer," insisted the other officer gravely. "Perhaps we can get the truth out of this bumpkin, if we take the lash to him."

I understood in a flash, and as swiftly chose a course of action. This gray-headed colonel was her father, and I would serve her in this emergency without thought of my own danger. No threat of a whip would open my lips, but memory would.

"Come, you dog!" burst out the colonel fiercely. "You know more than you have told. Speak up, or we'll skin you alive."

"I will, Colonel Mortimer," I said, looking him straight in the eyes. "Not because of your threats, but because I wish to serve you. Now I know who you are, and I will tell you all I know about this whole affair."

"Was—was my daughter here?" he interrupted.

"Yes, sir."

"My God! And Eric?"

"Not to my knowledge—there was a man called Peter, this fellow, and a black slave or two. They were all I saw."

"But why should Claire have been here," he asked as though dazed, "unless she came to meet her brother? I supposed her safe in the city."

"I do not pretend to understand the cause of her presence. But if you listen to my story perhaps you may know what to do." I paused an instant to get a grip on my thoughts. I need not tell all, confess my identity, or mention my personal relations with the daughter. "I am a soldier, Colonel Mortimer, in Maxwell's brigade of Washington's army. What brought me here has nothing to do with the present story. I was in the fight over yonder near Mount Laurel night before last when we captured Delavan's forage train—"

"What!" burst in the dragoon officer. "Was Delavan defeated, then? Hadn't Grant joined him?"

"Yes to both questions, sir. Delavan was killed, and Grant surrendered. He and his men were paroled, and started for Philadelphia last evening from here."

"From here!" incredulously. "That must be a lie, colonel, for Mount Laurel is between here and the city."

"Nevertheless, it is no lie," I retorted promptly, looking the young fool in the eyes. "I was hiding here for reasons of my own when they came tramping in along that road about the middle of the forenoon yesterday. There were near a hundred Hessians and Rangers, with two German officers, and Grant. I heard them tell Mistress Mortimer this was the nearest place where they were sure of finding provisions, and that they intended to remain until night. I don't know what happened after that, except that the officers went inside, and the men marched around to the back to eat their breakfast."

"What became of you?"

"Oh, I had other business, and never got back along here until just at daylight this morning. Then I found things this way."

"You don't know what occurred, then?"

"No more than you do. But I've got my opinion. It's this—Grant and his fellows must have left as soon as it was dark, taking the west road, which was the cause of your missing them. It is likely from this man Mike's body, that your daughter and her party were still in the house. It couldn't have been much later when these others got here and made the attack. Mike must have fought them at the front door, but that was all the fight made; there's no sign of any struggle inside."

"Then they never got Claire," declared Mortimer positively. "That's a certainty, Seldon."

"She would have fought, sir?"

"Like a tiger. I know my little girl. And, besides, Peter would have died before the hand of one of those villains was ever laid upon her."

"But," I protested, "I have searched the house, colonel."

"I imagine your acquaintance with the house is somewhat limited," he replied coolly, turning away. "Seldon, place this fellow under guard in the library here. We will learn later what his business might be in the Jerseys."

CHAPTER XVIII.

At Cross Purposes.

It could not be considered an unpleasant place of imprisonment, yet it was useless for me to contrive any plans of immediate escape, for the door was securely locked, and two heavily armed dragoons sat within eyeing me rather malevolently. My attempt at approaching the window was instantly checked by a threatening gesture, and I sat down in the reading chair to await developments. They could not muffle my ears, however, and I heard the swift hoofbeats of an approaching horse being ridden furiously up the gravel driveway. At the door he was hastily checked, and a voice spoke peremptorily:

"Here you, take the rein!"

The fellow came up the steps hurriedly, almost ignoring the sentry at the door.

"I haven't time to stand here, you fool," he exclaimed roughly, "my uniform is pass enough. I wish to see Colonel Mortimer at once—at once." There was a pause, and then the same voice, and I recognised it now as Grant's beyond a doubt. "Ah, colonel, what in God's name has happened here? I heard that you were out hunting us at Farrell's blacksmith shop, and came back as swiftly as I could ride. But I never suspected this. Who were the miscreants?"

"That is a question not yet answered, Captain Grant," replied Mortimer slowly. "It looks like the work of Pine Robbers. Do you recognise this fellow?"

"Ay," and from the muffled tone he must have been bending over the body, "that is 'Tough' Sims, a lieutenant of 'Red' Fagin; there's one more devil gone to hell. But when did the attack occur? We left here after dark, and all was quiet enough then. Claire—"

"She was here, then? I hardly believed it possible."

"I talked with her—quarreled with her, indeed. Perhaps that was why she refused to accompany us to Philadelphia. But what did you mean, colonel, when you said you hardly believed it possible she was here? Did some one tell you?"

"Yes; we caught a fellow [illegible] the house when we arrived. He had no time for escape—rough-looking miscreant, claiming to be a Continental. We have him under guard in the library."

"He confessed to the whole story?"

"Not a word; claimed to know nothing except that Claire was here. Said he saw you, and then went away, not getting back again until this morning."

"The fellow is a liar, colonel. Let me see him; I'll lash the truth out of his lips. Where did you say he was—in the library?"

I had barely time to rise to my feet when he entered. His eyes swept across the guard, and then centered upon me. Instantly they blazed with excitement, although I noticed he took a sudden step backward in the first shock of surprise, his hand dropping to the butt of a pistol in his belt.

"By all the gods!" he exclaimed sharply. "If it isn't the spy! I miss the red jacket, but I know the face, Mister Lieutenant Fortesque."

"Major Lawrence, if you please," I returned quietly.

"We'll not quarrel over the name. I've had occasion to know you under both; bearing one you were a spy, beneath the other a leader of banditti. I'll hang you with equal pleasure under either." Suddenly he seemed to remember where we were, and his face flushed with newly aroused rage. "But first you'll explain what you are doing here at Elmhurst. Do you know whose home this is?"

"Most assuredly," determined not to lose my temper, or to be moved by his threats. "It is the property of Colonel Mortimer, of the Queen's Rangers."

REAL SPEED BOY WAS AMOS RUSIE

Harry Davis Picks Him as the Superior of all Throwers of the Present Day

A number of Cleveland ball players were talking recently about the speed marvels of the diamond. Most of the younger men touted Walter Johnson as the king of all speed boys. Johnson was accused of not throwing the ball to the batter, but shooting it.

Then broke in the chieftain, Davis, who, by virtue of his numerous years in sundry wild struggles for pennants, and acknowledged power to sift the strong from the weak pitchers in his day, drew the right to venture first opinion and to have that opinion go on record as a fact.

"Yes, Walter is a marvel," chirped Davis. "Glancing back over two score years that I have been real active and another score that I will only partly be active in professional baseball, I can find only a few, yes a very few, whom I would compare with Walter.

"Now, there was Amos Rusie"—Harry clubbed against little Amos as he has often clubbed against Walter—"there was Amos Rusie," said Harry, "and how he could pilot them up and beyond you! The first year he was not as great a luminary as Johnson.

"There were plenty of green things about me. One of them cropped out soon after my arrival from Pawtucket, R.I. Rusie was pitching. 'Twas my lot to be playing on first. I saw a little smoke when he warmed, but not enough to become alarmed.

"Shortly one of the enemy was at my section for some reason or other—whether it was the result of a safe poke or a pass, I don't know. He was there and took liberties. Amos winked and then shot. He didn't have the power of a toy pistol nor a .44 calibre revolver. I thought it was one of those 13-inch guns shooting at me.

"The ball passed to the far beyond. When all was peaceful again I sauntered up to the manager.

"'Mister Manager,' says I, 'this is no place for a man of my build and complexion. I believe it is time for me to take my grip and hustle back to Pawtucket. I hear the folks calling for me. I want to hear them call some more. I don't enjoy the sensation of having them walk slowly behind my casket and say, "Yes, he was a fine boy, and, ah, so good to the children."'

"The manager only smiled. 'Hang on, kid,' he advised. 'Your eyes are troubling you. Wait a few days and they will be well again.'"

SELF-RELIANCE

The farm is the greatest training school in the world for self-reliant men. The farmer and the farmer's sons simply have to do things themselves. There is nobody else around to do them. The farm boy early in life learns to do things, and if he can't accomplish the thing which has to be done one way he casts about for another until he finds out how to do it. This makes him resourceful. It develops in him the ability to find a way out of the difficulties about him. This training follows him all through life, and for this reason he is more apt to be able to take care of himself in almost any situation than the man who has never had to rely on himself. It is this sort of thing which develops manhood. Unfortunate is the boy who is surrounded by luxury conveniences and wealth, for he has little opportunity to learn to depend on himself.

REVIVE FARMING

The Need of Getting in Touch With the Most Progressive Farmers

Mr. Roosevelt has summed up the need for a "revival" of farming in the following words: "The English-speaking peoples, not only in America but of Great Britain and the colonies, must wake up to the fact that for over half a century every [illegible] advance in the line of proper development of farming life has taken place in certain progressive States of Continental Europe. . . . I hope a very full study will be made of the Irish rural situation, because in that country most progressive farmers are reorganizing their business upon lines laid down after a study of the continental agricultural systems I have mentioned." That Canada is in the same position as the United States so far as the need for reform is concerned may be accepted without question. During ten months of last year this agricultural country, which hopes to be "the bread basket of the Empire," imported eleven millions dozen of eggs, and millions of pounds of butter. Something is radically wrong when a rich farming country cannot feed itself. Saskatchewan appointed two delegates to accompany an American Commission of Inquiry which sailed for Europe this spring. Every other Province of Canada should be represented as well. The expense is not heavy, and the opportunities for investigation will be exceptionally great.

The Northwest Brass Foundry Company, Limited, operating at present thirteen factories in the United States and two in Canada, will establish a plant in Calgary, costing $300,000, and employing 500 men.

Men Who Don't Exercise

SUFFER FROM INDIGESTION, HEADACHES, POOR APPETITE, SLEEPLESSNESS.

Nothing so Sure to "Set Up" a Man Make Him Feel Brisk and Vigorous, as Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Lack of exercise and overwork were the causes that combined to almost kill Samuel S. Stephens, Jr., one of the best known citizens of Woodstock.

In his convincing letter, Mr. Stephens says:

"A year ago I returned home after a long trip, completely worn out. was so badly affected by chronic biliousness, so much overcome by constant headaches, dizziness, that I despaired of ever getting well.

"It was a blessing that I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. In one week I felt like a new man. The feeling of weight and nausea in my stomach disappeared. My eyes looked brighter, color grew better, and, best of all, I began to enjoy my meals. The dizziness, languor and feeling of depression passed away, and I fast regained my old-time vigor and spirits. To-day I am well—thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

For health, strength, comfort and good spirits, there is no medicine like Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box, five boxes for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Police Court Paragraphs

At yesterday's police court, W. J. Roberts was charged with being drunk and promptly pleaded guilty to the soft impeachment. He claimed to be on his way to Montreal. He was asked how long it would take him to get out of town. Roberts replied: "As soon as I can get a train." He was fined $2 or 10 days and took the latter. William Lavery, who still owes a fine for being drunk, was again charged with a similar offense. The boy's mother spoke for him and explained that Lavery had got into a row with his uncle in the East Ward. With a true mother's instinct, she claimed to be to blame for sending him to Ashburnham. The case was enlarged to-day. Albert Barker was charged as drunk. The chief said Barker's wife is in a delicate condition and Barker put her out of the house. Barker denied this. The case was enlarged until this morning. Robert Graham was charged with not sending his child to school. Graham produced a certificate from Dr. Carmichael that the child had been ill, but not stating it could not attend school. The case was enlarged until this morning.

EAT CABBAGE, FISH, SAUSAGE, NEW BREAD

No Indigestion, Gas, Sourness or Upset Stomach if you'll take "Pape's Diapepsin"—Try This!

Do some foods you eat hit back — taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapepsin" is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so that misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clear, and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

The Lawyers Win.

The long drawn law suit of Fardwell vs. Breckenridge, which did not waste the time of the lawyers engaged thereon, at the Assizes, for more than 12 or 14 days at "so much per," was decided yesterday. The damages claimed and the amounts awarded are:

	Claim	Award
Thos. Cardwell	$6,600	$100
Benj. Cardwell	1,000	50
P. Fitzpatrick	2,100	75
Wm. Jarney	1,550	75
	$11,250	$300

The plaintiffs claimed damages for the flooding of their lands, owing to conditions prevailing at a dam which is the property of John Breckenridge. All the parties resided in Asphodel, and the dam is situated at Westwood. G. H. Watson, K.C., and L. M. Hayes, K.C., conducted the case in the interests of the plaintiffs and I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., and F. D. Kerr, for the defendants.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

Baby Udy.

The infant daughter of Mr. Harry Udy of 592 Aylmer street, passed away yesterday afternoon. The mother of the child died a little over a month ago.

Mrs. John Baie.

Mrs. John Baon, of Water street, passed away last night at 6 o'clock at St. Joseph's Hospital. The deceased was a daughter of Mr. John Lane, of Downie street and a sister of Mr. Thos. Lane, the well known Hunter street undertaker. She leaves to mourn her death her husband and two sons, Shinton and George, both of this city and a sister, Mrs. Frank Cooney, of Toronto. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Mrs. J. J. Moher.

Yesterday crepe hung on the door of the well known Hunter street garage, just across from the Oriental. Much regret was expressed by her many friends when it transpired that Bessie Weyer, daughter of Mrs. Weyer, Weller street and wife of Mr. J. J. Moher, had passed away very suddenly. The deceased had a large circle of friends among whom she was universally respected.

She leaves to mourn her death her husband and two children, also her mother, two brothers, Mr. J. J. Weyer, Toronto, and Mrs. Jas. Weyer, city; also three sisters, Mrs. Wade of Brampton and Misses Annie and Sophia of Toronto.

The funeral will take place from the residence of her mother, 466 Weller street to-morrow morning to St. Peter's Cathedral and cemetery.

MUSIC & DRAMA

"Uncle Tom's Cable."

Whenever you think of it, ask your oldest relative to name the first play he or she ever attended. It is safe to wager the answer will be "Stetson's 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,'" a play that has survived all others and to-day gives every promise of lasting through all time to come. Hundreds of new productions are offered during each succeeding theatrical season at an aggregate expense of thousands of dollars. The majority of these prove rank failures, some survive for a year or two, while a limited few are successes. The latter endure for a few years with gradually diminishing power to attract the public. Then comes the time when they are withdrawn from the stage, for to continue them would mean a losing venture. There is yet to be written a play that will attain one half the years of Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin." That this famous classic of the American stage retains its popularity may be explained in two ways, firstly, it is the stage version of a book which did much to hasten the freeing of the negro slaves, and, secondly, the public long ago learned that Manager Washburn gives, not only a scenically correct stage picture of Harriet Beecher Stowe's renowned story, but with each return visit of the Stetson show, he presents all that is newest and best in high class vaudeville. This season, several entirely new features are promised, including the most gorgeous and beautiful electrical, scenic and mechanical effects ever devised by man.

One of the special features introduced this season in Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which will be presented at Grand Opera House, in Peterborough, May 21st, is a thrilling realistic chase after fugitive slaves with the aid of a specially trained pack of ferocious man-eating bloodhounds. The dogs were purchased from Sheriff Carleton of Kosciusko, Miss., by whom they were used for the last three years in the trailing of evil-doers, not only in his own country but in much outside territory as well. If you would witness a genuine manhunt, don't fail to attend the Stetson performance.

VOL. XL, NO. 116. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, MAY 17, 1913 PRICE, TWO CENTS.

PEOPLE'S WILL EXPRESSED NAVAL BILL IS PASSED

Government Finally Succeeds in Imperial Effort for Naval Defence--Opposition Accepts Defeat and Closure Rules Are Not Invoked--Attempt to Secure Six Months' Delay Fails

PREMIER MAKES IMPORTANT STATEMENTS REGARDING DRY DOCKS AND SHIPBUILDING

Ottawa, May 16.

THE will of the people has at last made itself felt in regard the the Naval Aid Bill. The bill was passed by the Commons last evening. There was no need for the Government to invoke the new rules. The Opposition recognized that the game was up and allowed it to go through in one day, when they had it in their power to prolong the debate for another twenty-four hours.

There was in all six divisions before the bill was finally passed. The majorities ranged from 23 to 45. The divisions of the morning and afternoon took place on amendments to various sections of the bill, and were strictly on party lines. In the evening the Opposition leader moved the six months' hoist, and in the two divisions on it and on the third reading, there was a breaking from the usual alignment.

NATIONALISTS VOTED WITH OPPOSITION.

The Government majority in both of these cases was 33. Colonel Hugh McLean, of Queens Sunbury, New Brunswick, had not been present earlier in the day, but in these two divisions he recorded his vote for the bill. On the same divisions five Nationalists voted against the bill.

The five Nationalists who voted against the Government were Messrs. Achim, Boulay, Bellemare, Guilbault and Barrette.

Messrs. Lamarche and Mondou were absent. The other Nationalists voted for the bill.

The only Nationalist who spoke during the day was Mr. J. P. Guilbault, of Joliette. He explained that he was opposed to both the Government and the Opposition plans. For that reason he voted in favor of the six months' hoist and against the bill.

The vote on Sir Wilfrid's amendment was 99 to 66, and the third reading was carried by 101 to 63.

CANADIAN NAVAL DEFENCE.

In making his final statement in regard to the bill, the Premier made several announcements in regard to works to be undertaken by the Government along the lines of defence and shipbuilding. These included '

The building of drydocks at Quebec and Halifax and on the Pacific.

The construction and fortification of naval bases on the Atlantic and the Pacific.

The defence of these bases by torpedo craft. As well as by land defences.

The gradual extension of shipbuilding plants.

The training of officers and men at the naval college and on training-ships, the men to be employed partly on the ships of the hydrographic service and of the fisheries' protection service

Support The Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. is asking for four thousand dollars. This is the greatest Protestant charity in our town. The other societies for the poor people and children are right enough, but this is for our best, and we cannot do too much for them. A Christian is usually a man who gives more than he can afford for the good of others, but it is vice versa here, and we should be proud to give to this, our best of all our charities.

BOY SCOUTS SHOULD FIGHT CATERPILLARS

Residents of East City are complaining that the caterpillar plague this year is the worst in the history of Peterborough. Trees along the river and roadways are burdened with huge nests of these insects. Yesterday no less than three residents called at this office and referred to a letter contained in these columns a few days ago. This communication suggested that the Boy Scouts could do good work, get good exercise and effect a general and lasting good, as such organizations are doing in other towns and cities, by attacking this plague. If this meets with the approval of the local scout master, he should get busy, before the caterpillars, like "Assyrians coming down like a wolf on the fold," eat up the growth of our trees and gardens.

MAKES VALUABLE ARREST

Montreal, May 16.—The arrest was made today of a man the police claim is William Connors, expert pickpocket, who is wanted in New York and Philadelphia, from which latter city he is said to have jumped bail.

MR. G. N. GORDON WINS IMPORTANT DECISION

At yesterday's police court, an important judgment, dealing with liquor license conditions was handed out by Magistrate Dumble. The case was one against Mr. J. C. Sullivan of the East Ward, charged with selling less than three half-pints, contrary to law. His decision reads, in part, as follows:

The information herein charges the defendant while the holder of a shop license with having on the 24th of April last unlawfully sold liquor in less quantity than three half pints, contrary to the Liquor License Act.

It is admitted that a filled bottle (produced) in which purchaser got his liquor from defendant did not hold three half pints but defendant relies on the definition of a "shop license" Sec. 2, Sub. Sec. 3, of the Liquor License Act.

A bottle corked and wrapped in wrapping paper pasted at over lapping and filled with whiskey is produced and it is admitted by Counsel for defendant that defendant did sell liquor of like quality in like bottles, wrapped in like manner and that the quantity contained in bottle was less than three half pints.

Mr. Gordon for the defense, admits that the liquor in the bottle sold had been filled by defendant from his barrel, corked and wrapped as above described--and that such bottles so packed are put on his shelves and sold by him.

The informant submits that the package sold was not an unbroken package and that the act of defendant was a breach of the law.

The best conclusion I can come to is that "unbroken packages" of not less than one half pint, means bottles filled containing not less than one half pint, and there is no limit to the size of the bottle, beyond a halfpint.

The case was dismissed.

CITIZENS ASKED TO DESTROY CATERPILLARS ON THEIR TREES

City Authorities Will Look After Trees on the Highway --Plans and Estimates for a Steel Bridge Across River at Dalhousie Street to be Prepared in Detail

The City Fathers met in special session last night. There were present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen Anderson, Langford, Johnston, Green, Duffus, Gillespie, Gordon, Duncan and Buller.

In regard to preparatory work to paving George street and Charlotte street, his worship reported that the Street Railway Co. had no intention of double tracking their system.

Ald. Johnston did not take kindly to the Property Committee's report that the Hardware merchnats be leased the north western corner of the Hilliard farm on which to erect a powder magazine. He offered that there is considerable objection to this proposition and his worship replied that objections will be raised to any site for such purpose. Ald. Johnston said he had thought this site would be an ideal one for the incinerator.

Ald. Duncan here said that one of the biggest hardware men in the city had informed him that his firm had not used the magazine for two years. Some powder had been consigned to his house by mistake, which powder is to be shipped back at the earliest possible moment.

From discussion here bandied around the Aldermanic circle, it would seem that the need for a powder magazine in this city is exceedingly limited.

Nothing more definite was reached in this connection.

Street Repair Work.

The Board of Works' lengthy report of work to be prosecuted left the impression on the Aldermanic Board that the Board of Works' appropriation has been provided for too early in the season, leaving nothing for contingencies. It was feared that Central City had been given, in a way, the cold shoulder.

Ald. Johnston thought that a horse and cart should be engaged continuously in each ward on repair work.

His worship opined that all repair work on streets should be left to the descretion of the City Engineer and the Chairman of the Board of Works.

Argument here disclosed the fact that the Board of Works on Thursday in their annual tour of inspection covered 15 miles of streets, whereas there are 77 miles of streets in the city.

Ald. Gordon, Duncan and Gillespie thought, that apart from the Board of Works' recommendation of street work to be done this year, the Engineer and chairman should have power to prosecute such work as is considered necessary.

The Board of Works' report was adopted with an amendment by Ald. Gordon, that the City Engineer and the chairman should have authority, to do any repairs on streets in any ward in the city they think necessary.

Direction to Lift Lock.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and Anderson the Board of Works will provide a suitable sign on Hunter street east, pointing the way to the Lift Lock.

The Caterpillar Pest.

Ald. Langford suggested that action be taken immediately to destroy the caterpillar nests prevalent in trees, to avoid a serious scourge.

Ald. Buller offered that most of the trees in which such nests were seen by the Board of the Board of Works on their day out Thursday were in school grounds. He suggested that the boy scouts be given a caterpillar destroying campaign, headed by Ald. Langford as a military man; the Board of Works to supply the torches.

On motion of Ald. Duffus and Ald. Johnston citizens are requested to destroy all caterpillar tents in trees in and in front of their property.

The City Engineer was instructed to take measures at once to clear trees on the highways of caterpillar tents.

New Bridge Across Otonabee.

On motion of Ald. Buller and Anderson, the City Engineer was instructed to submit to the next Council meeting all details and estimates of a steel bridge across the river at Dalhousie street.

Fire Substation.

The Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was authorized to take up in Committee the question of submitting a by-law to the people for a fire substation in South City, for presentation of details to the Council at next meeting. It is estimated that this substation and equipment would cost $10,000.

Ald. Anderson contended that we might get along this year with a motor driven combination chemical and hose rig! The substation might come next year.

Ald. Duffus took a contrary view. He thought that this year a substation should be provided to take care of the new factories Peterborough is getting; the motor driven chemical and hose apparatus should take second place. Then, he contended, that the city should ease up somewhat in its expenditure this year.

The plans for the Henry Hope & Sons' siding were approved of.

BILLION DOLLAR PARLIAMENT TO BE PROROGUED IN MAY

Supplementary Estimates to be Brought Down Early Next Week--Heavy Penalty For White Slaves

Ottawa, May 16.—Hon. W. T. White, in reply to a question by the Opposition leader this morning, said that the supplementary estimates would be brought down early next week. Sir Wilfrid then remarked that the Hon. Robert Rogers on a couple of occasions when leading the House, had expressed the opinion that prorogation should occur by the end of the month. If that was to be accomplished any additional legislation proposed would have to be brought down at once.

Premier Borden said, that apart from the railway subsidies, there was no important legislation to come. He would, however, give the House full information on Monday.

In reply to a further question Sir Wilfrid the Premier said that all the bills on the order paper, including the measure to increase the representation in the Senate, would be proceeded with.

Hon. T. W. Crothers introduced a bill to amend the Dominion Forest and Park Act. Its object, he said, is to allow the addition of certain lands not suitable for agriculture to some of the parks and to take away agricultural lands from others.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier thought it was dangerous to authorize the reduction of any of the park area.

Mr. Crothers said that the areas it was proposed to take away were small, while the additions would be large.

Amend Criminal Code.

Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, introduced a bill making important amendments to the Criminal Code. In a word the amendment proposed make it very difficult to secure and carry firearms and other weapons, while the punishment for people engaged in the white slave traffic is made more severe and the law is to be more readily enforced.

Important changes are also made in the law with regard to white slave traffic. Mr. Doherty said the Government had adopted the provisions of the English Act of last year which makes the punishment of people who traffic in vice more severe and easier for enforcement. Mr. Doherty stated that there was a provision making it a criminal offence to lease houses for prostitution and also an amendment prohibiting gambling in such places.

There is also a clause providing for punishment of men deserting their wives or children when they are left in want. At present punishment is only possible where desertion has endangered their lives or health.

FREE CIGARS FOR LOCAL BALL PLAYERS

Mr. J. L. McIntyre, representing Messrs. S. Davis & Sons, the well-known Montreal cigar manufacturers, is a guest at the White House. Mr. McIntyre, who is not only a successful business man, but one of those fans on baseball, who has as yet escaped the asylum. On Thursday Mr. McIntyre was at the game and expressed an opinion that Peterborough has a good chance for the pennant. To encourage the batting average of the Petes, he has placed an order with Mr. Clydesdale, the local tobacconist, 382 George street, to give every Peterborough player a box of Davis & Sons Perfection cigars, for each home run made during the season, at Riverside Park.

WOMAN COLLAPSED AFTER BAPTISM IS SEA

New York, May 16.—A cable from London to The Tribune says: Extraordinary scenes have been occurring this week at Boker, near Sunderland in the north of England, when three women and two men, the latest converts to the peculiar sect known as the Pentecostalists, who are holding their annual convention, were baptized in the sea yesterday.

The women went into the water without shoes or stockings, but wearing skirts and blouses. One man was arranged in pale blue pujamas and the others in a suit. One of the women on leaving the water after the ceremony went into hysterics and shouted and danced about on the sand.

ANGLO-GERMAN WAR MYTH DIES AN UNDERSTANDING REACHED

Lord Morley's Visit to Germany Marks Growing Friendliness---Balkan War Negotiations Showed Britain's Good Faith

London, May 16.—Official explanations of Lord Morley's visit to Berlin must be read with the deepest scepticism. The first suggestion that he went to arrange ceremonial details for the forthcoming Royal visit struck even official fable-mongers as too thin, and they followed with the plausible, but equally improbable, story of the overworked statesman's brief holiday.

The fact is that Lord Morley's visit is the culmination of a series of events indicating that the Anglo-German agreement is nearing actuality. Churchill's naval holiday proposals are naturally uppermost in conversations; but it is well understood in responsible circles that these are only the crown and outward expression of a far-reaching understanding, which clears up the whole field of Anglo-German relations. The Anglo-Turkish agreement defining British rights in the Persian Gulf, represents the settlement of protracted difficulties arising from Germany's Bagdad railway scheme. England's attitude now dispels the delusion that England blocks Germany from her "Place in the Sun."

Lord Morley's visit is the second step in the pilgrimage of peace initiated by Lord Haldane, and is likely to be far more fruitful. Months of close co-operation in steering Europe peacefully through the Balkan crisis have convinced German statesmen that their suspicions of England's aggressiveness are mythical. King George's visit to Berlin next month will probably be the occasion for an announcement dispelling the nightmare "of the inevitable Anglo-German war."

THE WEATHER.

TIME FXTENDED FOR CUSTOM HOUSE TENDERS

The Times was yesterday in receipt of a telegram stating that the time for receiving tenders for purchase of the local Custom House has been extended. The time for receipt of such tenders expired on Thursday. However, as not only local would-be purchasers, but several from outside places are anxious to secure this valuable propertyi the Department has decided to extend the time for receipt of tenders. An advertisement containing full particulars as to said extension, will appear in these columns.

Quick Thinking Wins
Is your thinker fed right for prompt action?
At a dinner not long ago Thomas W. Lawson was talking on the subject of success.
"Success in finance," said Mr. Lawson, "is due in a great measure to prompt action. The doubting, hesitating, Hamlet type of man had best keep out of finance. He is quite sure to be swamped."

PINE TAR CORDIAL

Advertisements under above heads, 20 words and under, one insertion, 15c.; 3 insertions, 25c.; 6 insertions, 40c.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 39c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 39c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

SOWING HIS WILD OATS

REAPING A HARVEST OF SORROW

How many young men can look back on their early life and regret their misdeeds. "Sowing their wild oats" in various ways. Excesses, violation of nature's laws, "wine, women and song"—all have their victims. You have reformed but what about the seed you have sown—what about the harvest? Don't trust to luck. If you are at present within the clutches of any secret habit which is sapping your life by degrees; if you are suffering from the results of past indiscretions; if your blood has been tainted from any private disease and you dare not marry; if you are married and live in dread of symptoms breaking out and exposing your past; if you are suffering as the result of a misspent life—DRS. LOVE IN A COTTAGE

How a "Good Fellow" Made Good His Promise to Prospective Father-in-Law.

By JAMES HENRY ASHLEY.

"I hate to do it, Millie. Of course I respect your father, just as I love you, but I am decidedly afraid he is going to put a dampener on my—my—"

"Budding affections!" mirthfully supplemented Millie of the bright laughing eyes and ever happy heart. "Oh, you great coward! Why, papa wouldn't harm a fly."

"But I'm not a fly," remonstrated Marvin Bates, dolefully. "I'm a big, blundering idiot who has been lucky enough to interest the best girl in the world, and expect that her family are going to turn their jewel over to a fellow who has not had the sense to save up enough to give her the golden cage she has been used to."

"Marvin," said Milly, quite seriously, "I told you at the start that my longing girlish ideal has been love, true love, in a cottage, a real cottage."

"Yes," assented Marvin, ruefully, "but where is the cottage?"

"That's just what papa wants to talk to you about," replied Milly, with dancing eyes. "So go ahead, you great modest fellow, and don't let him make you believe that I'm too precious to work for."

It was a pretty trying ordeal for Marvin. All his life he had been what is called "a good fellow." Not a reckless roysterer in any sense of the word, but true-hearted, careless of his money, sometimes careless of his obligations. When a friend was in need he could always rely on Marvin to help him out. When Marvin took a fancy to anything he bought it, no matter what it might cost.

Hitherto he had rather prided himself on his "good fellow" actions. That bubble reputation, however, seemed flimsy as tissue paper as he entered the library of the Worthington home and faced the hard-headed, practical father of the girl he loved, in whose hands lay all his destiny at that moment.

"Milly, that is, my—your daughter, Miss Worthington, thought I had better see you, sir," blundered out Marvin, tripping over a rug and landing on the pet corn of his prospective father-in-law.

"Be seated," spoke Mr. Worthington in a tone that sent cold chills down the back of the ardent suitor. "I have been advised of this ill-advised match."

"Oh, don't say that, sir," interrupted Marvin, beseechingly. "I have loved your daughter for two years."

"Ha-hum! Two years you've been thinking of getting married, eh?" questioned Mr. Worthington.

"Yes, sir. You see, we love each other—"

"That's all right," interrupted Mr. Worthington, mercilessly. "How much have you saved during that time?"

Marvin floundered. He wriggled about in his chair, his lips strove to frame an explanation, found no possible basis for it, and he sat staring vacantly at nothing.

"Young man," said his stern judge, "I know more about you than you think. You will tally me off if you please. You have earned twelve hundred dollars a year and are in debt. In the name of wonder, how do you expect to support two on your salary, when you have not been able to keep clear of debt, alone?"

"That's so," acknowledged Marvin in repentant despair. "Only, you see," he added, brightening up now, "I'm going to begin to save."

"When?"

"Right away."

"Sure of that, are you?"

"Oh, yes, sir. I'm going to cut out the club, put so much aside every week, and economize in every way I can."

"That will be necessary, if you marry my daughter," declared Mr. Worthington. "Now, I am going to be explicit with you. Millie's mother left her the cottage and lot on Maple street. It is a good enough home for anybody. That gives you free rent, provided you can save twenty-five dollars a month till twenty-four notes, amounting to $600, are paid. Can you do that?"

"I certainly can—" began the optimistic lover heroically.

"Will you do it? If you think anything of Milly, you will clear off that amount. Show me at the end of two years that you have kept your promise, and I shall be proud of you, where I am now a little afraid your liberal ways may lead you into difficulties."

"Trust me, sir, trust me!" cried the hopeful Marvin, filled with a hundred plans to save the pennies.

Milly and Marvin were married in due time. The vine-embowered cottage on Maple street became their home. Marvin began his [illegible] career heroically. Milly petted and praised him so enthusiastically when he proudly brought home the first receipt for twenty-five dollars from the bank, that the artless fellow actually looked forward to the next pay day as a sort of regular celebration.

They were happy as doves in a cote. It was wonderful, the many little economies they planned and carried out. Marvin tried his hand at planting vegetables, and Millie raised a brood of chickens. Club life and good fellow friends seemed to Marvin now like a far away dream.

One beautiful summer evening Marvin came bounding up the garden walk like a person dancing on air, and waving a fluttering strip of paper in his hand.

"The last payment, Millie!" he hurrahed. "The six hundred dollars is all paid off," and Millie fell into his arms and tried to tell him for the thousandth time what a splendid man he was.

Papa Worthington strolled down to the cottage in the evening. His broad face was rather unusually beaming, and he suggested a person expecting to hear some news.

"About those payments," began Marvin, with conscious pride as they adjourned from the porch to the cosy little parlor. "There's the final note of the six hundred dollars."

"Well, well," commented Mr. Worthington in an apparently gratified tone, "I declare, Marvin, I am more than pleased, proud of you, in fact. You see, saving has not been so hard after all."

"Hard?" echoed Marvin. "Why, it's just delightful! I've got a hundred dollars in the bank in Milly's name, and we're going to build it up thirty dollars a month as a nest egg for another real estate investment. Milly, show your father the vegetable and eggs savings."

Very proudly Milly produced a little tin box and showed and rattled its contents.

"Forty-seven dollars and fifteen cents, papa," she chirped. "What do you think of that?"

"I think you are a famous pair," declared Mr. Worthington with energy. "Here, Millie, add that to your little treasure heap."

Marvin stared. He sat petrified. Very deliberately pretty Millie drew from an envelope six one hundred dollar bills and some minor bank notes.

"I did it for your own good, Marvin," explained Mr. Worthington. "There are no real payments due on the cottage. I wanted to see you study economy, and you've done it nobly."

"Will you forgive my share in the innocent deception, dear?" asked Millie, wistfully.

"Say," answered Marvin, choking up with grateful emotion, "when a fellow finds his life lined up the way mine is through the thoughtfulness of the dearest wife in the world and her grand old father—"

A kiss for the one, a warm handshake for the other, and Marvin Bates' faithful friends knew that their experiment had permanently succeeded, and that the big-hearted husband and son-in-law was "a good fellow," indeed!

EDITORIAL NOTES

Says Sir Wilfrid: "If we are to have the closure, let's have it." This sounds like a voice from the down-and-out club.

We have a profound admiration for the young man whose self-control is so complete that he resists sternly the temptation to try to sing tenor.

The Germans are quietly but surely dominating the situation in China commercially, just as the British have done politically.

A party of French officers, according to a London exchange, have flown over the great desert of Sahara. This is duplicating the famous feat of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn.

If the Krupps would sell out to the Steel Trust and take their pay in preferred bonds, they could afford to be peace advocates and endow a temple at The Hague, too.

Judging by the manner in which the wandering German air vessels are trespassing on Gallic soil, France will soon have to mark her frontier with a string of captive balloons each having a "Keep off the Grass" sign painted upon it.

"I do not believe," said a local suffragette to The Times, "that there has ever been a bad man in favor of woman's suffrage." Is this intended as a side-swat for our local Liberal contemporary, which has been lambasting the cause in double-leaded editorials?

COURTS SHOULD BE OPEN

Last week the House of Lords sitting as the highest court of appeal, decided that the Courts of Justice in England are open to all citizens. The Lord Chancellor declared: "Every court of justice in the land is open to every subject of the king, and a court has no power to sit otherwise than with open doors." If the Lord Chancellor's view obtains in regard to other parts of the Empire, it will mean that henceforth our courts of justice will be unable to hold any secret sessions, even in cases where at least a limited secrecy would seem advisable, as in certain divorce cases.

HARD TO UNDERSTAND

These prayers for a general election on the part of the Liberal leaders are merely vain and idle boastings. It is hard to understand the condition of mind which gives birth to the assertion that the loyal people of Canada would turn out of office a government which stands for British connection and our fair share in the burdens of Empire defence. And no one knows better than Sir Wilfrid that an election on the issue now before the people would result in the destruction of the mere remnant of Liberalism which sustained the reciprocity hurricane.

Old Winter Coughs Now Easily Cured

A New Remedy Now Cures Without the Use of Cough Syrups or Drugs.

Just think of it—you can clear away that hard, racking cough, drive it completely out of the system, make yourself perfectly well by the new breathing cure that employs no medicine at all.

You wonder how; a very simple, indeed; you simply breathe in through a Catarrhozone Inhaler rich balsamic essences that heal and soothe away the cough in a few hours' time.

In using Catarrhozone you bathe the lining of the nose and throat with that powerful antiseptic of the Blue Gum Tree of Australia, which is probably the surest cold and cough cure in the world to-day.

Clarence E. Cromwell, writing from Medicine Hat, says: "To cure a sneezing cold in about ten minutes the one thing I know of to do it is Catarrhozone. To relieve an irritated throat quickly, nothing can excel Catarrhozone. It simply eats up a cough or cold of any kind. I know of colds that have hung on for months that Catarrhozone cured quickly. Nearly every man I know carries a Catarrhozone Inhaler with him day and night, and in this country it makes a wonderful protection against all winter ills."

Get the dollar outfit, including the hard rubber inhaler, and medication to last two months; medium size 50c. sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

ANDREW CARNEGIE ON WAR.

At the fourth annual session of the American Peace Congress Mr. Andrew Carnegie made a speech that was full of assurance, for he tells us that the nations will soon reach the goal of peace. He told of the cost of war and warlike preparations, and expressed his confidence that the United States never need fear foreign invasion.

He did not go into detail, however, although he has some first-hand knowledge, and could have told to what extent gunmakers, battleship builders and those who furnish war and naval supplies are continually bestirring themselves to make business lively through promoting war scares.

As the peaceful Andy is conversant with finance he might inform the people whether in the last analysis it is the nations who want to fight, or the financiers who furnish the money who are really responsible for wars. A practical talk by him along these lines would be highly interesting and instructive to the people who have to pay the war bills. Having the facts laid down before them by such an authority as Mr. Carnegie would doubtless make them less ready to be pulled into the war game.

OUR BILLION DOLLAR PARLIAMENT.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Some months ago we had a great Liberal Rally in Peterborough. We were favoured with speeches from Sir Wilfrid Laurier and half of his late cabinet. I had the pleasure of listening to their arguments in the Skating rink. I came away from that meeting not very much wiser than I went. All we were told amounted to this. That Canada had been exceedingly prosperous of late years, which we knew before we went to the rink. What we did not know, and what we were told by all the speakers was: That Canada owed her prosperity entirely to the Liberal Government. Under the Liberal rule Canada had grown and prospered, so it was due to the Liberals and to them alone. Hon. Sidney Fisher quoted figures and was taking us away back past Confederation days, and would no doubt have figured the Liberal blessings right away back to the time of the flood, but the audience got tired and showed it, and he dried up. Well, sir, following their argument, that because Canada prospered when the Liberals were in power, what conclusion can we come to now. The Conservatives are in power now, and Canada has prospered as she never prospered before. We have a banner budget, for the first time in our history—a billion dollar budget. Fancy! despite the dismal wailing and dire prophecies of the Liberal press. Canada has actually prospered more, and very much more, under the Conservatives, in two years, than she did during any year of the fifteen years, Liberals were in power. To put it in plain language, we are more prosperous; we have grown more in population; more in wealth, and more in nationhood under Borden, than we did under Laurier. Which, then, is the best man—Borden, or Laurier? If Canada's prosperity under the Liberals was due to the Liberals, her greater prosperity under the Conservatives, must in a greater measure be due to the Conservatives. If we prosper more under Conservative management, does that not show us which is the right party to manage our affairs? "By their fruits ye shall know them!"

If we have such a banner budget in the second year of Conservative government what a splendid future is in store for us. Do we repent putting the present Government in power now they have shown us what they can do for us? One other fact is also worthy of our remembering, and that is: Mr. Borden has up till now not committed any of the very expensive blunders the late administration made us pay so dearly for. We have not forgotten the millions of dollars we have had to pay over Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Transcontinental Railway blunder,—a blunder, as we know, he made against the good advice of men inside and outside of his party. His own minister of railways resigned because he saw, and not only saw, but pointed out the folly of the way Sir Wilfrid Laurier was playing into the hands of the Grand Trunk Pacific people. This one colossal blunder alone has cost Canada already millions of dollars. Then, we also remember the bridge Sir Wilfrid had built, or rather, partly built, at Quebec. We remember it falling over into the St. Lawrence, carrying with it unfortunate workmen. Has Mr. Borden plunged us into tremendous debts of this kind? No. He has managed to govern us better than Laurier and instead of wasting millions by criminal carelessness, he has given us better government, and the biggest budget Canada ever had. No wonder everybody smiles when they read in the Liberal press the mean and petty snarlings of the disappointed office holders. Sir Wilfrid could waste more than Borden is going to give to aid the naval forces of the Empire, but he howls when instead of wasting millions for no purpose, Mr. Borden asks to put it to the best of purposes, to strengthen the Navy that has kept us strong.

Percival G. S. Webb.

INHUMAN METHODS USED

Strong Plea to Women to Protect Birds and Animals.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—Members of the Audubon Society are deeply interested in legislation relating to the protection of birds. As Colonel Roosevelt has said: "It is a disgrace to America that we should permit the sale of aigrettes." When some aigrette company tried to establish itself in New Jersey, President Wilson, who was then Governor of that state, killed the bill that would have allowed this indecent traffic, and expressed himself in these words: "I think New Jersey can get along without blood money."

The aigrette is torn from the live mother bird in the nesting season and the little ones are left to starve. One of the plume hunters of a Southern country writes: "The natives of the country do virtually all of the hunting for feathers. I have seen them frequently pull the plumes from the wounded birds, leaving the crippled birds to die of starvation, unable to respond to the cries of their young in the nests above, which were calling for food. I have known these people to tie and prop up wounded egrets on the marsh where they would attract the attention of other birds flying by. These decoys are kept in this position until they die of their wounds or from the attacks of insects. I have seen the terrible red ants of that country actually eating out the eyes of these wounded, helpless birds tied up by the plume hunters within sound of the call of their young. I could write you many pages of horrors practiced in gathering aigrette feathers in Venezuela by the natives for the millinery trade of Paris and New York."

Intelligent, kind-hearted women wear these aigrettes, birds of paradise, and other hat adornments, because they are ignorant as to the manner in which these things are obtained. No self-respecting woman (and, above all, no mother) with anything resembling a heart, will consent to wear aigrettes or certain furs, once she has learned of the unspeakable horrors that attend their procuring. Ostrich feathers are humanely obtained and may be worn with a clear conscience.

No woman who has seen the mother seal skinned alive because the writhings make the work of skinning easier than if it were dead; no woman who has seen the timid ermine, with its tongue fast to the metal that has been smeared for its capture; no woman who has ever looked at the steel trap ready and set for work; no woman who is half a woman can know of these things and consent to wear furs. It is to be hoped that enlightened women in all our cities will meet (as a number of women in New York recently met) in order to discuss ways and means of putting a stop to these unspeakable things.

As to the aigrette, American woman can help this movement by notifying milliners that they will withdraw patronage from any millinery establishment that permits the sale of aigrettes or other plumes barbarously obtained. Women entering a strange millinery establishment can be of the greatest service if, before making any purchase, they will inquire whether or not aigrettes are sold by the establishment.

There will undoubtedly be strong opposition to the proposed law—opposition on the part of merchant milliners who encourage the aigrette atrocities as a source of revenue.

The matter is in the hands of the American women.

Respectfully yours,
Minnie M. Fiske.

FLAW IN LAW FREES 166 INDICTED MEN.

New Orleans, May 16.—Because the Louisiana election laws fail to impose upon commissioners of election the duty of making sworn returns of the votes cast on proposed constitutional amendments, the 166 indicted election officials of the city of New Orleans, who were charged with falsifying the returns on amendments in the November election, will not have to face trial. The Louisiana state supreme court to-day handed down a decision to this effect.

The court held that, although the law provides penalties for failure to make true returns of the votes cast for national, state, parish and municipal officers, no such provision is made for tabulating votes on constitutional amendments.

According to the report of the grand jury which investigated the alleged frauds, there was falsification of the returns on the amendments in this city. A recount of the votes made by the grand jury covered nearly two months.

King Favors Racing

Sir John Thursby, speaking at the hundred-year-old annual dinner of the Gimcrack Club in New York, announced that Lord Derby told him that King George not only did not intend to withdraw from the turf, but would so far as his kingly duties allowed, give his effective personal support to racing.

ROPE MEASURER

Lengths Are Indicated as Rope Passes Over Wheel

A working man has invented a device for measuring rope that might well be called automatic, inasmuch as the rope is measured as it passes over a wheel and the lengths instantly registered. This wheel is pivoted within a casing that can be fastened at some convenient place. In the upper portion of the casing is a spring arm that presses the rope against the wheel with just enough force to make it engage the cogs and turn the wheel, yet not forcibly enough to impede the movement of the rope. This wheel is connected with a registering mechanism, and each revolution represents so many inches, or feet, as the case may be. As the rope passes out therefore, the length is recorded at the same time. Such a device would be useful in a hardware store or other places where rope is sold.

THE OAR.

London Sportsman—It would seem that the Argonaut Rowing Club of Toronto, Sanada, this year, has a particularly heavy eight and four — one that surely touches record. This week the eight sent away to Canada by Sims was built for an average 12st. 10lb. (178 lb.) crew, whilst that for the four, which is now being made, is for an average 13½st. (189 lb.) crew. They are the two biggest boats that the brothers have ever built.

Tom Flanagan opines that the treatment of his protege at Chicago reminds him of the justice his ancestors got from an Anglo-Saxon jury in the dark days of 1798.

It is worthy to note that there has been no friendship shown as Flanagan has displayed since Joe Murphy left the stage, in fact, there was never a finer fair weather friend than one Thomas Flanagan, who discreetly gives the border line a wide berth during his friend's "hours" of trouble.

POLO.

New York, May 15.—With the arrival last night of the members of the English polo team, challengers for the Westchester Cup, the final preliminaries for the International matches at Meadowbrook, L.I., were completed. The five players who will represent England in the coming contests go to the Piping Rock Country Club at Locust Valley, L.I., today and resume training for the games.

The probable line-up of the team will be Captain Leslie St. George Cheap, No. 1; Captain A. Noel Edwards, No. 2; Captain R. G. Ritson, No. 3 (captain); and Captain Vivian Lockett, back, with F. M. Freake as reserve player.

RELAY RACE.

Chicago, May 16.—A Marathon relay race, extending from Washington to Chicago, will be the opening feature of the International Athletic contests in Grant Park from June 28 to July 6. Schoolboy runners will carry a message from President Wilson to Mayor Harrison on the afternoon of June 28.

The delivery of the document will entail the assistance of about 700 school boys, school superintendents along the route, mayors of various municipalities, and scores of automobile clubs.

The auto route from Washington to Chicago is about 800 miles.

Four or five days before the formal opening of the meet President Wilson will stand in front of the White House holding a proclamation addressed to the International Championships, Chicago. A school boy runner willr eceive it, dash onward for a mile and hand the proclamation to another boy and so on the line will be extended to Chicago.

KEEPS ATHLETE FRESH

Grape Fruit Said to be the Ideal Reviver for Players

A new reviver for athletes, which also serves in a way as a food and an aid to training, has been discovered by Lieutenant P. A'Beckett, an all round sportsman, also well known as a regimental footballer. This is the West Indian grape fruit.

Oranges and lemons, particularly the latter, have served almost since football became a British institution, to refresh the footballer at half time, and of late years many have taken to chewing gum, which they kept in the mouth all through the play, as it served the double purpose of preventing thirst and killing any desire for an interval cigarette.

Lieutenant A'Beckett, however, says the grape fruit is an invaluable asset to any team, being health giving and sustaining, and to it he attributes the success of his team in the Dorset Senior Football league. He believes in giving each man half a grape fruit every morning, another at the interval on the football field and another piece at night.

"As one of the rules in training is to cut down all excess fluid, the acid pungent qualities of grape fruit juice makes it an ideal thirst quencher, as a man is content with little, and it is also agreeable to the most delicate stomach, which is important considering how vital it is to an athlete to have perfect digestion."

BRINE CURE FOR HORSES

Novel Bath Experiment at Droitwich for Afflicted Animals

A brine bath, in which four horses can stand in hot brine, is in existence at Droitwich. The bath was built at the rear of Mr. Everett's garage, in St. George's Square, with a sloping way down which the horses walk into four stalls, where they find themselves in about 2 feet 6 inches of warm brine. After standing in this for the number of hours ordered by a veterinary surgeon, they are brought out, dried, and properly bandaged, to avoid all risk of catching cold.

Droitwich brine is twelve times as strong as ordinary sea water, and the cure is intended for race horses, polo ponies, and hunters. Mr. Everett says that he has for years used the brine, made hot, on lame horses, by dipping bandages in it and applying them to the legs. He has found the cure successful for strains, bangs, and rheumatism. He also found it very good while he looked after his father's stud farm at Finstall Park for foals and yearlings who were weak in the legs.

MODERN BABEL

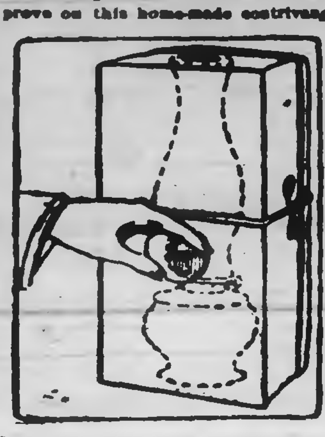
Winnipeg a "Melting Pot" for all Nations of the Earth

Winnipeg stands unique among Canadian cities, but the uniqueness is not in her beauty, but in her people. Less than one half of her population are Canadians and a full quarter are what are called "foreign." In the number of nationalities, Winnipeg approaches New York; in the noise of her varied tongues, she rivals Babel. A map of the city indicating the nationalities by color would "show more stripes than the skin of a zebra." Winnipeg numbers among her citizens, English, Scotch, Welsh, Irish, Italians, Germans, Russians, Ruthenians, Poles, Austrians, Bohemians, French, Swiss, Spaniards, Finns, Magyars, Chinese, Japanese, Africans, Swedes, Norwegians, Danes, Dutch, Icelanders, Turks, Americans, Arabians, Hebrews, Syrians, East Indians, American Indians, Egyptians, Hungarians, South Americans, Cubans, Slovaks, Bavarians, Greeks, Servians, Maltese, Malays, Hindus, Roumanians, Portuguese, Dalmatians, and perhaps a few others.

EGG TESTER

Experts Say You Cannot Improve This Variety

If you're going to set any hens this spring or put eggs in an incubator you ought to have an egg tester. Don't buy one. The Department of Agriculture experts admit they cannot improve on this home-made contrivance.



It consists simply of a pasteboard shoe box and an ordinary kerosene lamp.

The box is provided with a hole at the top and one on the side, the latter being just a bit smaller than an egg. The lamp is lighted, put in the box and the eggs are held against the hole in the side.

After the eggs have been under the hen, or in the incubator, 7 days a fertile egg will show a dark spot in the center with a lot of little veins running out in all directions from it. An infertile egg will be clear.

BAT FOR BUNTING

Big League Players May Soon Carry Their Own Bats

If the present tendency of specialization in baseball continues it will soon be customary for the average big league player to carry a bag of bats as varied in shape, size and purpose as a golf player. There are a dozen or more different kinds of bats now in use, though usually the great hitters use but one kind.

Now, however, there has been developed a bat made solely for bunting and the patent office recently issued a patent on the device.

The bat is of ordinary shape and size, but it has two deep slots on either side extending from the butt end about one-third of the way toward the handle or grip end. Slips of a non-resilient material, such as card board are placed in these slots.

The result is that when the ball is struck with the side presenting the cardboard strips the force of the rebound is deadened and a slow bunt is made. When the other side of the bat is turned the effect is the same as with an ordinary bat.

Mud Guard For Shoes

There are numerous devices for avoiding mud. One of the most unique is a mud guard for shoes. This guard only protects the heel of the shoe, but it is said to afford the most ample protection to the heel. It is a properly shaped piece of leather or rubberized fabric permanently attached to the shoe between the heel and the upper. It is so made that it juts out from the heel and keeps the mud from being plastered on the shoe. In fine weather the guard may be turned up and it is provided with a snap like a glove fastener to hold it in place when not in use.

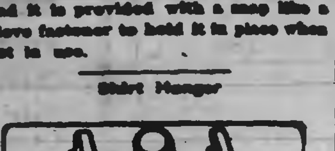
Shirt Hanger



A couple of wooden clasp clothes pins and a length of stiff wire make the best shirt or trousers hangers in the world. Bend the wire in the shape shown in the illustration and attach it to the pins as shown.

An Intelligent Dog

An interesting story of a black Pomeranian dog comes from a residence in the Chobham road, Sunningdale, England. The animal enjoys lying in front of the fire, and as he sleeps indoors has had opportunities of witnessing every morning the operation of fire-lighting. One cold morning the owner found the dog keeping "guard" on the hearth rug over some paper, a piece of wood, and a lump of coal, which he had fetched, piece by piece, from the coal box in order, apparently, to expedite the lighting of the fire that he might the sooner warm himself.

LIGNITE CAN BE UTILIZED

Vast Deposits of Power Production at Coal Centres of Saskatchewan

That large quantities of workable lignite deposits in the province of Saskatchewan can be utilized at the coal centres for the production of power and its distribution in parts of the province was the gist of a report made by A. O. Wynn-Roberts after an investigation into the lignite deposits of southern Saskatchewan and their possible utility for powers and fuel purposes.

The report stated that a careful investigation showed that the generation of electrical power is a practicable and commercial possibility. It also stated that the manufacture of lignite gas at the coal fields is practicable and that such gas would be of considerable value for power and heating purposes.

CREAM-COLORED BEAR

Dr. French of Washington, the zoological collector, to whose generosity in exchanging specimens British Columbia owes many varieties of game that are being tried out and acclimatized at the Chilliwack farm and on the East Kootenay reserve, is anxious to secure a specimen of the Kermode cream bear, which is found exclusively in the Bella Coola district and on Gribble and Princess Royal Islands.

A price of $250 is offered for the bear alive. A splendid specimen of the Kermode bear was recently killed at the head of Cascade Inlet. These animals are extremely rare.

AN ADJUSTABLE MIRROR

Can be Moved to Give Reflection at Any Angle Desired

An adjustable mirror that, while it is designed primarily as a shaving mirror, can be used by women on their dressing tables with equal convenience is a new invention. The glass is attached to a support that consists of three arms so connected that they have five joints and can be lengthened, shortened, raised or lowered in an instant with one hand. A universal joint on the back of the mirror permits of its movement independent of the angle of the arms. A small bracket that comes with the outfit is screwed to wall or window frame and the mirror can be inserted in this bracket or removed from it in an instant by means of a short rod on the free end of the last arm. These arms can be turned about to form legs to support the mirror on a table.

PIONEER SKATERS WERE THE DUTCH

They Were the First Makers of the Metal Gliders Now so Popular in Canada

The Canadian athlete owes his lacrosse to the Indian, that has always been understood, and now the assertion is made that it was the Dutch who taught us how to skate. Hockey is supposed to be the lineal descendant of the "hurley" game as played in Ireland, before Canada occupied the large place it does now on the map of the world, and the game is now accepted as peculiarly Canadian; but the name of the inventor of skates is lost in obscurity.

Passing over the days when every skater was the author of his own skates, we find that in the middle of the seventeenth century the Dutch had cornered most of the trade and were admitted to be the best manufacturers of skates in the known world. The Holland model was copied on all hands, and the Canadians who skated then were dependent upon the Dutch for their styles. Then, as now, the blade of the skates was composed of iron or steel. It was attached to the foot by means of a wooden platform. A skater simply stood upon his skate and had it lashed upon his foot. It was some time subsequently that the strap was invented, and for many years thereafter the skate was a curved blade of steel, with a wooden top, which was attached to the skater by means of straps. A peculiarity of the early Dutch skates was the curve in front. It may have been deemed immodest to end the blade in a point; more probably it was considered dangerous. In any event the skate ended in a whorl of steel, the skater being of opinion that the curve prevented him from stubbing his toe or tripping on the ice.

The Curve Skate Passes

This curve skate with wooden fittings was the standard for many years, and it was due to an American that the next improvement was added. This was in the shape of a socket in the heel of the boot. The curve had disappeared from the toe of the skates by this time, but the upper part was of wood. There were slits, too, through which the straps passed to attach the skate to the boot. Inserted at right angles to the boot the skate entered easily. But when the toe was strapped on it was impossible for the heel to slip. This was hailed as a great invention, for the trouble with the skate slipping from the boot was abolished and the skater could reasonably expect that his skates and his boots would not part company in the course of the exercise. For many years the wooden skate with the socket in the heel was the admired of all admirers.

English Skating Boots

In England, before the introduction of the acme skate that would clamp itself upon any shoe, the fashion of having special skating boots had arisen. On the fens, where skating, and especially figure skating, was very popular, and had, indeed, attracted the attention of the champions of Europe, the habit of having special boots for skating had arisen. In this country the idea was to use the ordinary boot. Wearing, as a rule, boots with thick soles, it was found that the skates attached themselves easily. In England however, thinner soles were the style, and under the clamp the soles crumpled up. Therefore, the English acquired the habit of using special skating boots. The modern skate is attached to the boot by means of screws. We have discovered, too, the advantages of the straight blade, and the ancient curve has been abandoned. In Europe the demand for speed has not been so insistent, and there the curved blade remains to give the Europeans an advantage in fancy skating, while to this continent of the straight blade they have yielded the palm for speed.

Poultry Pointers

Give the hens plenty of good pure water in clean dishes.

It pays to provide plenty of green feed for the laying hens.

Learning how to prevent diseases in poultry is worth far more than learning how to cure them.

Cleanliness, light, dry houses, fresh feed and pure water count in the poultry business.

A general cleaning up of the premises will help greatly in keeping down rats.

Brooder chicks must be provided with some kind of exercise.

Grease or insect powder should be applied to all young chicks infested with lice.

It is poor policy to feed inferior grain to poultry, especially to the laying hens.

Don't keep the culls, the loafers, the puny, weakly chicks around. Cull them out.

Protein the hens must have, and animal protein is better for them than vegetable protein.

Don't feed corn alone. Give the hens some wheat and oats if you want plenty of eggs.

Refuse from the family table is relished by the hens, and it pays better in the hen pen than in the hog pen.

For hatching purposes eggs from two-year-old hens give better satisfaction than eggs from younger stock.

BAKING PAN LIFTER

Wire Frame Slides Through the Grooves on Side of the Pan.

An ingenious little cooking utensil that will save the cook a burned finger or two has been designed by a Massachusetts man. It consists of a baking pan with a lifting attachment by which it can be carried about without touching the hot pan, even under the protection of a cloth. The opposite sides of the pan are turned down to form grooves. A piece of strong wire is bent into a handle and the two ends form long prongs that can be thrust through the grooves on the sides of the pan. The prongs are bent slightly downward at the points so they will not slip out too easily, but will afford a purchase on the grooves when the pan is to be drawn out of the oven. Even with a cloth for protection it is sometimes difficult to get hold of the pan when the bread or cake has risen to the edge.

SOME ROWING HISTORY

Amateur Sport Flourishes But Professionalism Almost Past

The Toronto Rowing Club, the oldest of existing clubs in the Queen City was formed in 1865. Some five years later the New Dominion Rowing Cub was formed. The New Dominion was later known as the Bayside Club. In 1872 the famous Argonaut Club was formed by members of the Toronto Rowing Club who felt that there was room for another aquatic institution.

These clubs held regattas every year, and, in addition, there were frequent trips to Brockville, Hamilton, Ottawa, and Montreal.

About 1880 the Amateur Association of Oarsmen was formed, and the line drawn against professionals. A good deal of whitewashing had to be done by the registration committee to secure any members at all, so prevalent was the practice of competing for purses. In the first year of the new association R. Tinning and J. Douglas were the double scull champions. Percy Galt's Argonaut crew were on top in the fours, and Jos. Lang won the single sculls, and set up a record for the mile and a half course on the Bay that stands to this day. In 1889 Joe Wright, the famous captain of the Argonaut Club, came to the front by stroking the fours to victory at Troy, New York. The following year his crew made a clean sweep of every event they entered. Argonaut crews have been doing that more or less regularly ever since.

Since then amateur rowing on Toronto Bay has held its own, but the professional game has declined. The introduction of eight-oared shells some six or seven years ago had a stimulating effect on the sport. The annual Canadian Henley Regattas at St. Catharines, the first of which was held in 1906, have helped to keep alive the interest of the public. Professional sculling, however, is almost dead. Apart from Durnan there are no professional scullers still active in America, of any note.

Bessie's Mistake

A small child, receiving a present of a new mackintosh from her father took it proudly to school with her.

"Take care of it, Bessie," her fond mother said.

"All right," said Bessie. On coming out of school Bessie found out to her dismay that it was raining heavily. Hastily rolling up her treasured coat and tucking it under her pinafore, she ran home as fast as her little legs could carry her.

"Why, whatever is the matter, you silly girl? Why ever did you not put your waterproof on?" said her astonished mother.

"Y-ou to-told me to ta-take car-care of it, and I was-was fr-frightened of ge-getting it wet," sobbed poor Bessie.

SKELETONS OF SEA MONSTERS

Rare Specimens of Prehistoric Creatures For The Victoria Museum at Ottawa

Visitors to the Royal Victoria Museum at Ottawa, shortly will be afforded the pleasure of gazing on mounted skeletons of the ancient Mosasaur, a giant reptile which flourished five million years ago, and before the Rocky Mountains had reared themselves from the foam of ocean waves; the titanotherium, another prehistoric monster bearing some resemblance to the rhinoceros of the twentieth century, and Portheous Molossus, a mammoth fish of the cretaceous era in the development of the world's crust.

Interesting specimens of these long extinct species have been purchased by the authorities of the Geological Survey from Mr. Charles H. Sternberg, a renowned fossil hunter of Kansas. The Mosasaur was found by his son, Mr. George F. Sternberg, and the titanotherium by himself. The former comes from the state of Kansas; the latter from Wyoming.

The skeleton of the Mosasaur, which is being put up on a long panel, is that of a reptile 20 and a half feet long with four powerful paddles, and a row of teeth in the roof of its mouth as well as on each side below. Three types of this reptile are found in Kansas. The Mosasaur lived in the deep sea, and the fact that its skeleton was found in Kansas 2,000 feet above sea level is proof that the western continent reared itself from the ocean.

In appearance the titanotherium is more interesting. It is nearly 12 feet long and stands 6 1-2 feet high. It came before either the mastadon or the elephant, and bears more resemblance to the rhinoceros, having two long horns on the end of its nose, four toes on the front feet and three on each of the hind ones. It will stand in a glass case, and will present much the appearance that it did in actual life.

The third specimen, also found on the plains of the west, is that of Portheous Molosseus, a fish fourteen feet in length, with a skull shaped like that of an English bull dog, powerful fangs, and fins three feet in length.

Mr. Sternberg, through whose agency the specimens were found, has given his whole life to the collection of fossils, which he had sold to museums throughout the world.

OUR WORST FOE

Dr. Hewitt Says the Fly Must be Exterminated

Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, in an interview at Ottawa regarding flies which he is fighting so vigorously, said:—

"The fly should be regarded as a winged carrier of disease and decay; without doubt the most dangerous pest on the farm. Wherever there is filth, suppuration or purulent discharge, flies are invariably attracted, and as they are cosmopolitan in their attentions and no distinguishers of persons they are potential disseminators of such bacteria as these sustances may contain. It is not a question of eradication in the case of this insect; such is impossible. Control and prevention, however, are within the bounds of possibility, and these will be regarded as essential when the facts are more generally realised."

"Do you believe all flies carry germs? Need a person regard every fly with distrust?" was asked.

"No house fly can be caught, indoors or out of doors, that is not carrying on its legs and body bacteria of all kinds, and the spores of moulds and other organisms that accompany decay," he replied. "No living fly is free from germs; the existence of such would be more than a miracle. Its legs and body, proboscis and wings are covered with small hairs and bristles, so that its legs may be compared to fine bristle brushes; it frequents every kind of filth imaginable, and besmirches itself with the microscopic bacteria and other decay-producing organisms, of which it cannot possibly rid itself, and flies about, a winged and wandering bundle of bacteria. All this might be expected as a result of reasoning alone, but such would not be proof, and the proof is astonishing in its vindication. Any house fly, whether caught in one's room or out in the open, and allowed to walk over a medium suitable for the growth of bacteria and moulds, will deposit the germs of those organisms in its tracks, which in a short time will yield colonies of bacteria and decay-producing fungi.

"It does not require any play of the imagination, therefore, to appreciate the ability of house flies, if they carry about such germs, to infect themselves with the bacilli of typhoid fever, tuberculosis, infantile diarrhoea, and other similarly infectious diseases. The only way to get rid of the fly is to kill it, but cleanliness is a good preventative. That is, all refuse, manure and other filth should be quickly cleared away or destroyed."

COST COLUMBUS $7 200

Ledgers recently discovered at Palos, Spain, contain interesting facts concerning the outlay made by Christopher Columbus on his expedition to the New World. The armament of the little fleet cost 14,000 pesetas. The personal expenses of Columbus and his officers were about 3,000 pesetas, and six pesetas a month sufficed for each of the crew, so that 22,050 pesetas, or about $4,400, were spent for the eight months that the voyage lasted. The sum total whereby America was discovered was 36,000 pesetas, or about $7,200.

HORSE WAS SHOCKED

A farmer tied his horse to a telephone pole, about the base of which hoop iron bands had been placed as protectors and the end of a telephone wire had been tied. The latter crossed an electric wire and the horse putting its nose against the post where the iron bands and the telephone wire met became a conductor for the electricity, and lost two teeth, and was put in to dreamland. Two men who came to the rescue received lesser shocks, but managed to pull the animal away and save its life.

Squirrels in Siberia

Last year 4,625,000 gray squirrels, 1,500,000 white hares, 200,000 ermine and 12,250 sables were killed in Siberia to provide various garments of fur.

A Tax on Cats.

Of the many German municipalities which have long threatened to levy a tax on cats, Munich is first to carry the threat into effect. The revenue of Bavaria's capital will be augmented by five marks annually upon each cat within the walls of the city. In future poor puss must wear a collar with a metal check and number, similar to those worn by dogs, or she will fall a prey to specially-engaged cat catchers. The new measure, it is stated, is in defence of singing birds and also in the interest of hygiene and the citizen's nocturnal repose.

Lavigne's Sad Fate

George Lavigne, known in the ring as "Kid Lavigne," and the "Saginaw Kid," one-time champion lightweight of the world and one of the gamest boys that ever rubbed his feet in rosin, has been put away in a sanitarium near Detroit and will probably end his days in that retreat. The kid's mind has failed.

RUSTY FIREIRONS

If fireirons have become rusty, take half an ounce of camphor, and dissolve it in a pound of lard, over a gentle heat. Stir in enough powdered blacklead to give the mixture an iron color. Rub well into the fireirons, cover with a thick layer, and leave until the following day. Wipe off with an old linen rag, rub with fine emery-paper, and then polish with a woollen rag.

My Lady of Doubt

BY RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "Love Under Fire," "My Lady of the North" and other stories

ILLUSTRATIONS BY HENRY THIEDE

Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1911.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a waltz, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel.

CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

CHAPTER VII—The Major arrives at the shop of a blacksmith, who is friendly, and knows the Lady of the Blended Rose.

CHAPTER VIII—Captain Grant and troopers arrive and search the blacksmith shop in vain for the spy.

CHAPTER IX—Lawrence joins the minute men who capture Grant and his train.

CHAPTER X—Major Lawrence is made prisoner by an Indian and two white men.

CHAPTER XI—Lawrence's captors lock him in a strong cell, where he meets Peter the jailer.

CHAPTER XII—Peter advises Lawrence not to attempt escape as "some one" will send for him.

CHAPTER XIII—Grant's appearance adds mystery to the combination of circumstances.

CHAPTER XIV—Lawrence again meets the Lady of the Blended Rose, who informs him that he is in her house and that she was in command of the party that attacked and captured him.

CHAPTER XV—The captive is thrust into a dark underground chamber when Captain Grant begins a search of the premises

CHAPTER XVI—After digging his way out, Lawrence finds the place deserted. Evidences of a battle and a dead man across the threshold.

CHAPTER XVII—Col. Mortimer, father of the Lady of the Blended Rose, finds his home in ruins.

"And—and you—you came here to again see—the daughter?" he questioned, as though half regretting the indiscretion of such a suspicion.

"Oh, no, captain; you do the lady a grave injustice. I came here a prisoner, very much against my will, not even aware whose plantation this was. I had no suspicion that Mistress Mortimer was outside Philadelphia until I overheard your conversation with her."

"Overheard! You! In God's name, where were you—"

"In this room; with both doors ajar it was impossible not to hear. You spoke somewhat angrily, you may remember, not finding the lady as gracious in her reception as expected."

The sarcasm in my tone stung him, but the surprise was so great that he could only rip out an oath.

"I thought you would have also enjoyed swearing at that time," I continued coolly, "only you scarcely dared venture so far. You had previously boasted to me of your engagement to the lady, and it naturally was a surprise to observe how lovingly she greeted you—"

"Hell's acre!" he burst out. "Did the minx know you were there?"

"If you refer to Mistress Mortimer, I presume she suspected it. At least she came to me shortly thereafter."

"Then I understand better what troubled the girl. But, in God's name! how did you ever escape me? I was in every room of the house."

I smiled pleasantly. There was nothing for me to gain, or lose, by goading him, yet it was rather enjoyable.

"That, of course, I must naturally refuse to answer, captain. I might need to resort to the same methods again."

"There will be small chance of your having opportunity. Mortimer will hang you fast enough when I tell my tale. Don't look for mercy at his hands, for he's prouder than Lucifer of his family honor."

He was out of the door, striding down the hall, bent on carrying out his purpose. I heard his voice asking where the colonel was to be found; then the guard closed the barrier between us. Very well, of the two I would rather leave my fate to Mortimer than to him, and felt profoundly grateful that the captain was not in command. Had he been, I should doubtless have been hung without the slightest formality of trial, but Mortimer would at least hear my version first; indeed, I could hardly believe he would issue so stringent orders without listening also to his daughter's story. I was an officer of rank; the consequences might prove rather serious were I to be executed summarily, and without proper trial.

I had scarcely reasoned this out, however, when a corporal threw open the door, ordering my guard to conduct me into the colonel's presence. I was taken to the parlor, where the furniture had been somewhat rearranged, and found myself confronting Mortimer, the officer I had heard addressed as Seldon, and Grant. The latter was speaking vehemently:

"Come, You Dog!" Burst Out the Colonel Fiercely, "You Know More Than You Have Told!"

"I tell you, colonel, this has got to be done; he is a spy, and here for some infamous purpose."

"Well, I've sent for the fellow, Grant; what more do you want? I'll give him five minutes in which to explain, and that is all. Seldon, have the men go on ahead along the trail."

"Yes, sir, they are off already."

"Very well. Have our horses outside; we can catch up within a mile or two." He wheeled sharply about, and looked at me sternly. "Well, sir, I have very little time to waste on you at present, but I advise truthful answers. What is your name?"

"Allen Lawrence."

"You claim to be in the Continental service—what rank?"

"Major in the Maryland Line, Maxwell's Brigade."

"Dressed hurriedly, probably, and forgot your uniform."

"I have lately been serving with the Jersey militia, sir, as Captain Grant can testify," I answered civilly.

"And Captain Grant is only too anxious," broke in that officer impatiently. "If you will listen to me, colonel, I'll tell you what I know in two minutes or less. It will settle this fellow's status."

Mortimer glanced from my face to that of the speaker, evidently attracted by the vindictiveness of the voice.

"All right, Grant, go on," he said shortly, "only I shall pass judgment as a soldier, and not because of any personal quarrel. What is it you know?"

"That this man came into Philadelphia three days ago dressed as an officer of British infantry. He claimed to be Lieutenant Fortesque of the Forty-second Foot, with despatches from New York. Howe vouched for him, and furnished him with a pass and orderly. He put in the whole day studying the positions of our troops, and in the evening was a guest at the Mischianza—Andre gave him a card, I heard—and danced there with your daughter. I doubted the man from our first meeting, and later picked up certain rumors which convinced me he was a spy. Some words passed between us on the dancing floor, and as a consequence I asked the man to meet me below. Some one either told him he was suspected, or else he had the heart of a coward, for he failed to appear."

"Did you intend to fight him?"

"No, we planned an arrest. I reported to MacHugh what I had heard, and he had Carter close at hand with a squad of the guard."

"A very pretty trick on mere suspicion," commented the colonel in some disgust. "But go on with your story."

Grant sucked in his breath quickly, evidently surprised at the remark.

"Claire was waiting for me upstairs in the dining room, but after Carter had scattered his men to the outposts, I took a turn about the grounds in hope of thus running across the fellow. Luck favored me, but, damn him, he jumped into me like a fighting cock, struck me in the face, and taunted me into meeting him there and then."

"Good boy! the right stuff, eh Seldon?"

"I supposed it all a bluff," went on Grant, paying no heed to the interruption, although his cheeks flushed, "but we went at it, behind the pavilion, and I had pricked him twice, when the guard came up and separated us. At that the fellow took to his heels, and by God! got away—swam the Delaware, while we were beating the west shore. The next I saw of him he was in command of those ragamuffins who attacked us out yonder. Now he shows up here looting this house on the trail of 'Red' Fagin. I'd hang him offhand if it was me."

Mortimer looked across at me earnestly, but with an expression of doubt in his eyes. As for myself I hardly knew what to say or do. Grant had no corroborative proof of his assertions, unless I was returned to Philadelphia. I could emphatically deny that I was the man, insist on my right to a fair trial. But how could I account in any reasonable way for my presence at Elmhurst, or even successfully sustain my claim to being a Continental officer. I could not tell Colonel Mortimer that I had been taken prisoner by his daughter, masquerading as a lieutenant of dragoons. Apparently he knew nothing of this escapade, and she would scarcely forgive me for exposure; besides, for all I knew to the contrary, the girl might have thus been attempting to serve the colonies, and a word of betrayal might seriously injure our cause. All this flashed over me before Mortimer spoke.

"Have you any proofs, sir, that you are an officer of Maxwell's brigade?"

"Not here," and I glanced down at my rough clothing, "yet with a little delay that could be easily ascertained."

"On what service are you in the Jerseys?"

"I must decline to answer."

"Were you in Philadelphia, wearing British uniform three days ago?"

"If I should say no it would be merely my word against Captain Grant—you would doubtless prefer to believe him."

Grant [illegible] the colonel [illegible]

"I am informed that you have already acknowledged being concealed in this house yesterday."

"I have, sir."

"Did anyone know of your presence here?"

"I was brought here—a prisoner."

"What!" in decided surprise. "Prisoner to whom?"

"I was captured by three men, dressed as Queen's Rangers, on a road some miles to the west. They made no explanation, although I have some reason to believe I was mistaken for another. I was held in a strong room in the basement, overnight."

"You were not there when I searched the house," broke in Grant hoarsely.

"No," and I turned and smiled at him. "I had been brought upstairs before you arrived."

"Then you saw your captors by daylight?"

"Two of them, yes—a man called Peter, and an Irish fellow, with a chin beard."

"What!" and Mortimer started forward. "Peter and Mike in uniform! This is beyond belief. Were they alone?"

"They were apparently under the orders of a young lieutenant—the same who had command of Delavan's advance guard. I was unable to distinguish the lad's face."

"Delavan's advance guard!" and the colonel turned toward Grant. "What do you know about this, sir? Who was he?"

The captain hesitated, shifting uneasily on his feet.

"I—I do not know, sir," he explained finally, driven to answer. "I merely had a glimpse of the boy when I first joined the column. I—I thought I recognized him, but was not sure."

"Who did you suppose him to be?"

"Your son, Eric, sir."

CHAPTER XIX.

Again the Cellar Room.

The father sank back in his chair, breathing heavily.

"Eric here, making use of this house, and my servants," he muttered. "I can scarcely believe it true. Was—was he here yesterday morning when you came?"

"I found no trace of his presence, sir."

There was a moment of silence, broken unexpectedly by the rustle of a dress. I turned in surprise, and saw Claire standing quietly in the doorway.

"Pardon me, gentlemen," she said softly, "but perhaps I can explain much of this mystery, and establish the identity of Major Lawrence."

Seldon sprang forward and offered her a chair, but she merely thanked him with a bow, and remained standing, her eyes upon her father. Not once had she even glanced toward either Grant or me, but I noticed the deep flush of color on cheek evidencing her excitement. What was she going to explain? How account for the strange actions of the past few days? How came she to be here at all? Would she confess the truth openly before us all, or would she feel justified in concealment? I could not, did not, doubt the honesty of the girl's intent, and yet was it possible for her to compel these men to accept her version of all which had occurred? Would she venture a falsehood to protect me, or to save herself?

"Pardon Me, Gentlemen," She Said Softly, "but Perhaps I Can Explain Much of This Mystery."

"I—I have already explained much," I hastened to say, thinking she might wish to know.

"I overheard what has already been said," she returned quickly, but without looking toward me, "and appreciate the care with which my name has thus far been guarded. Now I am ready to make my own explanation."

"But, first, Claire," said her father soberly, "how does it happen you are here? We supposed you in the hands of 'Red' Fagin, and a squadron of my men are out now tracking the fellows."

"I was not in the house when they came, father; Peter and I were back of the stables, fortunately mounted. We were obliged to ride hard, as we were chased several miles, and returned as soon as it appeared safe."

"And Eric?"

"He departed before Captain Grant arrived," she replied unhesitatingly, "and must be already safe within his own lines."

"It was Eric, then?"

"Who else could it be? Surely Captain Grant told you as much."

The colonel's eyes wandered about the little group, and his doubt and bewilderment were clearly evident.

"Do you know Eric's purpose in coming here? in presuming to act as an officer in Delavan's company?"

"He did not inform me, sir."

"You know this man?"

She turned, and looked at me for the first time, a silent plea in her blue eyes.

"I do—he is Major Lawrence of General Washington's army," her voice low, but distinct. "I have known him since the Continental troops were first quartered in Philadelphia."

I started slightly, yet as instantly recovered my outward composure, realizing that this [illegible] girl once purposed protecting me from exposure, even at the expense of a falsehood.

"Indeed; you were doubtless aware then that he was within Sir Henry Clinton's lines as a spy?"

THE ARCTIC PRESS

Papers of the Northerns Printed Just Once a Year

There are at least several journals that make their appearance only once a year. These are published within the confines of the north polar circle. The Eskimo Bulletin, for example, is edited near Cape Prince of Wales, on Behring Strait.

Here, in a village inhabitated by Eskimos, the English missionaries have established a school, and as only one steamer lands at this place, and that only once a year, that news that it brings is consigned to a sheet of paper printed with the mimeograph. Its size is eight by twelve inches. The paper is very thick and only one surface is used.

This Eskimo Bulletin in a subhead claims to be the "only yearly paper." This, however, is an error, for there is an annual sheet published in Godthaab, Greenland, where a small printing office was established in 1862, whence news sheets and lithographic prints have been issued. The journal in question is entitled Atnagagdliutit, nalinginarmik Tusaruminasassumik, that is "Something for reading; accounts of all sorts of entertaining subjects." The language is that of Greenland, a dialect of the Eskimos.

PROUD OF HIS NEW CLOTHES

Rhodesian Native, Returning From Mines, Was Scandalized By Unclad Relatives and Friends.

A town in Rhodesia is not generally a town, declares Mrs. M. L. Woods in "Pastels Under the Southern Cross." A few scattered shops, a broad road deep in red dust, down which a sudden miscellaneous herd of blacks occasionally pours, constitute a town. Of these natives, Mrs. Woods gives the following description.

They are collected from all parts of Rhodesia, from Portuguese territory, even from Nyasaland. Dressed in anything and everything, they come pell-mell, grinning and chattering, some like young colts bounding into the air as they go. These happy fellows are probably rejoicing because they are being sent to some mine where certain of their friends and relations are already working.

This is the native as he appears entering on his term of service at the mines. I once saw a group of black men who had completed their term of service and were on their way home. They were serious, dignified, conscious of clean and complete costumes, consisting of shirt and trousers and a hard straw hat. Each had his neat bundle and his gaily painted wooden box.

We were once appreciative witnesses of the home-coming of such a miner at a wayside station. A party of relatives and friends had come from the kraal to meet the returning one, all innocent in their nakedness and rags. The plutocrat surveyed them with a scandalized eye; coldly he waved their salutations and endearments, obviously too shocked and pained to appreciate them. Then he withdrew from the platform to the foot of a neighboring tree, and beckoned his bewildered friends to approach. In a few minutes, before the eyes of the passengers in the train, he had clothed his whole party with decency, and surely, in their eyes with splendor. Then, and only then, did he condescend to return their greetings: and, exceedingly joyful, all marched off together in the direction of their kraal.

When Appetite Fails and Digestion is Bad

THERE IS DANGER AHEAD FOR THE MAN WHO NEGLECTS NATURE'S WARNING.

Dyspepsia Tendencies are Serious and Should be Treated Accordingly.

There is a strong moral in the statement of James Schrum, of Pleasant-street, Dartmouth, N.S. Like thousands of people, he was failing in health because his stomach and digestive organs were out of repair. His vitality was slipping away; he was losing ground every day.

"I could not have held on much longer. I was wasting away simply because no remedy I used gave tone and strength to my stomach. The vital forces of my system seemed dead. I was advised to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills. What hidden weakness they searched out I don't know, but in a miraculous way they have made a new man of me. My stomach troubles are cured, rich blood now runs through my veins—clear skin and unmistakable evidences of health and vigor I feel every day. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have certainly mastered the secret of curing the sickly unnerved man and I strongly urge everyone in failing or lost health to use this grand remedy."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut are purely vegetable, 25c. per box, five for $1.00, all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

The Tait Optical Co. Limited, have decided to re-establish their optical business in Peterborough and will instal their premises at 410 George street with all the latest instruments for the scientific examination of the eyes for glasses also a complete grinding plant for the manufacture of glasses on the premises. One of the reasons for the success of the Tait Optical Co. in Canada is the fact that they take all the responsibility of your eyes from the examining to making the glasses complete. Manufacturing their own goods enables them to sell better quality glasses at a less price than is paid generally. Dr. Tait will take charge.

AUNT SALLY'S ADVICE TO BEAUTY SEEKERS

Lydia says: "I've tried most everything for my freckles, but I can't lose them. What do you suggest?" See answer to "Stella." The treatment suggested I've never known to fail in the case of freckles or other cutaneous blemish.

P. J. K. asks: "Is there anything better than massage to remove wrinkles?" Too much massaging may aggravate a wrinkled condition, tending to soften and loosen the tissue. I advise bathing the face in an astringent lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is remarkably effective.

Stella writes: "My complexion is horribly muddy. What shall I do for it?" Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's. Apply this nightly like you'd use cold cream, washing it off mornings. This will cause the offensive cuticle gradually to make way, by a process of gentle absorption, for the clear, velvety, healthy-hued skin underneath. —Woman's Realm.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DOING GREAT WORK IN PARRY SOUND.

Mrs. Jos. Desmasdon States That She Found the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy All that They Are Represented.

Point Aux Baril, Parry Sound, Ont., May 16.—(Special)—That Dodd's Kidney Pills cure young and old alike is shown in the case of Mrs. Jos. Desmasdon and her daughter of this place. In an interview Mrs. Desmasdon says:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have given me the best satisfaction. They are just as represented. My little daughter Caroline, seven years of age, suffered from kidney disease and one box cured her entirely."

Dodd's Kidney Pills only cure diseased kidneys. They cure it no matter where it is found, and they cure it quickly and completely. It is by curing diseased kidneys that they cure rheumatism, heart disease, dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease, backache, urinary troubles and other ailments. All these ills are caused by kidney disease, and the natural cure for them is to cure the kidneys.

The work of the kidneys is to strain impurities out of the blood. To have good health you must have pure blood. If your kidneys are diseased or out of order you can't have pure blood. You must cure the kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure the kidneys.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

Rare Opportunity to Secure Absolutely Safe Stock That Pays Big Dividends.

Attention is respectfully directed to the advertisement, in this issue, of the St. Lawrence Investment and Trust Co. This company was incorporated by Act of the Provincial Legislature of Quebec in 1896 and has for its object the extending and absorption of the St. Lawrence Investment Society. The latter carried on a most successful business on a more limited scale and paid regular annual dividends to shareholders, varying from 5 p.c. to 15 p.c. One point for careful consideration is the great value of the reorganized company's charter, as explained in the advertisement. The company is now issuing $1,000,000 shares of stock, at $100 each, of which $300,000 has been subscribed for privately. The high standing of the Company's directors, is, in itself, a sufficient guarantee of its reliability.

A SPLENDID UNDERTAKING GOOD LOCAL ROADS

The Peterborough Automobile Association, of which Mr. R. W. Travers, manager of the local Bank of Montreal, is president, is making a strong effort to ensure good roads in the city and district. A committee meeting of the associations was held in the Bell Telephone Co. Building, when a proposition was submitted by Mr. F. W. Doan, who has been appointed chairman of the "Good Roads" Committee for an active campaign.

Under this plan, the municipalities of city and surrounding townships, have been asked to consent to have the association improve the highways.

The City Council have lent the local road-scraper, which will be sent to Bridgenorth and clear off the large stones along the road, between here and that summer resort. A man will be sent to Nassau with proper tools to fill in and level all the holes and ruts in the roadway. Similar work will be conducted in different directions along all highways leading from the city.

At the committee meeting there were present, Messrs. R. W. Travers, W. F. Doan, E. G. Patterson, Dr. Sutton, A. E. Coulthard and G. K. Rackham, the efficient secretary.

This is a splendid undertaking and one that will be greatly appreciated, not only by the automobile users, but by every farmer coming to the city. The adjoining municipalities should grant both moral and financial assistance to the undertaking, the expense of which is now borne by the individual members.

THE ST. LAWRENCE INVESTMENT & TRUST COMPANY.

was incorporated by act of the Quebec Legislature, 5 Ed. VII, Chap. 75, in 1905, having for its object the extending and absorption of the St. Lawrence Investment Society. This Society, formed in 1896, carried on a successful business on a small scale, paying regular annual dividends varying from 5 p.c. to 15 p.c and the assets gave the shares of the Society a value of about $150 at its absorption. The Charter under which the new Company is organised is a valuable one, it being difficult to obtain a Charter of like character. The powers conferred by it are wide and give an opportunity for the transaction of a profitable business.

FUTURE OF THE COMPANY.

The new Company will do business on a much larger scale than the old Company, will operate largely in the owning of, buying and selling of well selected real estate, in the development of tracts of land in the City and its suburbs by selling same as Factory Sites and building lots, and in the purchase of agreements of sale, a business very profitably engaged in, in Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver and other Cities. The purchasing of agreements of sale has not, to any extent, been carried on in Montreal, and it is intended that this Company pay particular attention to this Branch, which shows even better opportunities of profit, with a larger margin of safety, than those of the West, inasmuch as the values of Real Estate in Montreal are more firmly based.

FIELD OF OPERATION

The operations of the Company will be confined chiefly to the City and District of Montreal and there is no city which offers the same advantages to Investors seeking safety with large returns. Montreal's commercial supremacy in the Dominion is universally known. The population in 1901 was 266,826, and in 1912 611,397. The assessed valuation of Real Estate in 1912 showed an increase of $125,000,000 over the previous year. Montreal is an Island, therefore its area is fixed. Real Estate values, though increasing, are still low, and leave room for great expansion. The City proper covers an area of 16 square miles, the smallest area of any city with the same population in either Canada or the United States.

MANAGEMENT

The Company have appointed Findlay & Howard, Limited, Managers. Mr. Findlay is recognised as one of the foremost judges of Real Estate in Montreal, and the Firm's success is shown in the results of the following companies managed by them, which in addition to placing substantial amounts to reserve have paid dividends as follows:—

Applemount Land Company, Limited,	Incorporated	1909	paid	55 p.c.
Birnam Realty Company, Limited,	"	1910	"	80 p.c.

NAVY BILL WILL PASS SENATE WITH PLEBISCITE ATTACHMENT

Members of Upper House Will Base Their Opposition Upon Grounds That Expenditures Should Be Kept Under Control of Parliament--Course Already Decided

Ottawa, Ont., May 17.—Speculation is rife as to what course the Senate will take respecting the naval aid bill which will be given its first reading on Tuesday next.

There is a general impression that the bill will pass, but many Liberals say that a clause will be added which will prevent the measure coming into effect unless and until it is approved at a plebiscite by the people of Canada. It is recalled that suchan amendment was proposed in the Senate to the Laurier Naval Act of 1910.

Some members of the Senate, it is said, will base their opposition to the bill entirely upon the ground presented to the house by Mr. German of Welland. Mr. German, it will be remembered, pledged himself to vote for a gift of dreadnoughts to the Imperial navy provided the expenditure was kept under the control of parliament. This parliamentary control, he said, would be insisted upon by the Liberals; and this important principle could never go upon the statute book so long as the principles of Liberalism were dominant in parliament, or either house of parliament.

Parliamentary Control.

In this connection some of the Liberals are trying to make capital out of Mr. Borden's speech. The prime minister, in recounting how often the Laurier Government had departed from the principles of parliamentary control of expenditure, instanced the purchase of the Drummond County Railway and the contract with Mackenzie and Mann respecting the Yukon Railway. In both cases the Liberals now claim the Conservative Senate threw out the bills passed by the house because of their departure from this very principle of parliamentary control.

Course Already Decided.

One thing at least is certain, and that is that the course of the Senate has already been decided upon. A prominent Liberal M.P. who of late has been quite lukewarm in his opposition to the navy bill, said this afternoon:

"I do not know what the understanding is, and if I did I could not disclose it, but I do know beyond preadventure that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir George Ross have come to a complete understanding on the subject of the naval aid bill."

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE NATIONALISTS

It must strike the public as very strange that the Liberal Opposition should keep harping on the "unholy alliance" between the Borden Government and the Nationalists since the latter have voted consistently for Laurier against Borden and his naval policy. The following extract from The Ottawa Journal's account of the third reading of the Bill is interesting:

"The sole source of friction, and that was good-humored, lay in the fact the five Nationalists voted with the Liberals. Indeed, one of them, Mr. Guilbault seconded Sir Wilfrid's amendment to give the naval bill a six months' hoist."

PELLETIERS PARCEL POST ACT RESEMBLES THAT UNCLE SAM'S

Parcels Up to 11 Pounds and 72 Inches in Length and Girth Will Be Carried Ottawa, May 17.—The text of Mr. Pelletier's bill respecting parcel post is as follows:

"This act may be cited as the Parcel Post Act. A parcel post is hereby established and will be maintained in Canada for the conveyance of parcels of all kinds, including farm and factory products, except such articles as are or may be excluded under the regulations prescribed by the postmaster-general.

"No parcel to be carried by post shall exceed 11 pounds in weight or greater in size than 72 inches in length and girth combined. All charges for the conveyance of parcels by post must be prepaid in postage stamps.

"The rates of postage applicable to post parcels shall be determined by the postmaster-general, and all powers which the postmaster-general now has with regard to mail matter are hereby vested in him for the parcel post system.

"Under authority of the Governor-in Council two officers may be appointed as inspectors and supervisors of the parcel post system at a salary of thousand eight hundred dollars on appointment, with an annual increase of one hundred dollars up to a maximum of three thousand five hundred dollars.

The act shall come into force on a day to be fixed by proclamation of the Governor-in-Council."

HIS MAJESTY NOW AT WAR WITH THE MILITANT SUFFS

His Majesty Tells Cabinet Ministers That Reign of Terror Must Stop--Titled women Betray Secret

London, May 17.—King George has thrown all of the power and influence of the Crown into the fight for the suppression of the militant suffragist and an end of the militant war.

According to a report that is taken as authentic, he called Premier Asquith, Home Secretary, and Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, to a conference, at which he told the officials that the reign of terror must be stopped.

One can hardly imagine the resentment of the King when he found one of these titled women had betrayed the secret telephone number used by his own divine person, and that suffragists in command of this hefty bit of information had made bold to call him on the phone and demand votes for women.

Instructions of the King to his officers are that they must put down the rebellion of women by drastic means.

BRITISH PEOPLE SYMPATHIZE WITH THE U. S. RE THE JAPS

But It's a Mistake to Underestimate Chances of War With Japan, Remarks Pall Mall Gazette

London, May 17.—"Should war break out the sympathies of Australia, New Zealand and Western Canada would be violently on the side of the United States," says the Pall Mall Gazette to-day in discussing the Californian alien land ownership controversy.

The newspaper considers that it would be a grave mistake to underestimate the chances of a conflict between the United States and Japan. It says:

"The opinion that the Japanese will never go to war to enforce their treaty rights in California is one of thos dangerous generalities which leads nations blindfolded to the brink of the pit."

The Pall Mall Gazette expresses the opinion that there are several reasons why Japan may be desirous of forcing the issue at the present moment. The most obvious of these is the pending opening of the Panama Canal, while a more remote one is connected with conditions of her internal politics. The article continues:

"The point at issue, exclusion of Asiatics from permanent settlement touches the British Empire very nearly."

ST. THOMAS TAKES TWO GAMES FROM THE PETES

Riverside Park was fairly jammed on Saturday afternoon, with one of the largest crowds of spectators that has visited the ball grounds for some time, and they certainly got their moneys worth.

The first game was really a splendid exhibition of clean ball, in which correct fielding prevailed, with but few errors. Both double play and well-placed hitting, however, were scarce, while sky-scrapers fell into retaining hands on both sides, the boys retiring to catches quite regularly. Although the Petes lost to the Saints it took twelve innings to do the trick, in a hard fought contest which stamps our home team as at least in the running for the pennant. It is hard to conceive of a better game than this being pulled off on the park any season, so evenly matched were the teams and while exciting situations were rare, scientific ball was handed out in satisfying quantities. Throughout the whole game third base was reached but rarely by either side, showing that both teams were on their metal. The main issues of the contest rested between the batteries and the outfielders, although some pretty playing occurred within the diamond at times.

Howick for the visitors and Sterling for the Petes, both pitched pretty games, and Powers for the Saints and McNeal for the home boys were all that could be desired behind the plate. Howick is quite a youthful twirler, and a hard nut to crack satisfactorily to the batters. Sterling was in splendid form and pitched a superb game; he was also cool and alert throughout and more than one short grounder and bounder found its way to first base in time via Sterling. McNeal kept up his record both at and behind the bat. He made a two bagger in the second innings and another in the fifth.

The visitors went to bat first and scored one run in quick order. The Petes did not make the home plate until the fifth innings, when McNeal struck a two bagger to left field, Hilliard followed with a two bagger in the same direction, which brought McNeal in, but Hilliard was retired in the forlorne hope of stretching his hit into a three-bagger. From this up to the 12th innings the contest was any body's game, when a three-bagger to deep centre field brought in a man from second base, immediately followed by a two bagger to right field, giving the Saints two runs and the game with a score of 3 to 1.

Totten quite distinguished himself in fielding, and in the seventh innings he secured two difficult sky-scrapers in immediate rotation.

The second game was also a tight one, St. Thomas scoring two runs in the first innings and shutting the Petes out. The game was called in the seventh with a score of 2—0. Brodie did the pitching for the Petes and put up an excellent game.

A FAMOUS DOG

The Times is in receipt of a letter from Mr. James McHarrie, of Stranraer, England, asking for copies of the Times containing an account of the experiences of "Peterborough Ben," a dog presented by that gentleman to his brother, the late Mr. McHarrie, formerly local manager of the Bank of Commerce in this city, and given by him to Lord Strathcona's famous regiment of horse, which did such splendid service for Canada and the Empire during the Boer war.

Mr. McHarrie is anxious to secure copies of The Times containing the exploits of "Peterboro Ben," which appeared in May and June, 1901, and which we are unable to supply. If any of our readers can do so, they may send them direct or forward to The Times office, and we will gladly send them on.

PROF. BOWLES HEADS VICTORIA COLLEGE

Succeeds Chancellor Burwash in August—Now Professor of Homiletics.

Toronto, May 17.—Prof. Richard P. Bowles has been chosen to succeed Chancellor Burwash as head of Victoria College and will take his new post on Aug. 1, when Chancellor Burwash retires.

The new chancellor is one of the best known men in ministerial circles in Canada, having been in charge of churches in Montreal, Winnipeg, and Toronto. Seven years ago he was appointed professor of homiletics at Victoria College, which office he has filled since that time.

FIFTY HORSES BURNED IN BRANTFORD FIRE

Brantford, Ont., May 17.—The horse stables, pit stables, hay barn and implement shed of the Bow Park Farm near here, were destroyed this morning by fire from unknown cause. Fifty-two horses, fifty pigs, many sheep and implements were burned. Total damage $30,000.

SHOOKS GAVE ADVICE TO WIRE TAPPER VICTIMS

Clairvoyants Persuaded Men to Bet On Fixed Horse Races, Attorney Says.

Chicago, May 17.—The clairvoyant ring, working in conjunction with a gang of wire-tappers, has netted Chicago swindlers $500,000 during the last eighteen months, according to evidence in the hands of State Attorney Hoyne.

The evidence brings in the name of Dr. William T. Kirby. An investigation by Federal Judge Landis into the failure of a private bank, of which Dr. Kirby was the head, developed that $10,000 was missing and Kirby explained that he had been swindled out of that sum by wire-tappers. Judge Landis disbelieved his story and a federal grand jury recommended that Kirby be held for perjury.

Included in the evidence are records of telephone calls from the headquarters of half of the alleged wire tappers to Dr. Kirby. Records of calls between clairvoyants and the wire-tappers also were obtained.

THE TRENT CANAL

Petition to the Minister of Railways and Canals Praying for an Investigation into the Work of Construction

Below will be found copy of a petition which is to be presented to the Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, which speaks for itself. This action is no doubt the result of the series of articles which appeared in The Times some time ago, in which it was shown that the Canal would, when completed, be utterly useless as a barge waterway. It would be impossible for a string of barges to pass safely through the side torrents and tortuous eddies that are almost everywhere in evidence. The "submerged" channels with their hidden, ragged, rocky sides, would be disastrous to any tow that would attempt to navigate the Canal. These are facts that cannot be successfully disputed.

The Government should at once proceed to widen these "submerged" channels, dredging them, using the material to raise the sides so that they will be above the surface of the water, and therefore not a hidden menace to the navigator.

The following is the petition:—

"To the Honorable Frank Cochrane,
Minister of Railways and Canals,
Ottawa.

"Dear Sir.—

"We, the undersigned, being navigators, or interested in the navigation of the Trent Canal, beg respectfully to draw your attention to the following facts in connection with the present mode of construction of the Trent Canal:

1st. That if properly constructed, the Trent Canal, in conjunction with the large grain carrier on the upper lakes, will be the most economical route for the transportation of the surplus grain of the North West Provinces to the sea board and to the different industries along the route.

2nd. That the best, and, in fact, the only economical style of navigation suitable for the long and beautiful lake and river stretches of the Trent Waterway, is by large tows or fleets of barges similar to those in use on the Hudson and Mississippi Rivers, by means of which an immense quantity of grain is moved in the most cheaply constructed class of vessel, and which has proved the cheapest mode of transportation in the world.

3rd. That the channels and approaches to the different locks as at present being constructed are not suitable for the above style of navigation, and as such the Canal will fail to perform the function for which it is being built.

4th. That it would be more economical to have these defects remedied at once, when the contractors are on the works, rather than wait till the whole waterway is coompleted.

Your petitioners therefore pray that you will cause an investigation to be made as to the above facts and have such alterations and additions made as will render this great waterway of the greatest benefit to the people of this country, and they will ever pray."

GOOD-BYE, OLD LID.

Harms Students
More than most anyone else

The Chief of the Presbyterian Hospital in N. Y., Dr. Fisher, tells one very easy way to avoid some physical ills.

His comments on

are most interesting (see letter in southeast corner.)

If the subject appeals to you, try leaving off tea and coffee entirely, use INSTANT POSTUM and carefully note, day by day, the return to health and strength.

A level teaspoonfull of Instant Postum in an ordinary cup of water dissolves instantly and makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more, and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

Postum comes in two forms.

REGULAR must be boiled.

SPEAKS OUT.

Dr. C. Irving Fisher, for a quarter century at the head of New York's great Presbyterian Hospital, says in the New York Times of March 23, 1913:

"Coffee poisoning is becoming constantly more common in this country especially among students, whom it harms more than it would harm almost anybody else.

"Coffee intoxication does not lead to wife beating, but its physiological effects upon some of its victims are almost as bad as those of alcoholic poisoning.

"We continually find at the various clinics signs of the harm done by the excessive use of tea and coffee among children.

"Surely this is quite preventable.

"Children not infrequently appear whose nervous and digestive systems have been wrecked by these two beverages."

INSTANT POSTUM doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in cup of hot water.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

Advertisements under above heads, 20 words and under, one insertion, 15c.; 3 insertions, 25c.; 6 insertions, 40c.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaprilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaprilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., [illegible] George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

THEIR LITTLE SCHEME

Lovers Take Time by The Forelock and Earn Honeymoon Money.

BY FRANK FILSON.

"But a whole year is an eternity, Muriel," pleaded Frank Crawford, as he bade good-by to his fiancee, Muriel Lee, upon the stoop of her boarding house. "Why have you so strong an objection to getting furniture on the installment plan? There are several perfectly reputable firms and it won't be such a great drain on our income."

Muriel was adamantine. "My dear," she said for the twentieth time, "I won't start married life in debt. We've got to have two hundred dollars to begin to furnish our apartment. Now, you be patient, and I will be, and we'll each save up a hundred during the coming twelvemonth."

Frank went away disconsolate and Muriel went to bed and cried herself to sleep.

But on the next evening Frank was back, jubilant. In his hand he held a copy of the evening paper.

"Look, dearest," he cried, thrusting it before her eyes. "Do you see this? Mumford & Curtis have promised a hundred dollars to the first one of their employes to get married. And Caber & Roche, not to be outdone, have made a similar offer. Now, then!"

"But, my dear boy, you aren't an employe of either firm," protested Muriel.

"No, but don't you know I can arrange to begin my vacation tomorrow morning? And those department firms always want help of some kind. Why, tomorrow morning I can get a position at eight dollars a week as a packer, and we'll get married at noon."

"Suppose they don't pay?"

"Of course they'll pay. Why, the newspapers will be full of the story. They won't dare go back on their agreement."

"But the newspapers!" said Muriel, pouting.

"But a hundred dollars!" said Frank. "Muriel, darling, won't a single hundred do?"

"Well," said Muriel, after an interval of thought, "if you can really get that position I'll—I'll meet you at the marriage license bureau at half-past twelve. Which firm are you going to try?"

"You Want a Job?" Queried the Woman Superintendent.

"Mumford & Curtis," answered Frank. "I know a man in the packing department. He'll take me on."

"You're sure it won't be Caber & Roche?"

"Sure. Why?"

"Oh, nothing. I just wanted to know," said Muriel. And they spent the evening figuring out what a hundred dollars would buy. Frank Lee left her in high glee at eleven o'clock. On his way home he read and re-read the newspaper paragraph a dozen times, to make sure that he had not deceived himself.

His first act on awakening was to read it again. His second was to telephone to the office, asking that his vacation might be counted as commencing from that morning. To effect this was easy, for he was one of a large force of clerks in the big life insurance office where he was employed, and his work could easily be undertaken by others. Then he put on an old suit and went down to the big department store of Mumford & Curtis, which stands, as everybody knows, at Seventh avenue and Hollis street.

He had intended to apply to his friend, the assistant head of the packing department, but on second thoughts he decided that this might lay him open to suspicion. So he went, instead to the mailing department.

"You want a job?" queried the woman superintendent. "What can you do?"

"I've had some clerical experience," answered Frank. "I need a job in the worst kind of way," he added. "I'm willing to start in at anything so that I can get employment here." He had never spoken more truly.

"Well," said the superintendent, "I believe they want some addressers just now. Write your name on this piece of paper. That's all right. Now I'll take you to Mr. Briggs."

Yes, Mr. Briggs could use an addresser. But the pay was only eight dollars a week. However, there would be chances of advancement.

"Would you mind giving me a written engagement?" asked Frank guilelessly. "Just a line to say that I am engaged here, so that I can show it to my landlady, or to anyone who wants proof that I have a position?"

"He fell for it," Frank announced to Muriel later. "He tumbled right in. Well, I worked at full blast till noon. I had to work, Muriel, to keep from jumping up and shouting. And at the stroke of the hour I was up and out of the office and across the square and down town on a surface car—and here I am."

And Muriel, blushing divinely, entered the office of the marriage license registrar with him, and five minutes later they emerged, carrying the coveted paper that gave them the right to me made one, and stood up before the minister and were actually one. And then:

"Come along to Mr. Mumford's!" cried Frank, seizing his wife round the waist and waltzing down the steps with her, to the amazement of passersby.

Twenty-five minutes later they were in the presence of the head of the great firm himself. Something about Frank's face, something in his attitude, had so impressed his secretaries, door keepers and office boys that he had passed them unscathed.

"Well, sir?" inquired Mr. Mumford, turning round in his chair. "Be seated, madam. What can I do for you?"

"You can hand me a check for a hundred dollars," answered Frank blithely. "We were married this morning—and here's the certificate." He slapped it down before him.

"Bless me!" exclaimed Mr. Mumford. "This is very sudden. Are you Mr. Percy Higgins in the accounting department?"

"No, sir, I'm Frank Crawford of the mailing deaprtment."

"I never heard of you in my life," replied Mr. Mumford severely.

"I'm surprised at that," answered Frank, solemnly. "Why, Mr. Briggs engaged me to address envelopes this very morning."

"What? What? You were only engaged this morning?"

"I believe, Mr. Mumford, that your offer made no reference to length of service. Of course, if it was not meant I can obtain a position with Messrs. Caber & Roche." And Frank turned on his heel.

"Stop!" shouted Mr. Mumford. "Have you actually had the nerve to —Why, I'll have to offer a hundred dollars again if I pay you—if I pay you. Confound you, why didn't you play this trick on Caber & Roche?"

"I attended to them," spoke up Muriel quietly. "I worked there as a wrapper this morning in the brass goods department. We thought we'd get the money from you first and then hurry over there. You see, Mr. Mumford," she said, pleadingly, "we want to start our honeymoon this afternoon."

Mr. Mumford was choking with laughter.

"Jeffreys!" he called to his secretary. "Make out a voucher for a hundred dollars and take this lady and gentleman to the cashier's office. And say, Jeffreys, call up our advertising manager. I want to add something to our notice. And that," he added, turning to Frank, "will make Caber & Roche 'come through.' A happy honeymoon to both of you!"

TRAINING GERMANS

In keeping with the German Government's idea of making the empire one vast training school for the development of the best there is in the youth of the country for national commercial success, regular business school courses are being organized in the Germany army, so that the recruit during his term of military service will be fitting himself for the business life he will have to enter on quitting the colors.

The hundreds of thousands of children are not permitted to pass through the public schools and to drift through life as unskilled laborers. Each one as far as the Government can order it so, is turned out skilled in some occupation.

One of the most powerfully educative forces in the empire is the continuation school originally intended to maintain some kind of discipline over youths from 14 to 18 years of age prior to their enlistment in the army. Of late years these continuation schools have been changed into vocational schools.

Twice every year great flaming posters call the youth of the land to obligatory attendance at the trade and commercial schools. These posters enumerate more than 100 trades or vocations and each youth is summoned to appear at the school devoted to his particular calling.

Forty and a Bittock.

The novelist, Barrie, has given a new phrase, a Scottish phrase which may be adopted into the English language. It is to take the place of the awkwardly polite terms of "a woman of uncertain age," or "on the wrong side of forty," or "of years of discretion." His phrase is "forty and a bittock." A "bittock" is Scotch for a bit more or a short distance. It may mean five years or twenty years. In the case of Madame Yale, Lillian Russell or that woman of imperishable youth, Sarah Bernhardt, it might mean even more years beyond forty.

Double Cause of Death

James F. Ward, engineer at a sawmill in Sault Ste Marie, was killed in a peculiar manner. While winding tape about an electric light wire he received a shock which hurled him into a pit 14 feet deep. When picked up he was dead. Either shock or fall alone would probably have been fatal.

Remarkable Surgery

Dr. Alexif Carrel, a young French scientist has demonstrated that the heart can exist and develop without the body. His most recent experiments were made with chickens' hearts, and in one case he succeeded in maintaining such a heart alive—and beating normally—for more than three months.

Montreal's Population

According to latest directory Montreal proper has a population of [illegible]30,437, and with its suburbs 403,437.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Senate Liberals are threatening to kill the naval bill. That seems as quick a way of advancing the cause of Senate reform as could be devised.

Our notion is that the fellow who rocks the boat is no greater fool than the one who has an argument with the policeman.

In Evanston the police asserted that a burglar is using an accomplished monkey. Truth is stranger than Poe's fiction.

American recognition of the Chinese republic was a mere tip in the hat compared with this English announcement that no more government opium will be pressed on China.

After careful consideration of the matter we have reached the conclusion that the man who is convinced that he is a poet is preferable as a neighbor to the chap who thinks he can sing.

Somebody has predicted that ragtime songs will be dead in ten years. The odor of some of them is now so offensive as to indicate that they are already dead and in an advanced stage of decomposition.

◆

Liberals in the Commons are staying up nights to persuade the Senate to reject the navy bill. They don't care what happens to their friends in the Senate provided the Navy Bill is killed.

The British Home Secretary states that suffragettes of the militant type are to be prosecuted to the limit. What is the use of prosecuting them to the limit until a way is found to make them take their punishment?

From one point of view, the way in which the Conservatives are handling the tariff bill is a fine exhibition of party solidarity. From another, and less patriotic point of view, it is a brutal and ruthless operation of the steam roller.

A news item says that because his salary was reduced a Liberal clerk in one of the Government Departments at Ottawa "threw up his position." Well we may rest assured that some patriot was on the spot with outstretched hands to prevent the position from getting hurt in the fall.

When so much money is being demanded in Germany for war preparations, it is not surprising that there should be attempts at retaliation in the shape of demands for the cutting down of the German sovereign's and princes' personal expenditures. Considering how little money it means, it is rather petty, but human.

The Marquis of Hereford is going to wed a rich widow some years his senior. The marquis was formerly Earl of Yarmouth and husband of Alice Thaw, from whom he separated when her brother got into the limelight by the shooting of Stanford White. It was an awful wrench for his lordship to extricate himself from the Thaw millions, but it had to be done. It is fortunate for him the rich widow appeared romantically on the scene. One shudders to think of the noble marquis adrift in Lunnon without visible means of support.

Had Stomach Rumblings Distress Before Meals

WAS SELDOM FREE FROM THAT WEARY, DROOPY, HALF-DEAD FEELING.

Now Cured, and Gives Good Advice to Others With Dyspeptic Tendencies.

If you have any stomach distress at all you will certainly be interested in the following experience which is told by Mr. Edward Dawkins [illegible]

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salt or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour and always after eating there was pain and fullness and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter I am sure, proves it."

Refuse a substitute. Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c per box or five for $1.00 at all druggists and storekeepers, or post paid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

SENATE AND NAVY

What will the Senate do with the Naval Bill? Some think it will refuse to pass it, and thus carry out Sir Wilfrid's wishes in regard to it; others think it will pass it and thus put the Government into a hole by making it responsible for its own unpopular legislation; but no one so far has suggested that the Senate will consider the matter dispassionately and free from partisan bias. What will they do? Tory and Grit are waiting the answer somewhat impatiently.

A MOTHER'S LOVE SONG

Mrs. James Bradley, 617 Aylmer-st., is one of the good mothers who were remembered on Mother's Day. She received assurances of love from her children who are no longer under the parental roof, together with the enclosed beautiful poem:

Tune—First strain of "The Old Oaken Bucket."

You ask me why so many are wearing,
A snow-white carnation this Sunday in May:
It shows to the world that for mothers they're caring,
For it's emblematic, and marks Mother's Day.

How dear to my heart are the thoughts of my Mother,
Which come to my memory so often each day;
Now laying aside for the moment all other,
I'll give recollections of Mother full sway.

E'en back of my memory let my thoughts wander
To infancy's days when, a babe on her knee,
No good did I lack, for no love could be fonder;
She everything needful provided for me.

For all childish ills there was one panacea;
A balm never-failing was Mother's fond kiss.
The smile reappeared as she banished the tear,
And sorrow was quickly transformed into bliss.

Her children were taught that their highest ambition
Should not be to gather up silver and gold,
True wealth does not mean merely gold or position,
That character lives on through ages untold.

She taught us to pray to Our Father in Heaven,
And told us His love could be equaled by none;
That she for her children her life would have given,
But God for His enemies gave His own son.

Dear Mother, your precepts I'll ever remember
As long as I live, and wherever I roam
The homage of lips and of heart I thee render,
And God will reward in our heavenly home.

REMINISCENCES EARLY CAVAN LIFE

Mr. John H. Meir of Toronto Visits His Old Home and Tells of Former Days

Mr. John H. Meir, of Toronto has been spending a few days in the city. He was born at Sharpe's Corners, now known as Ida P.O., Cavan, about 60 years ago and recently paid his first visit to that locality a few days ago, after leaving as a child. His father settled in Cavan about 1840, and remained there about 20 years. In those days there were no railroads and few good roads of any kind. Neighbors were few and far between. His father knew every man living in the four townships. Rev. Sam Armour, father of Chief Justice Armour, of Cobourg, was rector of Cavan from 1833 to 1860.

Mr. Meir said his father remembered Peterborough when there were only about a dozen houses here. At that time Port Hope and Cobourg were the largest towns in this district and did practically all the business. Mr. Meir counted 100 teams pass his home within ten hours with grain for these towns.

An interesting incident recalled by Mr. Meir was the strength of the Methodist Church in Cavan. Their Quarterly Meeting and Love-feast was quite an event. The service generally lasted three or four hours at a stretch. One day the ladies of the congregation got dinner ready before the service began. When the meeting was over and the worshippers went to enjoy the feast they found all the victuals gone. It was thought some practical jokers among the Cavan Blazers had made away with the grub.

Mr. Meir tells of another incident, that is fully vouched for, of life in Cavan in those days. Quilting bees were much in vogue, and which the ladies, from far and near, would gather to make quilts. A young man troubled with bashfulness, whose bedroom was situated above the room where the bee was in progress, fearing to face the ladies, climbed, by aid of a ladder to his bedroom window. The floor of his room was simply loose boards. As the young fellow was struggling with his 'best' pants, he stepped on the ends of two loose boards, which were too short to reach a rafter. The young man, without having donned his trousers, fell through the floor on top of the outstretched quilt. The ladies fled shrieking and the bashful young man covered his nakedness with the quilt.

A sad event took place about 70 years ago, when a lady, Mrs. Lough, was knocked down and trampled to death by a pet deer, they had raised. She was the grandmother of the present postmaster of Ida, Cavan. Mr. W. Lowe, 706 George street, has a distinct recollection of this event in the early life of Cavan. Mr. Lowe is 85 years of age and was well acquainted with the late Mr. Meir.

Mr. Meir tells of a man who was married in his bare feet, by the late Rev. S. Armour, whose son, the former's, is now an ex-M.P., and a present judge in a Western Province.

MAN DEAD, WOMAN DYING, SLAYER FLEES

Police Looking for Eddie McCoy, Who Says He'll Not Be Taken Alive.

New Orleans, May 17.—H. C. Young, a negro, is in the morgue with a bullet through his heart; Nancy McCoy, his cousin, is dying in the Charity Hospital, while Eddie McCoy, her husband, is a fugitive murderer.

Because Young interfered in his domestic affairs McCoy shot him through the heart. He then turned the revolver upon his wife. After shooting her through the cheek he fired two shots through her breast and one through her right wrist. The woman was taken, dying, to the Charity Hospital.

McCoy escaped and has told several persons that he will not be taken alive. McCoy realizes that if he is captured he will be hanged. The shooting occurred in front of the woman's home, 2020 Erato street, Sunday afternoon. The woman told her husband he ought to pay the rent. This precipitated a quarrel, whereupon Young advised his cousin to leave her husband, as they could not get along. This remark infuriated McCoy, who immediately drew his revolver and began shooting.

PREFERS LIFE IN JAIL TO CONNUBIAL BLISS

New Orleans, May 17.—Joseph White, 1810 S. Liberty street, has been neglecting to support his family for some time.

To frighten him Mrs. White had him arrested. Joe was locked up Saturday. Monday his wife, thinking that she had taught him a lesson, asked Judge Wilson, of the Juvenile Court, to release him.

"I'd rather stay in jail than go back to her," declared Joe, when consulted.

He was ordered to contribute $3 a week toward the support of his children and was released on a guarantee bond.

Efforts to get him to return to his family were of no avail.

A PECULIAR SUIT

Sued Physician for Revealing Secret Of Wife's Illness.

Paris, May 17.—A Spanish merchant recently brought an action in Paris for $1,000 damages against his family doctor for breach of professional secrecy.

The medical man furnished certificates to a third party concerning the illness of the plaintiff's wife. The defense was that the facts disclosed were not of a nature to render strict secrecy necessary and that no damage had been caused by their disclosure.

The court held that the doctor was bound to maintain professional secrecy whether the illness was serious or not. The plaintiff was awarded 20 cents damages.

AMERICAN GIRL TO WED DUKE IN JUNE

Berlin, May 17.—Apparently not worrying half so much as the German court as to whether or not she will be a "highness," Nancy Leishman, daughter of John G. A. Leishman, United States ambassador to Germany, will marry the Duke of Croy some time in June, it was learned today. The wedding will take place in Paris, where Miss Leishman, her mother and an aunt now are residing.

The association of high German nobility, an organization that by unwritten law regulates the affairs of the semi-royal families of the empire, recently met at Frankfort-on-the-Main, and settled it that Miss Nancy could never be recognized by a German court, either as a duchess or a highness, because of the prospective bride's "unequal birth."

"SATAN" AT GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Three Nights—May 22, 23 and 24.

Satan, the evil spirit of Heaven, reveals for the first time his power fighting against the Good. We are in the infinite fields of Heaven. The battle between the Good and Bad angels is over. On the ground are lying the rebels defeated. Satan, wounded and humiliated, rises again, fierce rancor burning within him. He tries to battle once more, to get Heaven within his power; his arrogance will not allow him to capitulate, to yield. But the sword of God drives him out for ever. He falls down, striking Earth at the foot of a steep mountain. Many attempts he makes to ascend to Paradise, but his efforts are fruitless. Heaven is too far away. Glancing down from the top of the mountain he views the Earth, and then decides to descend and make this his kingdom.

The first human beings he discovers are Adam and Eve. Then he begins to sway his evil power. Through his tempting them they lose their purity, and he aids them to escape when they are driven out by the angel. Cain is his next victim. Satan arouses in him a fierce jealousy against Abel. The first axe is made, and the first drop of blood shed is caused by Cain with his weapon, his victim being Abel.

The only daughter of Abel is the next subject for Satan's wiles. He describes to Cain's sons her beauty and charms which results in a general fight among the brothers to possess her. To Nimrod, who has been banished by his father, he teaches how to make the first sword, and watches with great satisfaction the first battle. Brother fights against brother. Nimrod slays his father, Cain, and victorious, he carries off Abel's daughter, who loves another man. She repulses his advances, however, and Nimrod therefore wants to kill, but Satan advises him to sacrifice her to a new god, and to this idol is given up the first martyr.

Evil though he is, remorse for his crime, bothers him. This Satan will not tolerate, and to atone for his deeds he is ordered to build the famous tower of Babel, which should touch the sky. We see the immense work progressing, the huge body of men building this tower, which is getting higher and higher until it falls down, killing thousands of human beings, destroying the hopes and arrogance of Satan.

TENDERS FOR COAL, 1913

Sealed tenders, addressed to the Provincial Secretary, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, marked "Tenders for Coal," will be received up to noon on Wednesday, May 28th, for the delivery of coal as required in the sheds of the following provincial institutions, on or before the 31st day of August, next, viz.: Brockville, Cobourg, Hamilton, Kingston, London, Mimico, Penetanguishene, Toronto Hospitals for the Insane, Orillia Hospital for Feeble-minded, Woodstock Hospital for Epileptics, also the Central Prison and Mercer Reformatory.

Specifications of the qualities and quantities of coal required, and forms of application, may be obtained on application to the Department, or from the Bursars of the respective institutions.

Tenderers are to specify the mine of origin and the quality of respective kinds of coal, and to furnish evidence on delivery that the coal is of origin specified, fresh mined, and up to the standard of trade grades.

Delivery subject to satisfaction of Officers of Department of the Provincial Secretary, who may require additional deliveries, not exceeding 20 per cent., up to the 15th July, 1914.

Tenders will be received for the whole quantity specified, or for the quantities required in each institution. An accepted check for $500 payable to the order of the Honourable the Provincial Secretary, must be furnished by each tenderer, and two sufficient sureties, or the bond of a guarantee company authorized to do business in the Dominion of Canada, will be required for the due fulfilment of each contract. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Newspapers inserting this advertisement without written authority from the Department will not be paid for it.

CRICKET.

On Saturday the Peterborough Cricket eleven journeyed to Port Hope for their first game of the season. They played with (the expression is used advisedly) Trinity College School. T.C.S. went to bat first and made 59 runs. Peterborough then went to bat and made 116 for the five wickets. For the locals, the following starred, Librarian DelaFosse, 38, Capt. Whitehouse 19 and Mr. Thompson 17.

CURIOUS HABITS OF BRUIN FAMILY

ey Are Wise Animals But Different Kinds Have Widely Different Ways

Many of the conventional ideas as bears have endured from periods ng antedating the investigations of aturalists. Certain of these ideas e absurd; others have a foundation fact.

It is a fact that the representative polar bear of the greatest strength, courage and ferocity has a yellowish coat, and that the pure white coat, as a general rule, is a mark of cowardice. It is difficult to account for this fact, unless it be ascribed to some taint of albinism, which is almost invariably accompanied by weakness and degeneracy in an animal.

In captivity no bears hibernate. To the polar bear winter brings a disinclination for baths; to the Malay or Himalayan, kept indoors, it makes no difference; but the black and brown bears of both sexes eat sparingly at intervals, and sometimes sleep for two or three days together in their dens at this time. In their wild state the black and brown bears choose a cave or hollow tree, and there the trapper seeks them for their pelts and for their abundant grease. The discolored snow around the small hole kept open by the animal's breathing does not escape the trapper's practiced eye, nor the scratched tree trunks where the black bear has scrambled up to lie hidden in some hollow, perhaps 40 feet above.

This mild-mannered and indolent beast, which seeks only to turn and sleep again, falls an easy prey to the hunter. But the brown bear of Europe and the grizzly are roused to fury when disturbed.

Taking Bears Alive

There are various ways of taking or "turning" the bear. Polar bears, both young and old, are often taken with a noose laid around a piece of blubber in a hole and captured and packed in one operation by hauling them into casks and coopering them. Their love of sweet things is the undoing of other bears. They will go into box traps and fall traps after honey, or fasten their heads in a nail-studded molasses barrel while sucking the syrup. In some parts of the world they commit such havoc while in search of fruit that cultivators are obliged to spread bird lime for them.

The characteristic repugnance to touch anything dead or motionless seems to indicate that primarily the bear was a fruit-eating beast. This had become an accepted tenet of natural history before the discovery of the offal-eating polar bear.

"Bear talk" was always considered "good medicine" by the Indians. If a bear blocked their path, they addressed him politely, reminding him of their common brotherhood, praising his nobility, and requesting him kindly to allow them an unmolested passage. This, it is said, he frequently did, for, being by nature inoffensive, the soft accents did not disturb him, and so he would go on his way.

Doubt as to Hugging

Some naturalists contend that bears do not "hug," while others contend that, with the exception of the polar bear, they do. It is sometimes asserted that the bear never walks naturally on his hind legs, but this statement is incorrect. Bears often walk on two legs after descending a tree, and they have been seen deliberately to assume an upright attitude in order to toss an object. The same statement applies to their wrestling, since they engage in the most strenuous contests of this kind, in which hugging plays a prominent part. An approved "half Nelson" often finishes the good-natured bout. Bears have been held to be dull and foolish. In the Norse and Russian folk tales they are butts of the peasant or of the fox. But few animals, except monkeys, are so intelligent. None play so well together, none learn untaught so many tricks and none are so susceptible to education.

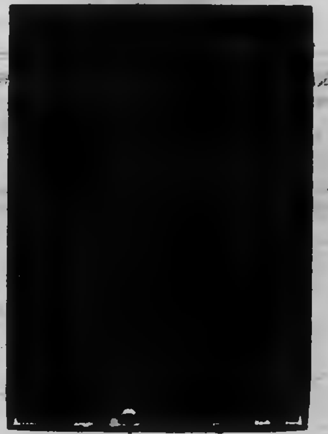
How to Wear Puttees

An eminent French surgeon declares that puttees, as used by mountain climbers cause varicose veins. Nearly all the Alpine chasseurs whom he questioned declared that the use of puttees makes climbing very painful.

It is also asserted by an army surgeon, Dr. Renyer, that 75 per cent. of Alpine chasseurs get varicose veins after the mountain season as the result of wearing puttees.

On the other hand it is explained by a defender of puttees that they are often unsatisfactory because people have not been shown how to wear them properly. High button boots and breeches loose around the knees and buttoning right down the leg to meet the top of the boots, he says, should always be worn with puttees, and the cord should be a yard and a half long

FOURTEEN REASONS



James S. Thorpe, the Sax and Fox Indian, has fourteen reasons why he is the premier all-round athlete of the world. Competitors of the redman all are willing to acknowledge his supremacy, but great faith always is placed in figures. Here are the reasons why Thorpe tops the white, black and red races:—

100-yard dash—10 2-5 seconds.
120-yard hurdle—15 2-5 seconds.
220-yard hurdle—25 seconds.
440-yard dash—50 2-5 seconds.
Shotput—46 feet 1 inch.
Discus—122 feet 2 inches.
High jump—6 feet 3 inches.
Broad jump—25 feet 3 inches.
Hammer throw—120 feet.
Pole vault—10 feet 5 inches.
Football—All-American back.
Baseball—Star pitcher.
Lacrosse—Corking forward.
Basketball—Star guard.

BULL-FIGHTING PAYS

Two Spanish Toreadors Earn at Least Quarter Million Dollars a Year

There is probably no sport in the world so lucrative as that of Spain's national sport, bull-fighting, and the statement that there are twenty-three famous toreadors who earn annually $1,000,000 is by no means exaggerated.

In Madrid one finds the toreador, the fairy prince of the senorita, at the leading hotels. He smokes the very best cigars. He drinks the choicest wines from Southern Spain or France's famous champagne. He is also most fastidious in his fashions, wearing the best of clothes. His nails are also delicately manicured lest their rough appearance should mar the brilliancy of the priceless diamonds which his standing as a toreador compels him to wear. His life has made him a stoic, and his smiles he reserves for the ring.

He is also most superstitious. Evil befall the man who dares open an umbrella in his presence, or who passes between him and a friend with whom he may be talking. The toreador who, on the morning of a bull-fight, may have fallen a victim to any of these two events, will pay a heavy fine rather than face the tamest of bulls.

There are two toreadors who earn anything up to $250,000 a year. They are Bombita and Machaquito. The former is married to the daughter of a French nobleman with a highly historical name, and the latter to a Scotchwoman.

A GIANT CYCLIST

Grenda, the Australian is a Huge Fellow With a Good Record

Alfred Grenda, the six day "grinder" is an Australian and he is also the largest athlete in the cycle racing game, standing 6 feet 3 inches, and weighing 206 pounds. He is magnificently proportioned, and is a fine specimen of the modern athlete.

Grenda started his racing career three years ago, and, like Ernie Pye, rode as a professional from the start. He was fairly successful during his first year and won thirty-two races, in which he defeated some of the best of the Australian professionals. The following year he won the Australian championship and captured nearly all of the big classics. As he is only 22 years old he should have a long career ahead of him. t.

Native Brazilian Drama.

Brazilian authors have for some time been endeavoring to create a national drama for the big South American republic. Heretofore the plays presented have for the most part been of French origin. Le Brazil Buenomigno, of Rio de Janeiro, now heralds a native success in "La Belle Madame Vargas," by Joao do Dio, a newspaper man of that city, a play which it is predicted will be the beginning of the Brazilian theater. The play is to be taken to Paris, where it is expected to meet the same success that it has had at Rio, and from which "La Belle Madame Vargas" may find the road to English and American theatres.

PERILS OF JAVELIN

Are you a javelin thrower? If so, quit it if you desire to play baseball. Armando Marsans, the sensational Cuban player of the Cincinnati Reds, tells of an Indian in Cuba who was the greatest ball player of the island. "I give you my word that the greatest ball player I ever looked upon was an Indian named Canelia," said Marsans. "He came out a few years go, and at once became the marvel of Eastern Cuba. He was a pitcher and a star on the slab, but he was also a batsman, a lightning base-runner and a clever outfielder. An influential Cuban manager succeeded in making an American magnate understand Canelia was no negro, and all was arranged for his try-out in the coming spring. And then came the news that Canelia's arm was gone! Going home for a visit, Canelia saw the young men of his tribe practising throwing the javelin. Picking up a slender spear, he hurled it with all his might— and something went snap! crack! in his right arm as he let go the javelin. Since then he has not been able to throw a ball from the pitching slab as far as the catcher."

JUDGE WILLING TO PLEASE

Protesting Prisoner Escaped With Light Sentence After He Had Put Up an Argument.

Judges were very considerate in the old days. Lord Brampton, in his "Reminiscences," relates a story illustrating this:

Baron Martin, a famous English jurist of the old school, whose native leniency and sense of fun often placed him at the mercy of the very men he was trying, was once about to sentence an old offender charged with a petty theft.

"Look," said the baron, with an assumption of severity: "I hardly know what to do, but you can take six months."

"I can't take that, my lord; it's too much," said the prisoner, respectfully but firmly. "I can't take it. Your lordship sees I didn't steal very much, after all."

The baron indulged in one of his low, chuckling laughs before replying:

"Well, that's very true; ye didn't steal much," he said. "Well, then, ye can take four months. Will that do—four months?"

"Nay, my lord, but I can't take that, either," was the reply.

"Then tak' three."

"That's nearer the mark, my lord," the prisoner said, approvingly. "But I'd rather you made it two, if you will be so kind."

"Verra well, then, tak' two," said the judge, with the air of one who is pleased to have done the right thing at last. "And mind, don't come again. If you do I'll give yer—well, it all depends!"

TENDERS FOR DREDGING

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Dredging, Ontario," will be received until 4.00 P.M., Wednesday, June 4, 1913, for dredging required at the following places in the Province of Ontario:—

Cloud Bay, Whitby, Bruce Mines, Hilton, Killarney, Little Detroit, Walker River.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied, and signed with the actual signatures of the tenderers.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Department of Public Works, Ottawa. Tenders must include the towing of the plant to and from the work. Dredges and tugs not owned and registered in Canada shall not be employed in the performance of the work contracted for. Contractors must be ready to begin work within thirty days after the date they have been notified of the acceptance of their tender.

A separate cheque for each place for which a tender is submitted must accompany the tender. This cheque must be equal to five per cent (5 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, based on the approximate quantities set opposite the name of place, but in no case must the cheque be for a less sum than $1,500. The cheque must be accepted, on a chartered bank, and payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.
Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, May 15, 1913.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.—40791.

Church Stay-Aways

Speaking at a reunion of Orangemen at Clabby, Ireland, Mr. H. Latimer referred to the indifferent attitude of the Orangemen in that district to their Church duties, and advised them, in that respect, to take a lea from the book of their Catholic fellow countrymen.

The Rev. F. Hilary, rector of the parish, said Mr. Latimer had touched a very sore spot with them as Protestants. It was, he said, woefully sad to see the small number of Orangemen who attended the Sunday services.

WOULD ABOLISH MEDICAL WITNESS

Chicago, May 17.—Legislation which will prevent the indiscriminate barter of expert medical testimony will be sought by Senator W. S. Kenyon of Iowa, he told physicians of Chicago, at a dinner last night. He asserted he would seek to have the American bar Association recommend to its affiliated state organizations the enactment of laws which will put an end to the medical expert as a witness in court.

"I believe there should be laws which provide for the appointment by the court in cases where medical testimony may be a factor, of a doctor as referee to assist judge and jury," said Senator Kenyon.

TENDERS FOR DREDGING

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for dredging, Collingwood," will be received until 4.00 P.M., Thursday, June 5, 1913, for dredging required at Collingwood, Ontario.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied, and signed with the actual signatures of the tenderers.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Department of Public Works, Ottawa, and plan of work may be seen at the Office of the Assistant Chief Engineer of Public Works, Ottawa, and the Office of the District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont. Tenders must include the towing of the plant to and from the work. Dredges and tugs not owned and registered in Canada shall not be employed in the performance of the work contracted for. Contractors must be ready to begin work within thirty days after the date they have been notified of the acceptance of their tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted check on a chartered bank payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for five per cent. (5 p.c.) of the contract price, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.
Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, May 16, 1913.

UNTOLD WEALTH IF TESTS SUCCEED

Experiments With Cobalt as Substitute for Nickel in Steel Alloys—Product Wasted

An investigation which may reveal hidden fortunes in what are now the useless dump of cobalt oxide at the ore smelters and at Cobalt camp, and give to Canada a new steel alloy industry, is being conducted by the Department of Mines. Experiments to extend over some years will be made in the endeavor to discover a process which will allow of the substitution of cobalt for nickel in steel alloys, thus furnishing a market for a product which now in great part goes entirely to waste. The indirect value of such an increased market would be, of course, incalculable.

"It would not be surprising," said Dr. Eugene Haanel, speaking at Ottawa, "if cobalt could be advantageously substituted for nickel to produce a better grade of high grade steels, where toughness and hardness are desired; for automobile parts, steel tubes, gun steel, cranks and crank shafts, boiler plates, tires, connecting rods and axles; the nickel-iron wires with low temperature co-efficients of electrical resistance and expansion respectively and the variety of important alloys with non-corrosive properties, for coins, boat propellers, etc."

Canada is now practically the sole producer of cobalt ore. The cobalt content of the ores mined in the Temiskaming district exceed 2,000,000 pounds per year. The market for this at present depends altogether on its very limited use as a blue coloring substance. Hence there is a large accumulation of cobalt oxide at the smelters and at Cobalt camp. Under present industrial conditions the smelters refuse to pay for the cobalt and nickel content, consequently the miner receives nothing for this valuable constituent of the ore. Yet cobalt resembles nickel in almost all its properties and it is considered that it could be substituted for that metal in steel alloys. As cobalt is almost essentially a Canadian product very little investigation has ever been conducted along this line.

THE COAST INDIANS

Gradually Taking to Agriculture—Valuable Tree Grows Wild

Mr. Thomas Wilson, Dominion inspector of Indian orchards and instructor in horticulture to the Indians, after a tour among his charges in British Columbia, said that although the progress of the tribes in fruit and vegetable growing does not appear to be very marked from year to year, yet it is in fact substantial and is quite noticeable if a period of ten years or thereabouts be taken for purposes of comparison.

Among some of the tribes little attempt is being made to establish agriculture or horticulture, because the Indians are making a good living in other ways. The Haidas of the Queen Charlotte Islands, for instance get as much as $60,000 a year from the canneries at Masset. They have a regular municipal government and light their village by acetylene. Tuberculosis and ophthalmia, however, are still making ravages among them and the Indians do not seem to be making much progress in learning how to combat these diseases.

Mr. Wilson recommended to the Provincial authorities that steps be taken to preserve the "bearberry" tree, from the bark of which the drug cascara is obtained. It grows wild in parts of the Province but could easily be cultivated so that an acre would produce about four tons of cascara worth $150 per ton. The American supply is becoming exhausted and Mr Wilson thinks that timber leaseholders in British Coolumbia would do well to see that the "bearberry" tree is not destroyed when the land is logged over.

Of the possibilities of Queen Charlotte Islands, Mr. Wilson has a high opinion. The soil is very rich and will be excellent for vegetable production when it has been drained and the sourness has been mitigated. A band of wild cattle, descendants of some that swam ashore years ago when jettisoned from a Hudson's Bay Company boat, now roam about in considerable numbers.

WOMEN IN A DUEL

A duel with pitchforks took place at Dijon, France, between two women. They both worked in a biscuit factory and were continually quarreling. The women in their workroom, tired of the perpetual bickering, advised them to settle their differences in a fight. The two women armed themselves with pitchforks and fought in a lonely field. News of the duel soon spread, and the police hurried to the field, where they found one of the women lying unconscious with a wound in her head.

CANADA'S LUMBER KING

His First Big Financial Stroke Was Purchase of Doubtful Railway

Canada's premier lumberman is J. R. Booth, of Ottawa. Among the friends of Booth there is a question whether he made his fortune in lumber or in railroading, but it is the general belief that his estate is about equally indebted to these two sources of revenue.

Booth was born in Ottawa, Canada, in 1841. His father was possessed of more than the average means, but before his death, which occurred when the present head of the family was a boy of 15 years, he lost all of his money and thus compelled his son to depend upon himself.

This enforced independence bought out all there was in him. He saved and worked, worked and saved, and at a comparatively early age built up a huge lumber business from a tiny sawmill on the Ottawa River. He did not capitalize but paid hard cash for all that he bought.

His first big stroke in the world of finance was when he bought the Canada Atlantic railroad, an indifferent sort of institution, with few visible assets and fewer prospects. Booth set about his task with the confidence and determination that have been his chief characteristics. The road extended from Montreal to Parry Sound, and covered a distance of about 450 miles.

Booth had no associates in this deal. Out of his lumber earnings, which had been reasonably large up to that time, considering the day and age, he attacked railroading on his own responsibility. Analyzing the situation with his peculiarly analytical mind, he put the railroad's stock in a vault in the Ottawa banks. He was peering into the future when the Grand Trunk railroad, then a struggling organization, would be compelled to buy him out. He kept the railroad stock in the bank, unpledged, for five years, when the Grand Trunk first made overtures for their purchase at a price many hundred times in excess of what Booth had paid for them.

No one knows how much Booth made on this deal, but it is believed that the amount gave him his long waited for boost toward great wealth.

ASH CAN ON WHEELS

Can be Rolled Out to Curb Without Fuss or Soiled Clothes

It was a flash of genius that inspired a Connecticut man to put wheels on an ash can. And when in addition to this he affixed a handle, which also acts as a brake, he put the chore man almost out of business. For the head of the house can now roll his own ash can out to the curb, if he is not too proud to do so, without any trouble at all and without soiling his clothes. The can is mounted on a pair of small wheels and the handle is hinged to the side. A bolt at the bottom engages the cross bar of the handle and locks the latter in a vertical position when it is not in use as a pusher. Thus the ends of the handle act as a brake and prevent the can from rolling away by itself or from upsetting, as it would otherwise do with only two centered wheels to rest upon.

HANDLE IS ALSO A BRAKE

SOME REQUESTS OF AN EMPLOYER

Rule 1. Don't lie—it wastes my time and yours. I'm sure to catch you in the end and that's the wrong end.

Rule 2. Watch your work, not the clock. A long day's work makes a long day short, and a day's short work makes my face long.

Rule 3. Give me more than I expect and I'll pay you more than you expect. I can afford to increase your pay if you increase my profits.

Rule 4. You owe so much to yourself that you can't afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt.

Rule 5. Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good women, can't see temptation when they meet it.

Rule 6. Mind your own business and in time you'll have a business of your own to mind.

Rule 7. Don't do anything here which hurts your self-respect. The employee who is willing to steal for me is capable of stealing from me.

Rule 8. It's none of my business what you do at night, but if dissipation affects what you do next day, and you do half as much as I demand, you'll last half as long as you hoped.

Rule 9. Don't tell me what I'd like to hear, but what I ought to hear. I don't want a valet to my vanity, but I need one for my dollars.

Rule 10. Don't kick if I kick; if you're worth while correcting, you're worth while keeping. I don't waste time cutting spots out of rotten apples.—Retail Lumberman.

HOW TO GATHER FISH WORMS

A new labor-saving device for gathering fish worms is culled from an exchange: "You take a broom handle three and a half feet long, drive it into the spot likely to be inhabited by angle worms. Leave an end sticking up about six inches. Then take a rough board and rub it over the top of the broom handle. This rubbing will cause a vibration of the earth and the worms, angry and disturbed, will work their way out of the ground. A fellow can get a pail full of worms in a short time."

RIEL VETERAN DEAD

Thomas Orthwaite, Recluse of Headingly, Dies Suddenly

After living the life of a recluse in a one-roomed shack in the village of Headingly, Manitoba, for over 30 years, Thomas Orthwaite, an old Yorkshireman, dropped dead while feeding his stock. Orthwaite, who was 73 years of age, owned a small garden by which he made a modest living, and it was while he was concluding the work of the day that he was seized with heart failure. He was seen to fall by a Galician woman, who called the attention of some neighbors to the fact. The deceased was a veteran of the Riel rebellion, and received a medal for his services in that campaign.

"Grannie" and Her Pension

A familiar figure in Kirkcaldy, Scotland, passed away in Mrs. Skinner ("Grannie"), who was known to the whole burgh. She was a staunch Radical, and a political admirer of Mr. Gladstone, and, later, of Mr. Lloyd George. A good story is told of "Grannie" when she first went for her old age pension. She received her $1.25, but this did not come up to her expectations, and she said to the postmaster, "That's no' muckle ava; I've ten years' arrears tae get." It took the postmaster some time to get her convinced that the Government did not pay back debts.

English Grocers and Tobacco

Grocers in England no longer sell tobacco, but for many years after the "sovereigne herbe" reached England, theirs were the only shops were it could be obtained. Tea came in under the commonwealth, and from that time the list of commodities sold by the grocers began to extend considerably. "It was the first half of the seventeenth century," writes Mr. Aubrey Rees, "when new lands were opening up on all hands, that adventurers set out in quest of spices and other valuable products to all parts of the then known globe. The spirit of adventure and enterprise was abroad, and in no class of traders was it more pronounced than among the grocers. 'More blood has been spilt over cloves than over dynasties,' says Thorold Rogers."

My Lady of Doubt

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "Love Under Fire," "My Lady of the North" and other stories

ILLUSTRATIONS BY HENRY THIEDE

Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1911.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a waltz, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel.

CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

CHAPTER VII—The Major arrives at the shop of a blacksmith, who is friendly, and knows the Lady of the Blended Rose.

CHAPTER VIII—Captain Grant and rangers arrive and search the blacksmith shop in vain for the spy.

CHAPTER IX—Lawrence joins the minute men who capture Grant and his train.

CHAPTER X—Major Lawrence is made prisoner by an Indian and two white men.

CHAPTER XI—Lawrence's captors lock him in a strong cell, where he meets Peter the jailer.

CHAPTER XII—Peter advises Lawrence not to attempt escape as "some one" will send for him.

CHAPTER XIII—Grant's appearance adds mystery to the combination of circumstances.

CHAPTER XIV—Lawrence again meets the Lady of the Blended Rose, who informs him that he is in her house and that she was in command of the party that attacked and captured him.

CHAPTER XV—The captive is thrust into a dark underground chamber when Captain Grant begins a search of the premises.

CHAPTER XVI—After digging his way out, Lawrence finds the place deserted. Evidences of a battle and a dead man across the threshold.

CHAPTER XVII—Col. Mortimer, father of the Lady of the Blended Rose, finds his home in ruins.

"Far from it," she laughed easily, not glancing toward me, but permitting her eyes to rest upon the bewildered face of Captain Grant. "Why, that idea is perfectly absurd. Did you tell my father so ridiculous a story, captain?"

"Did I! What else could I say?" he growled indignantly. "He was within our lines in British uniform."

Her long lashes veiled the blue depths modestly.

"Yet there might be other reasons for such masquerade, gentlemen," she confessed. "Would it be impossible, think you, that he should have taken so great a risk to again meet with me?"

There was a silence following the simple question, broken by Seldon's laugh, as he slapped his knee in appreciation.

"Good enough, by Gad!" he exclaimed heartily. "The lass has cleared the mystery with a word. The fellow would be a poor soldier indeed to fail in such a test—eh, Grant?"

The Ranger scowled at him in sullen response, his face dark with passion.

"Hell's acre! This thing may touch your humor, but not mine. What is the meaning of your words, Mistress Claire? Are you shameless, forgetting the pledge between us?"

She turned her face toward him as a queen might, her head held high, her cheeks flaming.

"You have said your answer once for all, Captain Grant. There is no pledge between us."

"But, daughter," broke in the colonel, still bewildered by this sudden explosion. "I can scarcely comprehend; surely it was understood that you were affianced to this son of an old neighbor."

"Understood, yes, by those who kindly arranged the affair, but the fact that I might possess a heart of my own was entirely overlooked. As a child I permitted you to plan my future without protest. I am a woman now; I have been out in the world; the war has taken all girlhood from me. If this were not true the way Captain Grant has watched my every action in Philadelphia would have disgusted me with the thought of ever intrusting my happiness to him. He has openly quarreled with every man I have spoken to, or danced with. He has made me the sport of all the city gallants by jealous wrangling. Now it is done with. 'Tis in shame that I am driven to say all this here in presence of these gentlemen, but I will not stand in silence while Major Lawrence is being condemned as a spy. He was at the dance to meet again with me, and for no other purpose."

Colonel Mortimer's face had expressed many emotions, while she was speaking, but now it hardened into military severity, his hand clinched on the arm of the chair.

"Do I understand, then, that this officer was there at your request?"

"I think," hesitating slightly, "he knew he was not unwelcome."

"And," his voice breaking slightly, "he came here also to meet you?"

"Certainly not," her head lifting indignantly. "I am your daughter, and am guilty of nothing unworthy our family name. I have no shame to confess. Major Lawrence is an officer and a gentleman, the friend of Washington, and my friend also. At any other time he would be a welcome guest at our table. If he risked his life to meet with me in Philadelphia it was done openly and honorably in the midst of acquaintances. There has been nothing hidden or clandestine. He was brought to Elmhurst a prisoner, bound to his horse, guarded by armed men. In the morning I learned his identity, and at once had him released. That is all," and she gave a gesture with her hands, "and I trust, gentlemen, my explanation will be sufficient."

"And you warned him of my suspicions in Philadelphia," exclaimed Grant, "causing him to attack me, and then released him from arrest here."

"That is partially true; you endeavored to provoke a quarrel the moment you met. I had no desire he should fall into your hands as a prisoner. When you appeared at this house I assisted his escape."

"But, Claire, how came you here? Why did you leave Philadelphia?"

"Because I have a brother, sir, whom I can only meet in secret," she replied quietly. "I came without thought of danger, for war has not cost us friends in this country; our home has remained until now untouched by vandals, and I felt amply protected by those who accompanied me upon the ride—our old house servants." She knelt at the side of his chair, her head bowed upon his arm, and his hand stroked her hair. "I regret if I have seemed unmaidenly, or done what you may deem wrong, father, for it has all seemed right to me."

The colonel looked at us silently for what seemed a long while, his fingers fondling the tresses of the girl's hair.

"This situation leaves me in an embarrassing predicament," he admitted at last slowly. "I hardly know what is my duty either as a father, or an officer of the king. No matter what his purpose may have been this man penetrated our lines in disguise; he admittedly exercised command of those irregulars who attacked and routed Delavan's column, and has since been prowling about disguised as a countryman. Merely because my daughter confesses to a friendship between them can hardly justify me in setting him at liberty."

He paused, rising to his feet, his eyes on my face. The girl lifted her head, looking up at him.

"Major Lawrence, I shall hold you prisoner of war, referring your case to Sir Henry Clinton. In the meanwhile you shall receive every consideration possible in accordance with your rank. I am now going join my men in pursuit of Fagin. Captain Grant, you will accompany me, and Mr. Seldon, I shall leave you in charge of the prisoner until we return."

He took a step toward the door; then turned to his daughter.

"I shall expect you to be ready to ride with us on our return to Philadelphia, Claire," he said kindly. "It is evidently not safe for you to remain here alone."

"Very well, father."

"Come, Grant, we shall have to ride hard to overtake our men."

The captain started reluctantly, scowling at me as he passed.

"I should enjoy having the privilege of being left in charge here," he said, for my benefit.

"No doubt, sir," returned Mortimer coldly. "But I have already selected Mr. Seldon for that duty."

They left the house together, and I watched them ride past the window, followed by a dozen soldiers. As they disappeared Seldon turned his eyes to my face. He was rather a pleasant looking young man, but possessed an aggressive chin.

"While I have no orders to that effect, major," he said quietly, "I would take the responsibility of accepting your parole."

"Are you not rather reckless?"

"Oh, I think not," smilingly. "I would have you give it to Mistress Mortimer—surely under these conditions you would never run away."

She stole a swift glance at me, shaking her head.

"That would be too strong an imprisonment," I responded instantly. "Under all conditions I prefer not to give my parole."

"Very well, sir," more stiffly, his geniality vanishing with my rather curt refusal. "Then I shall take all necessary precautions to prevent escape." He stepped aside to the hall door. "You may send two men in here, Ferguson."

They entered quietly, glancing about with some curiosity, but taking position on either side of me at Seldon's command. Claire stood beside the table in silence, her glance out the window. Only as we wheeled about to leave the room did her eyes meet mine. That swift glimpse beneath the dark lashes caused me to leave the room with swiftly beating heart. At the door I stole another glance backward, but she had sunk into a chair, her face concealed in her hands. With Seldon ahead, and the two guards behind, I tramped down the stairs into the basement, and was again locked within the walls of the strong room.

As the lock clicked I sat down upon the bunk far from being disheartened. Fate had been playing strange pranks, but I was not left without hope, for I felt assured I had read correctly the swift message of those uplifted blue eyes. She had not wished me to accept parole; then there must be some plan of escape already formulated in her mind. I could only wait quietly, striving to solve the meaning of those suddenly uplifted blue eyes, and the promise they contained.

CHAPTER XX.

The Lady's Plan.

I must have remained there an hour undisturbed, listening to faint sounds in the rooms above, and peering out between the iron bars at a little square of blue sky, and some waving branches. Once, with ear pressed against the door, I could distinguish the regular steps of a sentinel pacing back and forth, and out of the window I caught the silhouette of a cocked hat and brown gun barrel. Seldon was evidently guarding me with the utmost care.

By the light I judged the time somewhat [illegible] when the door opened suddenly, and Peter appeared bearing a tray. He was as mysteriously silent and professional as upon his first visit, not even favoring me with a glance, his mind apparently intent upon his duties, moving about noiselessly, wiping the table, and placing his load of dishes thereon with great care that all should be arranged in perfect order. The door remained ajar during these preparations, a Queen's Ranger standing there motionless, leaning on his gun, and eyeing us steadily. At last Peter drew up a chair, dusted it, and with wave of the hand invited me to be seated. I ate as slowly as possible, while he stood over me, anticipating my every want. He might have been a wax figure, so mechanically did he operate, and the sentinel never for an instant relaxed his scrutiny.

"Quick, Now, Yer Damn Rebel," He Said Hoarsely; "Be Up an' Lam Me One, an' Here's the Rope!"

I had picked up almost the last crumb, toying with it in desperation, when a voice spoke apparently from the head of the stair. The Ranger turned his head to answer, and at the instant a paper pellet was crushed into my hand. Instinctively my fingers closed over it, and as the guard turned back again, gruffly ordering us to hurry up, Peter was at the opposite side of the table gathering up the dishes, his bald head shining brilliantly, his eyes as dull as those of a fish. I leaned back watching him, clutching the paper pellet in the palm of one hand, until he passed out with his tray, and the door clicked behind him. Not once did he glance toward me, or acknowledge my presence. Fearful lest I might be spied upon, my heart beating wildly in anticipation, I lay down in the bunk with face to the wall, and unrolled the pellet. It contained but a few words, hastily scribbled, in a lady's delicate handwriting: "Don't despair; if they are away until after dark I will arrange. Can do nothing before." There was no signature, but I needed none to know whose fingers had held the pencil. My eyes grasped the paper ere I tore it into fragments, and scattered them outside the bars.

The hours of that afternoon dragged themselves along with exasperating slowness, as I listened for hoofbeats, imagining every sound the approach of returning horsemen. With no longer any doubt of her intention, my apprehension riveted itself on the possibility of the British getting back before darkness gave opportunity for putting her plans into execution. As to what they might be I cared nothing, being ready to assume any risk which would lead to escape. As the gray of twilight approached, my ears, strained to the slightest sound, distinguished the changing of sentinels. But I waited vainly for any visitor; darkness closed me in, but no one came with food.

I pressed my face against the bars striving to look into the night, my only reward the glimpse of a few distant stars. Suddenly, as I stood there, voices sounded at a distance, the words indistinguishable, and then footsteps crushed along the graveled footpath, as though a number of men were running toward the back of the house. They were below my range of vision, but a moment later I heard the sounds of scattered shots, and saw the sharp flash of firing. I was still clinging to the bars, trying to determine what it all meant, when the door was opened. The light of a lantern in his hand revealed a green and white uniform, and the deeply seamed face of a man of fifty.

"Quick now, yer damned rebel," he said hoarsely. "Be up an' lam me one, and' here's the rope."

"What!"

"Didn't yer hear? or wasn't yer told the game? Sufferin' Moses, it's got to be played swift, or ye'll lie here an' rot. That's what that bald-headed skate is out thar loadin' 'em off for. I'm ter come in wid yer supper; ye slug me first sight, bind me up wid the rope, and skip. 'Tis a dirty job, but the friends of ye pay well for it, so come on now."

I comprehended the plan in a flash. She had discovered a sentry money would buy; to lead the others away long enough to effect my escape, Peter had taken to the woods with a gun. Whether he escaped or was captured, the delay would be short. With the knowledge came action. I bore the unresisting Ranger to the floor, hurling down the tray of food he bore in a mass of broken crockery, and bound him hand and foot, leaving the fellow lying across the open doorway. He was without arms, except his heavy gun, which I left beside him. An instant I paused to ask a question, holding aloft the lantern so as to see his face.

"Now, man, speak quick; you were given some word for me? Some instructions how I was to get away?"

"Sure; but ye drew those cards right! You are to go upstairs, out the front door, and turn to the right; there's a horse in the thicket beyond the summer house. Damnation, loosen that ankle rope, will ye?"

HERMIT OF WOODS DANCED IN CAFE

His Feet Could Not Keep Still When he Heard "Bonnie Doon" Played

While groups of five o'clock tea parties were refreshing themselves in a Montreal cafe, and the orchestra was playing softly, a tall, muscular man, who had been sitting quietly taking tea alone, leaped from his seat, and with wild gestures began leaping about the room to the imminent danger of the tables.

"He's crazy!" cried the startled customers to each other, as they gazed at the man. Women became hysterical, and men started for the telephone to call the police.

The orchestra, which had been playing "The Banks of Bonnie Doon," stopped suddenly. No sooner had they ceased playing than the man concluded his weird dance and sank into his chair breathless but contented, and those nearest to him heard him whisper to himself: "Aye, but that was gr-r-and, mon!"

Strange Old Character

The one-time famous "Jock" MacDonald, of Inverness, was again in the limelight. Twenty years ago "Jock" was turnkey in the Inverness jail, and one of the most talked of men in the North of Scotland.

Left alone in charge of a party of Norwegian smugglers he single-handed overcame them when they attempted to escape.

It was not all smooth sailing for "Jock." His coy Highland lassie was fickle and Jock was jilted. So he came to Canada and plunged into the woods, building himself a "bachelor's palace" on the outskirts of the little village of Tacheville, on the Kaministiquia river. For two decades "Jock" was the "eccentric" of the Fort William country. Working at odd jobs—now in a logging camp, now fishing, now acting as guide to hunting parties in the "north country." Jock made his living in seclusion and quiet.

Wanted to See Home

Then the fever for a change came upon him and he resolved to make for his old home. Then came a letter from his aged mother stating that she was on her way to Canada and wanted him to meet her in Montreal.

Never since he left home had this lonely wanderer heard the strains of instrumental music, and when the old familiar air of "Bonnie Doon" fell upon his ears he was beside himself with joy.

USEFUL WILD LIFE

Student of Creatures of the Woods Urges Against Their Extermination

In an address at Ottawa, Lieut.-Colonel Wood, a well-known traveller and historian, made a most eloquent appeal for the preservation of wild life in Canada. Recent visits to Labrador and Newfoundland made him very familiar with his subject, which, indeed, he has studied all his life. Colonel Wood spoke of himself as "an animal man," and said that he had always been interested in the conservation of wild life in Canada.

There was no reason for war between man and wild animals, but as man was "getting there," he had waged it. But it was interesting to note that to get ahead of other animals, man had had to take the animal into partnership with him—the dog. He had been to Canadian Labrador, 300 miles of coast which few people ever knew existed. The only domestic animals there were dogs, and it was possible in the primitive state of such civilization to see the vast debt man owed to the dog. When the dogs, however, got hungry in the winter they went back to their wild state and ate men. He knew a case of nine dogs eating a family of five people.

After the stage of war came the stage of sport, and he had nothing to say against sport—but it was necessary to put certain limits upon the destruction of wild life.

West Newfoundland should be a paradise for wild animals, but it is a desert. And it was a mistake to imagine in any part of the country that because there was a plentitude of wild life that it would never disappear. This had been said of the buffalo and many other animals. On the coast of Labrador the population of 1,200 people relied for fresh food on the birds it shot, yet he knew of a millionaire who landed one day from his yacht and shot out a whole island. The eider ducks about this part of the world were ruthlessly destroyed, and yet a very profitable industry could be built up on the St. Lawrence if they were preserved. The study of wild life developed progress, and he sincerely hoped that one small part of the world would be left, and in Canada, where man would have through the study of wild life an opportunity of re-creating himself.

AN IDEAL LANDLORD

A Good Name Better Than Riches—This Man Had Both

John Thomson, who died in Hamilton, Ont., was known as an ideal landlord, and was blessed by tenants who were living in his houses at rents of five and six dollars, while others were paying fifteen and twenty. He acquired the houses many years ago, and refused to raise the rents. His modest boast was that he made his profit out of the property, not out of the tenant.

Mr. Thomson was not a fussy philanthropist, and was not widely known. He seems to have been guided by simple, natural human impulses. He was good-hearted, unostentatious, and free from greed. He lived in comfort, and died worth $300,000; "worth" it in more than one sense.

Clock Saved Life

John Strunt, night watchman at a London, Ont., factory was shot through the hand while on duty and saved from death only by an alarm clock which he was carrying. Strunt, while going his rounds heard a window broken, and, observing a man outside, called to him. The marauder pulled a revolver and fired point-blank at the watchman's face. Strunt raised the clock which he was carrying, and while the bullet penetrated his hand, his life was saved by his promptness.

New Zealand Divine Here.

Yesterday a distinguished divine, in the person of Rev. Rutherford Waddell, D.D., of St. Andrew's church, New Zealand, occupied the pulpit at St. Andrew's church of this city yesterday. Mr. Waddell always known as a fluent and eloquent speaker, sustained his reputation yesterday.

Mr. McDonough Promoted.

Congratulations are extended to Tommy McDonough, the old time and obliging clerk of the Oriental Hotel on his promotion to the managership of that popular resort. Mr. Gus White who only accepted the managership temporarily, resigned on Saturday. Tommy is the right man in the right place.

They Went West.

At Saturday's police court, Alex. Miller and Joseph Strong, of Toronto, faced a charge of vagrancy. The local jail is somewhat strained in its present accommodation. Acting on a hint from the magistrate, the two vags endorsed Horace Greeley's advice to "go west young man," and incidentally go quickly. They went.

Thursday's Banquet.

On Thursday night the local Board of Trade will hold a banquet, at which an address will be given by Mr. J. R. Brown, of New York, an expert on the question of taxation reform. It is hoped that this occasion will receive the liberal support of our business and other citizens. The banquet will be held under the joint auspices of the Board of Trade the Canadian Club and the Ad. Club.

Toronto Divine at St. Paul's.

The Rev. Prof. R. Law, of Knox College was the special preacher at St. Paul's Presbyterian church yesterday in connection with the anniversary services. The reverend gentleman, who is one of Toronto's most distinguished preachers, was listened to yesterday by the big audience present with rapt attention.

Friend of Well Known Jurist Here.

Miss Blanche Bates, who made such a hit at the Grand on Saturday, is, in private life, Mrs. Creel, of Denver. Her husband is a great personal friend of the celebrated Judge Lindsay of Juvenile Court fame of that city, a man who has accomplished, by his intelligent example, so much for the boys of America. Mrs. Creel, who was married some six months ago, will be met by her husband in Winnipeg next week.

Frank Clarke's Improvements.

Mr. Frank Clarke, the George street jeweller, has completed the extensive improvements on his shop. Mr. Clarke once more has demonstrated that he will go the other jewellers one better in the way of fixtures. As one enters the handsome glass door, to the right are five massive quartered oak wall cases, which extend to and round the rear of the store. These cases, some 10 feet long, are a triumph of the artisans art. At the end of each case is a heavy oak Corrinthian column, leading to the dome. The fronts of these cases are made of a single large plate glass, which protects the goods on the shelves, and is opened by sliding upwards in roller-bearing grooves. A handsome metal ceiling has been added. The fronts of the store are of the most modern type, and supplied by overhead prism lights.

Blanche Bates at the Grand.

On Saturday night the Grand Opera House was fairly well filled, by an audience that vehemently insisted on numerous encores and curtain raisings. The event was the "Witness for the Defence," by Blanche Bates and her splendid English company. The play was well staged and admirably presented. The scenes open in India and later on are laid in England. Miss Bates is a versatile actress of great histronic ability and played a strong emotional part with a naturalness and, withal, an emotional abandon that elicited frequent bursts of applause. The company was a well balanced one of whom every member was a true artist. Mr. Augustus Frohman brother Mr. Charles Frohman, the world known theatrical manager and impressario has displayed great judgment in his choice of the cast who brought a somewhat difficult play to a successful conclusion.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

Peter Nicholls.

One of the best known and most highly respected residents of Bridgenorth, passed away on Friday night in the person of Mr. Peter Nicholls, constable of that hamlet.

Shortly after he had retired he was found dead in bed by his wife, death having been caused by heart failure.

The late Peter Nicholls who was 48 years of age, was born in Smith, and had lived in the vicinity of Bridgenorth all his life. He had been village constable for a long period, and until a year ago, had been fishery inspector. He was a member of Court Bridgenorth, Canadian Order of Foresters. He was twice married and is survived by his second wife and four children.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence, to the Bridgenorth cemetery.

PARTY SETS SAIL FOR THE ARTIC SEEKING ISLAND

New York, May 17.—After many set-backs the Crocker Land expedition has completed arrangements for departure from this city on July 3 under command of Dr. Donald B. MacMillan in the ship Diana. Crocker Land is a supposed large island or continent which was seen from a distance by Rear Admiral Peary in 1906. Dr. MacMillan hopes to learn definitely whether Crocker Land is really an Arctic continent, an island or only an illusion. The principal members of his party, according to information made public to-day, will be Maurice C. Tanquary, Zoologist of the State Agricultural College at Manhattan, Kan., W. Elmer Ekblow, Botanist and Zoologist and Ensign Fitzhugh Green, U.S.N., Physicist and engineer.

Carrying a crew of 28 in addition to the scientific members of the expedition, the Diana will sail for Greenland to obtain Eskimo dog teams and supplies and probably spend three or four years in the Arctic. Falgar Bay on the west side of Kane Basin will be made the winter quarters. This is about 50 miles from Cape Sabine where Lieut. Greeley's 18 men died of starvation and cold before the relief ships reached the lost party. A large wireless plant, which will be furnished by the United States Government, will be set up for communication to Cape Wolstenholme, in Hudson Bay, 1,600 miles away, where the Canadian Government is completing a wireless station and will relay all messages.

THE ST. LAWRENCE INVESTMENT & TRUST COMPANY.

was incorporated by act of the Quebec Legislature, 5 Ed. VII, Chap. 75, in 1905, having for its object the extending and absorption of the St. Lawrence Investment Society. This Society, formed in 1895, carried on a successful business on a small scale, paying regular annual dividends varying from 5 p.c. to 15 p.c. and the assets gave the shares of the Society a value of about $150 at its absorption. The Charter under which the new Company is organized is a valuable one, it being difficult to obtain a Charter of like character. The powers conferred by it are wide and give an opportunity for the transaction of a profitable business.

FUTURE OF THE COMPANY.

The new Company will do business on a much larger scale than the old Company, will operate largely in the owning of, buying and selling of well selected real estate, in the development of tracts of land in the City and its suburbs by selling same as Factory Sites and building lots, and in the purchase of agreements of sale, a business very profitably engaged in, in Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver and other Cities. The purchasing of agreements of sale has not, to any extent, been carried on in Montreal, and it is intended that this Company pay particular attention to this Branch, which shows even better opportunities of profit, with a larger margin of safety, than those of the West, inasmuch as the values of Real Estate in Montreal are more firmly based.

FIELD OF OPERATION

The operations of the Company will be confined chiefly to the City and District of Montreal and there is no city which offers the same advantages to Investors seeking safety with large returns. Montreal's commercial supremacy in the Dominion is universally known. The population in 1901 was 266,826, and in 1912 611,397. The assessed valuation of Real Estate in 1912 showed an increase of $125,000,000 over the previous year. Montreal is an Island, therefore its area is fixed. Real Estate values, though increasing, are still low, and leave room for great expansion. The City proper covers an area of 16 square miles, the smallest area of any city with the same population in either Canada or the United States.

MANAGEMENT

The Company have appointed Findlay & Howard, Limited, Managers. Mr. Findlay is recognized as one of the foremost judges of Real Estate in Montreal, and the Firm's success is shown in the results of the following companies managed by them, which in addition to placing substantial amounts to reserve have paid dividends as follows:—

Applemount Land Company, Limited,	Incorporated	1909	paid	55 p.c.
Birnam Realty Company, Limited,	"	1910	"	80 p.c.
Drummond Realties, Limited	"	1912	"	33 1-3 p.c.

PREMIER BORDEN RECEIVES GREATEST WELCOME EVER

Premier of Ontario And Ministers From Ottawa Speak in The Arena

Toronto Goes Wild Over Reception to The Grand Chieftain Who Has Carried the Naval Bill to Successful Issue

The Conservative Leader Gives a Clean Cut, Clear Exposition of Canada's Intention and Duty

(Special to The Times.)

Toronto, May 19.—The big day has come and gone. Premier Borden, the idol of the Canadian people, whose efforts resulted in preventing the thin edge of the annexation wedge being admitted between Canada and the Motherland, was welcomed and acclaimed here yesterday. The Royal suite at the Queen's Hotel, consisting of the Royal bedrooms and dressing-rooms and the "Red Parlor," made memorable by the National policy Conference of 1882 between Sir John A. Macdonald and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, had been reserved for his use.. The Red Parlor, situated on the first floor of the hotel and overlooking Front street and the garden, has undergone no alterations for the last forty years. The furniture is of a rich, dull red and the color scheme of carpet. wall panels, chairs and curtains with the old gold above the windows, marks of the suite from the modernized rooms of the hotel, while the gilded Royal coat-of-arms on the outer door proclaims with pride the rank of some former occupants of the rooms.

They were the suite used by the late King Edward when he visited Canada as Prince of Wales; by the Grand Duke Alexis of Russia; and were occupied by Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne in the latter's Governorship, while nearly all the Governor-Generals of Canada have at some time or other followed this precedent.

Among the portraits and signed photographs in the room are those of the following notable occupants Th Marquess of Lansdowne, Countess of Aberdeen, Countess of Derby, Lord Stanley, Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Madame Patti and Madame Albani.

It is interesting to note that the stairs leading from the Royal suite to the ground floor were built especially for the Princess Louise in order that she and her husband might enter the dining-room reserved for them in the southeast part of the present rooms by a private passage.

The day broke fine, as though old Sol has smiled on Canada's patriotic leader. The big Arena had, by 10 o'clock received its last finishing touches and decorations. The big procession formed on Front street, westward from the Queen's Hotel, with William Harper as chief marshal. Mr. Harper was assisted by Arthur VanKoughnet, present of the Centre and South Toronto Conservative Club, who in turn were assisted by a corps of aides appointed by the various ward organizations. No less than eight bands furnished music for the procession of some 8,000 Conservatives, in line. The Army and Navy Veterans were in the front rank, preceding the ward representations. The largest out-of-town campanies were present from Hamilton, Newmarket, Aurora, Woodbridge Guelph, London and Kingston. Smaller contingents were also present from other places throughout the lower part of the province. Even Sarnia and some of the more remote places sent deputations.

RT. HON. R. L. BORDEN
Premier of Canada.

MINISTERS PRESENT

In addition to Premier Borden there were present in the procession and to the Arena: Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General; Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Sir James Whitney, Premier of the Province of Ontario; Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals; and Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor. Most of the Ministers were accompanied by their wives. The first three menioned were speakers at the meeting.

Every precaution had been taken to prevent even a danger of trouble or panic at the big arena. The Dalhousie street entrance was reserved for members of the executive committee and the press. Long before the proceedings began, the streets adjoining the entrances were crowded by cheering but disappointed applicants for admission. The capacity of the rink, whilst enabling many thousands to be entertained, was altogether inadequate to provide accommodation for thousands of loyal Torotonians who sought admission. To describe the enthusiasm, the music, the cheering, the waving of patriotic flags and emblems would puzzle the pen of the world's best description writer. The ladies, in up-to-date garb, and up-to-date enthusiasm for Canada's betterment, were present in large numbers. The whole "atmosphere" of the meeting demonstrated that Ontario and Canada at large has no use for trifling with annexation. The true British-Canadian spirit was in evidence.

THE MEETING.

As the chairman introduced the preliminary speakers of the Borden cabinet, Hon. Mr. Pelletier, Hon. J. D. Hazen, and Sir James Whitney, the honest, capable and consistent premier of the Province, cheers reverberated throughout the building, to be re-echoed throughout all the Dominion. As the Hon. Mr. Borden was introduced, the audience rose to their feet, handkerchiefs and flags waved, cheers rent the air and enthusiasm went wild. The Premier confined himself strictly to national affairs. His reference to the Naval Question was received with vociferous and unanimous applause. There was no uncertain sound in the cheers of the audience. Their sentiments were all for British connection and advocacy of the Borden policy. The Premier, referring to remarks made by his colleagues, strongly endorsed their legislation and gave conclusive proofs of its advisability. He paid a high tribute to Sir James Whitney and maintained that Sir James was the first Premier in Ontario, who had consistently kept his promises to the electorate in a generation.

The meeting broke up shortly before midnight in the usual patriotic manner.

MANY LOCAL CITIZENS TO SEE KING PLATE RACE

A large number of Peterborough residents of both sexes, will attend the blue ribbon event of the Canadian turf, the King's Plate at Toronto, which will be the leading attraction at the Woodbine on Saturday next, the opening day of the Ontario Jockey Club's spring meeting, and the chances of the contestants in the big race is now the chief topic for discussion in sporting circles.

The contest has a much more open looking appearance at present than it had a week ago when at that time, Hearts of Oak was practically conceded to walk-over. The greatest surprise during the past week was the showing made by Robert Davies' pair, Gold Bud and Meter, the former in particular.

SPLENDID OSPREY SHOT HERE BY MR. R. TIVEY

Yesterday morning, Mr. R. Tivey, the noted crack shot of Peterborough whilst standing in his garden saw the shadow of a big bird flying overhead. As he looked up, Mr. Tivey thought the bird was an eagle. He rushed into the house and got his "old reliable.'j As he emerged into the sun-shine he saw the bird circling above his head. A cartridge was quickly sent home, aim taken, trigger pulled, and bang! Within a brace of seconds a mass of feathers, weighing several pounds, fell, narrowly missing his shoulder. The eagle proved to be a near kindred of the King of Birds, an osprey measuring five feet eight inches from tip to tip.

RELEASED AFTER 4 MONTHS IMPRISONMENT IN GUATEMALA

Wife Gets a Cable--He Will Sail for His Home in Toronto at the End of This Month

Toronto, May 19.—Mrs. Joseph F. Von Jenney, 1466 King street west, has received a cablegram from her husband, who has been imprisoned in Guatemala for four months on the charge of being a spy and implicated in the assassination of the late President of Salvador, saying that he had been freed and would sail for Toronto on May 29th.

Mr. Von Jenney has large interests as a tobacco planter in Guatemala, and on January 6th was siezed by the authorities and thrown into prison. It is thought that inasmuch as he was closely connected with the former Government of Guatemala, which was unpopular in the country the accusations against him were believed.

His friends, as exclusively reported pointed out that he was an intimate friend of the murdered President and succeeded in forcing an investigation through the Government of the United States, and while progress was slow it was eventually found that Mr. Von Jenney was not guilty, after three attempts had been made to take his life.

The evidence against him on which his accusers based their case were a number of shells and cartridges they had found in his trunk. These however, he had picked up at Port au Prince as a souvenir of an explosion which occurred there.

The Nation's Prayer

"God, give us men! A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands.
Men whom the lust of office
does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office
cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions,
and a will;
Men who have honour, and
who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue,
And scorn his treacherous
flatteries without winking;
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking."

THEY PLAN TO SAVE GIBSON NOW IN SHADOW OF GALLOWS

Church Organizations in City Are Taking Up Matter Zealously

Toronto, May 19.—To the many people of Toronto and other points in the Province who have interested themselves in the case of Charles Gibson, the young man who is now awaiting the fulfilment of the death sentence passed on him for the alleged murder of Rosenthal, [illegible] that still greater efforts [illegible] made to save him from the gallows will come as a hopeful indication that his fate is by no means as doubtful as it has been.

Many prominent men have expressed their sympathy and have promised to help in the fight for the boy's life. Church organizations throughout the city are taking up the matter zealously and this week will see the inauguration of a vigorous campaign on his behalf.

At the spring conference of the Brotherhoods of St. Andrew, held at Eglinton, Mr. G. P. Duffield, of the Jail Chapter of this organization, brought the case before the assembly and his recital of the circumstances surrounding it brought many expressions of sympathy and understanding from those present. Mr. Duffield who has interested himself in this case and is wholly conversant with it has brought it to the attention of many men's associations and everywhere he is assured of help in the fight he and his associates of the Jail Chapter are making for young Gibson's life. The men as a rule, consider this case as affecting them and putting themselves in the place of the stricken parents, are anxious to do all they can.

Circumstantial Evidence.

At the conference, one clergyman in commenting on the case, stated that he had in his congregation the wife of a man who was serving a seven-year sentence for the proven murder of another and he could not see the justice in the sentence of Charles Gibson, who was convicted on purely circumstantial evidence.

Mr. Duffield's suggestion of a citywide petition in favor of the condemned man was received with unanimous approval and all those present, presidents and officers of different brotherhoods, clergymen and workers of all kinds pledged themselves to the undertaking.

A petition is to-day being prepared and will be sent broadcast throughout Toronto and the people will be asked to show their sympathy by signing it. In order to supply funds to fight the case, small contributions not exceeding one dollar are being asked for and it is the belief of those behind the undertaking that the appeal will meet with a generous response.

Oxford Man Tells Story of "Dutch Treat" Which Royalty Was Forced to Forego, Being Short of Funds--Would Not Write Home to "Mother"

London, May 19.—An Oxonian who vouches for its truth, tells the following story:

Frequently when undergraduates make up a dinner party preceding a visit to a theatre, it is understood that each pays his own shot.

One day a Magdalen man on meeting the Prince of Wales, asked him to join a party for a dinner and play.

"I should love to go," the Prince said, "but the fact is I haven't the three shillings."

"Why don't you write home?" the friend asked.

"I have," the Prince replied, "but mother says I must make what I have do until the end of the term."

SUES FOR ENGAGEMENT RING WHICH SHE WON'T GIVE UP

Engagement Was Broken Off, and Finance Claims That it Was a Gift and is Therefore Her Property

Toronto, May 19.—Claiming that his engagement has been broken off and that his former fiancee has refused to give the diamond ring up, Frank Keeler has entered action against his former sweetheart, Annie Russell, 301 Berkeley street, for the recovery of his engagement ring or the $80 it cost. The action will be heard before Judge Morson in the 10th Division Court to-morrow.

Keeler became engaged to Miss Russell a day or two before Christmas, 1912, when he gave her the ring. The engagement between them has since become broken off, and although Keeler has requested the return of the ring, she has refused to do so, claiming that it was a gift and her property.

Newmarket Election, Won by Unionists, Staggering to Liberals---Unless Government Can Regain Favor of Electorate All Policies Go Smash

London, May 19.—"Staggering is the word generally applied to-day to the Newmarket election.

Ministerialists seek to explain the loss of the seat by so overwhelming a majority as due to a personal popularity of the late Ministerial member, Sir Sharles D. Rose, a Canadian.

Also the misrepresentation of years of office has outworn a welcome, as is the way with all Ministers in England.

Also, it is said that Lloyd George's bitter anti-landlord campaign has not brought enough benefit to the rural voter to induce him to give a further mandate to the Radical land reformer. It is obvious that unless the Ministry can regain favor of the electorate, either by their own merits or the demerits of their Unionist opponents, neither Home Rule nor Welsh Disestablishment can become law, for the Lord will most certainly reject both. Some part of the Government defeat in Newmarket is attributed to the popular condemnation of Marconi speculations of the Ministers.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON SIGNS THE LAND BILL

The Act Will Now Go Into Effect on August 17th.

Sacramento, Cal., May 19.—Governor Johnston signed to-day the alien land bill, against which Japan protests and which the California Legislature passed by an overwhelming majority over the remonstrances of President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan. The act will go into effect ninety days from date, or on August 17.

Pride, Not Purse.

That Japan is in reality making a stubborn fight for racial and social equality, and that this fight has taken on the form of a protest against the California anti-alien land bill, is the belief that is rapidly growing in high official circles here, it became known to-day. It is believed that the pride and not the purse of Japan is touched.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

Advertisements under above heads, 20 words and under, one insertion, 15c.; 3 insertions, 25c.; 6 insertions, 40c.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 351 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

Advertisements under above heads, 20 words and under, one insertion, 15c.; 3 insertions, 25c.; 6 insertions, 40c.

THE LAW OF QUALITY IS AS SURE AS the law of gravity. Gravity keeps both our feet on the ground. Quality informs your judgment when you are on the "Ground Floor" in the matter of value. Martin-Senour's Paint is the Ground Floor of paint value. It makes good every time. It flows freely, has great covering capacity, shows a smooth finish, and wears like iron. It will more than meet your expectations in quality, efficiency and durability. Campbell & Best, 416 [illegible] St., next to post office.

LOVE IN A COTTAGE

How a "Good Fellow" Made Good His Promise to Prospective Father-in-Law.

By JAMES HENRY ASHLEY.

"I hate to do it, Millie. Of course I respect your father, just as I love you, but I am decidedly afraid he is going to put a dampener on my—my—"

"Budding affections!" mirthfully supplemented Millie of the bright laughing eyes and ever happy heart. "Oh, you great coward! Why, papa wouldn't harm a fly."

"But I'm not a fly," remonstrated Marvin Bates, dolefully. "I'm a big, blundering idiot who has been lucky enough to interest the best girl in the world, and expect that her family are going to turn their jewel over to a fellow who has not had the sense to save up enough to give her the golden cage she has been used to."

"Marvin," said Milly, quite seriously, "I told you at the start that my longing girlish ideal has been love, true love, in a cottage, a real cottage."

"Yes," assented Marvin, ruefully, "but where is the cottage?"

"That's just what papa wants to talk to you about," replied Milly, with dancing eyes. "So go ahead, you great modest fellow, and don't let him make you believe that I'm too precious to work for."

It was a pretty trying ordeal for Marvin. All his life he had been what is called "a good fellow." Not a reckless roysterer in any sense of the word, but true-hearted, careless of his money, sometimes careless of his obligations. When a friend was in need he could always rely on Marvin to help him out. When Marvin took a fancy to anything he bought it, no matter what it might cost.

Hitherto he had rather prided himself on his "good fellow" actions. That bubble reputation, however, seemed flimsy as tissue paper as he entered the library of the Worthington home and faced the hard-headed, practical father of the girl he loved, in whose hands lay all his destiny at that moment.

"Milly, that is, my—your daughter, Miss Worthington, thought I had better see you, sir," blundered out Marvin, tripping over a rug and landing on the pet corn of his prospective father-in-law.

"How Much Have You Saved?"

"Be seated," spoke Mr. Worthington in a tone that sent cold chills down the back of the ardent suitor. "I have been advised of this ill-advised match."

"Oh, don't say that, sir," interrupted Marvin, beseechingly. "I have loved your daughter for two years."

"Ha-hum! Two years you've been thinking of getting married, eh?" questioned Mr. Worthington.

"Yes, sir. You see, we love each other—"

"That's all right," interrupted Mr. Worthington, mercilessly. "How much have you saved during that time?"

Marvin floundered. He wriggled about in his chair, his lips strove to frame an explanation, found no possible basis for it, and he sat staring vacantly at nothing.

"Young man," said his stern judge, "I know more about you than you think. You will tally me off if you please. You have earned twelve hundred dollars a year and are in debt. In the name of wonder, how do you expect to support two on your salary, when you have not been able to keep clear of debt alone?"

"That's so," acknowledged Marvin in repentant despair. "Only, you see," he added, brightening up now, "I'm going to begin to save."

"When?"

"Right away."

"Sure of that, are you?"

"Oh, yes, sir. I'm going to cut out the club, put so much aside every week, and economize in every way I can."

"That will be necessary, if you marry my daughter," declared Mr. Worthington. "Now, I am going to be explicit with you. Millie's mother left her the cottage and lot on Maple street. It is a good enough home for anybody. That gives you free rent, provided you can save twenty-five dollars a month till twenty-four notes, amounting to $600, are paid. Can you do that?"

"I certainly can—" began the optimistic lover heroically.

"Will you do it? If you think anything of Milly, you will clear off the amount. Show me at the end of two years that you have kept your promise, and I shall be proud of you where I am now a little afraid your liberal ways may lead you into difficulties."

"Trust me, sir, trust me!" cried the hopeful Marvin, filled with a hundred plans to save the pennies.

Milly and Marvin were married in due time. The vine-embowered cottage on Maple street became their home. Marvin began his sacrificial career heroically. Milly petted and praised him so enthusiastically when he proudly brought home the first receipt for twenty-five dollars from the bank, that the artless fellow actually looked forward to the next pay day as a sort of regular celebration.

They were happy as doves in a cote. It was wonderful, the many little economies they planned and carried out. Marvin tried his hand at planting vegetables, and Millie raised a brood of chickens. Club life and good fellow friends seemed to Marvin now like a far away dream.

One beautiful summer evening Marvin came bounding up the garden walk like a person dancing on air, and waving a fluttering strip of paper in his hand.

"The last payment, Millie!" he hurrahed. "The six hundred dollars is all paid off," and Millie fell into his arms and tried to tell him for the thousandth time what a splendid man he was.

Papa Worthington strolled down to the cottage in the evening. His broad face was rather unusually beaming, and he suggested a person expecting to hear some news.

"About those payments," began Marvin, with conscious pride as they adjourned from the porch to the cozy little parlor. "There's the final note of the six hundred dollars."

"Well, well," commented Mr. Worthington in an apparently gratified tone, "I declare, Marvin, I am more than pleased, proud of you, in fact. You see, saving has not been so hard after all."

"Hard?" echoed Marvin. "Why, it's just delightful! I've got a hundred dollars in the bank in Milly's name, and we're going to build it up thirty dollars a month as a nest egg for another real estate investment. Milly, show your father the vegetable and eggs savings."

Very proudly Milly produced a little tin box and showed and rattled its contents.

"Forty-seven dollars and fifteen cents, papa," she chirped. "What do you think of that?"

"I think you are a famous pair," declared Mr. Worthington with energy. "Here, Millie, add that to your little treasure heap."

Marvin stared. He sat petrified. Very deliberately pretty Millie drew from an envelope six one hundred dollar bills and some minor bank notes.

"I did it for your own good, Marvin," explained Mr. Worthington. "There are no real payments due on the cottage. I wanted to see you study economy, and you've done it nobly."

"Will you forgive my share in the innocent deception, dear?" asked Millie, wistfully.

"Say," answered Marvin, choking up with grateful emotion, "when a fellow finds his life lined up the way mine is through the thoughtfulness of the dearest wife in the world and her grand old father—"

A kiss for the one, a warm handshake for the other, and Marvin Bates' faithful friends knew that their experiment had permanently succeeded, and that the big-hearted husband and son-in-law was "a good fellow," indeed!

Antiquity of Shorthand

According to Professor C. M. Coborn, of Alleghany College, Meadville, Penn., an explorer of ancient ruins, who lectured in Cleveland, "The Sermon on the Mount," was taken down in shorthand. Professor Coborn also said that it was stenography which preserved to the world the great facts and sayings contained in the Bible, and that probably some stenographic method was in fairly general use in Christ's time on earth.

EDITORIAL NOTES

WILL BE SLOW TO FORGET

Sir Wilfrid and his party of obstructionists, are posing as martyrs before the people, because the rules have been so amended that deliberate and senseless blocking has forever been banished from the proceedings of Parliament. It will take much special pleading by those who tried to make Canada an "adjunct" of the United States, and many thypucritical articles by the reverend editor of the Globe, to convince the general public that much sympathy needs to be wasted on those who do not favor British connection.

ROMAN CATHOLIC MEXICO

Prof. H. P. Beach, writing in the Sunday School Times, of the people of Mexico, says that out of the more than 15,000,000 inhabitants, 19 per cent are of pure or nearly pure white race, 38 per cent are Indians, and 43 per cent are of mixed race. About 80 per cent of the people are wholly illiterate, and about 99 per cent. are nominally Roman Catholics in religion. The Indians, Prof. Beach tell's us, do most of the nation's work. Half-naked, sandalled, ignorant and poverty stricken, the lowest of them "betray that gloom and incurable sadness that seems to hang over nations destined to perish." A mixture of races, illiteracy, superstition, hat ·umvirate could better account for Mexico's woes and what could present a stronger plea for Mexico's evangelization?

Catarrh or Colds Never Quickly Cured By Swallowing Drugs

Cough Syrup, Tablets, etc., go to the Stomach, Perhaps Sicken It, But Don't Kill the Germs of Catarrh.

The Direct Breathing Cure is Best.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to rout out Catarrh or Asthma it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal and cure.

"No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago" writes Mr. G. E. Boot, a well known resident of Bridgetown, W. I. "My head ached terrifically, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Ten minutes inhaling Catarrhozone gave me a little relief so I continued to use Catarrhozone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhozone quickly cures me. I am well ever since."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

CANADA INTERESTS GUINNESS'S BREWERY.

Mr. Arthur T. Shand, who is now making an investigation of trade conditions in Canada, is the special representative of the Guinness Brewery, Ireland, makers of the famous Guinness's Stout. His mission is to study the causes that have brought such a phenomenal demand for Guinness's Stout in the Dominion and to report in the most exhaustice manner what the future development and growth of the Dominion will be, as seen from personal contact and student observation of affairs, industries, and trade conditions throughout every section of Canada. There seems to be a mutual bond of interest between the Dominion and the Guinness concern, both being able to show unprecedented records in the way of increasing prosperity and trade expansion. The figures of the Guinness business read like a tax budget, while the demand and consumption of the product lead the world's output by three to one of the largest brewary in the United States.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION EXTENDING WORK

The following, which has been sent to The Times for publication, may serve as an example to the local Y. M.C.A. workers:

It is interesting to note that the Association is advancing another step in their great work of assisting young men. They are constantly reaching out far beyond the bounds of their immediate membership, and are now doing a work which encircles the world in its effort to give the helping hand to any young man needing assistance.

A new department of the work recently organized in the Toronto Central Branch of the Young Men's Christain Association is one which should be known to every one. It is a co-operative effort between the Christian churches and the Young Men's Christian Association in which they unitedly undertake to look after all young men coming to Toronto as strangers, putting them in touch with employment, good rooming and boarding houses, proper companions and with prominent young men of the church, etc.

"Key-men" are being appointed in every church of Toronto, men who assume the responsibility of looking up young men whose names may be sent to them by the Secretary of the work. "Key-men" are also being appointed in outlaying municipalities whose duty it is to notify the Secretary of the Inter-Community work of any young man leaving his home town and for whom he is to work, etc. Information is also being sent in from many other sources in Canada, United States and the British Isles as to young men coming to Toronto, and hundreds are already being looked after.

Parents and friends of young men going to Toronto will be glad to know of this important move on the part of the Y.M.C.A. and the churches, and will, no doubt, take the opportunity of notifying the Secretary of the Inter-Community work, Mr. E. F. Trimble, at the Central Y. M. C. A., Toronto, of any friends going to Toronto to live.

We understand that, without any properly organized effort, the Central Branch of the Toronto Young Men's Christian Association has assisted in different ways more than 5,000 men during the year ending May 1st, last, fully 1,000 of these being assisted in securing employment. That being the case, the possibilities for good in this new department, with the churches assisting in every way, are beyond calculation.

We are pleased to give this information to the public through the columns of our paper, knowing that by doing so we are assisting in one of the greatest movements the Young Men's Christian Association has ever undertaken.

CHARGE THAT [illegible]N POLICE DEFEND "SLAVERS"

Three Are Refused Pardons at the Investigations Held There.

Boston, May 19.—The case of Joseph Dolves, who was sentenced to nine years for the murder of Daniel Hauck, developed a sensational turn at a hearing before the Board of Pardons Thursday.

A letter from Peter H. Stretton, which has not heretofore figured in the case, was reproduced by Capt. A. D. Henriques, attorney for Dolves. The letter shows that Dolves was in the service of Capt. Stretton who was at that time immigration officer here, and indicates that Dolbes was assisting very ably in ferreting out white slavers in the Tenderloin. The charge is made by Capt. Stretton that it was known that certain police officers in the Tenderloin were protecting white slavers, and Stretton mentions the name of Frank Martin, a police clerk, as one of those suspected of shielding men and lewd women who were then engaged in the traffic.

Hauck was with Martin in the Tenderloin when the shooting occurred. There was a cross fire of bullets, followed a personal difficulty between Martin and Dolves and two women with whom Martin and Hauck are said to have been walking.

Capt. Henriques, in a very able argument, drew the inference that the fight originated between Martin, who was interested in protecting Tenderloin traffickers, and Dolves, who was engaged in the service of Capt. Stretton, the immigration officer. Stretton at the time was making a fight against men and women who were importing and deporting women between New Orleans and Panama. Martin, the attorney charged, after the killing was found to have a revolver with four empty chambers.

Dtermination on the part of relatives of Robert Walsh to make his slayer suffer the full maximum of punishment meted out to him two years ago developed at the hearing of the case of Charles Le Blanc. It was one of the most interesting of a number of cases that were heard Thursday afternoon.

Raoul Sere, member of the Legislature from the Twelfth ward, appeared with the mothes and sister of Walsh, to protest that Le Blanc is not a fit character to be restored to citizenship.

THREE DIE IN BLAZE AT MAMMOTH TANK

Tar Kettle Overflows, Causing Hot Air Explosion at Peak's Island.

Portland, Me., May 19.—Trapped in a mammoth water tank when a kettle of tar which they were using in making repairs boiled over and induced a hot-air explosion, three men lost their lives at Peak's Island to-day. Irving C. Loring of Peak's Island and Michael Ross of this city died inside the tank. Max Cartensen of Boston died a few minutes after he reached the Maine General Hospital. One of his arms had been turned off.

The tank, one used in the town's water system, is an immense affair, holding hundreds of thousands of gallons. Yearly it is drained off to allow repairs. The three men named and Arthur Brackett made up the crew sent from this city to do the work. Besides riveting weakened spots they sealed crevices with a compound of tar. It was the overheating of this compound that caused the explosion.

A few minutes before the explosion, Brackett was called from the tank by a friend. Only this, probably, saved his life.

Inside the men were working amid the deafening noise of the riveters, Suddenly a seething, hissing sound rose even above the din. Then there was a flash. While the men has been intent on the work the tar had boiled over, spread quickly in a thick layer over the floor and then, coming in contact with the charcoal furnace, had taken fire. Clouds of smoke filled the tank, changing it at once into the blackness of midnight.

The one hope of the entrapped men was to live long enough in the strangling smoke to grope their way to the ladder leading up from the tank, and then to have strength enough to climb it. Loring apparently did this. His body was found lying on top of the tank a few feet from the exit. It was burned almost beyond recognition.

With a few seconds after the tar caught fire, the entire chamber of the tank, large as it was, was thick with smoke. This became heated, and, suddenly, taking flame, exploded. It is thought that Cartensen was part way up the ladder when the explosion came and he was knocked to the floor where he lay until the fire subsided and rescuers him. Ross, it is thought, suffocated before he found his way to the ladder. His body was burned to a crisp.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 161 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

TO REDUCE DANGER IN LOCAL THEATRE'S

Our readers will be pleased to note that the Provincial Treasurer's office contemplates making important amendments to the act regarding the "movies." Whilst there has been a standard annual license fee of $75 on each moving picture house, hereafter the license will be regulated by population of the individual municipality. The law, hereafter, will be much more stringent regarding the operators. Of course, of the many dangers incidental to such places, the greatest menace to human life is in the operating room. Here the films, as inflammable as gunpowder are as has too frequently been proven, likely to catch fire and cause a panic. As the film passes through the rollers, should the operator stop turning the handle of the machine for a minute or two, the film catches fire. More strict regulations are to be introduced regarding the width of the aisles in these, too frequently proven, death traps.

The Times, which has so far been the only local paper to try and protect the public from the dangers involved at the Movies, has obtained a copy of the law regulating such places and will publish certain sections of same, that are openly and flagrantly defied by at least one of the Peterborough moving picture houses.

CARING FOR HORSES

Leading the colt to and from the watering trough two or three times daily is not enough exercise for him. Let him race around the yard or paddock for several hours every fine day.

All young animals have a certain alotted period of growth. See that the colts get the care intended to promote size at the proper time, for once they have passed a certain age growth ceases, and efforts to renew it are in vain.

A horse which has free access to water at all times very seldom injures himself by over-drinking, but it is not wise to allow an exhausted or overheated animal to drink to excess, neither is it wise to deprive such an animal of the means to refresh himself. Let him have a little, and when he cools down and is rested a little let him satisfy his thirst.

Foul or bad air in the stable is generally heated air, or in other words air which has been exhaled from the lungs of the horses. If the stable is "stuffy" or over-warm improve the ventilation. Horse stables do not require to be kept at a high temperature, but pure air is necessary, and to keep it pure the foul air must be driven off.

Feeding three times daily is preferable to two feeds a day for horses. The limited capacity of the horse's stomach does not fit him for long fasts. A horse is also a more or less restless animal, and three small feeds are preferable to two large feeds as they spread the feeding over a longer time, and shorter intervals lapse between feeds.

SPORTS IN DENVER.

Denver, Colo., May 19. — Governor Ammons last night vetoed the boxing bill. He said: "While I realize that the intention of the authors of this bill was not to bring about that result, yet I fear the effect would be to legalize prize fighting in Colorado.

The bill permitting racing under supervision of a racing commission will become a law without the Governor's signature, he preferring neither to sign nor veto the bill.

RING.

Joe White of South Boston, who looks like a coming champion in the middle-weight class, has been matched to box "Gunboat" Eldridge, the hard hitting Winthrop middleweight. They will furnish the 10-round semi-final to Matty Baldwin-Gilbert Gallant contest at the Atlas A. A. Tuesday night. In selecting Eldridge to meet White the management of the club has picked a boy who will give the South Boston boxer a thorough test.

Tommy McFarland of Boston will meet a newcomer in this section, Jerry Lucenite of Spokane, Wash., in the opening preliminary of six rounds. The western boy comes here with a good reputation in the bantamweight class.

The principals in the main event, Matty Baldwin and Gilbert Gallant, are working for this match is as their lives depended on it. While the Charles-Chelsea admirers of Gallant point to the improvement shown by him in his latest matches, especially the one with Battling Nelson, whom he came near making take the count.

TURF.

Baltimore, Md., May 19. — Jockey James Benschotten, injured during the running of the Linstead steeplechase at Pimlico yesterday, died early today. Benschotten, who was riding Sir Cleges, was thrown at the 10th jump. As he attempted to rise he was struck in the head by the hoofs of another horse and his skull fractured. Benschotten was from Brooklyn, N.Y.,

Oklahoma City, May 19.—Wagering on horse races in Oklahoma became a thing of the past Wednesday night, when Governor Cruce affixed his signature to a legislative enactment prohibiting this form of gambling. A violation provides a fine from $200 to $500, and not less than thirty days in jail.

LACROSSE.

Montreal, May 19.—Smarting at the accusation made by some of the big four lacrosse magnates to the effect that they are "hold-outs," the two Scott brothers, Fred and Henry, two of the greatest lacrosse players that ever lived, threaten to give out the full details of the attempt to bribe, the first named for a thousand, the second for eight hundred and a third player on their team for an almost equally large sum to throw a lacrosse match.

For the present they are withholding the most important details, the names of the men who made them the offers and a few other things, but if they are driven too far they say they will not even hesitate at that.

BRAKE UP UNION.

"It was this attempt to bribe us, that broke up the National Lacrosse Union," said Fred, who was spokesman for himself and Henry. "The matter was slurred over at the time, and we are willing to forget it, if they leave us alone, but we will not stand by and be called unpleasant names when all we ask is that if they do not want to pay us the salary to which we think we are entitled they let us go our own way."

BASEBALL.

New York, May 19.—Arthur J. Shafer, known to the fans as "Tilly" jumped the Giants and is supposed to be now on the way to his home in California. Notice of his suspension has been sent to President James J. Lynch of the National league, the charge being that "he left the club without permission."

The departure of the speedy player who earned a regular position on the team this year, is clouded in mystery According to officials of the club, Shafer made no mention of a desire to return home, neither did he appear dissatisfied with conditions. He played regularly at shortstop from the opening of the season until last Saturday, when he was sent out to centrefield. The change was made because of his poor work in the infield, but he was too valuable a batsman and baserunner to be kept on the bench.

Shafer has been a member of the New York team since 1909, when he was taken without any previous professional experience.

Lansing, Mich., May 19. — Should Ty Cobb, world's champion batsman and star player of the Detroit baseball team, be injured while under contract with President Navin of the Tigers, he would be entitled to only $10 a week compensation, according to information received here.

New York, May 19.—Manager McGraw of the New York National league team has unconditionally released Joe Evers, a younger brother of Manager Johnny Evers of the Chicago National League Club. Joe Evers was taken South on the Giants' spring training trip on his brother's recommendation. He got into one league game as a pinch runner after returning to New York.

MAKING GUN STOCKS

England's Available Supply of Suitable Walnut Running Short

For scores and scores of years walnut has invariably been used in England for the stocks of military and the best sporting rifles, beechwood grown in Herefordshire and Gloucestershire being employed for the cheaper weapons. Beechwood is altogether unsuitable for military purposes, as it readily expands and shrinks with changes of temperature. During the Crimean War one Birmingham gunmaker converted close upon 100,000 walnut trees into gun stocks, establishing some mills in Turin for this purpose, for nearly all the walnut came from the Continent. But with the growth of armaments the supply of walnut is getting less and less, and it is said too the quality of the wood is not [illegible] to what it was in years gone by, and this is not surprising, for an average-sized tree will not yield more than thirty gun stocks, those cut from the heart of the tree being the most valued. Manufacturers have used ash and maple, but the objection to these is they are difficult to manipulate. Various experiments have been tried, and one ingenious person sought to make gun stocks of asbestos. Those produced were not altogether satisfactory, but possibly further experiments may remove the objections which at present prevent its adoption. One thing is certain that before many years are over some substitute for walnut will have to be found. Perhaps in time we shall have a rifle wholly of metal.

TOUCHING LOVE FOR DOGS

Queen's Tears Crystallized in Heroic Verse on Pet's Headstone

In the garden at Marlborough House there is touching evidence of Queen Alexandra's love of dumb animals. It takes the shape of a little cemetery where some of the Queen's four legged favorites are buried.

The inscription on the stones and the care with which moss is prevented from growing in the clearly carved letters prove that it is not only a cemetery, but one on which affection is still bestowed. Five pets of Queen Alexandra lie beneath. The inscription on the largest stone reads:—

Here, scarce a league from Paul's historic dome.
Where the broad elm trees shade a Royal home,
He lies. Like a true friend—to man or dog what name
Can more win love or more enhance his fame—

Through the parched desert and the midnight fray
Where his fond master led the glorious way,
He bravely followed, and with mute caress
Cheered both his labors and his idleness.

A miscreant slew him, none was near to save,
Let kindly tears bedew his honored grave,
And fairest fingers twine his funeral wreath.
A faithful comrade is at rest beneath.

Boxer's master was the Duke of Connaught, who took his four-footed friend through the Egyptian campaign of thirty years ago and afterward gave him to the Princess of Wales, now Queen Alexandra.

Egg Membrane for Skin

For a long time doctors looked for a good substitute for human skin for grafting. The possibility was lately demonstrated by taking the membrane that lines the shell of a newly laid egg, plastering it over a burn, and making it grow as human skin. The discoverer of this process was treating a child which had previously been burned, and in breaking a raw egg which he desired the child to swallow, dropped part of the membrane by accident upon the burn and bandaged the wound. Later on it was discovered that the accidental placing of the egg membrane over the burn caused cells to augment in number and gradually to extend over the wound until at the end of some weeks, the surface was completely covered with the new skin. The treatment was called to the attention of physicians and it is now being used to cure scalds.

Jan. 22, 1912.

Dear Sirs.—

It is just one year ago that we put in the first stock of SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES CURE, and we wish to state that we have been amazed at the remarkable sale of these remedies. We have had many repeat orders in both our stores and have sold retail $1000.00 worth of these remedies. In spite of all these sales we have yet to hear of one dissatisfied customer, while many have come back to tell us of the wonderful cures resulting from the Medicine.

Another striking feature of this business is that so many customers come in stating that SANOL has cured Mr.—— their intimate friend, and they wished to try it for themselves.

Wishing you continued success, we are, Yours truly,

AFTER RARE ANIMALS

Two Naturalists Explored the Wilds of British Columbia and Alberta

Frederick K. Vreeland of Montclair, N. J., and William P. Patterson of Milburn, N. J., visited the extreme northern parts of Alberta and British Columbia in the interests of the Smithsonian Institute of Washington, D.C. Their purpose was to determine the northern limit of the habitat of the Big Horn sheep of the rocky mountains, to ascertain if in the northern part of British Columbia the Big Horn and the Stone sheep occupied the same territory, and to capture specimens of both varieties as also of white goat, mountain caribou and brown bear. The two naturalists explored the mountain wilds on both sides of the Peace River, shooting such specimens as they desired and photographing the country. They got many photographs of wild life in its native haunts. The Canadian law which forbids the exportation of mountain sheep and goats and caribou was withdrawn at the request of the Smithsonian Institute. Mr. Vreeland hunted mountain sheep and goats in the Canadian Rockies several years ago and one of the finest specimens of the mountain goat to be found in America now adorns the walls of the Montclair Athletic Club.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied, and signed with the actual signatures of the tenderers.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Department of Public Works, Ottawa. Tenders must include the towing of the plant to and from the work. Dredges and tugs not owned and registered in Canada shall not be employed in the performance of the work contracted for. Contractors must be ready to begin work within thirty days after the date they have been notified of the acceptance of their tender.

A separate cheque for each place for which a tender is submitted must accompany the tender. This cheque must be equal to five per cent (5 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, based on the approximate quantities set opposite the name of place, but in no case must the cheque be for a less sum than $1,500. The cheque must be accepted, on a chartered bank, and payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

PEN PICTURE OF GENERAL BOOTH

Left Methodist Church in 1861—Started Army 1878—Army Organized In Canada 1882

Discussing the life work of the late General Booth, Commander Rees, the highest officer of the Salvation Army in Canada stated that the Army was officially started in the Dominion at Toronto in 1882 by a party of officers from New York. According to the latest figures there are 465 branches in Canada. 960 officers; 4,052 local officers; 1,206 bandsmen; 37 social institutions, and 42 day schools.

In one year as many as 44,000 immigrants have passed through the Army's hands in this country.

General's Childhood

Born in old-fashioned Sneiton, a suburb of Nottingham, on the 10th day of April, 1829, William Booth rambled as a boy among the Ruddington Hills and swam in the shimmering waters of the Trent. The house of his nativity still stands, but the neighborhood is greatly changed, as is the England of that day.

His boyhood was spent during one of the darkest periods of England's history; the nation was in the midst of the depression which followed the Napoleonic wars. Ignorance, intemperance, and disease had not yet been confronted by an enligtened public opinion; the dawn had not arrived, and in the darkness destiny was preparing one who would some day stand head and shoulders above his fellows in the amelioration of his race.

Physical Force Chartist

Early in life he was compelled to go out in the world and earn his own living, and the poverty and misery which he saw on every side filled him with a spirit of passionate revolt against constituted authority, and resulted in him becoming a physical force Chartist.

In 1848, Rev. Samuel Dunn, of Connexion, London, wanted the promising young layman to offer himself as a candidate for the Methodist ministry, and at last he consented to see the doctor for the necessary examination. The result was very discouraging, this gentleman promised the prospective preacher a lifetime of twelve months in such a career.

For several years he preached during the evenings, working during the day. When 25 years old he was made a local preacher. For two and a half years he was a traveling Methodist evangelist, visiting some of the principal towns of England. His success was so great that Conference reappointed him to regular circuit pastorates, much to his regret, and as he felt in violation of a very solemn arrangement.

After he had been traveling evangelist for nearly twelve months, he married Miss Mumford. Four years of submission to regular circuit work was sufficient for them. So in 1861 they left the Conference in order that they might devote their lives to evangelical work and the alleviation of the miserable lot of the outcast and poverty-stricken. They immediately proceeded to Cornwall, and after being instrumental in the conversion of 7,000 souls there, settled down in Whitechapel, London, a locality notorious for its vice and misery.

Organized Army in 1878

He commenced work at Mile End Waste on July 5, 1865, and in spite of much opposition and persecution, the Salvation Army was organized ten years later. Denunciations hailed the work on all sides. The newspapers had all sorts of fanciful stories about the General and his family feathering their own nests, and by and by running away. But in spite of everything the work prospered. Mrs. Booth was her husband's mainstay during all the period of persecution, and in fact was his chief advisor even up to the time of her death in 1891.

The Army has branches in Scotland, Ireland, Wales, the United States, Canada, Newfoundland, France, Belgium, Italy, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Japan, India, Ceylon, Australia and New Zealand, Java, South Africa, West Africa, Barbadoes, South America, Jamaica and Bermuda, in short to almost every country in the world. In 1886 the General made the first of five visits to Canada.

STARVING AND ALONE

Terrible Case of Destitution Reported From the Duck Mountains

A distressing case of want and suffering was brought to light at Alpine, a Swede settlement, in the Duck mountains, 34 miles south-west of Swan River. Mr. and Mrs. Findley, of Durban, which is 12 miles from Alpine, heard of a woman in distress in a lonely homestead on the mountain. They went to investigate, and found a Swede woman sick in bed and starving to death, with a baby 15 months old crawling around. The child could not walk, and was clothed only in a small shirt, and was very dirty. It had crawled in and out of the house at will, often sleeping outside the door.

The mother was in a pitiable condition, a veritable skeleton. There was no money in the house, and only dry bread to eat. The woman had been sick for six months. Her husband had deserted her and no one seemed to know his whereabouts.

Mrs. Findley took charge of the woman and the child.

ORIGIN OF NAUTICAL TERMS

"Starboard" and "Larboard" Derived From Old Saxon Language

The words "starboard" and "larboard" are descriptive of certain parts of a ship. The word "starboard" is derived from the Saxon "bord," meaning shield. On the Viking ships each warrior hung his shield on the side opposite to him and above the upper oar for his oar. The Viking held the steer oar, which was fastened to the right hand side of the stern, stern being in itself a contraction of steer oar.

The right hand side of the ship thus became the steer side, and as bord came to mean the whole side where the shields or bords were hung, the right side came to be the steer bord, starboard, side, and the lower or lurking side became larboard.

TO CLEAN THE CLOCK

Oftentimes when the clock refuses to work it may be clogged with dust. All it needs to make it as good as new is to place inside the case a bit of white cotton thoroughly saturated with kerosene oil. Let this remain two or three days or a week, and at the end of that time all the dust will have been loosened by the fumes of the oil. The clock will then be in good condition, while the cotton will be quite black with the dirt it has collected.

A certain New Brunswick clergyman had occasion to visit the Provincial Asylum in the city of St. John. Passing through one of the wards, he was accosted by a patient, an individual who could hardly lay claim to any but the most mundane cast of countenance, who gravely said to him, "I am St. Peter."

The reverend visitor expressed his gratification at meeting so famous a character, and passed on presently into another ward. On returning, a few minutes later, he was again stopped by his piously inclined friend, who surprised him by remarking, "I am St. Paul."

"But," exclaimed the clergyman, "you told me a minute ago that you were St. Peter."

"Ah, yes," explained the man, "but that was by my first wife."

Polecat Captured

A polecat was captured at Alltmawr, Breconshire, Wales. This rare animal is better known in the county by its Welsh name, "Ffwlbart." The martincat, which differs very much from the polecat, is supposed to visit the Henallt Wood, in the vicinity, occasionally.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a waltz, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel.

CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

CHAPTER VII—The Major arrives at the shop of a blacksmith, who is friendly, and knows the Lady of the Blended Rose.

CHAPTER VIII—Captain Grant and rangers arrive and search the blacksmith shop in vain for the spy.

CHAPTER IX—Lawrence joins the minute men who capture Grant and his train.

CHAPTER X—Major Lawrence is made prisoner by an Indian and two white men.

CHAPTER XI—Lawrence's captors lock him in a strong cell, where he meets Peter the jailer.

CHAPTER XII—Peter advises Lawrence not to attempt escape as "some one" will send for him.

CHAPTER XIII—Grant's appearance adds mystery to the combination of circumstances.

CHAPTER XIV—Lawrence again meets the Lady of the Blended Rose, who informs him that he is in her house and that she was in command of the party that attacked and captured him.

CHAPTER XV—The captive is thrust into a dark underground chamber when Captain Grant begins a search of the premises.

CHAPTER XVI—After digging his way out, Lawrence finds the place deserted. Evidences of a battle and a dead man across the threshold.

CHAPTER XVII—Col. Mortimer, father of the Lady of the Blended Rose, finds his home in ruins.

I gave it a twitch, but felt little compassion for the fellow, and ran up the steps, leaving the lantern below. I knew the way even in the dark, and experienced little trouble in feeling my passage. I met with no interference, and heard no sound, the house seemingly deserted. Only as I opened the front door could I hear distant, irregular firing to the northwest. Assured that no guard remained, I flung myself recklessly over the porch rail onto the smooth turf of the lawn. The dim outlines of the latticed summer house could be discerned not thirty feet distant, and I started toward it unhesitatingly. I had made half the distance when a horse neighed suddenly to my right, and, startled at the sound, I fell flat, creeping cautiously forward into the shadow of a low bush. I had risen to my knees, believing the animal must be the one left there for my use, when I heard the growl of a voice, a man's voice, from out the summer house.

An instant I could not locate the sound nor distinguish it clearly; then a sentence cut the air so distinctly that I recognized the speaker. Grant! What was he doing here? Had we delayed too long? Had Fagin's partisans returned? If so, why was he there in the summer house, and with whom was he conversing? I crouched back listening, afraid to move.

"I saw the gleam of your white skirt as I rounded the house," he exclaimed. "By Gad, I thought the horse was going to bolt with me. Fine bit of luck this, finding you out here alone. What's going on out yonder?"

"There was an attack on the horse guard, and Mr. Seldon is in pursuit. But how does it happen you have returned alone? Has anything occurred to my father?"

I judged from the sound that he seated himself before answering, and there was a hesitancy sufficiently noticeable, so as to cause the girl to ask anxiously:

"He has not been injured?"

"Who, the colonel?" with a short laugh. "No fear of that while pursuing those fellows; they ride too fast, and are scattered by now all the way from here to the Atlantic. Probably a squad of the same gang out there fighting Seldon. Trouble with the colonel is he takes the affair too seriously; imagines he is actually on the trail, and proposes to remain out all night. I became tired of such foolishness and rode back."

"You mean you left? Deserted?"

"Oh, hardly that," lazily. "You see I was sent out with a detachment to ride down the Lewiston road. I merely left my sergeant in command and turned my horse's head this way. I can be back by morning, and I wanted to see you."

"To see me, Captain Grant! You disobeyed my father's orders to ride back and see me? I hardly appreciate the honor."

"Oh, I suppose not," his tone grown suddenly bitter. "But I am here just the same, and propose carrying out my intention. What do you think I am made of—wood? You treat me as though I possessed no feelings to be hurt. See here, Claire, don't draw away from me like that. What has got into you lately? You have led me a merry chase all winter in Philadelphia, but now you have even dared to flaunt me to my face, and in the presence of your father. Do you suppose I am the kind to stand for that? What is the matter, girl? Who has come between us? Is it that rascally rebel? No; you stay where you are, and answer me. That is what I came back alone for, to find out."

She was upon her feet, and I could even see her hand clasping a lattice of the summer house.

"Why do you ask this? What right have you? There was never a promise between us."

"The understanding has existed for ten years; never denied until now," he protested hotly. "You knew I loved you; I've fought a dozen men on your account—"

"True enough," she broke in, "you have challenged every gentleman who has dared address me. Did you think such swashbuckling was going to win my heart? Any girl possessing self-respect would revolt at such methods. Whatever affection I may have felt for you as a boy has been driven from me by these actions. You wanted a slave, a servant, not a companion, and it is not in Mortimer blood to yield to every whim, to every crack of the whip. I never loved you, never confessed I did. I tried to be obedient, endeavored to like you to please my father, but this past winter has so thoroughly revealed your real character that I will pretend no longer."

"My character! We have known each other from childhood. I know well enough what has made the difference in you."

"Indeed!"

"Yes, indeed; it's that damned Continental spy."

"It has been some one all along, according to your theory—any gentleman who has shown me ordinary kindness. You have called out Captain Kincade, Lieutenant Mathieson, Major Lang, and others, just to prove your ownership of me. You have made me the laughing stock of Philadelphia. Now it pleases you to select Major Lawrence with whom to associate my name. Because he danced with me once you feel justified in quarreling with him in my presence, in goading him into fighting you. It was the act of a cowardly bully. Whatever respect I may once have had for you, Captain Grant, has been dissipated this past winter."

"Can you tell me it is not Lawrence?"

"I could tell you, and very plainly, but I refuse to be questioned."

"Well, by Gad! I know without asking," and he sprang to his feet, gripping her hand. "You've helped that fellow against me from the first. I'll put up with it no longer. I came back here tonight desperate, prepared to resort to any measures. I meant to give you a chance, and, by heaven! I have. Do you think I am the sort of man you can play with? If I can have you only by force then it is going to be that. Oh, don't try to pull away! I've got you now just as I wanted you—alone! Your father is not here, and that fool Seldon is busy enough out yonder. There is not even a guard to interfere. Do you know what I mean to do?"

She made no answer, but her silence seemed to fan his anger.

"Sulky, are you? Well, I'll tell you just the same. There's a preacher living at the crossroads—you know him, that sniveling, long-faced Jenks. He's a ranting rebel all right, but he'll do what I say, or I'll cut his heart out. You are going there with me tonight to be married. I'll put an end to these tantrums, and by tomorrow you'll have come to your senses. Now will you go quietly, or shall I make you?"

She wrenched away from him; and there was a moment's struggle, and then her white-robed figure sprang forth into the starlight. I saw him grasp her, tearing the shoulder of her dress with the fierce grip of his fingers. I was already upon my feet, crouched behind the bush, prepared to spring. She drew back, her face white as marble.

"You coward! You cur!"

"Hold your temper, mistress," with a snarling laugh. "I know how to conquer you."

That moment I reached him.

CHAPTER XXI.

Words of Love.

In spite of the fact that he was armed the advantage was all with me. His grip on the girl dragged her to the ground with him, but she rolled aside as we grappled like two wild beasts, my fingers at his throat. I knew the strength of the man, but my first blow had sent his brain reeling, while the surprise of my unexpected assault gave me the grip sought. He struggled to one knee, wrenching his arms free, but went down again as my fist crashed against his jaw. Then it was arm to arm, muscle to muscle, every sinew strained as we clung to each other, striving for mastery. He fought like a fiend, gouging and snapping to make me break my hold, but I only clung the closer, twisting one hand free, and driving my fist into his face. At last I gripped his pistol, wrenched it forth, and struck with the butt. He sank back, limp and breathless, and I rose to my knees looking down into the upturned face. Almost at the moment her hand touched my shoulder.

"Is he dead? Have you killed him?"

"Far from it," I answered gladly. "He is merely stunned, and will revive presently, but with a sad headache. I would not have hit him, but he is a stronger man than I."

"Oh, you were justified. It was done to protect me. I knew you must be somewhere near."

"You were waiting for me?"

"Yes—no; not exactly that. I was in the summer house; I did not mean you should see me, but I wished to be sure of your escape; I—I—of course I was anxious."

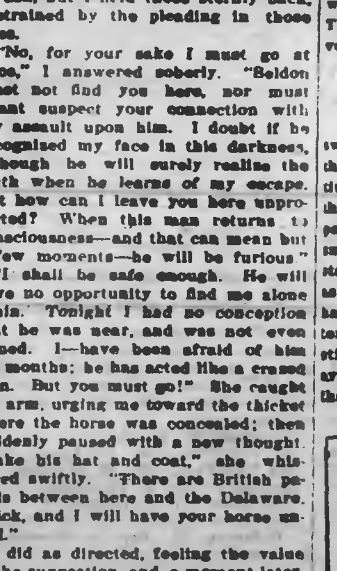
"I can easily understand that, for you have assumed much risk—even ventured the life of the devoted Peter."

"Oh, no; you rate my devotion too high by far. Peter's life has not been endangered."

"But the guard told me he was the direct cause of all that firing beyond the ravine."

The starlight revealed the swift merriment in her eyes.

"I—I—well, I believe he was originally responsible; but—well, you see I know Peter, Major Lawrence, and really there is no danger that he will get hurt. I cannot imagine what they could have found to fire at so long, but it is certainly not Peter. 'Twould be my guess that he is even now in the house, calmly eating supper, not even wasting a smile on the racket without. You may have observed he is not of an emotional disposition."



In Spite of the Fact That He Was Armed, the Advantage Was All With Me.

"My attention has, indeed, been called to that fact. Yet that does not explain how he could be in two places at one and the same time."

"Nothing that Peter pleases to do is explainable. His ways are not our ways, nor his thoughts our thoughts. He is simply Peter. He started all this, but was never in front of those guns long. They must be shooting at shadows. But, Major, we forget where we are, the perils about us, and the necessity of your immediate escape. We must not stand talking here."

She was close beside me, looking up into my face, her eyes filled with anxiety. There were words upon my lips I longed to speak, questions I desired to ask, but I held these sternly back, restrained by the pleading in those eyes.

"No, for your sake I must go at once," I answered soberly. "Seldon must not find you here, nor must Grant suspect your connection with my assault upon him. I doubt if he recognized my face in this darkness, although he will surely realize the truth when he learns of my escape. But how can I leave you here unprotected? When this man returns to consciousness—and that can mean but a few moments—he will be furious."

"I shall be safe enough. He will have no opportunity to find me alone again. Tonight I had no conception that he was near, and was not even armed. I—have been afraid of him for months; he has acted like a crazed man. But you must go!" She caught my arm, urging me toward the thicket where the horse was concealed; then suddenly paused with a new thought. "Take his hat and coat," she whispered swiftly. "There are British patrols between here and the Delaware. Quick, and I will have your horse untied."

I did as directed, feeling the value of the suggestion, and, a moment later, to all appearance an officer of Queen's Rangers, slipped through the thicket of trees, and took the reins from her hands.

"You will go straight back into the house?"

"Yes," she said obediently; then extended her hand. "Goodby, Major Lawrence. I suppose this ends our acquaintance."

"Not if I can avoid such a fate," I replied, holding her fingers closely. "If I believed that I am not sure but I would return to the cell. It has been a strange intimacy into which we have been thrown; three days have made us old friends. Surely you cannot believe me so ungrateful as your words seem to imply."

"But I deserve no gratitude," making no effort to draw away, yet looking into my face frankly. "Perhaps you have misunderstood. Is it not possible for the women of these Colonies to sacrifice as well as the men in the cause of patriotism? You must not believe that I have done this merely for your sake, Major Lawrence."

"Yet I would like to believe so," I insisted warmly. "You are the daughter of a loyalist."

"And Eric is the son of a loyalist," laughingly, "and wears a Continental uniform. I am not privileged to go so far, restrained by the limitations of sex, yet I may be equally a rebel."

"Which would seem to mean that all your kindness toward me would have been similarly given to any patriot soldier."

"Why—why, yes; I—I think so."

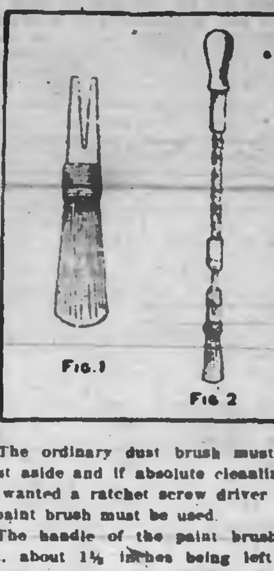
TO REMOVE THE DUST USE A SCREW DRIVER

Put a Paint Brush in the Ratchet Driver And Try It.

Cleaning tufted upholstery work is one of the most difficult jobs imaginable. The dust collects in the hollows and it is almost impossible to get it out by ordinary methods. This is especially true of leather furniture.



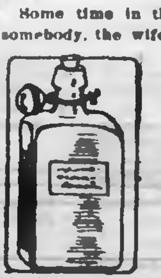
The ordinary dust brush must be cast aside and if absolute cleanliness is wanted a ratchet screw driver and a paint brush must be used.

The handle of the paint brush is cut, about 1½ inches being left on the brush. This is cut V-shaped, as shown in Fig. 1. This permits the brush to be attached to the blade of the screw driver with stout cord shown in Fig. 2 and the tufted places are cleaned out by simply pushing the brush into them and whirling it with the ratchet as the screw driver would be turned.

POISON WARNING

An Attachment to a Bottle Rings a Bell

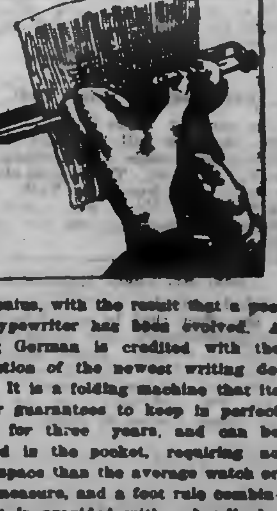
Some time in the still, dark night somebody, the wife, the baby or yourself may get suddenly ill and somebody will hurry to the medicine case, or the pantry shelf, or wherever the medicine bottles are kept. In the darkness a poison bottle may be grasped and carried to the sick room, and in the hurry incidental to sudden illness a dose may be administered—and a funeral held later on! Or there may be medicines that must never be given to children.



Bell bottles—that's by way of warning. Get a number of tiny bells, and fasten a bell to each bottle containing poison or any medicine which may have a serious affect if taken unintentionally. Possibly a good way would be to tie two bells to the poison bottles, to distinguish the very dangerous ones from the others, the taking of which wouldn't be quite so serious. The ringing of the bell will then prevent you from making a fatal mistake.

A Pocket Typewriter

Just as the pen has replaced the sword and the fountain pen displaced the ordinary pen of commerce, so the time is probably approaching when the typewriter will send the fountain pen back to the scrap heap. Some smart and observing person might state that the time is already here, as typewritten letters and manuscript have practically displaced those written by hand. The fountain pen is still being carried in the pocket, however, and it was against this practice that an inventor has recently directed his genius, with the result that a pocket typewriter has been evolved. A young German is credited with the perfection of the newest writing device. It is a folding machine that its maker guarantees to keep in perfect order for three years, and can be carried in the pocket, requiring no more space than the average watch or tape measure, and a foot rule combined. It is provided with a handle by which it is held with one hand and operated with the other, no desk or table being necessary.



Old Documents Found

Mr. P. J. D. de Latour, while investigating water records in the Railway Belt for the water rights branch of the British Columbia Department of Lands, made a valuable historical find at Yale, B.C. In the lock-up was an old black box full of papers that had lain undisturbed for years. Examination showed them to be records of mineral claims, water rights land and timber locations, dating from 1858, of many of which the departments in Victoria had no record at all.

From the records, Mr. de Latour was able to make an almost complete list of the water-rights granted in the Yale district.

Gained in Weight, Digestion Restored, Health Renewed

More Praise for Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Dodge, of Bloomsbury. "The heat had made me listless and the distaste for food reduced me to condition of semi-starvation and brought me to the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all; they seemed to go right to the liver, and in a very brief time not only did all source of nausea disappear, but I began to crave food and I digested it reasonably well. Then I began to put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

Get this best of all medicines today and refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Sold by all druggists and storekeepers, 25c. per box or five for $1.00. Sent postpaid by The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

A Sad Victoria County Case.

As noted in a former issue of The Times, a man from Fenelon Falls was arrested, charged with living with a 16-year-old girl at Burnt River, near Lindsay, in a tent. It is said that the child wore man or boy's attire and was made to split the firewood and do other work not the part of a girl to perform. Constable Jones of Fenelon Falls brought the alleged culprit to Lindsay where he had a hearing before County Magistrate Moore. The case was enlarged until May 21st.

Optical Notice.

The Tait Optical Co. Limited, have decided to re-establish their optical business in Peterborough and will instal their premises at 410 George street, with all the latest instruments for the scientific examination of the eyes for glasses also a complete grinding plant for the manufacture of glasses on the premises. One of the reasons for the success of the Tait Optical Co. in Canada is the fact that they take all the responsibility of your eyes from the examining to making the glasses complete. Manufacturing their own goods enables them to sell better quality glasses at a less price than is paid generally. Dr. Tait will take charge.

Presentation to Bro. Runnett.

Last night at the regular meeting of S.O.E., in their fine hall on Hunter street, with President F. Smith in the chair, it was decided that the order, in a body will attend divine service in Murray street Baptist church next Sunday evening. A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation of a past Presidents jewel to Bro. James Runnett. Bro. Runnett has been a member of the S.O.E. for over 20 years. He first joined the order in Gananoque, when he was transferred to this city. Since his arrival here he has occupied all the chairs of honor.

Wild Geese Shot.

Yesterday as Mr. Clare Gutterson, of the C.G.E., a long time boarder at the White House, and a well known shot, was out on the river. He heard the honk-honk, not of a joy waggon, but that of a flock flying overhead of Canadian wild geese (Anser Canadinses) Mr. Gutterson quickly got his gun into action, when, bang-bang! four of the geese fell. Three were recovered, but one fell fluttering into an adjoining marsh. Our informant tells us that Mr. Gutterson, in trying to retrieve this goose, stumbled over seven stumps, eighteen submerged logs and eleven water lily roots, and then lost the goose.

NEW WAY TO BANISH ALL HAIRY GROWTHS

(Modes of To-day.)

Many people will be interested in the new and simple treatment by which hair or fuzz can be permanently removed from the face, neck or arms. This consists in making a paste with plain powdered delatone and water and applying to hairy surface. After two or three minutes it is rubbed off, the skin washed and every trace of hair has vanished. This is a painless, harmless method and seldom requires the second application to remove even a stubborn growth, and it is so simple to use that failure cannot result. Straggly eyebrows can be made to grow thick and beautifully lustrous by rubbing pyroxin on frequently, and to make short, straight eyelashes come in long and silky, apply pyroxin at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger. Use care and don't get any pyroxin where no hair is wanted.

THE ST. LAWRENCE INVESTMENT & TRUST COMPANY.

was incorporated by act of the Quebec Legislature, 5 Ed. VII, Chap. 75, in 1906, having for its object the extending and absorption of the St. Lawrence Investment Society. This Society, formed in 1895, carried on a successful business on a small scale, paying regular annual dividends varying from 5 p.c. to 15 p.c and the assets gave the shares of the Society a value of about $150 at its absorption. The Charter under which the new Company is organized is a valuable one, it being difficult to obtain a Charter of like character. The powers conferred by it are wide and give an opportunity for the transaction of a profitable business.

FUTURE OF THE COMPANY.

The new Company will do business on a much larger scale than the old Company, will operate largely in the owning of, buying and selling of well selected real estate, in the development of tracts of land in the City and its suburbs by selling same as Factory Sites and building lots, and in the purchase of agreements of sale, a business very profitably engaged in, in Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver and other Cities. The purchasing of agreements of sale has not, to any extent, been carried on in Montreal, and it is intended that this Company pay particular attention to this Branch, which shows even better opportunities of profit, with a larger margin of safety, than those of the West, inasmuch as the values of Real Estate in Montreal are more firmly based.

FIELD OF OPERATION

The operations of the Company will be confined chiefly to the City and District of Montreal and there is no city which offers the same advantages to Investors seeking safety with large returns. Montreal's commercial supremacy in the Dominion is universally known. The population in 1901 was 266,826, and in 1912 611,397. The assessed valuation of Real Estate in 1912 showed an increase of $125,000,000 over the previous year. Montreal is an Island, therefore its area is fixed. Real Estate values, though increasing, are still low, and leave room for great expansion. The City proper covers an area of 16 square miles, the smallest area of any city with the same population in either Canada or the United States.

MANAGEMENT

The Company have appointed Findlay & Howard, Limited, Managers. Mr. Findlay is recognized as one of the foremost judges of Real Estate in Montreal, and the Firm's success is shown in the results of the following companies managed by them, which in addition to placing substantial amounts to reserve have paid dividends as follows:—

Applemount Land Company, Limited,	Incorporated	1909	paid	55 p.c.
Birnam Realty Company, Limited,	"	1910	"	30 p.c.
Drummond Realties, Limited	"	1912	"	33 1-3 p.c.

Improving Buckingham Palace

Buckingham Palace is to be renovated at a cost of $300,000, the Office of Works having determined to do something to improve the exterior of a building known as the ugliest Royal residence in Europe.

Sir Aston Webb, the official architect, who designed the Victoria Memorial in front of the Palace, the new Processional road, and the Admiralty Arch at the end of it, passed plans which contemplate the substitution of an imposing white frontage of Portland stone for the existing drab exterior.

"Advance Guard of British Fleet" Admiralty Idea For New Force--Canadian Ships Guard Our Coasts

London, May 20.—The Times, The Telegraph, The Morning Post, and The Standard, publish lengthy special reports of Borden's speech in Toronto, but leading Radical journals. The Daily News, the Daily Chronicle, The Manchester Guardian, suppress all reference. This can hardly be accidental.

It is understood the question of the creation of a great naval base on the Pacific Coast of Canada for the Imperial navy was most sympathetically discussed between the Admiralty and the Canadian Ministers when Premier Borden last visited London. Also adequate development of a naval base at Halifax. These features of Canada's permanent naval policy will be further elaborated when the navy bill becomes law.

The Naval editor of the Daily Telegraph gives further details, and says Borden holds every strategical and economic principle.

Admiralty For Whole Empire.

He demands unity of the Empire in the provision of a fleet for general defence.

He supports the view that the Admiralty is at present the exponent of the naval policy for the whole Empire; that it can best organize and direct a fleet, the disposition of which would be varied in accordance with the continually changing situation only if the Dominions co-operate by the provision of naval basis, adequately protected by fixed and mobile defences.

A ship, if it is to act off the Atlantic or Pacific coasts of Canada at any future time, must be provided with well equipped naval arsenals. Hence the intention to develop the dockyard at Halifax, convert the magnificent harbor at Vancouver into a great naval base, docks, basins, workshops to be provided by the Canadian Government, adequate shore defences are to be erected.

To Be Built in Canada.

It is not anticipated that Mr. Borden will abandon the new naval cadets college, or cease entering seamen as recruits. Protection for the new Dominion bases will require certain small cruisers and torpedo craft which can be built in Canada.

These will afford training for young officers and men who would benefit by the wider experience and more thorough grounding in seamanship in vessels not in the Imperial squadron, on which Canadian gift ships will serve.

This squadron, although nominally based at Gibraltar, for administrative reasons, will cruise far afield, and probably will be seen as much at the Atlantic ports of the Dominion as in European waters.

It is anticipated they will spend considerable periods cruising in the Pacific.

To Answer Any Call.

The Admiralty inclines to the view that the respective Governments which gives ships shall settle the itinerary of the squadron.

The Imperial squadron will be really an Imperial force, and not alone an accession to the strength of the home fleet.

It will be for the world defence of the Empire and not tied to any sea, but free in late Lord Goshen's famous phrase:

"To go anywhere, and do anything if the occasion for rejoicing or service arises, on the Atlantic or the Pacific coast of Canada, or if New Zealand sends a call, and then the ships will be available to respond to the wishes of this or that section of the Empire—in fact to be a visible link between the various Dominions, and advance guard of the British navy."

HEADQUARTERS FOR CUPID, FIFTY WED TODAY

Brides-to-be Arrived on Ascania—Men Object to Stiff License Fee.

Montreal, May 20.—The Ascania which arrived this morning from Southampton brought fifty brides-to-be, most of whom were met and married by their fiancees during the afternoon. Already this season over one thousand engaged young women have been landed here, most of them marrying upon arrival and setting out with their husbands for the West.

Many of the husbands to-day objected very strongly to the high cost of marriage licenses in Quebec—$10.

SIR WILFRID'S POLICY DEFINED

"This policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier means one result and one result only—the severance of every tie that binds this Dominion to the Empire. We are to be of the Empire in peace, but in war we are to retire within the lines of Torres Vedras—we are to assert a happy and safe neutrality from which at the conclusion of the conflict we are to emerge once more into the security and protection of the Empire. The thing is impossible, except as a most cowardly, humiliating and contemptible means of achieving that independence which was the goal of his desire in 1892."—Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden, at the Arena.

BANKING BILL NOW BEFORE HOUSE AND TALK OF LOANS

Carvell Protest is Dropped--Aid For Shareholders Met in Measure

Ottawa, May 20.—The Bank Act was again taken up when the House met this morning. The first section called was that which gives a bank a first lien on its shares. At present bank shares cannot be transferred until all liabilities to the bank are paid off.

Hon. W. T. White referred to the objections made to the section by Mr. F. B. Carvell, but explained that the privilege was in the Act not for the bank, but to enable shareholders to secure a loan without collateral.

Mr. Carvell still held to his objection, but did not press it and the section passed.

One of the new clauses inserted in the Act by the Banking and Commerce Committee, was struck out. This was the restriction of bank managers to engage in insurance business. The restriction was opposed by Mr. O. Turgeon, Major Sam Sharpe, and the Minister of Finance. Mr. White said he would take it up with the Canadian Bankers' Association and endeavor to persuade them to adopt a rule against the practice.

Nickle Joins Carvell Protest.

Mr. F. B. Carvell and Mr. W. F. Nickle strongly opposed the deletion of the clause.

The Premier thought it would be safe to leave the matter to the banks. There had been a considerable change in bank policy on these lines and at one time solicitors acted as bank managers in addition to their regular business.

On Non-Party Vote.

On a non-party vote, the restriction was struck out by 41 to 17. Mr. Sam Sharpe proposed an amendment to clause 76. This would limit loans to a single foreign client to ten per cent. of a bank's capital.

Mr. H. B. Ames, opposed the amendment on the ground that it would interfere with practice of having call loans in New York, valuable as liquid assets.

TATOO ARTIST TO PRISON

Police Say He Misused His Store on Queen Street.

Toronto, May 20.—Charles White, designated by Magistrate Ellis as "a dangerous man to the community," pleaded guilty to-day to a vagrancy charge. White keeps a tatooing store on Queen west and the police allegation is that he ill-uses intoxicated men. He was fined $50 and costs or six months at the Central Prison. He went down.

MAN WITH TWO FAMILIES IS FREED BY JUDGE MORGAN

No Law Can Hold Orville Kester, Says the Judge--Wife's Only Resource is to Sue for Divorce

Toronto, May 20.—Orville Kester, who appeared before Judge Morgan to-day, charged with detaining Jean Reesor, his child, with intent to deprive her guardian, the superintendent of Neglected Children, of her possession, was found not guilty.

Although having a wife living in Toronto, Kester was living with the Reesor woman at Stouffville.

They had two children, who were, upon the complaint of the neighbors placed under the care of the Children's Aid Society.

As the youngest child, Jean, was a babe in arms, the mother was allowed to keep it in her care, she going with the child to her father's.

Kester later took the woman and the child to Toronto where they lived 287 Sherbourne street.

"There is no criminal law which prevents a man, married or otherwise, living with a woman and having children," said Judge Morgan in giving judgment. "His wife has her civil rights in the divorce court."

"He was carrying on two households," stated Crown Attorney Greer, "one with his legal wife and one with a woman who was not."

"The father of an illegitimate child has the right to the care of his infant against the world, society at large, the Children's Aid Society and everyone except its mother," commented His Honor. "It is impossible for me to find that the act of this man is within the criminal code.

"He simply assisted the woman from her father's place at Stouffville to another place of residence.

"Kester must be warned that he is not to attempt to remove them from the custody of whoever the Children's Aid Society places them.

"If this man and woman choose to live together it is their own funeral and the law has no course.

[illegible]

"If the woman will not go with the Society, let them take the child away from her."

This drew a strong protest from Mr. Godfrey who was defending Kester.

"Some of these societies have such a narrow view that it might result in injury to the child." They should hesitate before they separate a child in arms from its mother.

ROSE KELLEY GETS ONE YEAR IN MERCER INST

Samuel Goheen was charged with having entered a C.P.R. train to steal a ride. Goheen pleaded guilty. He was going to Toronto to get a job. The defendant who is only 18, was discharged.

Rose Kelly was charged with vagrancy. She pleaded not guilty. She had been two months in the city. P. C. Reid said at 2 a.m. on May 2nd, he saw the defendant loafing on Chambers street. She went behind Ackey's barn. Between 100 and 11 on the night of the 12th, he saw her with men at the boathouses. The men ran, so he does not know who they were. On the morning of the 13th, he saw prisoner on the C.P.R. track.

Mr. Ackey, the local livery man, said he had found the prisoner with men in his barn one morning. The magistrate gave her one year in the Mercer Institute. Chief Thompson will take steps to have her deported to the United States.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Local thunderstorms.

WAR CANOE CENTURY OLD IS WASHED UP AT NIAGARA

Strange Indian Craft Was Made From Tree Trunk, Six Feet Wide and Twenty-Five Feet Long, and Had Been at the Bottom of River

St. Catharines, Ont., May 20.—During the recent gales which swept the lakes there was washed up on the beach at Niagara-on-the-Lake an old dug-out canoe, which is causing the townspeople a good deal of speculation, as judging by its timbers it is certainly very aged. The strange craft came ashore in two sections, which, put together, made a craft of twenty-five feet. It is entirely covered with bark.

The supposition is that it was an old Indian war canoe which sank in the Niagara River maybe a century ago. Becoming embedded in mud at the bottom of the river, it lay there for many years until probably loosened this spring by the ice which crowded the channel at times and must have gone down pretty deep.

The Niagara Historical Society have taken possession of the canoe and will put it on exhibition.

ADMITS HE POSED AS WOMAN, MARRIED LAWYER

James Arthur Baker Arrested for Intricate Counterfeiting Schemes

Kansas City, May 20.—James Arthur Baker, under arrest here charged with a theft committed at Summerland, Cal., has signed a confession, according to the police to-day, in which he reveals that for a long time he posed successfully as a woman school teacher and that later he became involved in intricate counterfeiting and forgery schemes.

After an experience as a male school teacher in the middle west, he said he moved to the Pacific coast and finding that men teachers were not in demand there he decided to disguise himself as a woman. He finally obtained a position in an Idaho village under the name of "Alice Baker" and taught school an entire session without anyone suspecting his secret.

Accepted the Proposal.

Still posing as a woman he went to Los Angeles in 1910. Baker said he met a young attorney there who proposed marriage and a ceremony was performed. Baker alleged that the attorney later exercised an hypnotic influence over him and induced him to take a course of engraving in an art school to make him proficient in counterfeiting. Later they perfected $7,000 worth of bogus bills of the $100 denomination and took them to Japan where the bills were exchanged for gold.

After they returned to California, Baker said, the attorney proposed that they steal the blank money order book at the Summerland Post Office. They got possession of 24 blank money orders and successfully cashed fourteen of them for $100 each.

Baker is small and has a high falsetto voice and his features resemble those of a woman.

BASEBALL

Guelph, May 20.—The ball grounds to-day was packed with a record crowd who assembled in the hope that the Royal City would redeem itself after its defeat of yesterday. Among the audience were many of the Aldermen, leading professional men and a big representation of the fair sex. However. The visitors again won out, the score standing—Petes 9, Guelph 3

ATTACK ON THE LEAD BOUNTIES

A large portion of the time of the House was taken up on Monday with the resolution for the continuance of the bounties for lead mining in Canada. These bounties began in 1903. They were renewed for five years in 1908, and six hundred thousand dollars of the sum then voted, viz., two million four hundred and fifty thousand dollars, remains unexpended. Mr. Burnham, W. Peterborough spoke strongly against all bounties, characterizing them as unfair and violating the whole principle of true protection. Under a tariff a duty goes to the public. A bounty goes wholly into the pocket of the favoured mine owners. As the lead bounties had been begun by the Liberals, they were tied up in the discussion, Sir Wilfrid having to acknowledge their propriety. Hon. F. Oliver created much amusement by excusing bounty giving. Mr. Burnham scarified the Liberals for their inconsistency, and challenged them to take the position which he was taking of opposing all bounty-giving, no matter what the excuse.

BOY KILLED LAST NIGHT IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT

Ernest Roy Bolton, Aged 14, on Bicycle Run Over By Car at Weller and Park Streets

Last night as Ernest Roy Bolton, aged 14, at 9.15, was riding his bicycle northwards along Park street, following a northbound Jackson Park car, and as he approached Weller street, a motor cycle, ridden by some one, as yet unknown, passed. The boy turned at Weller street to the west side of Park street. As he turned a motor car, No. 15863, driven by Mr. R. C. Heard, of 506 Smith street, was going at the usual city speed rate, southwards. The car was filled with children. The boy evidently became dazzled by the lights of the auto or lost his head in the emergency. He ran right into the auto. The boy was thrown from his seat and dragged under the auto. The bicycle was carried by the auto some 20 feet, until the emergency brake of the auto brought the latter to a standstill. The bike was destroyed and the mark of its handle-bar was distinctly visible in the roadway when a Times scribe arrived on the scene.

The poor little boy was picked up and carried into the home of Postmaster Edgar on the south-west corner. Dr. Scott was summoned but the boy, whose skull was fractured, in addition to other injuries, died in less than an hour.

His mother was sent for and arrived before the end came.

Dr. Greer, the coroner, was sent for. Constable Reid was present also and made a thorough investigation.

An inquest will be held at Comstock's undertaking establishment at 9.30 this morning.

THE CONSCIENCE OF PUBLIC IS NOW BEING AROUSED

Believers in Gibson's Innocence Have Put Petition in Circulation

Toronto, May 20.—The efforts to save Charles Gibson from the gallows is taking concrete form. The following document is being circulated through the efforts of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, several members of which have interviewed the condemned man at the jail and believe firmly in his innocence of murder.

The Petition.

"Charles Gibson is sentenced to be hanged on the 9th day of July next for a murder which a large number of people believe he did not commit, and the conscience of the public is aroused in a most marvellous manner. The Brotherhood of St. Andrew, the Christian Commercial Travelling Men, the various Bible societies and numerous other religious organizations are taking a deep interest in the fate of this young man who has been convicted upon circumstantial evidence only. Many new facts of evidence have come to light since the trial; an appeal for a new trial is being vigorously advocated and no doubt the case will be tried again, when it is confidently expected that he will be aquitted by a jury of his countrymen, who have heard all the facts. The stricken father and distracted mother are without funds to pay the expenses of a further trial, and believe, as we do, that thousands of Canadians will be glad to contribute a mite (not over one dollar) to defend this young man and help him to prove his entire innocence of the crime which he is charged.

"We hereby agree to pay the several amounts set opposite our names said amounts to be handed to Mr. C. F. Storey, 122 Oak street, city, director of the Jail Chapter, Brotherhood of St. Andrew, to be expended in the defence of a man whom we believe to be innocent."

ST. ANDREW'S GOLFERS AIM TO REPULSE SUFFRAGETTES

Ancient and Honorable Society Has Awful Attack of Nerves as Tournament Week Approaches

St. Andrew's, Scotland, May 20.—This little town is almost in a state of siege as a result of threats uttered by the militant suffragettes that they will destroy the putting greens, and thus render play impossible in the world's amatuer golf championship, which is to be competed for here next week.

The most intense excitement prevails among the townspeople, who depend largely for their prosperity upon the golf links, while the members of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club also are extremely anxious. They and the citizens have organized a vigilance committee, whose members, together with 5,000 volunteers, will guard the greens night and day.

The general anxiety becomes keener every day, as it is thought that the militant suffragettes may refrain from delivering their attack until the last moment, when it would be impossible to repair the damage. As it is understood that the women will use vitriol to destroy the greens, all the sentries stationed here have provided themselves with large umbrellas to prevent the corrosive fluid being thrown into their faces.

The River Tay routes by which the links are reached from Dundee, which is a hotbed of suffragism, are closely guarded, and to make assurance doubly sure a powerful searchlight has been mounted on the railroad bridge, the light from which sweeps the links, the roads and the river nightly.

H. M. FLAGLER DEAD, GREAT CAREER ENDS

Capitalist and Railroad Magnete Built Florida and East Coast Railway.

West Palm Beach, Fla., May 20.—Henry M. Flagler, aged 83, capitalist and railroad magnate, died at his winter home here this morning, after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Flagler recently fell down a flight of steps in his home, and because of his addanced age his recovery had not been anticipated.

The career of Henry Morrison Flagler, whose greatest achievement was the building of the Florida and East Coast Railroad and its extension over the coral reefs and ocean to Key West, was as picturesque as it was meteoric. From behind a counter— in a country store he became one of the rulers of Standrad Oil, second only to John D. Rockefeller and the chief financial figure in the State of Florida. His friends say he rose because he had the dominating qualities of a Morgan and point him as a self-made man.

His critics made much of his divorce at the age of 72, and his marriage to a young woman half his age, while the wife of his youth, whose dower was the foundation of his fortune, was confined in an asylum, said to be hopelessly insane. But Flagler set aside $2,000,000 for her maintenance and provided her most eminent physicians at princely salaries. They said too, that his was the genius that planned the Standard Oil's competition-crushing monopoly methods and rebate system, and his enemies credited him with the panic of 1887, when the oil company cleaned up $10,000,000.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

Advertisements under above heads, 20 words and under, one insertion, 15c.; 3 insertions, 25c.; 6 insertions, 40c.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 356 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

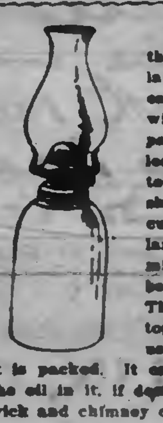
CAMP LAMP MADE FROM FRUIT JAR



A fruit jar makes the finest sort of a lamp for the hunting camp, if the hunter will make a few preparations before he leaves home. The top of the fruit jar should have a hole cut through it just large enough to permit a lamp burner to be screwed into it. This can be an extra top and another top used on the jar when it is packed. It can be packed with the oil in it, if desired. An ordinary wick and chimney complete the lamp.

Acetic Acid for Rum

Two men named Congreave and Allen were given acetic acid by a ship's captain at Limerick Docks in mistake for rum, and although both were treated in Barrington's Hospital, Congreave died. The other man recovered.

A large open air arena, so built that a roof can be added, and the place turned into a skating rink, is the proposition that is being spoken of by Saskatoon sport promoters. If it is decided that the scheme be gone on with, a stadium will be erected capable of seating 10,000 people.

EDITORIAL NOTES

TRADE WITH MOTHERLAND

A most pleasing feature of the growth of the trade in Canada is seen in the increase of trade relations with the Mother Country. During the past year it has grown at a splendid rate.

The aggregate increase of trade with the Mother Country over that of 1912 is $40,000,000 evenly divided in import and exports. The percentage of increase in imports is greater than in exports. This is due partly to the increased demands of the home market for the products of mixed farming, especially that class described as animal products such as bacon, poultry, butter and eggs, and cheese. Nothing is more indicative of the increase in the demands of the home market than the falling off that has taken place in the exports of some of the principal items under the heading of animal products, such as butter, eggs, and bacon.

CONSUMER BENEFITS FROM NEW SUGAR DUTIES.

The reduction in the duty on raw sugar as a result of the West Indies agreement has already resulted in practical benefits to the Canadian consumer. The reduction is from 53¼c per hundred pounds under the British preference to 40¾ cents, and from 83¼c under the general tariff to 57½c.

The Canadian sugar refineries have already announced a reduction in price to the consumer of 20 cents per hundred pounds or $4 per ton.

O. W. Donner, vice-president of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co., has made the following announcement:

"This movement of the Government in reducing the sugar duties will have the immediate effect of cheapening the article to the consumer and the first step is the reduction which the refineries are putting into effect now, namely, a reduction of twenty cents a hundred pounds or $4 a ton. The action of the Government will mean a direct benefit to the people of Canada a benefit that will commence at once. The reduction that the refineries are making is the biggest single change in price for years. Hon. Mr. White, in his speech in the House, points out that the Government will lose a revenue of $800,000 per year through this reduction in the sugar duties, but the benefits to the public will be great."

LONG-DISTANCE RUNNERS

Japs and Kahars are the Real Champions

The feats of professional runners seem insignificant when compared with the regular performances of an East Indian caste. These Kahars, who are also known as Jhiawarb, live in the Punjab, where for centuries they have acted not only as runners but as fishermen and as water-fowl catchers.

These men are said to be able to accomplish 100 miles a day without resting. There is said to be a well-authenticated instance wherein one Tilla Ram carried despatches 300 miles in three days, from Mean-Mir to Meerut. It is further said that, so far from shortening their lives, these performances really conduce to longevity in the Kahars, many of whom are able not only to withstand the strain of covering great distances, but to thrive under it.

The jinrikisha man, too, notwithstanding his irregular diet, excessive use of liquor, and exposure to the elements, lives to a reasonable age. In Tokio when a census was taken of the jinrikisha men some years ago there were found to be more than 1,300 who were over 55 years of age.

How to Ascertain If You Have Catarrh

Look for Symptoms of This Treacherous Disease in the Following List.

"Is your breath bad?"
"Is your throat sore?"
"Do you cough at night?"
"Is your voice raspy?"
"Does your nose stop up?"
"Have you nasal discharge?"
"Do you spit up phlegm?"
"Has your nose an itchy feeling?"
"Have you pain across the eyes?"
"Is your throat irritable, weak?"
"Do you sleep with mouth open?"
"Are you subject to sneezing fits?"
"Do your ears roar and buzz?"
"Are you hard of hearing?"

If you have any of these indications of Catarrh, cure the trouble now—stop it before it gets into the lungs or bronchial tubes—then it may be too late. The remedy is "Catarrhozone," a direct breathable cure that places antiseptic balsams and healing medication on every spot that's tainted by germs.

"No one can know better than I the enormous benefit one gets from the very first day's use of Catarrhozone," writes T. T. Hopkins, of Westvale, P.Q. "I had for years a stubborn case of bronchial catarrh, ear noises, headache, sore eyes, stopped-up nose and throat. It affected my appetite and made my breath rank. Catarrhozone cured quickly."

The dollar outfit last two months, and is guaranteed; smaller size, 50c, sample size, 25c, at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston.

GERMAN SPY GETS OUT JAIL

Was Living Life of Ease and Luxury When Arrested In Toronto

London, May 20.—Phil Max Schultz, who was sentenced to twenty-one months' imprisonment as a German spy, has been released from Horfield jail, at Bristol. He was transferred to Horfield from Exeter some twelve months ago. The arrest of Schultz created considerable of a sensation. He was seized by the police while living upon a yacht at Plymouth at just about the time that two British officers were arrested in Germany and sentenced to detention in a fortress. On his release from jail he left for London in the company of his lawyer.

WOULD NOT REFORM.

"I have never done an honest days work in my life, and I don't intend to start now," said George Wells, 60, described as a dealer, to a detective, after being committed for trial. "I have been a thief all through my life, and, since I started, four months is the longest time I have been free, and I was thieving during that time."

He was sentenced to three years penal servitude and five years preventive detention at London sessions, which entailed in the aggregate 30 years in prison being proved against him.

ODD FUNERAL AND CASKET.

There was an unusual scene recently at East Cowes, Isle of Wight, at the funeral of Miss Saunders, only daughter of Samuel Saunders, a well known builder of motor-boats. The body, enclosed in a leaden shell, was placed in a mahogany motor-boat hull, and this, placed on a trolley, was drawn to Chippingham cemetery by employees of the firm. Here, the motor-boat containing the remains was buried in the presence of a large crowd of people.

SOME CLUB SWINGING

Tom Burrows, the Australian athlete, completed his task at Aldershot of swinging Indian clubs for 100 hours without a rest, and then went on swinging merrily. The clubs weigh three pounds and 8 ounces each, and Burrows kept going at a minimum rate of 80 revolutions a minute.

He decided to go on beyond his self imposed task because he heard since he started that there was an unauthenticated record of 112 hours by someone in Australia.

"Although I felt a little drowsy when I had swung the 'century,'" he said, "I soon pulled 'round,' especially when the band played. My clubs seemed to swing to the music."

A TREMENDOUS LOAD.

The workmen who have recently been engaged in cleaning Nelson's column in Trafalgar Square, have removed no less than twenty tons of accumulations from the platform and statue at the top of the column, which has not been cleaned for the last 45 years. The dirt on Nelson's hat alone weighed half a ton. The top of the column is inhabited by a colony of pigeons, which was much disturbed at the appearance of the workmen.

BREEDING SEA URCHINS.

Two little sea-urchins—marine animals covered with prickles like a hedgehog—that have never seen the sea, have been born in the zoological laboratory of the Imperial college of science, South Kensington, and are being reared by Professor MacBride.

Their parents were brought from Plymouth some months ago, says Professor MacBride, for the purpose of studying hybridisation. The eggs, when they appeared, were no bigger than the point of a pin. They were put into four large glass tanks filled with sea water and containing a species of seaweed as food. In a few months the sea urchins made their appearance.

WILL OPERATE BIG TOBACCO FACTORY

Organizing a tobacco company known as the Dominion Tobacco Company, local capitalists have succeeded in directing a tobacco factory merger and are working out the details of a plan which will result in the construction of a big factory, the biggest in western Canada, and the operation of a chain of stores throughout the country to market their product.

The Dominion Tobacco Company has already taken over the Herman Cigar Manufacturing Company, makers of the famous Bull Dog Cigar; has bought a factory site containing 28,500 feet of floor space, arranged for its construction within six months and is preparing to give employment to 300 expert cigar men.

The retail stores will be directed from the central office, which will, of course be located in Vancouver. Details of sales will be perfected and the business of all the stores so systematized and perfected that the business will be profitable and every satisfaction given buyers of cigars.

The factory merger will include two or three of the biggest cigar-making plants in the city. The details for this part of the deal are being completed this week. Tobacco will be obtained direct from the jobbers in Amsterdam, who get their supplies from the best Cuban gardens and import their wrappers from the famous estates of Java and Sumatra.

The cigars themselves are good. The company is going to considerable trouble and expense to employ expert cigar-makers and is insisting that their product be the very best that can be produced for the money. Modern humidors for the storage of the tobacco and the cigars will be employed in both factories and stores.

By adopting the plan of selling its own product direct to its own stores the company will be able to give, and will give, the very best value for the quarter or dime and at the same time effect a saving that will return substantial dividends. Expert management will enable it to do this.

OLD MR. REDMOND ON THE WAR PATH

Col. Miller was charged with assaulting Mr. R. Redmond. The old gentleman wanted the defendant put out of court whilst he, Redmond, gave his evidence. The alleged trouble arose through serving some papers in a Division Court case. Redmond claimed Miller ordered him out of his store and shoved him out, causing him to fall, so that his hand was injured. Redmond is 83 years old.

To Mr. McElderry, for defendant, he did not raise his stick to Mr. Miller.

Col. Miller, in the witness box, said Redmond entered his shoe store to get some repairs done. Redmond asked for a receipt for payment of $1.75 paid on a Court case. He was handed the receipt, which was not dated. Redmond was told to come again on Monday, when the Division Court office was open. Redmond, however, demanded a dated receipt at once. There were ladies in the shop and as Redmond began to talk loudly, he asked the latter to go out. Redmond struck at witness with his stick and toppled over. The Colonel and his son picked Redmond up. He assisted him to the door and told Redmond to go on about his business. Witness said he did not tear up the undated receipt as said by Redmond.

Frederick Miller, the Colonel's son, corroborated his father's statement. Redmond tried to strike his father. Redmond was used as gently as possible, more gently than he should have been. Redmond was making a nuisance of himself.

The case was enlarged until this morning to enable two ladies, who were in the store, subpoened.

CANOE.

A number of Belleville enthusiasts assembled at the office of Mr. W. D. M. Shorey, for the purpose of forming a canoe club. Over thirty were present at the meeting, and a strong organization was formed. It will now be possible for the canoeists to look after visitors who come to the city and to arrange programs of sports from time to time.

POLO.

New York, May 20.—Forty-four polo ponies, the best that British gold could buy, reached here on the steamer Minneapolis Tuesday and were sent to the Piping Rock County Club on Long Island in readiness for the international polo matches between the English and American teams in June.

The ponies, entered upon a $50,000 bond, are valued at $10,000, and no human travelers had better care during the voyable from England. Thirty red-sweatered grooms attended them. They were fed selected hay and English oats and enough of this was brought along to last them during their stay.

Twenty-four of the ponies belong to the Duke of Westminster.

RING.

Although followers of pugilism all over the country have conceded for more than a year that Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion of the world, had reached the end of his career, the genuine "dreamland wallop" was furnished the Galveston negro by a Chicago jury Tuesday night. As a result of his conviction for violating white slave laws, Johnson will serve at least a year in prison, a sufficient term to wind up his chances of ever getting in condition again to accept a match, even in Europe, the only place where the negro has even an outside chance to re-enter the roped arena.

The passing of Jack Johnson removes by far the most unpopular title-holder pugilism has ever known. Prejudice to Johnson because of his color reached its height after his defeat of Jim Jeffries at Reno, Nev., July 4, 1910. Johnson's color, however, was not the main reason for his unpopularity. The negro immediately after defeating Jeffries, proceeded to find a way to keep himself in the spotlight, if not driving high-powered racing machines, getting into other difficulties, the result of which found the public refusing to tolerate his tactics.

McCARTY IS NOW THE CHAMPION.

With the conviction of Johnson, the heavyweight championship of the world goes to Luther McCarty, regarded as best of a very ordinary crop of White Hopes. McCarty was next in line to Johnson. Pugilistic experts will recognize the cowboy fighter, and this means that Johnson will soon be forgotten by even the negroes who applauded every move he made during the last three years.

Johnson, at the time of winning the title from Jeffries, was considered a very ordinary fighter.

New Orleans, May 20.—Lee Johnson, of New York, and Mexican Kid, of Mexico, will be the star attraction at the North Side Club Wednesday night. Both men have trained hard for this bout and every indication points to a good scrap.

Mexican Kid has shown much improvement in his last two bouts, and Johnson will have to extend himself to get the decision, say the promoters. The semi-windup will be between Battling Nick and the "Black Diamond." Both of these youngsters are clever, and both can stand punishment and no doubt there may be some lively scrapping for the eight rounds. The six-round preliminary will be between young Peter Jackson and Kid Frenchy and as the winner is to take all the purse both boys will do their utmost.

VICTORIA DAY ANNEX

WEDNESDAY, MAY 21

The 24th of May is the day upon which we cherish the memory of good Queen Victoria. And Victoria Day is the first summer holiday. Everyone loves to celebrate it, and as this joyous spirit has pervaded the atmosphere of our Annex, we have prepared for a veritable holiday in this bargain department; on the Wednesday before the 24th. This bill tells of only a few of the extra number of articles placed on sale for this big day, and the special items as noted below will be displayed in the store windows. Every number listed here is truthfully described and is backed by our guarantee.

MEN'S FANCY CASHMERE SOCKS 25c PAIR.

Unusual value is represented in these clearing lines of Men's socks. They are our regular 45c. and 50c. lines of fancy cashmere in colors and black Some are emboidered,—some are decorated with self patterns. Placed at half price for a quick clearance on Wednesday, per pair.... 25c

MEN'S LAUNDERED SHIRTS, 55c 3 for $1.55.

Just the thing for summer wear, when a man's shirt plays so conspicuous a part in his attire. Deep laundered cuffs, soft bosom, and fine fabric in a number of attractive stripe and figure patterns, or in plain colors. A shirt that is worth 85c. to $1.00 anywhere. Procurable in all sizes on Wednesday at 55c

LITTLE DARLING HOSE, IN ALL SIZES, 19c PAIR.

This line of children's hose hardly needs introducing. It is a fine ribbed cashmere stocking with silk toes and heels Black, red, tan, sky, pink and cream are the colors, and the sizes are 4 to 7. This big Victoria Day special will mean much saving on Wednesday when all sizes are at this one price, per pair 19c

WOMEN'S SUMMER UNDERVESTS 10c

These are "Mill Seconds" but the damage in most cases is hardly noticeable. Some are sleeveless and some have short sleeves in a variety of trimmings. A few dozen to clear on Wednesday at 10c

POINT D'ESPRIT NET, TWO YARDS WIDE 39c

This fine material is used exclusively for Dresses, Curtains, or Spreads, and is of a very fine quality imported from England. Made in white or cream, and of far more value than the modest price asked on Wednesday. Full two yards wide. Per yard 39c

LAUNDRY STARCH AND CORN STARCH. 5 PACKAGES, 29c.

Hoosier Gloss Laundry and Corn Starch is worth every cent of the correct price, which is 10c. But on big Annex days we place it on the counters as a bargain. It will be sold assorted or all the same kind on Wednesday, at 5 packages for 29c

FLANNELETTE BLANKETS $1.24

Whether you prefer white or grey you will secure a blanket of sterling quality and comfortable weight. The size is 68 x 78 inches which is very generous and very handy in every household. Their real price should be $1.50 and good value at that, but for Wednesday they will be, per pair $1.24

ART JAPANESE MATS, 26c.

These are the large size (3 ft. by 6 ft.) and never before offered at this low price. For the lawn, verandah, hall, bedroom or bathroom, they are admirably suited. In fact there is nothing else that can really take the place of a Japanese Mat around the home. They are light, easily cleaned, and who would be without one when they are each 26c

Annex Laundry Soap 9 bars for 25c

ONLY ON SPECIAL OCCASIONS LIKE THE VICTORIA DAY ANNEX can we offer such value for a quarter. Each bar is the full 5c size, and possesses sterling cleansing properties. It is made especially for our Annex trade, and any housekeeper who has used it will gladly recommend it to you. It is only because of the immense quantity that we sell that we are able to quote such a very low figure. Victoria Annex only 9BARS 25c

All Satin Underskirts

A NEW SHIPMENT OF THESE $3.00 SKIRTS HAS JUST ARRIVED FROM EUROPE. Cut according to fashion's dictates on strictly tailored straight lines, and being narrow in width they are most suitable for wear with the prevailing modes. They are made entirely of good quality Satin with plain top and deep pleated flounce. Dozens have been sold to satisfied customers for $3.00 and they make a strong appeal to the woman who loves fine apparel when within reach of her purse. This is the third shipment we have received and is evidence of the popularity of this smart Skirt. The colors are Cerise, Black, Turqoise, Blue, Cinnamon, Navy, Royal, Petunia, Old Rose, Amethyst and Emerald. They will be displayed in the window and a glance will convince you of their superior quality, yet very low price. REGULAR $3.00 VALUE FOR $1.49

White Bed Spreads, Large Size 83c

THIS FULL DOUBLE BED SIZE SPREAD IS OUR REGULAR $1.25 LINE. Medium weight and of splendid Venetian patterns, with nicely hemmed ends. The good fabric of which they are made means many trips to the washtub, and the retaining of the spotless whiteness in which housekeepers take much pride. Each spread may be thoroughly examined before you decide to purchase it. And each Spread that leaves the Annex next Wednesday means a real bargain for the purchaser. Victoria Day Annex 83c

TENDERS FOR DREDGING

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for dredging, Collingwood," will be received until 4.00 P.M., Thursday, June 5, 1913, for dredging required at Collingwood, Ontario.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied, and signed with the actual signatures of the tenderers.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Department of Public Works, Ottawa, and plan of work may be seen at the Office of the Assistant Chief Engineer of Public Works, Ottawa, and the Office of the District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont. Tenders must include the towing of the plant to and from the work. Dredges and tugs not owned and registered in Canada shall not be employed in the performance of the work contracted for. Contractors must be ready to begin work within thirty days after the date they have been notified of the acceptance of their tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted check on a chartered bank payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for five per cent. (5 p.c.) of the contract price, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,

MUMMY'S SPIRIT TOOK VENGEANCE

So Believes Only Survivor of Party of Five Who Removed Egyptian Priestess

During the course of a visit to Canada Dr. R. R. Craig of Manchester, England, told a weird story of a series of tragic occurrences with which he was closely associated.

Dr. Craig is the sole remaining member of that famous party of five young Englishmen who conveyed the mummy of the Priestess of the Amen-Ra from Egypt to England in the fall of 1884. He alone managed to escape the "hoodoo" which pursued those who had anything to do with the fateful relic of ancient Egypt.

"Magazines and newspapers exhausted their imaginative powers in describing the mummy and its history," said Dr. Craig, "but none of them gave an accurate account of the fate of the original party. Two brothers of mine were senior members. One of there was accidentally shot before the boat reached England, the other was crippled for life in a runaway. The third member of the party was an American by the name of Brown, who met a long series of financial reverses and died broken-hearted just three years after transporting the mummy.

"As for those who had to do with the mummy in England, there is nothing but one long tale of disaster. The man who drove the cart that conveyed the mummy to the museum died mysteriously on the following day, and another who helped carry it into the museum had both his legs cut off in a cartage accident.

"The first man to photograph the dead object fell and broke his machine and hurt his face dangerously and to cap the climax the newspaper man that wrote about it was drowned the next week.

"Now all this may be mere coincidence, but I am inclined to think differently because I have investigated the matter and know that the above actually happened. Personally I think that there is an evil genius haunting the strange mummy. Tradition has it that the Princess Amen-Ra was a mystic who enjoyed extraordinary powers of second sight while alive."

SWIMS 16 MILES AN HOUR

But Frenchman Uses Apparatus With Screw Propeller

A Frenchman has been interesting his compatriots by swimming at the speed of 16 miles an hour. To be strictly accurate, however, he does not swim at all but merely operates a screw propelled apparatus that goes through the water with him lying upon it. A plank about six feet long has metal floats at each end. At the rear end is a screw propeller of the type used on motorboats and driven by means of pedals. The swimmer lies flat on this plank and pedals as if he was riding a bicycle. He uses his arms chiefly to direct his course and to maintain his balance on the plank. The revolving propeller provides all the impetus necessary. An advantage is that the user need not necessarily know how to swim without it.

UNCLAIMED BANK BALANCES

Two-thirds of a Million Dollars Lying in Canadian Vaults

A blue book issued at Ottawa giving a list of unclaimed balances in Canadian banks, shows that some thousands of depositors throughout Canada have for some reason or other left with the banks a total of $677,147, to which no one has laid claim for years. The unclaimed balances run from a few cents up to several thousand dollars, over a score being in the neighborhood of five thousand dollars.

"A Man of Straw"

The legal expressions, "a man of straw," and "straw-bail," meaning a worthless person, or one who deceives the authorities into accepting him as a security on bad grounds, dates from a time when idle fellows hung about the law courts ready to give false evidence or to go bail for anyone who would pay them. They were called "straw-shoes," as they put wisps of straw in their shoes, either as a badge or to ease their consciences when they swore they owned sufficient land—represented by the straw—to go bail for a prisoner. The "straw-shoes" swiftly degenerated into professional perjurers, ready to swear anything. They [illegible] till comparatively recent times in Ireland, hated by their neighbors.

NOTICE TO CONSUMERS OF GUINNESS'S FOREIGN EXTRA STOUT

MESSRS. ARTHUR GUINNESS, SON & CO., LTD., of St. James's Gate Brewery, Dublin, find it necessary, from circumstances which have come to their notice, to direct the attention of the public to the following facts with regard to their Foreign Extra Stout, which is supplied to the Canadian Market in bottle only.

1. Guinness's Foreign Extra Stout is manufactured of one quality only, and is supplied in common to all Bottlers. Any difference noticeable in the Beer by the consumer must be attributed to the system of bottling, and not to the manufacture.
2. Guinness's Foreign Extra Stout is brewed only from Malt and Hops; no substitutes or antiseptics have ever been used in connection with its manufacture.
3. Guinness's Foreign Extra Stout must bear Messrs. Guinness's well-known label, on which appears their Trade Mark, the Harp.
4. Guinness's Foreign Extra Stout is brewed only at St. James's Gate Brewery, in the City of Dublin, Ireland.

EXPERIENCE WITH
Sanol's Remedies
THE SANOL MFG. CO.,
WINNIPEG.
Jan. 22, 1912.
Dear Sirs.—
It is just one year ago that we put in the first stock of SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES CURE, and we wish to state that we have been amazed at the remarkable sale of these remedies. We have had many repeat orders in both our stores and have sold retail $1000.00 worth of these remedies. In spite of all these sales we have yet to hear of one dissatisfied customer, while many have come back to tell us of the wonderful cures resulting from the Medicine. Another striking feature of this business is that so many customers come in stating that SANOL has cured Mr. —— their intimate friend, and they wished to try it for themselves.
Wishing you continued success, we are, Yours truly,
ANDREW'S DRUG STORE,

TRACING MAN'S DESCENT

Scientists to See Which Race is Nearest the Ape

An attempt is to be made at the Imperial Research Laboratory at Munich to determine, by blood precipitin experiments, which of the races of men bears the closest relationship to the ape.

As the case now stands, there is general agreement among scientists that man and the ape are descended from a common ancestor; but as to whether the black, the white, the red, or the yellow man, the pygmy, the giant, or the medium-sized man, was the original human type there are strong differences of opinion. One body of theorists holds that the negro is a degenerated white type, while another insists that the white man is evolved from an ancient black type.

My Lady of Doubt

BY RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "Love Under Fire," "My Lady of the North" and other stories

ILLUSTRATIONS BY HENRY THIEDE

Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1911

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Major Lawrence, son of Judge Lawrence of Virginia, whose wife was a Lee, is sent on a perilous mission by Gen. Washington, just after the winter at Valley Forge.

CHAPTER II—Disguised in a British uniform arrives within the enemy's lines.

CHAPTER III—The Major attends a great fete and saves the "Lady of the Blended Rose" from mob. He later meets the girl at a brilliant ball.

CHAPTER IV—Trouble is started over a waltz, and Lawrence is urged by his partner, Mistress Mortimer, (the Lady of the Blended Rose), to make his escape.

CHAPTER V—Lawrence is detected as a spy by Captain Grant of the British army, who agrees to a duel.

CHAPTER VI—The duel is stopped by Grant's friends and the spy makes a dash for liberty, swimming a river following a narrow escape.

CHAPTER VII—The Major arrives at the shop of a blacksmith, who is friendly, and knows the Lady of the Blended Rose.

CHAPTER VIII—Captain Grant and rangers arrive and search the blacksmith shop in vain for the spy.

CHAPTER IX—Lawrence joins the minute men who capture Grant and his train.

CHAPTER X—Major Lawrence is made prisoner by an Indian and two white men.

CHAPTER XI—Lawrence's captors lock him in a strong cell, where he meets Peter the jailer.

CHAPTER XII—Peter advises Lawrence not to attempt escape as "some one" will send for him.
